THE WELL DRESSED WOMAN

Collarless Gowns For Warm Weather—Princess Effects.

Collarless gowns are again being worn during the hot weather, and, indeed, this is both a dainty and a practical style, for in warm weather a collar becames mussed right away, besides being most uncomfortable and spoiling the shape of the neck.

The elbow sleeve is a distinct feature of summer gowns, and many lace dresses are made both collarless and with elbow sleeves. These lace gowns are often softened with mousseline de soie insertions. Apricot and deep cream shades are the newest and smartest in lace, and they are as a rule made over foundations of white taffeta and chiffon. Chiffon must be used generously in a gown of this sort to give the proper soft, luxurious effect.

Princess effects, consisting of a high skirt and a beautifully embroidered bolero, are among the smart novelties, while high belts of all kinds continue to be the only fashionable ones worn.

The picture shows a white mull gown trimmed with valenciennes lace. The wide belt is of lavender taffeta, and the small bows used in trimming are likewise of this material. The hat is a simple white straw shape trimmed with lilacs. JUDIC CHOLLET.

MIDSUMMER STYLES.

New Tailor Made Coats—Brown Hollands, Blue and White Drills.

For semidressy wear, when traveling, in hotels a white taffeta skirt and a lace waist are admirable.

Many of the new tailor made coats boast short basques, while the severe three-quarter directoire coat has been worn for some time in Paris. The coat which is made a little longer in the front than in the back is always smart and becoming, as also is the loose Eton, which is youthful and becoming to slender figures. An attractive gray canvas costume seen recently showed three big tucks at intervals around the skirt, with some fancy black and gold braid at the top of each. The bolero coat was held in at the waist with a deep black and gold braided band and showed a daintily braided waistcoat and an inner vest of tucked muslin and valenciennes lace. This was worn with a three cornered hat of white, trimmed with black and gold cords and a single waving bird of paradise plume.

Some brown hollands and dark blue and white drills are made up effectively this season with the real old fashioned sailor blouse worn over a pretty white muslin front or shirt waist. The skirts, of course, just clear the ground all around. Some are trimmed with coarse lace or borders of oriental embroidery; others have strappings of the material, which, if neatly done, is perhaps more effective. A neat suede or kid band is an appropriate finish to a gown of this description.

The picture shows a child's dress of batiste and embroidery. The plain skirt has a double ruffle, and a quaint touch is added by the Dutch cap of lace and blue ribbon.

A ROMANCE OF THE DAYS WHEN "THE GREAT LORD HAWKE" WAS KING OF THE SEA

BY

"You hear, Josette?" cried the girl, turning delightedly to the other, "we won't have to play any more that you are a knight. Monsieur says he will be my knight. So few gentlemen come here, monsieur; we see no one," she went on, with a stateliness and ease which quite belied the ragged doll at her feet, the Persian dolls by her side, the short dress, and general air of unformed and undeveloped womanhood about her. "Monsieur le Marquis is here, of course. And Monsieur de Kersaint, who was a friend of my father's comes sometimes, and the masters of the dance, and the masters of the music, and the masters of the art, and all the other tiresome masters, and Jean-Renaud, so that I am glad to find a gentlemen—Monsieur is gentile, of course?"

"I hope so, mademoiselle. I trust mademoiselle may find me so at any rate."

"Monsieur looks so. Is it not so, Josette?" frankly continued the child.

"Oh, indeed, yes, mademoiselle!" exclaimed the embarrassed but acquiescent maid.

"I do not doubt monsieur's breeding, but a maiden, motherless like I, monsieur, must be very careful how she takes a knight without finding out all about him, you see. Monsieur's family is old?"

"Very old, mademoiselle," answered the young man, smiling at the little comedy.

"Monsieur is an American, and America was only discovered—let me see—'tis scarce 300 years since, is it not, Josette?"

"Yes, mademoiselle, certainly," answered Josette, still agreeably concurring, although she knew nothing about it.

"But my family was English long before that time, mademoiselle," answered Grafton, "and Norman before that."

"Oh, you are part French, then?"

"My heart is all French, at least since I have met you, mademoiselle."

"Now, that is nicely said. You are tres gentile indeed, sir, and your family is old—not as old as the de Rohans, though."

"Mademoiselle, is anything so old or so beautiful as the de Rohans?"

"As to the age, monsieur, there is no doubt, but as to the other, there are only grandfather and myself left, and I am sure he is not beautiful, though he's very wise, and so good to me that I think him lovely. As for me," she regarded herself mournfully, looking from her dainty feet at her long bony legs, her flat chest—she even seemed introspectively to be surveying her own countenance in the mirror of her memory. She shrugged her shoulders at last, and Philip interrupted her meditations by saying:

"Mademoiselle, I think you charming."

"But you, monsieur," she responded, "if you are to be my true knight and servitor, must think me beautiful. Knights always do that in the books, you know."

"'Tis an easy task your ladyship lays upon me," he replied gallantly. "If I am set to no more difficult undertaking than that to prove my devotion, I shall be lightly treated."

"Oh, of course I shall find you harder things to do than that. I can not have a knight who will not do great things for me."

"Ah, here comes Jean-Renaud!" he continued. "Well, monsieur sergeant, will you break a lance with me in honor of Mademoiselle de Rohan?"

"Sir?" cried Jean-Renaud in great surprise.

"I maintain that she is the most beautiful lady in Brittany."

"In the world, Sir Philip, you should say, unless there is some beautiful English lady who has your heart."

A shade of anxiety swept over the youthful face at this thought, which was at once dispelled by his perfectly truthful answer:

"There is no English or any other lady except you, beauteous princess."

"How nice that is! I think you are the nicest knight I ever dreamed of."

"Thank you. Now, Jean-Renaud, shall we repair to the tilt-yard?"

"Monsieur mystifies me," answered the old sergeant.

"You agree, then, that mademoiselle is the——"

"Why, monsieur, we are all devoted to mademoiselle," responded Jean-Renaud simply. "Is it a game monsieur plays? If so, we are all her servitors."

"No, no, Jean-Renaud, I will have no knight but Sir Philip!" cried mademoiselle.

"You seem already to have made the acquaintance of my granddaughter, Capt. Grafton," interrupted the marquis, turning the corner of the house at the moment.

"Acquaintance, Monsieur le Marquis? She has done me the honor to constitute me her royal knight, and I am trying to induce Jean-Renaud to break a spear in her behalf."

"Will he not make a proper knight, grandpa, this English gentleman?" asked Anne, fluttering to her grandfather.

"Proper knight indeed, my child," answered the old man, humoring her mood as he fondly kissed her, "and I congratulate you. Meanwhile let us descend from the romantic to the material. Breakfast is served. Monsieur Grafton, will you take your little lady and precede me? C'est bien," he soliloquized, taking a pinch of snuff as he calmly surveyed the young man and the little girl walking ceremoniously toward the door. "A pretty piece of play. I shall take care it stops in sport. The thorn watches the rose. Anne de Rohan mates with no foreigner, much less with an enemy."

CHAPTER VII.

IN THE OLD WATCH-TOWER.

GRAFTON did not find the time of his imprisonment hang heavily on his hands. An only child, whose mother, like Anne de Rohan's, had died in his infancy, he had been early sent to sea. He knew but little of family life, therefore, and even less of children. Through his connections and influence he was not without some acquaintance with the high life of the court of England—a somewhat unusual privilege for a young naval officer—and he easily moved in the first circles in America when his duties permitted him a rare visit there. Mingling in this good society he had acquired an ease and manner which, added to his native breeding and instinctive dignity, enabled him to bear himself gracefully wherever he found himself—but he had no experience with young girls of the age of the young countess.

Fortunately his was a sunny, lively disposition, full of laughter and humor, which made it not difficult for him to enter into the spirit of the play in accordance with his new friend's fancies. He had been attracted in some strange way to the little de Rohan from the first moment he had seen her—nay, from that morning hour when he had only heard her in the garden—and the romantic friendship which she had instituted between them, and upon which he had entered to please her and as a pastime for a prisoner, unconsciously assumed a permanent aspect.

He took part in the play with a zest which surprised him, and the more he was thrown in contact with the strange and peculiar mind of the girl the more she interested him. She was a singular mixture of the young and the old, the very childish and the very wise. She stood, as it were, poised half-way between the intellectual level of Josette, her playmate, on the one hand, and of the courtly old marquis, her preceptor and guide, on the other.

She was too old to play at dolls, he thought, too young to play at love. And yet she had done the one and was doing the other, although the "adorable Toto" had been neglected of late for the more adorable Philip. Shrewdness, wit, and common sense mingled in equal measure with unbounded credulity and the most romantic imagination. And her impetuosity and abandon were as evident as were her wisdom or her innocence.

Grafton kissed the little brown hand so often that he rather grew to like it. Every day brought him a different love-token of some sort and a new and imaginary task to be achieved. But Mademoiselle Anne at last tired of simulation—the most obstinate imagination will weary in the end—and determined to endeavor to impart a touch of realism to the pretty game.

One day, therefore, she took him into one of the rooms of the high tower, the keep or watch-tower, the oldest part of the chateau, which he had never visited before. There she told him a tale of one of the ancient ladies of Rohan who had a lover who came from an alien and antagonistic family, who gained access to her chamber by climbing in some strange way the wall or face of the tower, until he reached the oriel window before them. He was finally caught and killed by the lords of the house on the threshold of the very room in which they were standing, she said, and she wondered if Sir Philip could, or would, have done that thing.

"Let us go to the window and look out, your little ladyship, and we will see," answered the pseudo knight gaily. "I am a sailor. I can climb almost anything that any one else can ascend."

Together and hand in hand the two stepped out on the little balcony overlooking the sea. Just outside the oriel window, the wall of the castle, following the coast line, turned sharply, making a narrow re-entrant angle where it joined the round tower. The tower and the wall were built of rough stone and their surfaces were much broken by jutting projections. The wall and tower sloped slightly inward from the base to the top.

Philip gravely surveyed the stone surface of the weather-beaten tower sweeping below the little platform on which he stood, and made up his mind that a daring climber taking advantage of the irregularities and projections in the stone, and favored by the slope and the angle, might, if he had a cool head, gain the balcony, provided no one opposed his ascent. Indeed, since the Baron de Croisic, the unfortunate lover of the legend had done so, he felt sure that he himself could accomplish the feat—given a sufficient incentive, of course. At the foot of the tower lay the little bay spoken of before, and in the bay a small boat was moored.

He looked again and more carefully, leaning far out over the wall, and with the trained observation of a sailor to whom the minutest indication may be of paramount value, he took careful note of the several projecting stones, the slope of the walls, and rapidly mapped out a series of movements by which the feat could be achieved.

"Yes," he said at last, "it could be done; it would be difficult, dangerous, in fact, but it could be done—given a sufficient incentive."

"Am I a sufficient—what is it you say? I know not that word, I think."

"You are incentive enough for anything. Shall I try it?" he asked lightly

LARGEST IN THE STATE

LINDEN, N. J.

Beautiful and Accessible

2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,

14 MILES FROM NEW YORK

On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

FOR INFORMATION concerning lots in these beautiful Park Cemeteries, and FREE transportation to prospective lot buyers, apply at once to any LEADING UNDERTAKER or offices of the Associations:

EIGHT MINERS DEAD

Barringer Gold Mine Disaster at Gold Hill, S. C.

MANAGER ONLY ESCAPED DEATH.

Pond of Water Near Shaft Broke Loose From Excessive Rains, and Flood Poured Through, Drowning the Miners.

RALEIGH, N. C., Aug. 12.—A special from Salisbury, N. C., says information has been received here that the Barringer gold mine, located near Gold Hill, N. C., Rowan county, has been suddenly flooded with water, causing the instant death of eight men employed in the mine.

The dead are William Canup, William Stirewalt, Joseph Magrum, Robert Deberry, Samuel Price and three others whose names are unobtainable.

Nine men were in the mine shaft when a large pond located near the entrance to the mine suddenly broke loose, the breaking being caused by excessive rains, the waters rushing in in terrific and deadly force to a depth of about a hundred feet upon the men, who were powerless to save themselves. Mr. Thomas Moyl, manager of the plant, was the only one to escape death.

The mine is filled with water and none of the dead bodies has yet been recovered. An unusual downpour of rain is reported in the vicinity of the mine, much damage being done to property. The flooded mine is the property of the Whitney Reduction company of Salisbury and Pittsburg, Pa., and has been operated for a number of years.

A Desperado's Suicide.

HELENA, Mont., Aug. 12.—Isaac Gravelle, on trial for robbing a powder house near Helena last September of powder which was used in wrecking Northern Pacific trains, has committed suicide here in the basement of Governor Toole's home. Gravelle escaped from Lewis and Clark county officers as he was about to be taken to the courtroom. He first fatally shot Tony Kerizek, a deputy sheriff. Pursued by deputies, Gravelle took refuge in an alley beside the residence of Governor Toole. A pistol fight took place in the alley, and Gravelle then ran into the basement of the governor's house, where he shot and killed himself. When his body was picked up he was found to have been wounded several times in his fight with the deputies.

Fusion In Nebraska.

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 12.—After a session lasting all night the Democrats and Populists of Nebraska completed their state ticket here. The division of officers gives the Populists five and the Democrats three. The completed ticket is as follows: Governor, George W. Berge, Populist, of Lincoln; lieutenant governor, Dr. A. Townsend, Democrat, of Franklin county; secretary of state, R. E. Watzke, Democrat, of Richardson county; state treasurer, John M. Osbourne, Populist. The Democratic platform contains a hearty indorsement of the national ticket.

Personal Invitation For President.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—President Roosevelt has received a personal invitation to visit the St. Louis exposition from William H. Thompson, treasurer of the exposition company. Mr. Thompson has been taking a brief vacation in the east and is now en route to St. Louis. The president did not encourage Mr. Thompson in the belief that he would attend the fair. He expressed his appreciation of the cordial invitation extended to him, but said that it probably would be impossible for him to accept it, as he could not undertake to make such a trip during the campaign.

Philippine Day at World's Fair.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 12.—A reunion of the Army of the Philippines has opened on the Philippine reservation, at least 1,000 members of the society from various parts of the United States being present. A session for the consideration of routine business was held in the Visayan theater, with General Charles King, the president, in the chair. Among the distinguished men present were Secretary of War Taft and Generals Chaffee, Merritt and Hale.

A Welcome For Fairbanks.

MARYSVILLE, O., Aug. 12.—Ten thousand people gathered here to welcome United States Senator Charles W. Fairbanks, Republican nominee for vice president. Mr. Fairbanks was born in Unionville, not far from here. He was accompanied to Marysville by his wife and aged mother, the latter a resident of Springfield. On his arrival many old friends, some of whom he had gone to school with, crowded around to say, "How do you do, Charlie?"

Will Run Under Open Shop Policy.

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—A committee from the Chicago Federation of Labor called on the ready made clothing manufacturers and asked the employers to meet the striking cutters, bushelmen and trimmers. The firms flatly refused, saying that they had decided to operate under the open shop policy and that they had nothing to discuss with their employees.

DIAMOND DUST.

Badgley, the famous Alis pitcher, is spending two weeks at Ocean Grove.

"Billy" Lauder, formerly captain of the Alis team, is now playing for Madison.

The Plainfield Press baseball editor calls The Messenger's attention to the old West End Crescent series, saying that the Crescents "trimmed" the West Ends "good and proper" in "olden times." The Messenger desires to remind the Plainfielder that the West Ends did a goodly portion of that "trimming," soundly drubbing the Crescents many times. We can refer him to the files of this paper, if he would like to see the scores.—Somerset Messenger.

ROD AND GUN.

Letter-carrier William H. Thorn and Frank VanWinkle are spending a few days at Piermont-on-the-Hudson, fishing.

Reports from Sewaren today are to the effect that weakfish have left the mud flats south of Ackers for the old feeding-grounds around the red buoy, where some very good catches were made by local anglers. Harry Bosberg landed fifteen and August Schultz caught twelve. The largest number was taken by Samuel Clark, who hauled in twenty-one. Other boats average ten each.

MACHINISTS TURN CAMPERS.

Campbell Press Men Will Spend Two Weeks Enjoying Outdoor Life.

Finding themselves with leisure time through the removal of the shop a party of Campbell Press Company employes have organized a camping trip which will begin Monday. They will pitch tents at Kreischerville, S. I., just opposite Boynton Beach, and spend two weeks in boating, fishing and enjoying outdoor life.

Among those who will be included in the party are Richard Kearns, Frank Connors, Frank Rinehart, Aaron Mattox, "Peewee" Stapleton, Harry Dilts and Alexander Campbell. The number will be greatly increased before the two weeks are up.

Miss Alexander, of East Fifth street, is spending some weeks at Sayre, Pa.

Halstead C. Compton, of West Front street, is still very lame from the effects of a wound on the ankle bone, caused by a large nail being forced into the flesh by a piece of timber which he was handling.

BEHIND CLOSED PORTALS

HAPPENINGS OF THE LOCAL FRATERNAL ORDERS.

At the meeting of the Plainfield Division, No. 4, A. O. H., to be held next Wednesday night, delegates will be elected to represent the division at the annual State convention to be held at Camden, August 23. Of the 350 representatives from the various State divisions, the local order is entitled to five, but it is possible that but three regular delegates will go from here.

The convention, will be for the purpose of electing State officers, following the national convention held at the St. Louis Exposition, last month, and will in turn be followed by the election of officers in county and division. The exercises will commence with mass held at the Church of the Immaculate Conception in Camden, at 8 o'clock in the morning. Following this will be the business session at the Catholic Lyceum, called to order by State President James A. Brennan.

The most important business of the convention will be the change which will probably be made in the State constitution to make it conform with the National constitution, which was recently changed and amended. Aside from this, there will be the usual routine business of the convention, including reports from the various county and city divisions.

During the convention, headquarters for the delegates will be at the West Jersey Hotel. The women of the Auxiliary order will serve a banquet to delegates at the Catholic Lyceum directly after the morning session. A special programme of entertainment and sight-seeing has been arranged for any who wish to stay over at Camden after the day's business sessions.

AUTO AND WAGON COLLIDE.

Touring Car Wrecked in a Mixup on West Front Street.

A heavy Packard touring car, driven by Mrs. C. I. Hood, of Myrtle avenue, collided with a grocer's wagon on West Front street this morning shortly after 9 o'clock. In turning from one side of the street to the other, Mrs. Hood, who was alone in the machine, in some way lost control the big car bumping heavily into the wagon, which was standing at the curb. Mrs. Hood was roughly shaken, and the front of the machine was broken in, but no damage was done to the wagon. The machine was subsequently removed to Loughead's East Second street garage for repairs.

Visited Bloomfield Council.

Fifty-five members of Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., visited the James W. Boyd Council at Bloomfield, in a body last night. The trip was made in a specially chartered car, which left the North Avenue trolley station at 7:30. The Plainfielders were royally entertained and returned home at 2 o'clock this morning. The committee in charge consisted of Jesse M. Scull, P. H. Lafourette and George Wilson.

BIDS FOR BOROUGH SCHOOL RECEIVED

The Figures Are Within the Amount Available for the New Building.

PLANS ARE MODIFIED

THE CONTRACTS WILL BE AWARDED IN A FEW DAYS.

The Bids Were Given in Parts, the Total of the Lowest Being $30,520—Names of the Competing Contractors.

For the second time since the appropriation was made, bids were submitted for the construction of the new borough school building at a special meeting of the Board of Education last evening. They were given in parts and the total of the lowest in each instance foots up to $30,520, which is within the amount available. The grounds and buildings committee will meet in a few days and award the contracts.

The bids as submited were as follows: Mason work, William H. Pangborn, $15,030; B. F. Tallamy & Brother, $16,195; William C. Smith, $14,400; carpentering, Herman Hansen, $10,571; George Hummer, $10,773; John Abbott & Son, $10,950; John Haurand, $11,125; heating and ventilating, John S. Sayward, $4,335; American Heating and Ventilating Company, $4,926; Fuller & Warren, $3,950; D. J. Galbraith, $4,415; painting, L. B. Bodine, $550; Woolston & Buckle, $595; Harold Hansen, $627; plumbing, D. J. Galbraith, $585; A. M. Girffen, $906.80; electrical work, Craig & Apgar, $464; Allen B. Laing, $490.

According to these figures the lowest bidders are William C. Smith, Herman Hansen, Fuller & Warren, L. B. Bodine, D. J. Galbraith and Craig & Apgar. When bids were first submitted the total was far in excess of the appropriation and Architect A. L. C. Marsh was instructed to revise the plans. This was done by substituting cheaper materials and by deferring various changes and repairs to the present structure which were included.

SCARCITY OF BRICK.

Recent Wet Weather Has Increased the Price to $7.50 a Thousand.

As the result of the recent bad weather, the scarcity and expense of brick has lately increased, and brick manufacturers all over the northern part of the State are finding difficulty in supplying the demands of builders.

The reason for this dearth in the manufacture of artifical stone is very easily accounted for when it is considered that the process of making brick, in nearly all yards, is carried on in the open air. When the clay used is moulded into the form of bricks, the latter are laid in rows to allow the superfluous moisture to evaporate under the action of the sun, before the baking process. It can thus be seen that the wet weather has been far from desirable for the brick makers and the result is that the price has gone up $1.50 in six weeks. The present price is $7.50 a thousand. The shortage of stock is due to the fact that the manufacturers have stopped making brick until fair dry weather, and the reserved stock is about exhausted.

This condition of affairs makes itself felt in the ranks of the builders as well as the makers, for the demand for building material is not decreasing. The builders' estimates are necessarily made on the chance that they will be able to get material. Therefore they are unable to make close bids, and the owners of the property has to pay the extra cost.

Metuchen to Have a Saving's Bank.

Metuchen will soon be able to boast of a new savings bank, with a capitalization of $25,000. This week the matter was brought before the Common Council, by a number of boroughites who have Charles G. Nelson, a prominent Philadelphia capitalist, behind them. He has offered to take $10,000 worth of stock if the bank is capitalized at $25,000. Mr. Nelson is vice president of the Williamsport, Pa., bank, and is prominent in several other financial institutions. A law passed by the Legislature allows banks to be incorporated in small towns at a capitalization of $25,000. The shares will be sold at par.

Miss Edna Gillman, of East Sixth street, has gone to Brooklyn to remain two weeks with friends.

CHANGE IN ALIS CLUB NAME

A MEETING TO BE HELD TONIGHT FOR THAT PURPOSE.

Definite action regarding the change of name of the Alis Club to the Plainfield Athetic Club will be taken at the meeting to be held at the clubhouse at 8 o'clock tonight. For a long time, fans have felt that the team should be known as a Plainfield organization and should represent the town on the diamond as the Westfield players do. In furtherance of this idea, the meeting has been called, and an opportunity will be presented for informal discussion of the subject among the members.

It is rumored that important changes in the affairs of the club will be effected during the coming week.

A reported decision of Manager Johnson to use "Letsy" Davis in the box in next week's game with the Cuban Giants, has caused considerable feeling among the fans. Supporters of the team strongly disapprove of the intended action.

QUESTION OF TAX EXEMPTION

THE COURT OF ERRORS AND APPEALS WILL DECIDE IT.

Shall firemen be exempt from taxation? This question, though once decided in the affirmative, is again agitating the minds of those interested by the recent refusal of the tax assessor of Rockaway, N. J., to grant such exemption in the case of Edward Tippet, an active fireman of that place. The matter has been in the court once but was decided in the negative, in favor of the tax assessor. Refusing to abide by this decision, the State Firemen's Relief Association has carried the question to the Court of Errors and Appeals, and upon the verdict of that body rests the action of tax assessors in the future.

This decision directly effects nearly five hundred firemen, active and exempt, in this city, and the outcome of the case will be watched with great interest. Because of the numerous cases on the court docket to be brought up at the fall session, it is not known exactly how soon a decision will be rendered. In speaking of the matter yesterday, Chief Doane, of the local fire department, said that he is inclined to think that the court's decision will favor the firemen.

"For the last forty years and more," said the Chief, "both active and exempt firemen have been free from taxation where their taxable property amounts to $500 value or less. This Rockaway tax assessor's action has caused all the trouble, but I believe that when the court does render a decision, it will favor the firemen."

William A. Collier, counsel engaged by the State Firemen's Relief Association, will be assisted in the case by Richard V. Lindabury, special counsel engaged by the association. Though the court's decision affects national guardsmen, soldiers and widows of soldiers to the number of several thousand, no one but the firemen have thus far taken definite action protesting the decision.

Kenneth Robbie to be Married.

Kenneth Robbie, the boy's secretary of the Y. M. C. A., left this morning for a month's vacation, during which time he will be married at Waltham, Mass., to Miss Florence Hughes, who for a time taught in the Irving School in this city. Mr. Robbie will spend part of his vacation at his former home in New Haven. While at the latter place a reception will be given to Mr. Robbie and his wife, which will probably be attended by several of their Plainfield friends. Mr. Robbie expects to return to this city about September 15.

The August Suburbanite.

The August number of The Suburbanite, a monthly magazine published by the passenger department of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, is of unusual value to those interested in suburban life. The pleasures of houseboats, of which there are about 200 moored each summer in the streams around New York, are well described by William B. McCormick. Another article treats of the lower tier of Jersey coast resorts from Ocean Grove to Point Pleasant.

A Great Chance for Bargains.

The Boston Cloak and Fur Store, 242 West Front street, is now conducting a ten-days' sale of ladies' suits, skirts, waists, jackets and dresses, at amazing bargains. They have engaged extra help for this sale and intend to clean out all their present stock regardless of cost. The sale began this morning.

NEW RULING FOR PRIMARIES

ATTORNEY-GENERAL M'CARTER INTERPRETS THE LAW.

In response to a request from Republican State Chairman Frank O. Briggs, Attorney-General McCarter, gave an opinion yesterday in which he decides that hereafter all elections for delegates to primary conventions under the primary election law must be made by wards.

The custom has heretofore been to select delegates by election districts, but an amendment to the general election law, passed last winter, changed the method, according to the Attorney-General's ruling.

The result will be that it will be necessary for local municipal officers to place on the same ticket in the coming primaries the names of all the delegates of a party nominated for the State, Congressional, county and city conventions, together with the names of all the party nominees for minor offices, such as Alderman, School Commissioner, Justice of the Peace and Constable.

The decision is the outcome of a controversy due to a difference of opinion between City Clerks Connely, of Newark, and O'Donnell, of Jersey City, the latter maintaining that the law did not change the old method of electing delegates by districts.

The effect of the decision will be that the voters of each party at the primaries in the city wards will be compelled to vote for from seventy to eighty candidates each, and the ballots will have to be printed in a form resembling the blanket ballot.

TWO YOUTHFUL FARMERS

SONS OF MR. AND MRS. WOODHULL SUCCESSFUL IN RAISING PRODUCE.

Two of the most successful farmers to be found in this part of the State are Roy and Edson Woodhull, the young sons of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd T. Woodhull, of West Front street. Although having but a limited experience, they have succeeded in raising a large crop of potatoes, tomatoes, sweet corn, egg plants and other vegetables. Mr. Woodhull has a strong fancy for farming and the ability shown in his sons is undoubtedly inherited. Mr. Woodhull has plenty of land at his home and last season he decided to have a garden. He employed an experienced man to start it and it was at this time that the boys became interested. So successful was the work of raising produce, that there was enough for the Woodhull household and to spare. Then the boys conceived the idea of branching out and their suggestion that they be allowed the privilege of selling all that was not needed at home, was willingly agreed to by the parents, who said that they could have all the money thus made. The lads now take full charge of the garden. Last season a substantial sum was collected by the young farmers, and this year the crops have been so good that even a larger amount will be made through their industry. The parents are much pleased with the results attained by their sons, believing it to be an excellent method whereby they may early begin to learn something of business matters. The produce is easily sold to neighbors and friends who are glad to help the farmers along.

FIXING RESPONSIBILITY FOR DEATH OF HOLMES

New York Authorities Will Investigate Cause of the Fatal Accident

BODY BROUGHT HERE

FUNERAL SERVICES TO BE HELD MONDAY AFTERNOON AT 2:30.

Safe Works Officials Say Contract for Installing Vault Was Let Out to W. Lindgren.

The body of Oliver Holmes, the Manganese Steel Safe employe killed by the falling of a seven-ton slab Thursday night, was brought to this city from New York, this morning. Funeral services over the body will be held from the home of John Carl, of Lee place, Monday afternoon at 2:30.

An investigation is now being conducted by the New York police to fix the responsibility for the accident but as yet it has not been determined. Milton Peterson, of Astor place, who was foreman of the gang doing the hoisting work, was arrested on a technical charge and locked up in the Church street station but was later released. It is said that rope tackling was being used and that the strain proved too much for it and it parted.

At the office of the Safe Company in this city today it was said the firm was in no way to blame for the accident as it had let out the contract for putting the vault in place to W. Lindgren. The latter hired the men, it was said, and if the tackling was defective he should have attended to it. Plainfield workmen who were present at the time the accident occurred and who narowly escaped Holmes' fate, say that the method of rigging up the tackle was not properly attended to and that a support should have been placed under the slab.

The accident occurred high up on a scaffold in the front part of the building and when the weight was lifted from him Holmes was kept there while an ambulance surgeon worked over him. In the midst of the debris and with only the dim light of a lantern the surgeon amputated his right leg and performed several other operations but without avail. Holmes died soon after reaching the hospital.

SOMERVILLE WORRIED.

West Ends Recall the Old Days With Considerable Pride.

The Plainfield papers seem very much worried over the fact that Somerville has a baseball team that would like a chance to make a few "0" on the Alis side of a score board. They even (without looking for facts) remarked about the times that the Crescents beat the old West Ends of this place. They did win four out of fourteen games, a record that they could well feel proud of in those days. But this one might better recall one of the games they did not win. We speak of the time the Crescents had a band hired to play after the game. The band was under the grandstand, out of sight, and after the game they were paid off without playing a note. (a shame to take the money), but they did. The poor old boys didn't need music after the game—they needed some good advice. We mean no offence by these reminders, but just want to impress a few of the facts on the minds of the newspaper men, as they appear on the records. — Somerset Democrat.

FUNERAL OF MISS COTTER.

Requiem Mass Held This Morning at St. Mary's Church.

Funeral services of Miss Nellie Cotter, daughter of Mrs. Susan Cotter, of West Sixth street, were held at the home this morning at 9 o'clock, and subsequently solemn requiem mass was said by Father Egan at St. Mary's church. Among the numerous floral remembrances sent by the relatives and friends of the departed, was a handsome floral piece from the clerks of Woodhull & Martin's, where Miss Cotter was employed for nearly two years. The Children of Mary, a girl's organization of St. Mary's church, had a delegation of six at the house to escort the casket to the church. Those who acted in this capacity were the Misses Mary Carney, Mary McCarthy, Elizabeth Crosby, Mamie Whalen, Margaret Kane and Margaret Higgins, all of who were personal friends of Miss Cotter. After the services at the church, interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

TROUBLES OF A JUNE BRIDE

MRS. PERRY JENKINS CLAIMS THAT HER WEDDING PRESENTS WERE RETAINED.

Bad blood between Mrs. Agnes Holmes, who takes boarders at her house on West Third street, and Rosa Jenkins, both colored, who up to a few weeks ago had lodgings on the upper floor with her husband, has caused Mrs. Jenkins to bring charges against her landlady in Justice Hand's court on grounds of retaining part of her possessions, when she moved from the place.

Confident, as she thought, of a steady boarder Mrs. Holmes was much incensed when her tenant returned to her West Third street lodgings on June 28 as a bride, the wedded wife of Perry Jenkins. Mrs. Jenkins brought with her a trousseau and wedding presents which greatly excited the envy of her landlady. Believing married life to be incomplete unless in a home of their own, the Jenkins's announced their intention of leaving Mrs. Holmes' house. At their departure, Mrs. Holmes retained some of the wedding presents and it is for the recovery of these that Mrs. Jenkins brings action.

The articles retained, as listed in the complaint consisted of "26 plates, three blue cups and saucers, seven saucers (color not designated), two red bordered towels, and a pillow case," totally valued at about $10.

Constable Peter V. Weaver served the papers in the case today and Justice Hand has set the hearing for Monday morning, at 10 o'clock.

TRAVELED THROUGH THE WEST

LUCIUS KOONS HAS A LIVELY EXPERIENCE ON A PLEASURE TOUR.

In advance of his expected arrival of by the space of two days, Lucius T. Koons, of Sandford avenue, returned yesterday, after a trip of eight weeks through the West. While away Mr. Koons was the guest of friends on a large sheep ranch in Ubet, Moutana. All through his trip his experiences were varied and exciting. On the way West he was injured in a wreck on the Burlington Railroad, at Newcastle, Wyoming, where the Pacific Coast limited collided with a stock train on a siding. Mr. Koons' experiences while rauching were equally thrilling, and the fascination of the western life has made its impression on the young man. He will probably return to the scenes of his adventure. On his return Mr. Koons went through the Yellowstone National Park, and spent several days at St. Paul, Minnesota, Chicago, Elmira and New York.

"The Castle" Struck.

During the heavy electrical storm Thursday night, a bolt descended upon the tower of Richard Moldenke's Castle, of Watchung, and crashed into the sitting room in which the family were having their usual evening devotions. The lightning rod had not yet been placed in position, and the bolt followed the corner of the tower, down through the partition between the two rooms and tore up the floor about the group. It is remarkable that the family escaped injury.

THOUSANDS ENJOY MUSIC

WEEKLY BAND CONCERTS CONTINUE TO BE AS POPULAR AS EVER.

LaVere's band concerts in Concert Park, continue to remain as popular as when the series was first started as was attested by the large gathering last evening. Fully 5,000 people were in attendance and the grandstand was filled to its capacity. The programme was an exceptionally good one, popular selections having the preference, and their rendition was highly enjoyed.

The soloists of the evening were William Redmond, who sang effectively "Don't Cry, Katie Dear" and "Just for the Sake of Society," both catchy ballads, and Edward Rubsam, giving another of his popular xylophone selections. John J. Nestor was also to have rendered solos but through a misunderstanding was unable to be present. The soloists next week will be William Corcoran and George Offerman.

Only a Chimney Fire.

Abundant soot, clogging the chimney of Tucker Johnson's home on Webster place, became ignited last evening shortly before 8 o'clock. Mrs. Johnson's cries of alarm were heard by Harry Noble, a neighbor, and he sent a telephone message to headquarters from the residence of Dr. M. O'M. Knott. The chemical engine, accompanied by Chief Doane in his gig, responded and the blaze was promptly extinguished by the use of hand extinguishers. As the fire was confined entirely to the chimney, the damage was trifling.

WEST END RESIDENTS HEAR EXCITING RUMORS

Stories That Apple Stealers Had Been Shot Draws a Big Crowd of People.

ORIGIN A MYSTERY

HALSTEAD C. COMPTON THE VICTIM OF THE WIERD REPORTS.

Meyer Sacher Supposed to Have Been One of the Injured, and His Mother Has Hysterics.

Wild rumors to the effect that one boy, then two and finally three, had been shot by Halstead C. Compton, while robbing his orchard, threw a big part of the West End into a high degree of excitement late yesterday afternoon. The vicinity of Mr. Compton's home on West Front street was soon the scene of a big gathering and people were hurrying that way from every direction before the stories afloat were found to be untrue.

Mr. Compton's orchard is one of the best in the city limits and for years has been looked upon by boys as a legitimate place from which to help themselves to everything in sight. Some years ago their depredations became so annoying to the owner that in exasperation one day he discharged a shotgun toward some pilferers and Victor Houston, a small boy, was struck by scattering shots. His father brought suit against Mr. Compton and was awarded damages. The occurrence and the litigation circumstances are well known to everyone consequently when the report of another shooting went about it was generally believed.

The matter was reported to police headquarters and Roundsman John Flynn went to Mr. Compton's home to investigate. The latter was completely ignorant of the excitement abroad in connection with his name and was dumfounded when informed that he "had shot some boys." He declarded that he had not even chased any of them out of his orchard during the afternoon as he usually has to and he was at a loss to know what caused the rumors. Mr. Compton was greatly concerned over the wild reports and asked that an investigation be made. The officer scoured the neighborhood for facts that might throw some light on the origin, but without success.

One of the boys who was supposed to have been shot is Meyer Sacher, of West Third street, and his mother was so informed by a neighbor. The woman immediately ran into the street wringing her hands and was in a state of collapse when her son appeared. He had not been near Mr. Compton's place and was as much mystified as the orchard owner over the begging of the story.

Aid Society Disbands.

By consent of all the parties interested, the Aluminum Press Works Employes' Aid Society has disbanded. The money in the treasury was divided equally among the members, the share of each amounting to about $10. The association was formed when the shop first started and provided sick and death benefits among the employes through a small payment each week. So many of the men had left the shop through the slackness, it was deemed advisable not to continue it longer.

FLEET SCATTERED

Togo Attacked Russian Ships After Sortie.

SQUADRONS FOUGHT TILL DARK

Russian Ships Fled the Fight In All Directions.

WERE BADLY PUNISHED BY SHELLS

Engagement Took Place Off Yentao Island — Askold, Novik, Another Cruiser and Destroyer Ran Into Kaiochau—Four Russian Battleships Not Reported Since the Fight.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The Japanese legation has received the following cablegram from the foreign office at Tokyo:

"Admiral Togo reports that the Russian squadron proceeded southward after the sortie from Port Arthur and were attacked by the combined Japanese fleet twenty-five miles southeast of Port Arthur. They were pursued in an easterly direction. Sharp fighting continued from 1 p. m. until sunset. The enemy apparently suffered heavy damage, and later their fire slackened greatly, while their battle formation was completely deranged.

"The Askold, the Novik, the Cesarevitch, the Pallada and some destroyers fled southward, and the rest probably fled to Port Arthur after an attack by our destroyers and torpedo boat flotilla at night. Our fleet suffered no serious damage, and the total casualties were about 170."

A Shanghai dispatch says that the Russian protected cruiser Askold has arrived at Woosung with her fifth funnel gone close to the deck, all the funnels riddled with shell holes, one gun on the port side dismounted and several large shell holes above the water line. One lieutenant and eleven men had been killed and fifty men wounded.

REAR ADMIRAL WITHOFT.
[Commander of Russian fleet.]

Dispatches from various points indicate that the attempt of the Russian Port Arthur squadron under Admiral Withoft to reach Vladivostok failed and that the vessels have become widely scattered. The battleship Cesarevitch, the cruiser Novik and a torpedo boat have arrived at Tsingchau, at the entrance of Kaiochau bay, the German concession on the southern shore of the Shangtung peninsula.

According to other dispatches the cruiser Askold is also at Tsingchau, but advices to the German foreign office do not include her. Another Russian cruiser and a torpedo boat destroyer are reported as near Shanghai and four battleships are off the Saddle islands, about seventy miles southeast of that port. Chefu reports say that one Russian torpedo boat was captured off the Chinese coast, and Tokyo hears that a number of the vessels of the squadron have returned to Port Arthur.

The German foreign office has given instructions that the uninjured Russian warships at Tsingchau must leave port within twenty-four hours.

It is the opinion here that if the Chefu expedition was a genuine cutting out affair there is no question that the Japanese have committed an offense against international law by violating Chinese neutrality and, in addition, have broken the agreement they entered into at the beginning of the war at the instance of the United States government to limit the field of warlike operations to Manchuria and Korea and their waters.

The navy department at Tokyo has issued a brief statement of the engagement with the Russian Port Arthur squadron, as follows:

"According to reports received to date, the enemy's fleet which emerged from Port Arthur was attacked by our fleet south of Yentao island. The Russian fleet fled during the night. The cruisers Askold, Novik and [illegible] other cruiser, with one torpedo boat destroyer, ran into Kiaochau bay on the evening of Aug. 11. One torpedo boat destroyer went to Chefu, and three of the enemy's battleships, one cruiser, probably the Diana; one hospital ship, two gunboats and several torpedo boat destroyers seem to have separately returned to Port Arthur between dawn and noon of Aug. 11. Our fleet appears to have sustained no damage."

Later reports say that though at least four Russian battleships appear to have reached the open sea, the cruisers Pallada, Askold and Diana and one battleship remain unaccounted for. The injuries sustained by the battleship Cesarevitch give her sanctuary in the harbor of Tsingchau, but the Novik is under notice served by the German authorities to leave. As she is very fast, being capable of making twenty-three knots an hour, there are strong hopes that she will escape unless there are Japanese cruisers awaiting her on the outside.

PARAGUAYAN REVOLT.

Naval Fight Resulted In Capture of Government Ship.

BUENOS AYRES, Aug. 13.—A number of Paraguayans have been killed or wounded in a combat between a revolutionary vessel and a steamer commandeered by the government. The latter vessel was captured and is now manned by revolutionists. The acting minister of war, who was on board the steamer, attempted to escape by jumping overboard and swimming to the river bank, but was taken prisoner before reaching the shore.

The revolutionists have seized the towns of Humaita, Villa del Pilar and Villa Franca. Tranquillity prevails in Asuncion, and the government is preparing to resist the impending attack upon the capital. Many revolutionists who entered Argentine territory unarmed are now joining the insurgents. It is expected that the insurrection will be successful.

AN APPEAL TO HARRISON.

Mayor of Chicago Asked to Work For Labor Peace.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—Mayor Carter H. Harrison was asked this morning to do what he could toward settling the stockyards strike. With all prospects of peace or even peace conferences gone, the retail meat dealers and grocers have decided to ask Mayor Harrison to take a position in the present conflict similar to the position taken by him in the street car strike last fall. The street railway strike was settled through his efforts.

At a meeting of the retail dealers a committee of ten persons was appointed to wait upon the mayor. Representatives of the strikers were at this meeting and expressed themselves as being satisfied with the plan to ask Mayor Harrison's assistance in the controversy.

TROUBLE FOR SULTAN.

British Subject Arrested at Tangier. His Goods Confiscated.

TANGIER, Aug. 13.—Hamet Jaiya, principal secretary to El Menebhi, the Morrocan minister of war, has been arrested and imprisoned here and his goods confiscated under the orders of the sultan.

Jaiya is a British subject, and the European residents are indignant at his arrest. They say that life and property, especially where British subjects are concerned, are unsafe.

The British legation has strongly protested to the Morocean government, but so far the protest has been entirely ignored.

Barnard Hassey Fatally Shot.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 13.—Melancthon Millard, sixty years old, a well known lawyer, shot and has probably fatally wounded Barnard Hassey, thirty-two years old, here. The shooting occurred in the office of the lawyer and was the result of a quarrel between the two men over the collection of a small sum of money. Millard surrendered to the police and states that he shot Hassey in self defense, the latter, with two companions, having come to his office and got into a dispute with him. At the hospital the surgeons say the chances are against Hassey's recovery.

Suspect Wanted at Beaver Falls.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—Arrested four days ago as a suspect in the holdup of the Diamond special on the Illinois Central railway near Harvey, James Wilson, who could not be connected with the train robbery, has been identified as a man wanted at Beaver Falls, Pa., for the theft of $5,000 worth of jewelry which he is alleged to have stolen from the residence of James Piper, a Beaver Falls merchant. The jewelry, consisting principally of diamond rings, was the property of Mrs. Piper and was stolen last March. Wilson was taken to Pennsylvania last night.

Carrier Pigeon Had Love Message.

ONLY UNMIXED GOOD

President Roosevelt's Speech to Porto Rican Teachers.

WELCOMED AT NATIONAL CAPITAL

"You Are Doing Work Which More Than Any Other Is Vital to the Future Prosperity of the Island," Said the President.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—President Roosevelt tendered a reception and delivered a brief speech to about 500 schoolteachers of Porto Rico, who have been in this country for several weeks attending various normal schools. The reception took place in the east room of the White House. The president addressed the teachers as follows:

"Ladies and Gentlemen—I wish to greet you with all my heart here at the national capital. It is my earnest wish, as it was the wish of my lamented predecessor and as it is the wish of the people of the United States, that only unmixed good shall come to the people of Porto Rico because of their connection with this country.

"I greet you with peculiar pleasure and interest, because this body and those like you who are engaged in the work of education in Porto Rico are doing that work which, more than any other, is vital to the future of the island. We must have education in its broadest and deepest sense—education of the heart and soul as well as of the mind—in order to fit any people to do its duty among the free peoples of progress in the world. And I trust that you here, you teachers, you men and women engaged in preparing the next generation to do its work, realize fully the weight of the responsibility resting upon you. Accordingly as you here in this room and your colleagues do your work well or ill, it depends as to how the next generation of Porto Ricans shall do their work in the world.

"I am glad to see you because of the very fact that there is this responsibility upon you. Nothing in this world comes to people who will not work. Nothing worth having comes to those who do not or are not willing to make an effort to get it, and I shall hail you here because you represent that great body of young fellows in Porto Rico who are making every effort to fit themselves, physically, mentally and morally, to do the best work of which they are capable in the world. I greet you and welcome you here."

The members of the party then were presented to the president by Samuel M. Lindsay, superintendent of public instruction of Porto Rico. President Roosevelt extended to each a cordial personal greeting.

Drowned at Cosey Beach.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 13.—Wilfred J. Berry, a member of a prominent Danbury (Conn.) family, was drowned while swimming at Cosey Beach. He had entered the water after playing baseball and was probably overheated. He went down within fifty yards of the shore and in the presence of half a hundred other bathers, none of whom was aware of the fatality. About two hours later his absence was noted, and a search led to the recovery of the body. He was twenty years old.

Commander Booth-Tucker to Leave.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—It was officially announced yesterday that in connection with the recent international congress of the Salvation Army numerous changes of territorial leaders have been arranged. Among others it has been decided that Commander Booth-Tucker will leave the United States. Arrangements are being made to conduct farewell meetings in the following cities: Chicago, Kansas City, St. Louis, Cleveland, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Boston, Buffalo, Brooklyn and New York.

Hawes, member of the Democratic notification committee from Missouri, is at Esopus today to make an urgent request that Judge Parker go to St. Louis and deliver a speech in the Coliseum. He will also urge the judge to make a vigorous campaign in the west, speaking in several states. The visit of Mr. Hawes was arranged by Chairman Taggart.

Anglo-French Bill Passed.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—The French convention bill unanimously passed its third reading in the house of commons last night amid cheers and was sent to the house of lords, where it passed its first reading. Premier Balfour, replying to a protest against the bill, said that it would be inconsistent with the generous spirit with which Great Britain desired to treat with France to delay longer.

A Little Bill For Smallpox.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 13.—The St. Louis board of health has decided to present a bill for $2,000 to the government for the maintenance of Filipinos housed at the quarantine hospital. The Filipinos were taken to the hospital to be treated for smallpox. All but two, who died, have recovered sufficiently to be returned to the reservation on the world's fair grounds. Thirty-one Filipinos were treated.

Narrow Shave For Excelsior Express

OWEGO, N. Y., Aug. 13.—The Excelsior express on the Erie railroad, eastbound from St. Louis, met with a slight accident here. The driving wheel of the engine left the rail as the train was pulling out of the village and before it had acquired much speed. The track was torn up for a short distance before the train could be stopped.

SPORTS AND ATHLETICS

William Hogenson, the Lewis institute star, who is probably the best-known preparatory school athlete in the country, has decided to enter the University of Chicago. This was a sad piece of news to other western institutions, who had made strong efforts to get him Hogenson came into prominence a year ago at the Northwestern interscholastic meet, when he defeated Eckersall, of Hyde Park, in the sprints. The latter's friends claimed the victory was a fluke, but Hogenson proved his right to the title of local "prep" champion sprinter by defeating "Eck" again in the Chicago interscholastic. For two years he has won both dashes in every school meet he has entered, including the Northwestern, Michigan and Chicago meets and the Princeton interscholastic this year. He has equaled the United States interscholastic records of :10 and 21 4-5 in the 100 and 220 respectively. Hogenson is also a jumper, having made a record of 22 feet one inch at the Michigan meet last year, which stood until broken by French, of Lewis, at Marshall field this spring.

William Hogenson.

Hugo Morris Friend, who has been elected captain of the University of Chicago track team for next year, is a junior in college, and has completed three years on the team. He is a Chicago boy, and prepared for college at South Division high school, where he was captain of the team in 1901. In his senior year at prep school he was all-round high school champion of Cook county. His special event is the broad jump. He won this event in the conference meet this year with a jump of 22 feet 8¼ inches, which set a new western mark for the event. Friend is a consistent performer, and has the nerve to do his best work under trying situations when the result of a meet hangs on his event. In his freshman year at college he won the dual meet from Michigan by winning the broad jump on his last trial, after his Michigan competitors seemed to have the event won. He is a good student, and his election to the captaincy was exeremely popular with the entire university community.

In speaking of the discovery of "Willie" Keeler, one of the greatest ball players who ever handled the leather sphere on the green diamond, and at present playing with the New York American league team, a fan stated the other day that the great little fielder was found by Gus Moran. "Gus Moran, who at present handles an indicator in the National league, claims the distinction of starting Willie Keeler on his professional career on the diamond," said this man in a recent fanning bee. "Baseball enthusiasts with long memories will probably recall that New York bought Keeler from Binghamton, played him in a few games during the season of 1893 and then let him go to Brooklyn, from which club Hanlon got him for the Baltimores. Many persons, however, do not know how Keeler came to be a member of the Binghamtons, and therefore the following from Moran will prove interesting: 'I am responsible for Billy Keeler's professional career. If John Rainey had not broken his leg while with Binghamton in 1892 Keeler might not have had the chance to break into the game so soon. I was with Binghamton that year, and after the mishap to Rainey, Frank Leonard, our manager, asked everybody on the team to recommend an infielder to him. I told him about Keeler, who was then with the Acmes, of New York, and advised him to go to Long Island the next day and see him play. Leonard sent the secretary of the club and another scout. They saw Keeler play against the Cuban Giants and brought him back with them. He was put at short against Syracuse in his first game and he copped four hits off Meekin. After the game Leonard came to me and said: 'Gus, are there any more Keelers lying around loose in New York?" Keeler led the New York state league in hitting that year with .371 and the New Yorks gave $1,000 for his release, later letting him go to Brooklyn, with Dan Brouthers, for Treadway and Billy Shindle. Big Dan is in retirement. Shindle and Treadway are in a minor league, but Keeler still is a bright star in the baseball firmament.'"

Willie Keeler.

Before 12,000 people at the Grosse Pointe track at Detroit, Mich., the other afternoon Stanley Dillon, owned by J. P. Brown, of Detroit, and driven by Ed. Geers, won in three straight heats the $10,000 Merchants' and Manufacturers stake for 2:24 class trotting. Stanley Dillon was not driven out in any heat.

Right Back.

A gallant old gentleman of the name of Page, finding a young lady's glove at a noted watering place, presented it to her with the following words. "If from your glove you take the letter 'G' your glove is love, which I devote to thee."

To which the lady returned the following neat answer: "If from your page you take the letter 'P' your page is age, and that won't do for me."—Boston Budget.

SARATOGA MEETING.

Eugenia Burch Beat Waterboy For the Feature.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 13.—That Waterboy is not the horse he used to be was proved when he went down before a field of horses none of which would have been sent against him a year ago and finished a bad third to Eugenia Burch and Hello. Waterboy was favorite and made the running for nearly three-quarters of a mile until Hello took the lead. Eugenia Burch came up on the outside and in a neck and neck finish beat Hello by a head. Waterboy was four lengths behind.

Gold Ten made a runaway race of the Troy, the stake feature of the day, finishing more than a length ahead of Gamara, who had been declared to win.

Fort Hunter easily won the first. Keynote, favorite in the second event, had an easy time winning. Lady Potentate, second choice, finished second. Divination in a strong finish beat the favorite, Go Between, a length in the fifth race.

Zeala, the favorite in the sixth, ran second. It was a head and head finish, however.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

R. G. Dun & Co. Report Progress Unmistakable.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Moderate improvement in midsummer means more than an equivalent increase at any other season, and the better trade reported during the past week is consequently most encouraging. Dispatches from all parts of the country are by no means uniform, in some cases the outlook showing no change, while at a few points there have been setbacks; but on the whole the progress is unmistakable.

Two labor controversies are particularly harmful, but others have been settled. The Fall River strike is partially broken and several threatened difficulties have been averted. Despite some injury to spring wheat the agricultural prospect is very bright, while higher prices promise to neutralize the effect of such loss in quantity as occurred.

The approaching presidential election is viewed with more equanimity than any other contest of recent years, both in financial and industrial circles. Net earnings of the railways are making favorable comparisons, owing to the economies made possible by preceding years of liberal expenditures, and even gross earnings for July are but 3.4 per cent smaller than in 1903.

Money is easy, no disturbance following the small engagement of gold for export, and prices of railway securities average slightly higher.

Liabilities of commercial failures thus far reported for August amounted to $1,598,090, of which $577,354 were in manufacturing, $955,136 in trading and $65,600 in other commercial lines. Failures for the week were 222 in the United States against 174 last year, and 33 in Canada compared with 22 a year ago.

DECISION AGAINST BRYAN.

Supreme Court at New Haven Disallows Sealed Letter's Award.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 13.—A decision adverse to William J. Bryan in his contest over the will of the late P. S. Bennett of New York and this city has been handed down by the supreme court of errors here. The decision virtually denies that Mr. Bryan is entitled to the $50,000 mentioned in the sealed letter written by Mr. Bennett and addressed to his widow to be read by her after his death. By this letter the widow was asked to give $50,000 to Mr. Bryan and his family.

The decision sustains the opinion given by the superior court in the case last spring and also the decision of the probate court before which the matter was first brought up. No opinion was filed with the decision, although the memorandum given out by the court report was as follows:

"William J. Bryan et al. appeal from probate. No error. Opinion by Chief Justice Torrance."

Justices Hall, Hamersley, Baldwin and Prentice concurred in the decision.

Decisions in twenty-three other cases were handed down, but no opinion was filed with any of them.

CZAR'S SON AND HEIR

All Russia Rejoices Over Birth of Imperial Prince.

THUNDER OF 101 GUNS GREET BABE

Boy, So Greatly Wished For and So Important to Russia at This Time, Came Into the World at Midnight.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 13.—A son and heir to the Russian throne has been born. He will be christened Alexis. The empress and the child are doing well.

The birth so greatly wished for, that of an heir to the Russian crown, occurred not in the great palace at Peterhof, but in the Alexandra villa, one of a group of four small palaces in a secluded corner of the magnificent Peterhof park. In one of these buildings the empress has been living for weeks. The other three are occupied by members of the imperial family, gathered there in expectation of the great event, including the empress' mother, his majesty's two sisters, the Grand Duchesses Xenia and Olga; his brother, Grand Duke Michael, and other relatives. The Alexandra villa is a much more private spot than the Grand palace. The birth of the heir to the throne was attended with all the ceremonial ordained by imperial tradition.

In accordance with the Russian law there were present, besides the emperor, Baron Fredericks, the master of the ceremonies, and Prince Dolgorouky, the grand marshal of the court. Dr. Rott, the emperor's family physician, was the accoucheur, and Dr. Hirush was the surgeon in attendance.

Dr. Rott personally announced the birth of the heir to the awaiting imperial family. A formal announcement will be published in the Official Messenger. An imperial salute of 101 guns was subsequently fired, first from Peterhof, and it was then repeated by all the forts around St. Petersburg.

The importance of the birth of an heir to the throne of Russia cannot be exaggerated, coming as it does at a time when the Russian people are depressed by the reverses which the arms of Russia have sustained in the far east. Not only will the coming of a son to the emperor and empress bring joy to Russia in general because it marks the advent of a new era for Russia, but it will put an end to the intrigues, more or less open, which have been features of the present reign since the birth of the first daughter to their majesties.

Were Making Counterfeit Coins.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—Eight men who are charged with making spurious coin were arrested by the federal authorities in a raid on an alleged counterfeiting den in a basement. Seven of the eight men were at work making counterfeit dollars, half dollars, quarters and dimes when confronted with the weapons of the raiders and were taken into custody. Two pots of metal were on a stove and were confiscated, with plaster paris casts on a table about which the men were working.

Doctor Had Green Goods.

BOSTON, Aug. 13. — Ten thousand and two hundred dollars in counterfeit $2 bills has been found by United States secret service agents in the house of Dr. Frank G. Sanft, a prominent Roxbury physician, after Dr. Sanft had been arrested by the city police on a charge of having passed a bogus bill upon a street fruit vendor. The government officials also found a complete outfit for manufacturing spurious bank notes.

Barbour Shot Him In the Back.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 13.—Francis J. Hagan is dead here from the effects of pistol wounds inflicted by John R. T. Barbour at Huber Station, a suburb. In an antemortem statement Hagan said he did not know that Barbour was near and that Barbour shot him in the back. The tragedy is the climax of a feud of several years' duration.

French World's Fair Official Sails.

PARIS, Aug. 13.—G. J. Gerald, assistant commissioner general of France to the St. Louis exposition, accompanied by his secretary, M. Lanny, has left Havre on the French line steamer La Lorraine for New York. Alfred Picard, commissioner general to the exposition, will sail for the United States Aug. 27.

Iron Workers' Strike Off.

MEADVILLE, Pa., Aug. 13. — The strike of the machinists of the Phoenix Iron works, inaugurated April 1, has been declared off, and the men have returned to work, the differences between the strikers and employers having been amicably settled.

Plainfield, N. J., Aug. 13, 1904.

Of course President Roosevelt will wire his congratulations to the Czar and Czarina.

The Chicago packers insist that they have all the men they need. If that is true what is the reason for the continuance of the trouble and the indifference to the continued high price of beef?

Constant Reader—Please drop the subject. Call it 'Soapus, 'Soppus or anything you like. Judge Parker has no preference so long as Tom Taggart and the campaign barrel know where to locate him.

The Standard Publishing Concern, of Westfield, which publishes the Union County Standard, has passed into the full control of Lloyd Thompson, of that place, who will hereafter dictate the editorial policy of the paper through right of ownership. The Standard has always been one of our most welcome visitors for its pungent editorial wit and newsy columns and under the new regime we bespeak for it continued success and prosperity. Alfred E. Pearsall, the former vice president of the company and wielder of the editorial pen, has retired from the local field in order to devote his time to New York interests.

The one ray of light in the dark cloud that has been hovering over Russia came yesterday with the birth of a son to the Czar and Czarina. To the Czar the event is of more importance than a decisive victory as the absence of an heir has been an undisguised disappointment to his people. Since the days of Anna and Catherine the tradition has been in Russia that a woman cannot reign and in the ten years of their married life four daughters have been born to the Emperor and Empress. The people of other countries will rejoice with the subjects of the Empire in the final consummation of their hopes so long delayed. To the Empress of Russia, especially, will go out the good wishes and congratulations of all feminine Christendom. Her boy, if he lives, will be the absolute ruler of the widest domain on the globe.

Counsel for the State Firemen's Relief Association has decided to carry the question of the right to grant exemption to firemen from taxation, to the Court of Errors and Appeals. Under the circumstances it is what they should do but there is little possibility of the controversy being decided even then and the chances are that it will not be until the facts have been given full consideration by the highest tribunal in the State. The appeal has been taken in the case of Edward Tippet, an exempt firemen in Rockaway, Morris county, whose resentment to an assessment led to the decision which has affected thousands of active firemen, national guardsmen, soldiers and widows of sodiers. No move has yet been made by other associations of men directly included, but future action will be based on the verdict of the Court of Errors and Appeals. Richard V. Lindabury has been engaged as the special counsel to aid the Firemen's Association.

Miss Edna Long, of Park avenue, who has been spending the last two weeks at Asbury Park, has returned to her home.

Victor Troyce, of Watchung avenue, will leave for California the latter part of the present month where he will remain indefinitely.

Alfred A. Farland, of East Front street, the well known banjoist, played Thursday evening at the Children's Festival at Ocean Grove.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Koons and son, Lucius T. Koons, of Sandford avenue, have left for Asbury Park, where they will spend the remaining weeks of August at the Ocean Hotel.

AMONG MEN IN THE SHOPS

SEEN AND HEARD IN PLAINFIELD'S INDUSTRIAL PLANTS.

Four men were laid off at the Pond Machine Tool Works, yesterday.

Louis Hurtt has taken a position with George Leland, of Central avenue.

George Smith has resigned his position at the Pond Machine Tool Company's plant.

Daniel Force, of West Second street, an employe at the Hall Signal Company's works, is on the sick list.

The employes at the Rushmore Dynamo Works are working until 8:30 every night on rush orders for searchlights.

Work is picking up in the foundry at the Potter Press Company's works, which makes the outlook in the machine shop brighter.

"Stumpy" Morrison, "Quaker" Vail, Robert Mattox and Harry Dilts have returned from a week's camping trip on Staten Island.

Joseph Connors, of West Third street, is in Tuscaloose, Ala., demonstrating one of the United States Government cancel-stamping machines.

The convention of the International Typographical Union yesterday concurred in the report of the committee on the eight-hour-law day, which advocated the adoption of an eight-hour law, and fixed Jan. 1, 1906, as the time when such law should become effective or a strike declared. The question is left to the subordinate lodges for final decision on a referendum vote.

Charles Lewis, of Binghampton, N. Y., who is driving the large Pope-Toledo touring car about town, is stopping at the Hotel Kensington. Mr. Lewis is an expert chauffeur. The car looked like a large locomotive last night with five search-lights on the front. Those who saw him enter the Plainfield Auto Garage in Washington Hall looked on with surprise. He dashed in the hall at top speed, whirled around the posts inside the building and stopped the machine in such a manner as to bring murmurs of approval from bystanders. Mr. Lewis will be in this city several weeks.

The retrenchment crisis on the Pennsylvania and Philadelphia and Reading roads seems to have ended. The Pennsylvania, which dispensed with the services of a large number of its men, has already begun to reinstate many that were employed in the shops. The Reading Company has posted a notice in its shops at Reading stating that they will hereafter work 59½ hours a per week, closing at 4 p. m. Saturdays. These shops have been observing the Saturday half-holiday for some weeks, and some of the departments have been on even shorter time. The company now has plenty of work in sight at these large shops in the way of repairing, and the longer hours will apply to all departments.

The printers in the United States are both intelligent and patriotic. Work at typesetting is a constant education to the compositor and consequently the average man at the trade is superior in intelligence to the average man in any other mechanical trade or calling. The action taken by the national body of the organized printers at St. Louis in rejecting by an overwhelming majority a proposition forbidding members of the union to enlist in the National Guard under penalty of permanent expulsion was therefore expected. Any different action would have belied the whole character of the printers' craft. Perhaps this example will have a wholesome effect upon the few labor organizations that have been misled by ignorant and blatant leaders into adopting a proposition that borders closely on treason and would make men unworthy of citizenship.—Newark Advertiser.

Mrs. Duncan is survived by one other child, William Duncan, of Perth Amboy. Her husband has been dead a number of years. The deceased was sixty-nine years of age. The funeral services were held this afternoon. Rev. L. E. Livermore, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, officiated.

There was a narrow escape from a serious conflagration at the home of Robert Pierce a couple of nights ago. A lighted lamp flared up and the wick inside caught fire. Miss Allie Pierce, coming into the room, discovered the trouble. The apartment was filled with smoke and coal-oil dust. Screaming for assistance, she was able to attract the attention of her brother, Robert Pierce, who, rushing into the room, threw the blazing lamp out of the window, extinguishing the flames.

LEAF FROM LAST CENTURY.

When a New Straw Hat Was a Novel and Treasured Possession in the Country.

In the early part of the last century there were fewer factories in this country than now, and many things were made by hand which to-day are the work of machinery. This was especially true of the braid for straw hats. Rye straw was commonly used, although wheat was also in demand. But the rye straw had longer stems and was more easily handled, writes Adele H. Baldwin, in St. Nicholas.

In driving along country roads, in Massachusetts particularly, late in the summer one would see great bundles of the straw hanging on the fences to dry. When the sun and wind had done their share of the work, it was placed in casks where sulphur was burning until it was bleached to a pale yellow. Then it was split into narrow widths suitable for braiding.

The daughters of farmers did not have many pennies of their own in those days, and all were eager to earn money by braiding straw. Every little while men would pass through the villages, calling from house to house and buying the straw braid. They paid two cents a yard for it.

"District school" was in session only six months of the year—the rest of the time the children helped their mothers with the housework. When that was done they took up their braids for amusement and occupation. So much a day every girl expected to do as her daily "stint." She would carry it down by the brook or up in the apple tree when the summer days were long; or during the stormy hours of winter she would go with it to the old attic where the swing hung from the cobwebbed rafters. But all the time her fingers must work busily, lest the men should call for the braids and find them unfinished.

The factories where the straw was sewed were in the large towns. The simplest hats were of the braids alone. More elaborate ones had a fancy cord, also of plaited straw, sewed on the edge of the braid. This cord was made by the old ladies. Grandmothers and great-aunts whose eyes were too dim to sew would take their balls of straw with them on neighborhood calls. While they chatted together, their hands would be weaving the yellow strands in and out, fashioning the dainty cord.

The price paid for the cord was only half a cent a yard, but this was better than nothing to those dames of a bygone generation.

A poor country girl would begin to think of her hat from the time of seed-growing. All summer she would watch the billowy grain. When it was gathered and only the empty stalks were left, she would tie them into bundles and hang them in some sheltered nook to dry. Bleaching, splitting and braiding—these she did herself.

When the braids were finished and sent to the factory, how impatiently she waited! Perhaps grandma contributed some of the cord she had made last winter that the new hat might be more beautiful. At last the hat came home, and then what tryings on there were before the old gilt-framed mirror in the parlor! How lovingly its owner handled it as she placed it this way or that on her curly head. Oh, a new straw hat was indeed a thing well worth having in those days of the long ago.

A PACKING HOUSE CENTER

Evolution in Passenger and Freight Boats of the Great Lakes—The Modern Liners Are Floating Palaces.

Chicago.—There are many big things in Chicago, but the biggest of them all is the long-horned western steer. His is the shrine at which a greater number of Chicagoans worship than at any other representing an industry. To stop the conversion of this animal and that of his cousins, the hog and the sheep, into food products effects Chicago quicker than the stoppage of any other local industry. Not only does it effect Chicago, but it affects the entire country and the world, for the packing plants of Chicago give to the country more than one-third of the meat furnished by the United States. The product of these plants go into every country of Europe, of Asia, of South America, of Africa and the islands of the sea.

In Chicago there are 38 meat-packing establishments, employing about 30,000 wage earners, with an invested capital of close to $70,000,000, paying in wages nearly $10,000,000 annually, and turning out each year a product valued at close to $300,000,000. These establishments are killing each year one beef, one and a half sheep, and three hogs for every man, woman and child in the city each year. They are paying to the farmers and cattle raisers of the country close to $225,000 for live stock each year. The stopping of this industry means the stopping of nearly one-fourth of the total of manufacturing industries of the entire state, and the state ranks third in the value of manufactured products in the United States.

Such figures give an idea in a general way what the strike in the packing houses of Chicago meant to Chicago. In no other branch of industry could a strike have hit the city harder. In but few branches of industry in the city were the men less organized than in the packing houses.

Effect on the Boarding Houses.

The strike cost an almost untold amount of loss to the various classes interested. It meant a loss of more than half a million in wages to the operatives; another heavy loss was occasioned the commission men, the men who sell the receipts of live stock at the yards; another heavy loss fell upon the stock yards company; still another on the railroads, the packers paid heavily for the experience in the at least partial closing of their plants and the initiating of new help; the loss to the farmers and stock raisers would run into the millions, but of all the losers the smallest amount of consideration was given the boarding house and restaurant keepers.

Virtually one-fifth of the population of Chicago live in boarding houses. Close to 400,000 people eat at boarding house tables twice each day. Let us take for example a boarding house the writer knows, and at which there are some 20 boarders. Allow for these 20 boarders ten pounds of meat for each meal. During the strike meat advanced not less than an average of five cents per pound. That means not less than 50 cents per meal to the landlady, or one dollar per day, or $365 per year. Over and above the item of house rent and heat for herself and family that amount would mean practically all the profits of the business of keeping boarders while the rise in prices continued. It meant no fund for new clothing, no amusements, no vacation trips. It left nothing but the bare necessities of life.

As it was with the boarding houses so it was with the private families. Their cost of living increased materially during the rise in prices, and it takes longer for prices to go down than it does for them to go up. The strike will affect meat prices for the next three months at least. The wage earners may never recover their lost wages, nor the stock raisers their lost profits, but in the end it is the general public that pay most dearly for the privilege of watching a gigantic struggle such as the strike in the packing industries.

The Lake Boats.

The past five years and less has seen a remarkable change in the character of the passenger boats running in and out of Chicago. Previous to that time the boats carrying passengers to and from lake ports, with but two or three exceptions, were the vessels that equipped with none of the modern conveniences of water travel, small in comparison with modern vessels.

The writer has a vivid recollection of crossing the lake on several occasions during the summer of 1900 in a boat, then running in the regular service between Chicago and Michigan ports, that was capable of carrying but 90 passengers. It contained berths of questionable character, but no dining facilities. A dozen years ago it was one of the floating palaces of lake navigation, and was the pride of the line to which it belonged. To-day it is considered fit for nothing better than a small local trade between coast points from which it is desired to make connection with the lake liners.

To take the place of such boats there are on the lakes now magnificent floating palaces, carrying 1,000 to double that number of passengers; with crews running from 100 to 200 men; equipped with every convenience known to the ocean liner, such as private baths connected with state rooms, elaborate dining saloons, handsomely furnished smoking rooms. Instead of the ten miles an hour of the old boats, these vessels will make better than double that speed, as they are driven by the finest of marine engines.

With the coming of the new boats there has come an impetus in the passenger business on the lakes. Previous to the Buffalo exposition such a thing as a through boat from Chicago to Buffalo was unknown. Now a regular line of steamers carry hundreds of passengers between the two points each week. The new boats have also done much to popularize Michigan resorts, which are growing rapidly in favor with the Chicago public.

Lake Freight Traffic.

An even more wonderful development is to be found in the lake freight boats. But little more than 50 years ago a lake boat sailed into Buffalo harbor with 3,000 bushels of grain from Chicago, and the event was hailed as one of the notable happenings of a century. To-day there are many boats carrying more than 200,000 bushels in every cargo. The movement of grain from the west to the seacoast by way of the lakes is represented by an average of nearly 300,000,000 each year.

The first cargo of iron ore shipped from Lake Superior mines contained 600 tons. To-day single cargoes of 6,000 tons and over are being unloaded at South Chicago docks so regularly that they do not excite a passing comment even in lake marine circles.

Evolution has followed evolution in the type of the lake freighter, as in the type of the lake passenger boat. As late as 1862 there were on the lakes 1,152 wooden sailing vessels, and but 350 steam vessels. To-day the steam tonnage of the lake is nearly four times as large as the sail tonnage.

Another evolution is in the material used in ship construction. In 1886 there were but six steel freight boats plying the waters of the lakes. To-day two-thirds of the boats built for the lakes are of steel, and but a few years more will mark the passing of the wooden freighter.

One of the oddities of the lake traffic was the whale backs. The first of these was the big passenger boat built for the excursion trade at the time of the world's fair and which is still running between Chicago and Milwaukee. This was followed by a large number of freight boats built on similar lines with the exception of upper decks. They were in demand as ore and grain carriers. But the fad for this type of vessel is passing, and while a number of them are still in service no more are being built.

Terrors of the Lake.

Lake navigation has its terrors equal in many ways to those encountered on the ocean. Violent storms have sent many a good boat and its passengers and crews to watery graves. The stretch of 60 miles of water between the east and west shores of Lake Michigan hides beneath its surface terrible mysteries that may never be solved.

One of these mysteries is the fate of the steamship Chicora, last seen on the morning of January 21, 1895, when she left Milwaukee for St. Joseph. She fell a victim of the terrible storm that broke within a short time after she left port, but where she went down no one has ever been able to tell, though a reward of $10,000 was offered any one who could locate her. She carried 22 persons down with her.

Other lake boats have so completely disappeared that they have never been located. Among these were the steamers Alpena and Doty, and the schooners Mary D. Ayer and Thomas Hume. But recently it was believed that the hull of the Wells Burt had been found off Gross Point. She sank near this point in 1882, and nothing was known of her afterward. The case of the Alpena was much like that of the Chicora. She was last seen off Holland but where she went down no one knows.

The greatest of the Lake Michigan disasters was the sinking of the steamer Lady Elgin, on September 9, 1860. She was carrying a church excursion from Milwaukee to Chicago, and ran off Winnetka with 385 of her passengers and crew. Less than 100 of the total number on board were saved.

VALUABLE STONE IN HASH.

Diamond Weighing Four Carats and of Pure Luster Lost by Chef in Unique Way.

Thomas Milligan, a Philadelphia liquor dealer, had for his guests at the Columbia Garden hotel, Jefferson market, New York city, P. F. Garrity, Harry Hess, the "new plunger," former Sergeant of Police Norton of New York, and others. One of the dishes was a chicken hash, served in a chafing dish, a la France.

Norton took his portion humbly and said nothing till he fished out a four carat diamond of purest white-blue luster. Then he said things that made the others sit up.

"MY DIAMOND!" HE SHRILLED.

"Whose diamond?" the question arose at once.

Norton claimed it because—well, because he had it and possession is nine-tenths.

Milligan allowed it was his dinner, and all the extras were his, of course.

Sammy, the waiter, broke in to express the hope the gentlemen would not forget that he, Sammy, served the hash—and the diamond.

Luke O'Connor, proprietor of the hotel, pointed out that the gentlemen had ordered hash, not diamonds, and if any diamonds turned up in the hash they naturally belonged to the house.

They had agreed to leave it to a referee, and were debating who it should be when there came a heart-piercing cry from the kitchen, and presently the white-capped chef appeared at the door.

"My diamond; my diamond!" he shrilled. "'Ave the gentlemen found it?"

It is true, Sammy the waiter had told the chef of the find in the hash, but the chef was able to produce the setting from which the stone had been dislodged. Besides, his emotion was convincing in itself. They gave him the stone.

BEES GOT IN THEIR WORK.

German Boy Tries Cure for Rheumatism and Then Gives a Belated Explanation.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer tells this unique story of an innocent looking German boy who walked into a drug store in that city the other day and faced the proprietor.

"Haf you got some bees' stings for rheumatisms?" he shyly inquired.

"Bees' stings for rheumatism," the proprietor repeated. "Where did you hear of that?"

"Why, muther vas reating it by de newsbapers," replied the lad.

The proprietor laughed.

"I've seen something of that kind in the papers," he said, "but I won't attempt to offer you anything just as good. Where is the rheumatism?"

"In de handt und in de arm," the boy replied.

"Well, see here," said the proprietor, with a sudden smile, "I haven't got the cure on my shelves, but I keep it in my back yard. You go out through this door and walk around my flower beds. When you see four or five bees resting on a flower just try to pick them up."

The boy nodded and went out. He was gone at least ten minutes.

When he came back his face was red and his nose—where an angry bee had alighted—was beginning to swell. He held out his hand.

"I picked me some of dose bees oop," he placidly remarked.

"Did you?" said the amused proprietor. "And does your hand feel any better?"

The boy looked.

"It ain't for me," he placidly said. "It's for my bruder."

IN WOMAN'S REALM.

Cream Serge Worn Till Late Fall. Pointed Bodices and Belts.

A gown seen recently at the races was of gray and white checked eolienne. The triple skirt and pelerine were adorned with silver braid and silver embroideries. This was softened at the neck by a small turned down collar of velvet and was worn over a simple blouse of white cambric and a hat of pale gray straw trimmed with white blossoms.

Cream serge will be worn late in the autumn, and a costume of this description seen recently was strapped in black and gold cord. To carry out the picturesque idea, it was worn with a three cornered white hat trimmed with little gold tassels.

All the new walking skirts are quite beautifully plaited, with the plaits lying flat around the hips and floating from the knees down. Some of the washable skirts are so finely plaited that it will be quite an effort for the washerwoman to launder them into shape.

Pointed bodices and pointed belts are to be among the rules of Dame Fashion during the coming season.

High crowned hats are slowly but surely creeping in, and already the flat hat is most decidedly a thing of the past.

The picture shows an automobile coat of tan silk held in at the back with a belt which passes under the loose front. The cap is made of the same, with a chiffon veil, dotted in red, gathered around it. JUDIC CHOLLET.

FASHIONABLE WRAPS.

Lace Coats For Dressy Wear—Motoring Capes of Pongee.

Heavy lace forms the material of some very smart summer wraps. The favorites for this purpose are Irish, alencon, Italian and chantilly laces, and in addition quite a smart combination is made of bruges and brussels.

LINGERIE HAT AND STOLE.

More often, however, there is a mixture worked into a harmonious whole. For instance, supposing the groundwork is Irish crochet, there will be medallions of brussels or alencon lace outlined with frills of valenciennes or very narrow gathered ribbon and perhaps a border of point de venise to complete the scheme. The coats have for lining accordion plaited chiffon or very supple satin enriched with frills of the chiffon around the edges. There is sometimes a little touch of color introduced in the shape of a tiny collar of blue or burnt orange or a series of tiny bows.

Natural colored shantung manties, made without sleeves and trimmed with coarse lace, are very popular for motoring on the continent. They are unlined and can be slipped over the daintiest costume without injuring it.

A pretty white gown made recently was of ivory cloth fastened in two tiers with raw edges scalloped over a simulated underskirt of pale blue cloth, likewise scalloped.

The picture shows a lingerie hat trimmed with blue ribbon. The stole is made to match the hat.

LITTLE FRANCE

BY

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Reuben James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

Copyright, 1901, by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

The Countess Anne leaned out across the coping of the balcony, and looked down. It was indeed a giddy height. Her brain reeled as she gazed. She would like very much to put Sir Philip to the test, but in the end she decided not. He might be killed, and that would be a bitter end to their little play. She recalled that Monsieur de Croisic had been thrown down there after he had been caught in the tower. The height was appalling. She was too fond of Sir Philip. So she temporized. She was woman enough for that, he thought. Indeed, he realized that she had developed marvelously in the month he had been with her. She seemed years away from dolls now. He wondered why.

"Not to-day, Sir Philip; some other time, perhaps, but not now," she answered him at last.

"As you will, Mistress Anne," he replied indifferently, and then as a thought struck him he questioned her: "Why is this place not guarded, or the wall smoothed, so that no one could climb up again?"

"I suppose it was guarded once. As for the wall, the story I read said that the lords of the tower left it just as it was, for they thought that the lesson they had given poor de Croisic would keep everybody away. Would it keep you away?"

"Not if you were here waiting for me, Lady Anne. But why is it not guarded now?" he persisted.

"I can not tell. Nobody knows this story except myself and Josette to whom I told it, I suppose. I read it the other day in some old papers I found in the library room. I doubt if even grandfather remembers it or he would lock up the room. Besides, what need? There is no one who can make use of it now," she answered artlessly.

But it came into Grafton's mind that if it were difficult to climb up to that balcony window, it would be less difficult to climb down from it, and the idea of escaping sprang into his head. Indeed, it had often been with him, but he had seen no way whatever to bring it about until that afternoon, that very moment in the oriel of that tower.

Beyond the rocky edges of the shore, to seaward, the horizon was dark with the sails of ships. It was the huge fleet of Boscawen lingering off the coast in the vain hope that something might draw the French out from Brest at that time and a general engagement might be brought about. If Grafton could gain that window at night, descend the wall, seize the little boat in the cove, he might reach the ships! He stood in abstracted silence gazing seaward until the girl laid her hand lightly upon his arm.

"Have you forgotten me, Sir Philip?" she questioned him jealously; "were you thinking of——"

"Of home for a moment, my child, of old England, and a better-loved shore farther away. Those are English ships and—but never mind, we were talking of the lady's lover. Yes, I can see how he might have come up the wall."

"And of course I will not let you do that now because—but would you do it for me some day?" she asked anxiously.

"Some day, perhaps, I shall show you," he replied. "I could do harder things than that for you. But come let us seek the dragons in the garden, beauteous dame. 'Tis a long time since we have had an adventure of any sort. Call Josette for your court, and after battle I shall crown you Queen of Love and Beauty again. I can beat you down the stair," he added as they raced away.

CHAPTER VIII.

THE END OF THE PLAY.

THAT night he determined to put in practice the attempt to escape, the first definite possibility of which had come to him that afternoon. Indeed, it had grown upon him with each passing moment. He lay awake for hours after he had retired and Anatole had been dismissed, waiting until the people in the chateau, except the guards at the gate and the watchmen on the walls had all gone to sleep. And for a true knight his thoughts at least were recreant, since he dreamed not of the Lady Anne but of freedom.

Toward midnight he arose, dressed himself quickly, and softly stole through the deserted halls until he came to the unoccupied chamber in the round tower. No especial watch was kept upon him, no guards were stationed upon the tower and but few on the seaward side of the chateau. Moving circumspectly he had met no one nor had he attracted the attention of any sleeper.

He stepped quickly through the great room to the oriel. He stood for a moment on the balcony looking out to sea. It was a bright moonlight night. Away on the horizon twinkled the faint yellow light of the English ships. Far below him in the shadow of the cliffs the waves were breaking in sullen splashing upon the splintered shore. He could hear the rhythmical persistent beat of their tireless assault upon the rocks, see the white water, shot with phosphorescent sparks, churned into foam over the reefs at the foot of the cliffs.

He hesitated as he surveyed the scene; although his purpose was unchanged, he realized as he had not before, that his undertaking was fraught with the greatest danger. He might reach the foot of the cliff alive or he might not. The chances were against him. Things looked differently in the night time. A slip, a misstep, a fall, and death would be the end, death on the rocks 200 feet below, with the white foam for a shroud, and the ebbing tide to bear him far out to sea.

Yet he must needs go on. But as he made ready to descend, his thoughts suddenly went back to the little girl who had been his playmate during the past few weeks. He had almost forgotten her for the moment. Was he a recreant knight thereby? His conscience reproached him. Strange as it may seem, he felt a pang of regret when he realized that once he stepped over the balcony wall and essayed the descent he should be parted from her forever. In death or in liberty they would be equally separated. The little Rose of Rohans—to see her no more! The thought gave him a peculiar feeling. He paused, reluctant. He was surprised at himself.

The little maiden with her mingling of childish innocence and womanly charm had grown very dear to him, and the joy he anticipated in soon regaining his liberty was sadly dimmed by the certain sadness of that inevitable parting. Yet the feeling was not strong enough to deter him—then. It was deep enough, however, to give him pause. He lingered, thinking swiftly. It was duty that turned the scale—duty and love are antagonists of old.

He had learned something about the French fleet in Brest and the location of the defenses in the harbor in his rapid ride through the town when he came to the chateau, and from his frequent although apparently cursory examinations of the position from the towers and walls he had learned more. His information would be of great value. He was an officer of the king, and when the possibility of escape presented itself, at all hazards he must make an effort to reach the ships. The marquis had spoken once or twice about exchange, but nothing had yet come from it and such matters were slow at best.

As it seemed more feasible, as the possibility approached nearer, his desire grew. The detaining image of the French girl grew fainter. Duty, liberty, freedom, action—what child could stand in the way? Therefore again he determined to attempt the descent. Yet it was a forbidding undertaking now that he had settled upon it. It had seemed easier in the daylight than at night time. The bend of the wall cast the corner in a black shadow, the more intense on account of the brightness of the moonlight beyond.

His mind was in a strange turmoil. Death—love—liberty—what would be the end? Pshaw! He would think no more, he would do it!

He climbed up on the stone railing of the balcony, turned his back toward the tower, slid along the coping stone until he could feel the angle between the walls with his hand, his shoulders touching either side of the angle. He held firmly to the coping of the balcony, which he determined not to let go of until he was sure of a foot rest. Then he stretched out his right leg and felt about in the shadow until finally his foot hit the first projection. He prayed a prayer and prepared to [illegible] was glad the angle was [illegible]. He could not see what was beneath him. The black cliffs under his feet hid their terrors from him. He intended to try it with his face outward, his back in the angle, his hands and feet outstretched, clutching at or feeling for every inequality. He was about to let go. Another moment and he had gone, when he felt a familiar little hand laid upon his arm.

"Come back, come back, you will be killed!" whispered a small frightened voice. He was so startled in spite of the quietness of her address that he nearly lost his hold and fell. He recovered himself, however, by a pro[illegible] and aided by the girl's nervous, clinging hands he drew himself up slowly, and swinging his legs back over the coping landed once more on the solid floor of the balcony. The idea of disregarding her summons did not once occur to him.

"Were you doing this for me?" asked the girl innocently, still clinging to him as if afraid to release him.

"Mademoiselle Anne!" he cried in great surprise and annoyance, "why are you here?" He was trembling violently from his exertions and the tense emotions of the past few moments.

"Why not, Sir Philip? You are here yourself, you see," she answered unsuspiciously, approaching him and laying an innocent hand on his arm and looking steadily at him.

"Yes, but I—come into the tower," he said drawing her back through the window into the room. How her eyes gleamed in the moonlight! What depths were there, what unfathomable mysteries lurked within their shadows! He had never seen them so before. They startled him—those eyes so softly tender, so deeply blue. And the exquisite pallor of that face framed in the misty blackness of her floating hair—the girl was beautiful.

Following him into the chamber she stopped unconsciously where the moonlight streamed in through the window. For the first time he noticed what she wore in the bright illumination. Apparently she was clad in her nightdress with a loose wrapper hastily thrown about her shoulders; her little bare feet gleamed like marble on the stone floor. One hand hung by her side, with the other she instinctively gathered the wrapper across her breast with a movement at once modest yet charming.

"Why, you are in your night-robe!" he exclaimed in astonishment, but not raising his voice for fear of attracting attention. "Your feet are bare and on these damp stones! You'll catch your death of cold! My dear child!"

He forgot that he was her knight, and stooping down lifted her slender form in his strong young arms. She half-struggled a moment and then acquiesced. What was he to do with her? The carpetless room was bare of furniture and, save for themselves, empty. He hesitated, stepped into the window, sat down upon the low sill, and set her on his knee, holding her firmly, carefully, tenderly. She, too, forgot that she was a lady, and nestled against him as any child might have done.

"Now tell me," he whispered—they spoke softly all the time—"why did you come here, Anne?"

It was the first time he had addressed her without a title.

"I do not know," she answered. "I—my room is over there, you know. I couldn't sleep. I was thinking about the Lady Jehane and her lover the Baron de Croisic—and about you, Sir—Philip." The pause between the "sir" and "Philip" was a long one, which sweetened the name in his ears as she continued, "I heard a sound and I thought it might be his ghost. So I came—I hurried too. I had no time to dress."

"Were you not afraid?"

"The marquis says the de Rohans are never afraid. I didn't like it, but I came on tiptoe, and then I saw something black outside on the balcony and I walked over there. I was a little afraid, I think, perhaps because I am part American," she added naively.

"Americans are never afraid, either," interrupted Grafton promptly.

"Well, anyway, I saw it was you and I was not afraid any more. And I watched you stand and look, and then I saw you get over the wall, and then I was fearfully afraid—for you, Philip. I thought you might be killed. I slipped out and caught hold of you, you came back, and now we are here—together."

FAT RETURNS FROM DIME.

A New Orleans Traveling Man Says the Little Coin Yielded Him All of $2,750.

"You often hear of men running up a small sum of money into a good big bank roll, but I did something once in Omaha that, so far as I know, beats all records when the amount originally invested is considered," said E. W. Gaylord, of New Orleans, to a Washington Post reporter.

"I was waiting in Omaha for a remittance from my firm, and, having no coin about me was feeling in that lonesome state that the moneyless man alone can walked into[illegible]reciate. To kill time I not the remo[illegible]ambling house, having save watching t[illegible]idea of doing aught in the vicinity of [illegible]ayers. As I stood mechanically thru[illegible]roulette wheel I pocket of my vest and hand into a dime that I did not kn[illegible]cacted a lone person. I actually felt ash[illegible]as on my it on anything, but somet[illegible]d to put pered it might win, and, sure whis[illegible]when the wheel stopped my cough, won. Again I won, and again [illegible]d that ten-cent piece had brought [illegible] in nine dollars.

"This is pretty good interest, I thought, and cashed in taking my nine dollars and moving over to the stud poker game, and investing in chips. My luck followed me here, likewise, and I ran up my stake to $85 in less than 30 minutes. Considering what a big return this was, I began to feel a chilly sensation at my pedal extremities, and as it was near the dinner hour, I made this an excuse for quitting.

After dining, the desire to press my luck was too great to be resisted, and being near a hundred strong, I went back to the sporting establishment and took my seat at a draw poker game where the buyout was $50, table stakes. It's no use to weary you with the details of my play, but from the very jump the fortune that had been with me earlier in the day stuck. I held the most marvellous series of hot hands ever known, straights, flushes and fulls without end and several sets of fours, and on nearly all of them got good plays.

"To cut it short, when I left the game in the small hours of the morning I cashed in $2,750, and got the money on the spot, the house man remarking that if this was my usual style he would like to engage me at any salary to play for him."

PIE BRINGS NEEDED REST.

Pastry Contains Opiate and Maniac Is Put to Sleep Without His Knowledge.

All other efforts being futile, a gooseberry pie was finally used as the successful medium to administer opiates to Rufus Davis, of Alexandria, Ind., confined in the Madison county jail until he can be admitted to the hospital for the insane. His mental derangement is such that the man has been a raving maniac since he was brought to the jail. He had slept but very little the past week.

Officers and physicians found it impossible to administer medicine of any kind to the insane man. He was finally asked what kind of pie he preferred for supper, and he begged for gooseberry. A fine, large gooseberry pie was prepared, and carefully mixed with the ingredients were morphine and medicine intended to quiet the man so that he might sleep and be relieved. When the "doctored" pie was given him he was selfish with it, and permitted no one to approach it. He ate all of it, and two hours later was quiet for the first time in several days, and, while guarded by a physician to [illegible] his condition, Davis slept peacefully through the night.

OUT FOR BUFFALOES

BUT IT WAS WITH A CAMERA INSTEAD OF A RIFLE.

Ernest Harold Baynes Tells of Photographing Herd on a New Hampshire Preserve—Getting Very Scarce.

I am particularly interested in buffaloes for several reasons. In the first place, they are the most magnificent hoofed animals on the western hemisphere, and in the next place they are almost extinct. Less than 50 years ago, they were probably the most numerous large wild animals in the world, and to-day there are possibly 1,800 in existence. About a third of these, something over 600, are wild and inhabit a desolate region southwest of—well, never mind just where it is. The rest are either in captivity in zoological gardens, or in what might be termed semi-captivity in big game preserves. The largest herd in semiconfinement is that in the Blue Mountain forest, otherwise known as Corbin park, a vast preserve some seven miles north of Newport, N. H. There are at this writing approximately 150 buffalo of all ages in this herd, and these great shaggy beasts roam at will over their kingdom of 26,000 acres, confined only by a fence 36 miles in length. Here, in a country of wild mountain forests, bushy thickets, swampy lowlands and grassy plains, the buffaloes thrive and increase in numbers every year, and it is here that I have the privilege of studying their habits, and of photographing the animals themselves to my heart's content.

A few days later, very early one morning, I came upon a herd of buffalo, more than a hundred, all told, grazing on a piece of high land where they had spent the night. I set off home and returned with two cameras, hoping to get a picture of the herd. But before I could get quite near enough, some of the beasts caught sight of me, and by a few deep grunts warned the rest, and the whole lot were soon galloping away down a hill, across a swamp and into a wood where they were lost to view. However, a boy runs may read the fresh trail of grass of buffaloes, by the trampled season broken twigs, and, at this the bunches of hair left clinging to the bushes, so I hurried after them as fast as I could go with two cameras, one in each hand. Now, part of this reserve was once a farming country, and a few of the old farmhouses are still standing. Some of these are in good repair, and are kept as shooting camps, and are used by the members of the Blue Mountain Forest association in the hunting season. Others have gone more or less to decay, and are now perhaps the homes of wild cats and other forest creatures, and in the floors of some of them there are great holes gnawed by the teeth of porcupines. After toiling after the buffaloes for perhaps three miles, I came upon the herd on a wide open space in the rear of one of these old farm houses—some grazing and others lying down, all as contented as a herd of domestic cattle. Cautiously I approached the front of the house, quietly removed a window, crawled into a musty room and drew the cameras in after me. Going through to the rear I could see the whole herd in full view from the back windows. Very slowly I opened one of these windows without attracting the attention of the buffaloes; and quickly put a camera in position. I wished to station the other camera at one of the side windows, but the sash was stiff and threatened to make a noise if I tried to open it. However, it was the work of but five minutes to remove a pane of glass with a penknife, and very soon I had my guns trained upon the herd from two directions. Having made one or two exposures, I waited for a chance to get individual pictures, and a little later, when the buffaloes began to move about, the opportunity came. The first animal to approach the rear window was a fine young bull, whose last winter's coat was still hanging to his sides in tatters. I got his portrait without arousing his suspicions, and then went to see if there was anything within range of the other instrument. Coming round the corner of the house there was a fine old cow buffalo, grazing quietly, and following close upon her heels was her tawny, three-months-old calf, nibbling the grass as though he was not quite used to the work. A moment later they were fairly within range, and I released the shutter, the sound of which caused the cow to lift her head and gaze in the direction of the window. But the room was dark and she could not see me, for she soon went on with her grazing. Returning to the first camera I soon got a snap at two young bulls feeding side by side and thus I might have gone along until all my plates were used, had not a plate-holder slipped through my fingers and fallen to the floor with a crash.

LITTLE FRANCE

BY

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Reuben James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

The Countess Anne leaned out across the coping of the balcony, and looked down. It was indeed a giddy height. Her brain reeled as she gazed. She would like very much to put Sir Philip to the test, but in the end she decided not. He might be killed, and that would be a bitter end to their little play. She recalled that Monsieur de Croisic had been thrown down there after he had been caught in the tower. The height was appalling. She was too fond of Sir Philip. So she temporized. She was woman enough for that, he thought. Indeed, he realized that she had developed marvelously in the month he had been with her. She seemed years away from dolls now. He wondered why.

"Not to-day, Sir Philip; some other time, perhaps, but not now," she answered him at last.

"As you will, Mistress Anne," he replied indifferently, and then as a thought struck him he questioned her: "Why is this place not guarded, or the wall smoothed, so that no one could climb up again?"

"I suppose it was guarded once. As for the wall, the story I read said that the lords of the tower left it just as it was, for they thought that the lesson they had given poor de Croisic would keep everybody away. Would it keep you away?"

"Not if you were here waiting for me, Lady Anne. But why is it not guarded now?" he persisted.

"I can not tell. Nobody knows this story except myself and Josette to whom I told it, I suppose. I read it the other day in some old papers I found in the library room. I doubt if even grandfather remembers it or he would lock up the room. Besides, what need? There is no one who can make use of it now," she answered artlessly.

But it came into Grafton's mind that if it were difficult to climb up to that balcony window, it would be less difficult to climb down from it, and the idea of escaping sprang into his head. Indeed, it had often been with him, but he had seen no way whatever to bring it about until that afternoon, that very moment in the oriel of that tower.

Beyond the rocky edges of the shore, to seaward, the horizon was dark with the sails of ships. It was the huge fleet of Boscawen lingering off the coast in the vain hope that something might draw the French out from Brest at that time and a general engagement might be brought about. If Grafton could gain that window at night, descend the wall, seize the little boat in the cove, he might reach the ships! He stood in abstracted silence gazing seaward until the girl laid her hand lightly upon his arm.

"Have you forgotten me, Sir Philip?" she questioned him jealously; "were you thinking of——"

"Of home for a moment, my child, of old England, and a better-loved shore farther away. Those are English ships and—but never mind, we were talking of the lady's lover. Yes, I can see how he might have come up the wall."

"And of course I will not let you do that now because—but would you do it for me some day?" she asked anxiously.

"Some day, perhaps, I shall show you," he replied. "I could do harder things than that for you. But come let us seek the dragons in the garden, beauteous dame. 'Tis a long time since we have had an adventure of any sort. Call Josette for your court, and after battle I shall crown you Queen of Love and Beauty again. I can beat you down the stair," he added as they raced away.

CHAPTER VIII.

THE END OF THE PLAY.

THAT night he determined to put in practice the attempt to escape, the first definite possibility of which had come to him that afternoon. Indeed, it had grown upon him with each passing moment. He lay awake for hours after he had retired and Anatole had been dismissed, waiting until the people in the chateau, except the guards at the gate and the watchmen on the walls had all gone to sleep. And for a true knight his thoughts at least were recreant, since he dreamed not of the Lady Anne but of freedom.

Toward midnight he arose, dressed himself quickly, and softly stole through the deserted halls until he came to the unoccupied chamber in the round tower. No especial watch was kept upon him, no guards were stationed upon the tower and but few on the seaward side of the chateau. Moving circumspectly he had met no one nor had he attracted the attention of any sleeper.

He stepped quickly through the great room to the oriel. He stood for a moment on the balcony looking out to sea. It was a bright moonlight night. Away on the horizon twinkled the faint yellow light of the English ships. Far below him in the shadow of the cliffs the waves were breaking in sullen splashing upon the splintered shore. He could hear the rhythmical persistent beat of their tireless assault upon the rocks, see the white water, shot with phosphorescent sparks, churned into foam over the reefs at the foot of the cliffs.

He hesitated as he surveyed the scene; although his purpose was unchanged, he realized as he had not before, that his undertaking was fraught with the greatest danger. He might reach the foot of the cliff alive or he might not. The chances were against him. Things looked differently in the night time. A slip, a misstep, a fall, and death would be the end, death on the rocks 200 feet below, with the white foam for a shroud, and the ebbing tide to bear him far out to sea.

Yet he must needs go on. But as he made ready to descend, his thoughts suddenly went back to the little girl who had been his playmate during the past few weeks. He had almost forgotten her for the moment. Was he a recreant knight thereby? His conscience reproached him. Strange as it may seem, he felt a pang of regret when he realized that once he stepped over the balcony wall and essayed the descent he should be parted from her forever. In death or in liberty they would be equally separated. The little Rose of Rohans—to see her no more! The thought gave him a peculiar feeling. He paused, reluctant. He was surprised at himself.

The little maiden with her mingling of childish innocence and womanly charm had grown very dear to him, and the joy he anticipated in soon regaining his liberty was sadly dimmed by the certain sadness of that inevitable parting. Yet the feeling was not strong enough to deter him—then. It was deep enough, however, to give him pause. He lingered, thinking swiftly. It was duty that turned the scale—duty and love are antagonists of old.

He had learned something about the French fleet in Brest and the location of the defenses in the harbor in his rapid ride through the town when he came to the chateau, and from his frequent although apparently cursory examinations of the position from the towers and walls he had learned more. His information would be of great value. He was an officer of the king, and when the possibility of escape presented itself, at all hazards he must make an effort to reach the ships. The marquis had spoken once or twice about exchange, but nothing had yet come from it and such matters were slow at best.

As it seemed more feasible, as the possibility approached nearer, his desire grew. The detaining image of the French girl grew fainter. Duty, liberty, freedom, action—what child could stand in the way? Therefore again he determined to attempt the descent. Yet it was a forbidding undertaking now that he had settled upon it. It had seemed easier in the daylight than at night time. The bend of the wall cast the corner in a black shadow, the more intense on account of the brightness of the moonlight beyond.

His mind was in a strange turmoil. Death—love—liberty—what would be the end? Pshaw! He would think no more, he would do it!

He climbed up on the stone railing of the balcony, turned his back toward the tower, slid along the coping stone until he could feel the angle between the walls with his hand, his shoulders touching either side of the angle. He held firmly to the coping of the balcony, which he determined not to let go of until he was sure of a foot rest. Then he stretched out his right leg and felt about in the shadow until [illegible] his foot hit the first projection. He breathed a prayer and prepared to descend. He was glad the angle was [illegible]. He could not see what was beneath him. The black cliffs under his feet hid their terrors from him. He intended to try it with his face outward, his back in the angle, his hands and feet outstretched, clutching at or feeling for every inequality. He was about to let go. Another moment and he had gone, when he felt a familiar little hand laid upon his arm.

"Come back, come back, you will be killed!" whispered a small frightened voice. He was so startled in spite of the quietness of her address that he nearly lost his hold and fell. He recovered himself, however, by a prodigious effort, and aided by the girl's nervous, clinging hands he drew himself up slowly, and swinging his legs back over the coping landed once more on the solid floor of the balcony. The idea of disregarding her summons did not once occur to him.

"Were you doing this for me?" asked the girl innocently, still clinging to him as if afraid to release him.

"Mademoiselle Anne!" he cried in great surprise and annoyance, "why are you here?" He was trembling violently from his exertions and the tense emotions of the past few moments.

"Why not, Sir Philip? You are here yourself, you see," she answered unsuspiciously, approaching him and laying an innocent hand on his arm and looking steadily at him.

"Yes, but I—come into the tower," he said drawing her back through the window into the room. How her eyes gleamed in the moonlight! What depths were there, what unfathomable mysteries lurked within their shadows! He had never seen them so before. They startled him—those eyes so softly tender, so deeply blue. And the exquisite pallor of that face framed in the misty blackness of her floating hair—the girl was beautiful.

Following him into the chamber she stopped unconsciously where the moonlight streamed in through the window. For the first time he noticed what she wore in the bright illumination. Apparently she was clad in her nightdress with a loose wrapper hastily thrown about her shoulders; her little bare feet gleamed like marble on the stone floor. One hand hung by her side, with the other she instinctively gathered the wrapper across her breast with a movement at once modest yet charming.

"Why, you are in your night-robe!" he exclaimed in astonishment, but not raising his voice for fear of attracting attention. "Your feet are bare and on these damp stones! You'll catch your death of cold! My dear child!"

He forgot that he was her knight, and stooping down lifted her slender form in his strong young arms. She half-struggled a moment and then acquiesced. What was he to do with her? The carpetless room was bare of furniture and, save for themselves, empty. He hesitated, stepped into the window, sat down upon the low sill, and set her on his knee, holding her firmly, carefully, tenderly. She, too, forgot that she was a lady, and nestled against him as any child might have done.

"Now tell me," he whispered—they spoke softly all the time—"why did you come here, Anne?"

It was the first time he had addressed her without a title.

"I do not know," she answered. "I—my room is over there, you know. I couldn't sleep. I was thinking about the Lady Jehane and her lover the Baron de Croisic—and about you, Sir—Philip." The pause between the "sir" and "Philip" was a long one, which sweetened the name in his ears as she continued, "I heard a sound and I thought it might be his ghost. So I came—I hurried too. I had no time to dress."

"Were you not afraid?"

"The marquis says the de Rohans are never afraid. I didn't like it, but I came on tiptoe, and then I saw something black outside on the balcony and I walked over there. I was a little afraid, I think, perhaps because I am part American," she added naively.

"Americans are never afraid, either," interrupted Grafton promptly.

"Well, anyway, I saw it was you and I was not afraid any more. And I watched you stand and look, and then I saw you get over the wall, and then I was fearfully afraid—for you, Philip. I thought you might be killed. I slipped out and caught hold of you, you came back, and now we are here—together."

FAT RETURNS FROM DIME.

A New Orleans Traveling Man Says the Little Coin Yielded Him All of $2,750.

"You often hear of men running up a small sum of money into a good big bank roll, but I did something once in Omaha that, so far as I know, beats all records when the amount originally invested is considered," said E. W. Gaylord, of New Orleans, to a Washington Post reporter.

"I was waiting in Omaha for a remittance from my firm, and, having no coin about me was feeling in that lonesome state that the moneyless man

alone can appreciate. To kill time I walked into a gambling house, having not the remotest idea of doing aught save watching the players. As I stood in the vicinity of the roulette wheel I mechanically thrust my hand into a pocket of my vest and extracted a lone dime that I did not know was on my person. I actually felt ashamed to put it on anything, but something whispered it might win, and, sure enough, when the wheel stopped my coin had won. Again I won, and again and that ten-cent piece had brought me in nine dollars.

"This is pretty good interest, I thought, and cashed in taking my nine dollars and moving over to the stud poker game, and investing in chips. My luck followed me here, likewise, and I ran up my stake to $85 in less than 30 minutes. Considering what a big return this was, I began to feel a chilly sensation at my pedal extremities, and as it was near the dinner hour, I made this an excuse for quitting.

After dining, the desire to press my luck was too great to be resisted, and being near a hundred strong, I went back to the sporting establishment and took my seat at a draw poker game where the buyout was $50, table stakes. It's no use to weary you with the details of my play, but from the very jump the fortune that had been with me earlier in the day stuck. I held the most marvellous series of hot hands ever known, straights, flushes and fulls without end and several sets of fours, and on nearly all of them got good plays.

"To cut it short, when I left the game in the small hours of the morning I cashed in $2,750, and got the money on the spot, the house man remarking that if this was my usual style he would like to engage me at any salary to play for him."

PIE BRINGS NEEDED REST.

Pastry Contains Opiate and Maniac Is Put to Sleep Without His Knowledge.

All other efforts being futile, a gooseberry pie was finally used as the successful medium to administer opiates to Rufus Davis, of Alexandria, Ind., confined in the Madison county jail until he can be admitted to the hospital for the insane. His mental derangement is such that the man has been a raving maniac since he was brought to the jail. He had slept but very little the past week.

Officers and physicians found it impossible to administer medicine of any kind

HE ATE THE WHOLE PIE.

to the insane man. He was finally asked what kind of pie he preferred for supper, and he begged for gooseberry. A fine, large gooseberry pie was prepared, and carefully mixed with the ingredients were morphine and medicine intended to quiet the man so that he might sleep and be relieved. When the "doctored" pie was given him he was selfish with it, and permitted no one to approach it. He ate all of it, and two hours later was quiet for the first time in several days, and, while guarded by a physician to note his condition, Davis slept peacefully through the night.

OUT FOR BUFFALOES

Ernest Harold Baynes Tells of Photographing Herd on a New Hampshire Preserve—Getting Very Scarce.

I am particularly interested in buffaloes for several reasons. In the first place, they are the most magnificent hoofed animals on the western hemisphere, and in the next place they are almost extinct. Less than 50 years ago, they were probably the most numerous large wild animals in the world, and to-day there are possibly 1,800 in existence. About a third of these, something over 600, are wild and inhabit a desolate region southwest of—well, never mind just where it is. The rest are either in captivity in zoological gardens, or in what might be termed semi-captivity in big game preserves. The largest herd in semiconfinement is that in the Blue Mountain forest, otherwise known as Corbin park, a vast preserve some seven miles north of Newport, N. H. There are at this writing approximately 150 buffalo of all ages in this herd, and these great shaggy beasts roam at will over their kingdom of 26,000 acres, confined only by a fence 36 miles in length. Here, in a country of wild mountain forests, bushy thickets, swampy lowlands and grassy plains, the buffaloes thrive and increase in numbers every year, and it is here that I have the privilege of studying their habits, and of photographing the animals themselves to my heart's content.

A few days later, very early one morning, I came upon a herd of buffalo, more than a hundred, all told, grazing on a piece of high land where they had spent the night. I set off home and returned with two cameras, hoping to get a picture of the herd. But before I could get quite near enough, some of the beasts caught sight of me, and by a few deep grunts warned the rest, and the whole lot were soon galloping away down a hill, across a swamp and into a wood where they were lost to view. However, a man who runs may read the fresh trail of a herd of buffaloes, by the trampled grass, the broken twigs, and, at this season, by the bunches of hair left clinging to the bushes, so I hurried after them as fast as I could go with two cameras, one in each hand. Now, part of this reserve was once a farming country, and a few of the old farmhouses are still standing. Some of these are in good repair, and are kept as shooting camps, and are used by the members of the Blue Mountain Forest association in the hunting season. Others have gone more or less to decay, and are now perhaps the homes of wild cats and other forest creatures, and in the floors of some of them there are great holes gnawed by the teeth of porcupines. After toiling after the buffaloes for perhaps three miles, I came upon the herd on a wide open space in the rear of one of these old farm houses—some grazing and others lying down, all as contented as a herd of domestic cattle. Cautiously I approached the front of the house, quietly removed a window, crawled into a musty room and drew the cameras in after me. Going through to the rear I could see the whole herd in full view from the back windows. Very slowly I opened one of these windows without attracting the attention of the buffaloes, and quickly put a camera in position. I wished to station the other camera at one of the side windows, but the sash was stiff and threatened to make a noise if I tried to open it. However, it was the work of but five minutes to remove a pane of glass with a penknife, and very soon I had my guns trained upon the herd from two directions. Having made one or two exposures, I waited for a chance to get individual pictures, and a little later, when the buffaloes began to move about, the opportunity came. The first animal to approach the rear window was a fine young bull, whose last winter's coat was still hanging to his sides in tatters. I got his portrait without arousing his suspicions, and then went to see if there was anything within range of the other instrument. Coming round the corner of the house there was a fine old cow buffalo, grazing quietly, and following close upon her heels was her tawny, three-months-old calf, nibbling the grass as though he was not quite used to the work. A moment later they were fairly within range, and I released the shutter, the sound of which caused the cow to lift her head and gaze in the direction of the window. But the room was dark and she could not see me, for she soon went on with her grazing. Returning to the first camera I soon got a snap at two young bulls feeding side by side and thus I might have gone along until all my plates were used, had not a plate-holder slipped through my fingers and fallen to the floor with a crash.

SPORTING NEWS.

DIAMOND DUST.

Charles Mallay, a former member of the Scotch Plains team, but for the past two seasons playing with the Gloversville team in the New York State League, has been signed by Manager Hanlon, of the Brooklyns, to cover left field next season. Mallay's work in the New York State League has been gilt-edge, his batting average being over .450, and leading the outfield in batting average.

The Elizabeth Journal yesterday had the following to say of today's Alis-Westfield game: "The big game of the county will be at Westfield tomorrow, when Alis, of Plainfield, meets Westfield in the sixth of their county championship series. The record now stands 3 to 2 in favor of Westfield. Alis, without a doubt, has the strongest team ever representing Plainfield and with the help of National League pitchers has been the only team to give Westfield a serious setback. Alis will use a big leaguer in the box tomorrow and Westfield has had a move on and will present a formidable front to stave off a tie up in the series."

"Man-eater" Mullen's "Nationals" put it all over the East End Colored Giants yesterday afternoon, defeating them by the overwhelming score of 31 to 8. This is the biggest gross score of the "Nationals" in any game this season. Mullen himself handled the leather in the box and Schroper was his assistant behind the plate. Spencer and Cregar formed the battery for the Colored Giants. The feature of the game was the heavy hitting by the "Nationals;" two clean home runs, two three-sackers by "Man-eater" alone, two baggers galore and numberless singles were so distributed through the game as to allow the "Nationals" to score every time at bat.

GOLF.

When the amateurs gather at Baltusrol for the national championship, they will find the course bunkered more profusely than ever. The penalty for poor direction will be severe.

The professional match for $100 a side, between George Pierson and David Hunter, the first thirty-six holes of which were played at the Forest Hill Field Club on Monday, when Pierson finished with a lead of 4 up, was completed Thursday at the Essex County Country Club, and Pierson won by 2 up and 1 to play. Hunter played the best golf over his own course, but the lead of 4 up was more than he could overcome.

TENNIS.

Once more the finals in the tournament in doubles at the Y. M. C. A. courts have been postponed indefinitely on account of the inability of the four men to meet at the same time. Miner and Koons were to have played against the Rogers brothers. The matches will be played some time in September.

TIMBO CLUB'S OUTING.

Asparagus Hollow to be Scene of the Great Event.

At early dawn tomorrow the Timbo Social Club will make a pilgrimage to Asparagus Hollow, where they will spend the day. This beautiful spot abounds in many restful nooks and the Timbo Social Club members and their friends will pass the day in their own way. As the party will be a "stag," cooling refreshments will tempt thirst parched throats which will be on hand in abundance.

The club was under much stress in deciding whether to spend the day at Asparagus Hollow, Hudson's Pond, Rajotte's brickyards at Dunellen or at Fiddler's Elbow, a sequestered spot alongside the New Market pond, where water lilies bloom and sunfish bite. After balloting nearly all one night Asparagus Hollow was chosen.

COPS DEFEATED.

Get the Wrong End of Score in Practice Game.

The recently organized baseball team of the city policemen, played a practice game at Crescent Oval, yesterday afternoon, meeting a delegation of local players, known for the occasion as the Crescent A. C. Though the cops were defeated by one run, the contest was only carried on for five innings, and several of Captain Flynn's most promising players were unable to be present.

The score by innings and lineup follows:

Policemen	0	2	1	2	0	—5

O'Neil, of the St. Louis Nationals, will pitch and Marshall, of the New York Nationals, will catch for Alis in the game against Westfield this afternoon.

BIBLE OF JEFFERSON

IT IS BEING PRINTED BY UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT.

The Original Copy of "Morals of Jesus of Nazareth" Being Reproduced at Washington—Considered a Great Work.

Resolved, etc., that there be printed and bound, by photolithographic process, with an introduction of not to exceed 25 pages, to be prepared by Dr. Cyrus Adler, librarian of the Smithsonian Institution, for the use of congress, 9,000 copies of Thomas Jefferson's Morals of Jesus of Nazareth, as the same appeared in the National museum, 3,000 copies for the use of the senate and 6,000 copies for the use of the house.

Such is the resolution, passed at the last session of congress, which has set the government printing presses at work on an edition of one of the most valued Bibles in this country. To-day there is but one volume of this valued little book in existence. Within a few weeks now there will be 9,000, and while the reprints will not be so valuable as the original, much of which is written in Jefferson's own handwriting, yet they will be highly prized by every one so fortunate as to receive a copy as it comes from the government presses.

The title of this little volume, written by Jefferson on a fly leaf is "Morals of Jesus of Nazareth." The book is a red leather bound volume and contains 164 pages. With great neatness Jefferson pasted upon its pages four versions of the New Testament—Greek, Latin, French and English—in parallel columns and in the order named. Its title page and index are in Jefferson's own hand, and on the pages containing the extracts are found here and there interlineations and notes. The index refers to the proper place of each passage in the ordinary Testament, so that the reader may compare if he desires. He cites the sections of the Roman law under which the Saviour was tried, and also attaches the map of Palestine.

The book is now in the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, in charge of the librarian, Dr. Cyrus Adler, and is one of the most interesting bibliographical specimens in the museum. Its great value lies first of all in the fact that it contains the estimate of the Saviour by one of the philosophical thinkers in the early history of the United States, and, second, in the fact that there is only one copy in existence.

Thomas Jefferson's library was purchased by the government and is now included in the congressional library. It appears, however, that this volume did not go with the other valuable books, but was afterward purchased for $400 by Miss Randolph.

13 And Pilate, when he had called together the chief priests, and the rulers, and the people,

In Jefferson's compilation of the Gospels he omitted everything of a miraculous nature and confined his clippings to the teachings of Jesus. He clipped from all the Gospels, using the verses which make the clearest statement where the texts are practically the same.

In the concluding verse of the work, he takes John, xix., 42, and Matthew, xxvii., 60, and combines them, clipping out all but the plain statement of the burial. The result is as follows:

"John xix., 42: There laid they Jesus * * *

"Matthew, xxvii., 60: * * * and * * * rolled a great stone to the door of the sepulchre, and departed."

Thus he followed out to the end his general plan and omitted all that could not be explained to the satisfaction of a practical lawyer, leaving Christ buried forever and giving no evidence of belief in the resurrection.

Sunday Excursion to Manch Chunk.

There is no more popular resort for a Sunday than Manch Chunk, and to reach it entails a delightful rail journey, and at Manch Chunk there is a diversity of amusements, the chief of which is a ride over the Switchback. This journey occupies more than one hour, and leads over and around the mountains with widely changing scenes at every turn. The Switchback is a gravity road, and the speed attained is close to a mile per minute. Another feature is Flagstaff, the summit of which is reached by trolley, and from its pinnacle point there is a view extending over miles and miles of beautiful country. An interesting spot close at hand is Glen Onoko, a short distance above Manch Chunk, and, as its name implies, is a beautiful glen, with falls, cataracts, mountain paths leading to cool and delightful places. On August 14 the New Jersey Central is to run a popular excursion to Manch Chunk from Plainfield by special train leaving at 9:20 a. m. Returning train will leave Manch Chunk at 5:40 p. m., and the round trip will cost but $1.50. Frequent train service will be in effect between Manch Chunk and Glen Onoko, and trains on the Switchback run every few minutes. 867c

SMALL ATTENDANCE ON LOCAL GOLF COURSES

The Vacation Season Takes a Large Number of Players From the City.

LOW SCORES POSTED

GUS FABER AGAIN WINS DOUBLE HONORS AT PARK CLUB.

Leighton Calkins and L. H. VanBuren Win First Honors at Hillside—The Hillside Team Defeats Hackensack—Other Results.

The absence of so many members from the city had its effect at the local golf courses on Saturday, and in consequence but a limited number took part in the usual events. At the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, there was the regular play for the Golf Committee and Gaston cups and several good scores were returned in the competition. For the Golf Committee cup Leighton Calkins won first honors with a net score of 72, G. F. Schoonmaker was second with a 75 net, and Arthur Murphy finished third with 76 net. These scores were posted:

Leighton Calkins, 75, 3—72; G. F. Schoonmaker, 86, 11—75; Arthur Murphy, 88, 12—76; L. H. VanBuren, 96, 18—78; E. E. Iremonger, 90, 11—79; Robert Abbott, 79, plus 1—80; A. L. Otterson, 100, 19—91; C. B. Morgan, 88, 6—82.

The point-winners for the Gaston cup were L. H. VanBuren with a 96 net, Harold Robert with a 98 net, and A. L. Otterson with a 100 net. These scores were returned:

A five-men team from the Hillside Club played a match with a team from the Hackensack Golf Club on Saturday, at the latter place, winning easily by a score of 19 to 7. A feature of the match was W. L. Glenney's score, he being 12 up on his opponent, Hodgson. The summary:

Hillside—F. O. Reinhart, 5; W. L. Glenney, 12; Dudley H. Barrows, 0; C. W. Abbott, 2; H. R. Stockton, 0. Total, 19.

Hackensack—Calder, 0; Hodgson, 0; Williams, 2; Whitbeck, 0; Sage, 5. Total, 7.

Owing to the very wet condition of the Park Golf Club course, but four contestants in the weekly competition returned scores. The course has suffered considerable from the recent rains which have left it soggy and slow. Gus. W. Faber again won first honors for the President's and Park Golf Club cups with a score of 86. Morgan T. Townsend won second honors for both trophies, while Raymond B. Carroll won the one point for the President's cup. These scores were posted:

Gus. W. Faber, 86, 0—86; Morgan T. Townsend, 91, 0—91; Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll, 125, 19—106; Raymond B. Carroll, 99, 7—92.

At the Westfield Golf Club on Saturday, the only event was the Governors' competition. In this C. E. Halstead with an 88, 10—78, and R. K. Taylor with an 99, 17—83, qualified. In the evening there was a reception and dance.

The Week's Programme at Home.

William Webb, of Westfield, will be the leader at the Mary Morgan Home this evening. Tomorrow evening the meeting will be conducted by Rev. Gideon M. Shott, pastor of the First Baptist church, of Scotch Plains; David M. Torrey, of the Home, will lead the meeting Wednesday evening. The Trinity Reformed church Christian Endeavor Society will give a song service at the camp Thursday evening, and the following evening there will be a similar service by the Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church.

In Honor of Plainfielders.

Those who go on the Hope chapel excursion to Asbury Park, Saturday, will have the opportunity of hearing a special concert by Arthur Pryor's big band. Several Plainfielders are numbered among its musicians and through its advance representative, Chris Sorensen, Jr., a programme has been arranged in honor of the visitors from this city. The concert is to be given in the Asbury Casino, located on the board walk.

An Excellent Sermon.

"My Yoke is Easy, My Burden is Light," was the subject of an excellent sermon delivered by Rev. J. N. Morris, of Newark, in Trinity Reformed church yesterday morning.

NO MERCY FOR WIFE BEATER

JAMES NOLAN GETS SIXTY DAYS IN JAIL FOR THE OFFENSE.

With tears in her eyes and her face still showing the marks of a beating he had given her, Mrs. James Nolan appeared in the city court, this morning, and begged Judge Runyon to be lenient with her husband by giving him another chance to behave himself.

"Under any other circumstance I might consider it," said His Honor, "but I have no patience with wife beaters and they will get no mercy in this court. Nolan, sixty days straight in the county jail."

Nolan was arrested on Liberty street, Saturday night, by Patrolman Hamilton, after he had struck his wife repeatedly in a vicious way. The affair took place in the street while she was making every effort to get him to return home. Despite the blows he showered upon her she remained loyal to him and belittled her hurts to the policeman and also to the court when the prisoner was arraigned. Nolan was formerly a conductor on the street railway and is well known throughout the city.

"MRS. W. C. WHITNEY" MOVES

SHE IS FORCED BY LEGAL PROCEEDINGS TO CHANGE HER QUARTERS.

In anticipation of a high government office within a brief period, Deputy Sheriff Peter V. Weaver is biding his time and trusting in the promises of Miss Nellie V. Miller, who announces her self as the widow of Hon. William C. Whitney, and states that when she finishes proving her title she will reward him for his courtesy to her on Saturday.

During the past four months, "Mrs. Whitney," who up to yesterday occupied lodgings on the third floor of the building at 333 Watchung avenue, has been constantly in trouble with her landlord, Charles H. Hand, the real estate broker. Summoned and subpoenaed again and again, she has refused to appear in court to answer in the numerous "landlord and tenant" cases on court dockets against her name. Matters recently reached a climax when Mr. Hand decided to enter into dispossess proceedings because of non-settlement of rent. On hearing of this action on the part of her landlord, "Mrs. Whitney" decided to advertise a public auction and fool the constable by selling out. Accordingly, announcing herself as "widow of the Hon. William C. Whitney," she advertised a public auction for Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and secured the services of Auctioneer Latourette.

Grasping the opportunity thus offered for entrance to the apartments, Constable Weaver, armed with his legal dispossess papers, went around Saturday afternoon "to attend the sale."

At the conclusion of the sale, the Constable marched up to the astonished "Mrs. Whitney," and presenting his papers, began the dispossession immediately by grasping a chair and depositing it upon the sidewalk. Unable to prevent execution of the law, "Mrs. Whitney" ruefully watched the dismantling of her apartments. Mrs. Soden, a second floor neighbor, finally allowed the furniture to stand in the hallway. It was then that the woman offered Constable Weaver a new job.

"Mrs. Whitney," thus turned from her lodgings, is seeking another home and she may be obliged to leave town.

"Tom" Fay Returns Home.

Loaded down with souvenir shillelahs and Nottinghamshire fish stories, Thomas Fay, of North avenue, returned yesterday from his trip to England, the first in thirty-two years. He came back on the Cedric and reports an excellent voyage and a very good time all the while he was away. While in London he was the guest of "Neil" Loughlin, formerly of this city, who is now prereserting the Campbell Machine Company abroad.

Endeavorers at Fresh Air Home.

A large delegation from the Warren chapel Christian Endeavor Society attended the Mary Morgan Fresh Air Home, Netherwood, Saturday and passed the afternoon with the little New Yorkers. The time was pleasantly spent playing games. Later in the afternoon a donkey party was played by the members of the society, and the children joined in the fun. Bean bags were distributed as prizes. Watermelon was subsequently served to the campers, and the remaining part of the time was spent in listening to phonograph selections.

PLAINFIELD IS WHITEWASHED BY WESTFIELD

"Red" Waller Pitches Phenomenal Ball, Allowing His Opponents But One Hit.

A FINE EXHIBITION

O'NEILL IS TOUCHED FOR EIGHT SINGLES.

The Teams Play Almost Perfect Ball—Poor Work of Umpire Watt—The Detailed Score.

The Plainfield team was outplayed by Westfield Saturday afternoon, and the locals went down to defeat at Recreation Park by a score of 3 to 0, in a fine exhibition. This is the first whitewash that Westfield has the credit of giving Manager Johnston's team this year, except the forfeited 9 to 0 contest. "Red" Waller swirled phenomenal ball for Denman's team, allowing but one hit, which Cusick had the honor of making, and striking our four men. His support was almost perfect, Patience being credited with the only error.

Plainfield lost through inability to hit, while O'Neill, of the St. Louis Nationals, who stood on the firing line for the local team, was a disappointment in allowing eight hits. He may be a good pitcher, but he was in poor form Saturday. At the receiving end was Marshall, of the New York Nationals. His work was very satisfactory, not a base being stolen on him. Westfield made hits when they counted most, yet when it is considered that they got eight singles and five sacrifice hits and only three runs, it can be appreciated what a fine game the Plainfield team put up. The contest was in nearly every respect the reverse of the one played on Crescent Oval a week ago, when Westfield was shut out. At that time the team from down the line was just as weak in batting.

The work of Umpire Watt was far from being satisfactory. His decisions in some instances were very yellow. The series between the teams now stands four to two in favor of Westfield.

DEATH OF FORMER MAYOR GEORGE W. ROCKFELLOW

Passed Away at His Home in Cardinal, Va., Early Saturday Evening.

NEWS UNEXPECTED

LAST REPORTS BY LETTER LED RELATIVES TO BELIEVE HE WAS IMPROVING.

Was Twice the City's Chief Executive and a Man of Wide Prominence—Body to be Brought North.

George W. Rockfellow, twice elected Plainfield's mayor, died at his home in Cardinal, Va., after a long illness, Saturday night. Word of his death came by telegram to relatives and friends and occasioned great surprise as it had been supposed that he was doing unusually well during the past few weeks. Nothing was said as to the cause but it was evidently due to a nervous malady and heart trouble from which he had suffered for many years.

Born in Bound Brook in 1846 of Scotch parentage, Mr. Rockfellow came to Plainfield thirty-three years ago and established himself in the grocery business at North and Park avenues. Through his geniality and tactful methods he prospered rapidly and soon was the city's leading grocer. He remained at this stand until the erection of the Clifton building at Park avenue and Fourth street a few years ago, when he occupied the corner store. Failing health and changes in his business induced him to dispose of his interests two years ago and he removed to Cardinal, a small place situated on a high bluff overlooking Mobjack and Onesapeake bays. There he lived a quiet life, enjoying his favorite pastimes of hunting and fishing and seeking by outdoor exercise to regain the health that would permit him to return to the North. His last visit to Plainfield was made last fall, when he remained seven weeks and every hour was a pleasure and delight to him. When he started for Cardinal he was exceedingly well and to his friends said he intended returning within a short time.

Although devoted to his business, Mr. Rockfellow found time to take part in municipal affairs and he served his townsmen in various ways year after year. In 1884 he was elected Mayor on the Republican ticket and served until 1886. The honor was again conferred upon him in 1898 when he ran against Fred C. Lounsbury, who headed a Citizen's ticket, and defeated him by a small majority. During both terms he served conscientiously and faithfully, his policy being to please all classes of citizens with the result that he became liked better than ever.

He was president of the Board of Health for a long time, president of the State Grocers' Association and vice president of the Dime Savings Institution. He was one of the organizers of the Congregational church and always retained his membership. He was superintendent of its Sunday-school for fourteen years and headed the Board of Trustees for as long a term. Personally, he was a man to whom everyone was attracted and his generosity and good traits were sometimes carried to a fault.

Surviving him are a widow, who was Miss Cornelia Mollison, of Bound Brook, and four children, Mrs. Fred Stack and Roland Rockfellow, of this city; and George Jr., and Herbert Rockfellow, who have been with him at Cardinal. The body will be brought North tomorrow and funeral services will be held from the Bound Brook Presbyterian church Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Interment will be in the family plot at Bound Brook.

FREIGHT TRAIN DASHES INTO CROWDED TROLLEY

Crossing on South Avenue Near Aldene, Scene of Bad Accident.

TWO PEOPLE HURT

NEW BRUNSWICK MAN INJURED IN BACK MAY BE PARALYZED FOR LIFE.

Company Starts Investigation to Learn Why Derailing Switch at the Crossing Was Not Thrown.

Crowded to the rails with half-holiday passengers, trolley car No. 185, of the Newark-Plainfield line, on its way to this city Saturday afternoon, was struck and badly damaged by a freight train that was backing down on the Lehigh Valley-Jersey Central joint crossing over South avenue at Aldene. J. H. Dodd, of New Brunswick, a drummer, was so badly crushed that he may be paralyzed for life, and Mrs. John Dinke, of Newark, received a sprained ankle. Another woman was slightly hurt and a score of passengers were either bruised or cut. Dodd was removed to Cranford and later to an Elizabeth hospital, but Mrs. Dinke was able to return home. The car was in charge of Motorman Peter Voorhees and Conductor Charles Ryder, both of this city.

The accident happened despite the fact that the crossing is guarded by the latest type of derailing switch such as the Public Service Corporation has generally installed of late throughout its entire trolley system. That more persons were not injured or killed was deemed wonderful by those who witnessed the smash-up.

When it was evident to the passengers that the train was bearing down on the street vehicle, which was of the open type, there was a wild scramble to get off. Men and women piled over each other in their hurry to escape, and the shock threw from their feet to the roadway those who did not jump immediately. As for the trolley car itself, it was smashed and the front seats crushed together in accordion fashion.

Many of the trolley passengers were from Newark and Elizabeth, the majority being half-holiday pleasure seekers. The Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey branch extends through Aldene and the railroad crossing on South avenue is used as a connection for the exchange of freight between the Lehigh Valley and Central railroads. It is about a quarter of a mile long.

About 3:30 o'clock the trolley car reached the crossing. There is a wide space on all sides at South avenue and it seemed to border on the wonderful how it came to pass that the crew of the car failed to notice that a freight train of four cars, to which a Central Railroad locomotive was attached, was backing down on them.

The fact that the derailing switch necessitated the pulling of a lever on the opposite side of the grade crossing from which the trolley car came also brought forth much comment how it was possible for the accident to occur. The first intimation that the collision was imminent was when the trolley car was directly on the railroad tracks. In a moment the pasengers were all excitement. When the rear car of the freight train hit the trolley the latter vehicle was thrown from the tracks.

Dodd was in one of the front seats that was crushed in and was caught before he could get out. The two women also hurt were likewise on the car when the collision happened. Nearly every passenger suffered bruises or contusions in trying to escape. The engineer of the freight saw the trolley car in the way and reversed, but not in time to stop his train entirely.

Dr. J. K. MacConnell, of Cranford, and Dr. G. W. Strickland, of Roselle, attended the injured. They examined a number of persons, and Dr. MacConnell attended to Dodd. The injured man was taken in a carriage to Cranford. Several women suffered from hysteria.

Neither Motorman Voorhees or Conductor Ryder would volunteer any explanation of how the accident came about. It could not be learned from the passengers whether they had seen either man go across the railroad and throw the lever of the derailing switch.

There was another car just ahead of No. 185, and one passenger said he thought it possible that the switch might have been left open by the crew of the car ahead in order to accommodate the conductor or motorman of the vehicle that was struck. An investigation was immediately started by the trolley company.

EVANGELIST JABOBS SPEAKS

TELLS OF HIS RECENT TRIP TO THE HOLY LAND AT FRESH AIR HOME.

The Mary Morgan Home at Netherwood was thronged with visitors yesterday afternoon on the occasion of the annual visit of Rev. F. H. Jacobs, the singing evangelist, of Brooklyn.

Dr. Jacobs, who recently returned from an extended trip through the Holy Land, spoke of his travels through Palestine, his visits to Jerusalem, Capernaum, the Dead Sea, Nazereth, Nain, and other places connected closely with the life of Jesus while on earth. In the course of his remarks, Dr. Jacobs displayed trinkets and pottery given him by the people of the land, and told interesting anecdotes illustrating their characteristics.

Singing made up a large part of the programme of service, and in this Dr. Jacobs was assisted by a chorus choir of sixteen. Miss May Voorhees was at the organ, and DeWitt Frazee assisted on his cornet. Dr. Jacobs sang "Sweet Galilee" and several other solos. Mr. Frazee also rendered a cornet solo.

An offering was taken during the course of the service which netted more than $50 for use in the work at the camp. There are at present nearly three hundred at the camp, some forty of whom are parents. A new delegation was received at the camp Saturday afternoon. At Miss Curry's Day Nursery in New York city, there are about fifty children, who are unable to leave the city, but who come to the Nursery every day.

GERMANIA LODGE OUTING.

The Members and Their Wives Spend Pleasant Day on a Farm.

Germania Lodge, of this city, spent yesterday at Kessler's Farm, New Market, on the occasion of the regular annual outing of the organization. Nearly a hundred members, accompanied by their wives, were in the party. The day's pleasure included all sorts of contests, games and races for men, women and children.

The committee in charge comprised William Gardner, August Wolf, Charles Schaus and Anton Stensenberger.

Trolley Passenger Badly Hurt.

Harry Shannon, twenty years old, of West Third street, was thrown on his face and badly hurt in alighting from a trolley car at Front street and Lafayette place, Saturday night. His nose was broken and he received other injuries that necessitated his removal to Dr. Cregar's office. The young man claims he asked the conductor to stop but that he failed to do so.

NEGRO SLASHES WHITE MAN WITH KNIFE BLADE

Phillip Sheridan is Badly Cut About the Face by Richard Scudder.

OFFENDER ESCAPES

ARRESTED LAST NIGHT BY PATROLMAN HAMILTON.

Held for the Grand Jury—Counsel Secures Permission to Have the Case Reopened Tomorrow Morning.

Angered because Phillip Sheridan, white, told him to move away from the corner at Liberty and West Third streets, Saturday night, Richard Scudder, a one-legged colored man, drew a knife and slashed the former across the face. The fact that the blade was dull is perhaps all that saved Sheridan's life as it was drawn across his neck with force enough to have severed his head from his body if it had been in anyway sharp. A bad gash was inflicted several inches in length and another sweep of the knife placed a deep cut across his cheekbone.

The two men were seized by onlookers as Patrolman Hamilton appeared on the scene and in the excitement of caring for Sheridan, Scudder hobbled off. The injured man was taken to police headquarters in the patrol wagon and his hurts were dressed by Dr. Lufburrow. The physician declared that Sheridan's escape from death was miraculous as the knife thrust in the neck just escaped the jugular vein and important arteries.

Scudder remained in hiding all yesterday, but ventured out last evening only to fall into Patrolman Hamilton's hands. When arraigned in court this morning, Scudder claimed that Sheridan had spoken to him aggressively and ordered him to move along, at the same time shoving him. Sheridan, with his face and head swathed in bandages was present and denied shoving, saying that he only asked Scudder to get out of the way. The colored man was held to await the action of the Grand Jury, but late today his counsel, William G. DeMeza, secured the consent of Judge Runyon to re-open the case and it will be heard again tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. No complaint was preferred against Sheridan.

T. S. Armstrong, the prescription druggist on the corner of Park and North avenues, is one of the earliest established druggists in the city, and you may be assured that you will be pleased if you give him your trade.

Alex. Lusardi has a well founded reputation for good peanuts. All you have to do is to walk by and you can tell by the fresh-roasted peanut odor that they are good. Lusardi has a good line of fruit and tobacco.

Cahart, the painter, uses Woolsey's famous ready mixed paint in all his contract work. This paint is great for wear, and will outwear other grades. When you want painting done, get him to figure on the job, you get good work and good paint when Cahart gets the job.

It takes a good barber to cut hair in the hot weather so as to make you comfortable for the rest of the day. When you go in Maynard's cool shop on North avenue for a clip, you have the comfort question solved.

Dr. E. B. Stowe, the chiropodist, performs operations during office hour or by special appointment. These operations are made entirely safe through the use of sterilized instruments. Office is in the Babcock building.

Charles L. Stanley, the North avenue florist, makes a specialty of handling cut flowers. They are brought fresh every day from his green-houses on South avenue.

John P. Powers, the proprietor of Powers' Somerset street pharmacy, give his personal attention to the prescription department of his establishment. His experience and that fact that only graduated pharmacists are employed, make it certain that prescriptions will be compounded carefully. They will be called for and delivered if requested.

If it's only a repair job or a house to be built it makes no difference. Herman Hansen, the builder, will undertake either and do the work in a thorough manner. Many years of experience in residence building.

AMUSEMENTS.

Another interesting programme is announced at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre this week. A prominent position is occupied on the bill by Powell, the magician who has recently returned from a European tour. The first appearance here of James Clarence Hyde's clever comedy, "Her Busy Day," is interpreted by an excellent cast. Of a different type in "The Shadow," presented by the Mansfield-Wilbur Co. The Bathelor Club Quartette, Max and Moritz, comedy cyclists, Fialkowski, an imitator of animals, Mathews and Haverley in travesty, Nina Collins, a soprano, Barnes and Washburne, duettists, Bailey and Fletcher, singers and dancers, and Minnie Harrison, soubrette, are others on a lengthy programme. So successful was the revival of "The Lady of Lyons," at Mr. Proctor's up-town house that a repetition of the performance at the Fifth Avenue Theatre has been decided on for this week. W. S. Hart and Adelaide Keim sustain the principal characters supported by the members of the stock company. Wood and Berry lead he vaudeville programme with a capital singing and dancing specialty. Tiddlewinks and Dugan, the miniature Irish comedians, offer a comedy conversation, the Aerial Shaws are to be seen in a ring and trapese specialty, and Nina Collins, a soprano, will offer excellent singing.

RUSSIA AND JAPAN SHAKE.

Vice President Katayama and Plekharoff Meet at Amsterdam.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 15.—The international socialist and trades union congress has opened here. There was great applause when Vice Presidents Katayama of Japan and Plekharoff of Russia publicly shook hands.

Vice President Katayama, speaking in English, said:

"I am glad to find a delegate here from Russia, with which country our own is waging one of the most disastrous wars that has ever done violence to the fraternity of nations. Japanese socialists ever since 1836 have expected a socialist revolution in Japan."

Vice President Plekharoff, in replying, said that the Russian people did not desire the war, but the government, which was the enemy of the people, provoked Japan by its adventurous and despotic policy. Continual disasters were now Russia's just reward. Even if Russia should be victorious, M. Plekharoff said, the Russian people would be the victims, but Japan was removing one of the feet of the colossus of despotism.

The congress unanimously adopted the following resolution proposed by a French delegate:

"At this moment, when czarism is stricken by war, the socialists here greet the Russian and Japanese proletariat, sacrificed and massacred by capitalism and governments, and rely upon socialists everywhere to oppose by all means in their power the extension or continuation of the war."

SEVEN THOUSAND MONKS.

British Apply to Largest Monastery In the World For Food.

LASSA, Tibet, Aug. 15.—The British mission is experiencing difficulty in obtaining supplies, and no attempt has yet been made to start negotiations. Tibetan officials having been warned that if supplies were not forthcoming the British would be obliged to seize them, replied that they were unable to compel the peasants to sell their grain.

One thousand troops, with four guns marched to the Daipung monastery, a mile distant, containing 7,000 monks and probably the largest monastery in the world. A small party was sent ahead with a letter asking the abbot for supplies and offering to pay liberally for them, but notifying the abbot that if the supplies were refused they would be taken by force.

Crowds of monks collected at the entrance to the monastery. They declined to take the letter and threw stones at the party, which then left the letter in a prominent place and returned to the main body.

The monks then took the letter and sent a deputation with a white flag This deputation, seeing the troops deployed and the guns ready, promised to bring all supplies possible. After some hours' delay the monks produced a hundred maunds of barley and flour (a maund is a weight of about eighty pounds). With these the British had to be content.

G. A. R. National Encampment.

BOSTON, Aug. 15.—The national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, with its several affiliated bodies, has opened here. It is one of the largest and most gratifying of recent conclaves. The city is extensively and beautifully decorated in honor of the occasion, and the Boston Common and public gardens bear electrical illuminations of unusual brilliancy and effectiveness. Commander In Chief Black, accompanied from Washington by members of his family, has arrived at headquarters. The feature of the week will be the parade of Grand Army men tomorrow. Other features of the encampment will be the launching of the United States training ship Cumberland on Wednesday at Charlestown in the presence of distinguished officials, including Secretary of the Navy Morton.

Freight Train In an Arroyo.

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, Colo., Aug. 15.—A freight train on the Denver and Rio Grande went through a trestle near Antlers on the joint track of the Rio Grande and Colorado Midland The trestle had been weakened by a cloudburst which flooded the dry arroyo which was crossed by the trestle. The locomotive passed over, but the three cars following went through the trestle and caused the locomotive to overturn. The fireman sustained a broken arm.

Visitors at the White House.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Chairman Cortelyou of the Republican national committee has had a long conference with President Roosevelt. He will return to New York today. Secretary Hay was at the White House for some time, as was also Secretary Wilson. The latter has just returned to the city from the west and gave the president some information regarding the political and crop conditions in that section of the country.

SEES FIVE STATES

Judge Parker at Winnisook Lodge, In the Catskills.

DROVE WAGON TO MOUNTAIN TOP

Club's Rule Says, "No Politics During His Visit"—Presidential Nominee Was Its First President.

BIG INDIAN, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Judge Alton B. Parker, the Democratic nominee for president, spent last night at the Winnisook club, 2,700 feet above sea level, at the foot of Slide mountain, which is the highest point in the Catskills. Winnisook Lodge is nine miles from the nearest telegraph line and twelve miles from the nearest telephone and is reached by a steep mountain road.

The Winnisook club was organized about twenty years ago for purposes of hunting, fishing and social recreation, and Judge Parker was its first president. Slide mountain, at the foot of which lie the lodge and cottages of the club, is so called from the great landslide which has left the bare northeasterly face of the mountain an almost clear drop of nearly 2,000 feet. From the summit, 4,220 feet above sea level, on a clear day one can see five states, New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, as well as the Hudson river, thirty miles to the eastward.

D. C. Dutcher and other citizens of Big Indian were at the station with a big American flag in honor of the arrival of the candidate, whose coming had been expected with great interest in the neighborhood for the past two days. There were more than 200 people present to welcome Judge Parker and his party. The trip from Kingston was without incident, the party occupying the parlor car Ballston, the judge remaining in the smoking compartment throughout the trip. After reaching Big Indian the party started at once for Winnisook Lodge.

Judge Parker himself drove the two seated mountain wagon up the mountain from Big Indian to Winnisook, and owing to this fact many along the way missed seeing him.

One group of boys had their cameras ready, but would not believe that the man driving the wagon was actually the Democratic candidate for president of the United States.

Word of his coming had been passed along the road, and the people waved their hats and cheered as the party drove by.

Judge Parker took up quarters in Mr. Evans' cottage, Mrs. Parker in that of Mr. and Mrs. Rodie. A rule had been promulgated which, Mr. Rodie declared, would be rigidly enforced—that there was to be no mention of politics during Judge Parker's visit.

The Winnisook club is not unused to entertaining Democratic presidential candidates. Colonel William Jennings Bryan visited the club in 1896 as the guest of the late J. W. Hinckley, then chairman of the New York Democratic state committee, and on that occasion the lodge and cottages were decorated with silver birch and goldenrod in order not to recognize any distinction between the two factions which then threatened to divide the party.

Judge Parker is more at home on the vast reserve comprising the club grounds than any other member. The organization was conceived by Judge Parker nearly twenty years ago, and he took title to 1,900 acres. After interesting a number of friends the club was formed, with the limit of membership fixed at twenty. Others have joined since that time, and at the annual meeting today it is likely the membership limitation will be increased to thirty.

The club buildings are situated in the forest at the foot of Slide mountain, each cottage having its own small clearing.

A feature the members of the club value highly is the complete isolation from business. Not a telegraph or telephone wire approaches nearer than nine miles, and none is wanted. Nothing less than a message of life or death could reach Winnisook.

Circus Man Drowned In Mohawk.

UTICA, N. Y., Aug. 15.—The police have taken the body of an unknown man out of the Mohawk river. His clothing had been found previously on the bank and dragging led to finding the body. The victim is supposed to have been employed by the Forepaugh & Sells circus, which has just exhibited here, and he had evidently been in bathing.

American Line Cuts Steerage Rates.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—A telegram from Liverpool says that the American line announces that commencing on Monday the steerage rate to Philadelphia will be $7.50, instead of $10. This reduction caused considerable consternation among the lines not in the combine, but it is not likely that they will do anything at present to combat it.

Body of Peter Mahan Found.

NAUGATUCK, Conn., Aug. 15.—The body of Peter Mahan, seventy-five years old, who had been missing from his home here since Friday night, has been found in a raceway of the Naugatuck Glove company in less than four feet of water. Mahan probably fell into the raceway and was drowned.

Murder at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 15. — William Kilday, proprietor of a boarding house here, has shot and killed Owen Cunningham, a boarder at his house. According to the police Cunningham made a disparaging remark concerning Kilday's wife, and the shooting resulted. Kilday is under arrest.

SULTAN HAS YIELDED

European Squadron Sails From Smyrna.

AMERICAN DEMANDS GRANTED

Positive Pledges Given That There Shall Be No Discrimination Against Our Schools In Turkey.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 15.—The issues between Turkey and the United States have been arranged to the satisfaction of both governments. The terms of the settlement have not yet been given out.

The fleet which was expected to arrive at Smyrna on the morning of Thursday, the 11th, did not reach port until the 12th. On Thursday afternoon, however, and therefore before the arrival of the fleet the sultan sent one of his private secretaries to see Mr. Leishman and submit the reply of his majesty, giving assurance that no discrimination shall be made between American schools and those of other nationalities and incidentally offering an indemnity in the amount claimed, 5,000 pounds Turkish, to an American citizen, Mrs. Lane, as the price of property owned by her.

The main object, which was to obtain from the sultan a positive pledge of the most favored nation treatment for our schools in Turkey, having thus been accomplished, the presence of the fleet is no longer necessary, and orders have been given for its withdrawal. Mr. Leishman was accordingly instructed to secure without delay such a formulation of his majesty's pledge as will secure for our educational establishments perfect equality of rights with those which France and other nations enjoy under conditions not less favorable than those which France obtained by the agreement of Mytelene in 1901, which demand has been complied with.

The indemnity to be paid to Mrs. Lane closes, it is believed, the only pecuniary claim pending against the Turkish government.

The United States war vessels now at Smyrna under command of Rear Admiral Jewell are the Cleveland, the Olympia and the Baltimore. They will leave Smyrna today for Gibraltar. The ships comprise what is known as the American European squadron and will continue their cruise in European water for some time.

AN AUTO'S JUMP.

Dr. Longbard and Party Landed In an Apple Tree.

CATSKILL, N. Y., Aug. 15.—An automobile containing Dr. Longbard and wife, Frederick Leland and George Belfour, all of New York city, became unmanageable while speeding over a newly made road on the Herman Livingston place, just south of Greendale station, on the east bank of the Hudson river, and ran down a steep embankment.

It alighted in the top of an apple tree, and by the aid of a ladder furnished by the gardener on the place the members of the party descended, none of them having received any injury.

Axes were procured, and the tree was cut down. With it came the automobile, but little the worse for the mishap, and the party continued on their way to Cairo.

Man Was Cut to Pieces.

THOMASTON, Conn., Aug. 15.—Fragments of the body of a well dressed man were found lying along the tracks a mile from the railroad station at this place and were discovered by the crew of the early morning train from Winsted. His head and both arms were cut off, and the trunk of his body was crushed. The man was about forty years old, was stocky and wore a blue serge coat and light striped trousers. His shoes were new, and all his clothing was of good material. There is no clew to his identity.

Bean Eaters Beat Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15. — The Boston Americans won out in the game here by a great batting rally in the ninth inning. Three singles, a double and a sacrifice hit scored the winning runs. It was a hard fought game from start to finish, and the locals were only able to tie the score after an error had given the visitors two runs. Score: Chicago, 2; Boston, 5.

Cows Wreck a Train.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 15.—A train on the South Fork and Dunlo branch of the Pennsylvania railroad, while backing from Lovett to Landfair last night struck a herd of five cows, derailing the engine and baggage car. Louis Bodenschatz, foreman of the division, who was on the baggage car, was killed.

Twenty Go Down With Inverkip.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The British bark Inverkip, Captain Jones, from Melbourne for Queenstown, was sunk and twenty persons were drowned as the result of a collision off Fastnet rock, Ireland, Saturday night with the British ship Loch Carron, Captain Clark, from the Clyde.

St. Louis Got Only Three Hits.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 15.—New York Americans defeated St. Louis here by a score of 2 to 1. Powell allowed St. Louis only three hits. The fielding of Elberfeld was the feature of the game. The score: St. Louis, 1; New York, 2.

British Destroyer Sunk.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The British torpedo boat destroyer Decoy sank off the Scilly Islands Saturday night as the result of a collision with another destroyer. The crew was saved.

LADIES IN GLASS GOWNS.

Entire Bridal Outfit of Glistening Fabric on Exhibition at the St. Louis Fair.

Glass textiles is one of the developments of the skill of modern glass workers. At the world's fair one of the most wonderful exhibits is the process of glass weaving, a delicate and fascinating operation. The operator takes a small glass rod half an inch in diameter and exposes the point to the blue flame of a couple of lamps. When at a white heat he draws out a thread almost as tangible as that spun by the fateful Atropos. An attendant flings this glistening filament over a great iron wheel which makes 300 revolutions a minute. It is so fine as not to be perceptible until a number of strands have been wound. When ready for removal, water must be thrown on the wheel lest the thread, on account of its extreme lightness, fly away and be lost. Three hundred of the original filaments must be put together to make the thickness of ordinary cotton thread.

The finished fabric is of an exquisitely beautiful texture, somewhat resembling the rich stuffs of gold and silver used for sacredotal vestments and altar cloths. It is usually white and lustrous as satin, the surface reflecting the light with somewhat of a metallic luster. Blue, pink, Nile green and other delicate colors are manufactured.

The material is sufficiently pliable to be manipulated by the dressmaker, the needle passing through without any difficulty. It can be made up into exquisite costumes and has little affinity with any of the weaves known to commerce. On account of the peculiarity of the texture it lends itself admirably to the puffs and tucks now so fashionable. A lovely gown is fashioned with the full gathered shirt of the 1830 period, the foot being finished with half a dozen volutes of the shining stuffs, the corsage matching it in style. Sometimes an all white dress is relieved with pipings or cording on faint tones of rose or baby blue. One great advantage this fabric enjoys over silk or linen is that it does not have to submit to the ministrations of the laundress, for all that is necessary when soiled is to wipe off the surface with soap and water.

In order to illustrate the practical utility of "glass or crystal cloth," the exhibitors have erected a stage with footlights on which everything is of this inimitable fabric. The floor is covered with glass carpeting, which is not injured by use. The domed ceiling and walls are decorated with white glass cloth, tucked and studded at regular intervals with rosettes of every color which look like so many bright-hued flowers from out of a bed of the purest white. The very furniture is upholstered with glass in different colors while American flags in realistic coloring are set at each end. The picture is completed by a group consisting of six figures, a bride and her attendant, bridesmaids, all robed in the purest white and in gowns illustrating the latest fashions

WANT VITO LADUCA.

Italian Implicated In Kidnaping and Barrel Murder Missing.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Detectives and police made a raid on the house of a man passing as V. Longo at 360 Hudson avenue, Brooklyn, in search of Antonio Mannino, the little son of James Mannino, a wealthy contractor of Amity street, Brooklyn, who was kidnaped five days ago and is held for $50,000 ransom.

Longo is believed by the police to be in reality Vito Laduca, one of the men who were accused of the barrel murder in Manhattan in April of last year, but who was dismissed for lack of evidence.

He was not captured in the raid. It was known to the police that Longo, or Laduca, as they call him, had left the city before they descended upon his dwelling. But the detectives hoped to find the kidnaped child there. In this they were disappointed. It is now believed that the missing man can give the police valuable information concerning the child, who is supposed to be somewhere in the suburbs of the city.

All the letters and papers found in the house were seized by the detectives and taken to the Amity street police station for use in the further prosecution of the search for the missing boy and the capture of his kidnapers. Among his effects a photograph was found which his wife said was a picture taken of her husband when he was in the Italian navy. This will be used by the police for purposes of identification. They say that it proves conclusively that the man styling himself Longo is really Vito Laduca, who had served five years in prison for a crime in Italy before coming to this country.

Mrs. Longo herself did not deny that her husband is Laduca.

The detectives did not say that they found any trace of the kidnaped child in the house of Longo or Laduca, but they are searching throughout the Italian quarters of this and other cities in the hope of finding him. They believe that he can throw much light upon the workings of the kidnaping band who took little Tony Mannino.

EDISON'S GOVERNESS A SUICIDE.

Miss Pardoe Took Her Own Life by Gas at Orange, N. J.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Miss Ethel K. Pardoe, twenty-five years old, who was employed by Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, wife of the inventor, as a governess for the Edison children, committed suicide yesterday at Orange, N. J. She turned on the gas.

Friends of Miss Pardoe say she worried much in the discharge of her duties as governess owing to anonymous letters received by the Edisons two years ago containing threats to kidnap the children.

She had intended to return to her duties as governess after a brief rest.

Miss Pardoe was the daughter of a Canadian clergyman, and her home is said to have been at Nober, Ont.

Mrs. Maybrick Sails For New York.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Mrs. Florence Maybrick is on board the Red Star line steamer Vaderland, which sailed from Antwerp on Saturday morning for New York, under the name of Miss Rose Ingram. She is accompanied by her attorney, Mr. Hayden, who arranged the details of her departure. Mrs. Maybrick arrived in Paris on Friday and was met by Percy Barnard of New York. She spent the night at a hotel with Mr. Hayden and his wife, and the party boarded the Vaderland at Antwerp. On her arrival at New York Mrs. Maybrick will be the guest of Dr. Densmore. Mrs. Maybrick's mother, the Baroness de Roques, intends to follow her daughter shortly.

Plainfield, N. J., Aug. 15, 1904.

The Trenton State Gazette in to-day's issue says: "Mr. Swackhamer, of Somerset, is out of politics." Judging from Mr. Swackhamer's activity at the Garwood rally Saturday evening and the interest he continues to display in political matters generally, we should say the State Gazette has another guess coming. It certainly is news to us.

Imagine the smile that spread over the Czar's countenance when the nurse said, "He's the image of yousky."

"The Milk Trust in Boston was smashed by newspaper advertising," says an exchange. "When it was organized, the independent milk dealers bought space in the leading newspapers and represented to the public the evils of the proposed monopoly. Their campaign won, and the Trust went to pieces."

JAMES PETTIT KILLED.

Well-Known Railroad Man Meets Death in Cab of His Engine.

Spreading rails on the Sound Shore division of the New Jersey Central threw an engine in Morse's Creek, near Elizabeth, last night, causing the death of Engineer James Pettit and injuring Fireman Fred Mooney. The former was caught in his cab and crushed while Mooney jumped, escaping with sprained ankles and injured feet. The Sound Shore division is a one-track line and is used for carrying workmen from Elizabeth to the factories at Cartaret. The wrecked engine was hauling three cars filled with 200 of these passengers and all escaped injury.

Pettit's home was in Jersey City and he was well known to Plainfield railroad men and all along the main line. He had been in the employ of the Central for fifteen years.

JAPAN AGAIN VICTOR

Admiral Kamimura Attacked Vladivostok Squadron.

WITHOFF KILLED ON CESAREVITCH

Naval Engagement In the Strait of Korea Resulted In Destruction of the Armored Cruiser Rurik.

LONDON, Aug. 15. — A cablegram from Tokyo says:

"Admiral Kamimura reports that our squadron, after five hours of severe fighting with the three ships of the Vladivostok squadron on Sunday morning off Tsushima island, in the strait of Korea, sank the Russian armored cruiser Rurik. The other two ships, the Rossia and Gromoboi, which appeared to have suffered heavily, fled northward. Our damages are slight."

Another cablegram from Tokyo says:

"The commander of the Takeshiki naval station says that our fleet reported by wireless telegraph that the Vladivostok squadron was sighted at 5:10 a. m. on Sunday.

"The cruiser Takashiho subsequently reported that a naval battle is being fought in the strait of Korea and is still in progress."

A special from Tokyo says that Vice Admiral Kamimura attacked the Russian Vladivostok squadron at dawn on Sunday north of Tsu island, in the strait of Korea. The battle lasted for five hours and resulted in a complete Japanese victory. The Russian cruiser Rurik was sunk, and the cruisers Rossia and Gromoboi fled to the northward after having sustained serious damage. The injuries inflicted upon the Japanese were slight.

The fate of the crew of the Rurik is not known fully, but many of them were killed or drowned. Admiral Kamimura had the Adsuma, Idsumo, Iwate, Takashiho and other light cruisers.

Tokyo is joyous over the news, as it gives Japan mastery of the sea and restores commerce.

A St. Petersburg dispatch says that by command of the emperor Foreign Minister Lamsdorff has instructed M. Nelidoff, the Russian ambassador at Paris, to request that France on behalf of Russia shall lodge a strong protest with the French minister at Tokyo, M. Harmand, against what is described as an outrageous violation of Chinese neutrality and of universally recognized principles of international law involved in the Japanese attack on the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Ryeshitelni in the neutral harbor of Chefu.

A dispatch from Mukden states that the Japanese Port Arthur army has been largely re-enforced and has taken up positions in two large bodies, one on the heights between Lungwungtao and Pigeon bay and the other on the hills near Louisa bay. Guns have also been placed on the heights east of the Wolf hills.

A Chefu dispatch says that Captain Matousevitch, the late Rear Amiral Withoft's chief of staff, who was wounded during the Japanese attack on the battleship Cesarevitch, has died of his wounds.

The Japanese have demanded the departure of the Cesarvitch, but the governor of Tsingchou replied that the vessel would remain, but would be dismantled.

A Liaoyang report says:

"Twelve Japanese regiments have left in the direction of Port Arthur.

"It is stated on trustworthy authority that the mikado has ordered that Port Arthur must be taken at any cost, even if it necessitates the suspension of operations in Manchuria, and it is quite possible that the main Japanese force will proceed to Port Arthur within a few days."

A report from Tokyo says that Japanese guns dominate the dockyards at Port Arthur, and in view of this fact it would seem to be impossible again to make seaworthy or fightable the Russian battleships which have returned to Port Arthur. It is probable that the Russian battleship Cesarevitch will disarm at Tsingchau.

The best possible naval force that Russia can now concentrate at Vladivostok is four cruisers.

Viceroy Alexeieff in a dispatch to the emperor gives the following report from Captain Matousevitch, the late Rear Admiral Withoft's chief of staff:

"At dawn our Port Arthur squadron began to make for the open sea and emerged from the port at 9 o'clock. The squadron consisted of six battleships, the cruisers Askold, Diana, Pallada and Novik and eight torpedo boats.

"The Japanese opposed us with the following force: A first detachment consisting of the battleships Asahi, Mikasa, Fuji, Yashima and Shikishima and the cruisers Nisshin and Kasuga, a second detachment consisting of the cruisers Yakumo, Kasagi, Chitose and Takasago and a third detachment consisting of the cruisers Akitsushima, Idsumo, Matsushima, Itsukushima and Hashidate and the battleship Chin Yen, with about thirty torpedo boats.

"Our squadron maneuvered to gain a passage through the line of the enemy's ships. Meantime the Japanese torpedo boats were laying floating mines in the way of our squadron, thus rendering evolutions very difficult.

"At 1 p. m. our squadron, after forty minutes' fighting, succeeded in effecting a passage and shaped its course toward Shangtung. The enemy, following at full speed, caught up with us slowly, and at 5 o'clock fighting again began and continued for some hours without either side obtaining any advantage.

"In the battle Admiral Withoft, the commander of our squadron, was killed, and the captain of the battleship Cesarevitch was wounded and lost consciousness. Almost at the same time the engines and steering gear of the Cesarevitch were damaged, and she was obliged to stop for forty minutes. This forced the other ships to maneuver around her. The command of the squadron devolved upon Rear Admiral Prince Ouktomsky and the command of the Cesarevitch upon the second in command.

"After nightfall the Cesarevitch, being unable to follow the squadron and losing sight of it, took a southerly direction in order to attempt to reach Vladivostok under her own steam. She was attacked by torpedo boats during the night and at dawn was in the vicinity of Shangtung.

"The officer commanding the squadron, having examined and determined the extent of the damage to the Cesarevitch, concluded that she could not make Vladivostok and allowed the captain to proceed to Kaiochau for repairs.

"Those killed included Rear Admiral Withoft, Navigating Flag Lieutenant Azarieff and Navigating Lieutenant Draguishevitch. Those slightly wounded included myself and eight others. A number of sailors were killed or wounded, but just how many has not yet been ascertained.

"I arrived at Kaiochau at 9 o'clock in the evening and found there the cruiser Novik and the torpedo boat Bezshumi.

"I am happy to bear witness to your majesty to the unexampled bravery of the officers and men during the desperate encounter."

Russian Ships Off Portuguese Coast.

PLYMOUTH, England, Aug. 15.—The Peninsular and Oriental line steamer Oceana, Captain Street, from Bombay for London, reports that a Russian cruiser stopped and examined the British India Steam Navigation company's steamer Goorkha on Aug. 11 near Sagres, in the extreme southwest of Portugal and four miles southeast of Cape St. Vincent. The Goorkha was allowed to proceed.

TEN DROWNED IN POTOMAC.

Naphtha Launch Capsized at Washington Regatta.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15. — While bands played and a gay throng in pleasure craft cheered on their favorites in the annual regatta on the Potomac four young women and six men were drowned by the capsizing of the Recreation, a small naphtha launch.

There were fourteen persons in the launch, and only four were saved. They were men who swam to shore. After the boat had turned over it went down like a rock, and the ten clinging to the hull sank with scarcely a struggle into the swirling waters.

All in the boat were well known young folk, prominent in society circles in Washington and Georgetown. They were the guests of Drs. Stewart and Wagner, who owned the launch.

The accident occurred just before 3 o'clock at a point in the river where the water drawn out of the Chesapeake and Ohio canal to turn turbines in a roller mill flows into the river. It rushes down from the canal with a head of nearly 150 feet and 50 yards out into the stream is clearly defined by the whirl and toss of the water, but river craft, even small rowboats, have never considered the stream particularly dangerous.

It was just at the end of the first race that the launch capsized. The fourteen occupants were crowded at the rail to see the finish, and the edge was tipped almost to the water line. Just then the boat struck the current and tipped further over; water rushed in, and in an instant its occupants were struggling in the water.

The whole party went under, but were thrown far enough out so that they arose immediately and caught hold of the boat. To the few who had noticed the capsizing it seemed certain a boat could reach them, but a moment later the launch, weighted down by its machinery and canopy, sank from sight, and without an apparent struggle the unfortunate ones went down.

Only those in the immediate vicinity knew of the terrible accident. The two oared sculls lined up for the second race. The cheers grew louder, and the bands struck up lively airs.

In the meantime several boats gathered around, and search for the bodies began. The river was dragged, and all the bodies were recovered in a couple of hours.

Irene Wright Not Killed.

DENVER, Aug. 15.—Mrs. L. B. Wright, mother of Irene Wright of Pueblo, who was reported as one of the victims of the Eden wreck, has written to a local paper that her daughter was not on the ill fated train. Miss Wright, who graduated from Stanford university this year, where she gained a reputation as a litterateur, is at present in Havana, Cuba.

Railway Engineer Killed.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Aug. 15.—James Pettit of Jersey City, an engineer on the south shore division of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, was killed in a railroad wreck just south of Morse's creek, four miles from here, last night. The wreck was caused by the spreading of the rails.

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

VANITY'S MIRROR.

White Yachting Costumes — Linen Gowns For Street Wear.

Boots and shoes of cigar brown are affected with pale tan linen; also shoes of champagne leather with silk stockings. White shoes are either of buckskin or of fine canvas. The former are more on the cream than the pure white.

For yachting nothing surpasses the three-quarter tailor made coat, worn with an equally tailor made plaited walking skirt. The material may be either serge or linen, as the weather demands. There is a new kind of cloth, much used for strappings and facings. It resembles suede leather, whence it takes its name. This suede cloth is used for belts and even for shoes.

The large white yachting cap may be softened by the addition of a veil on a ring which is passed around the cap, leaving long ends to tie around in front. This is also an excellent fashion for motoring.

Crash, linen and holland, in all tones, are the materials worn by smart women on the street. Muslins have no place there, as they crush too easily. The linen gown of the season is by no means inexpensive, as it is lavishly embroidered and trimmed with galloon, and it is generally worn with a handsome leather belt or one of shirred silk.

Gray is perhaps one of the most favored tints of the season, but in muslin pink plays an important part, or a pale pink and green design on a white or ivory background. Pink and purple and pale blue and purple are mixed this season in a manner never attempted before.

The cut shows a tailor made walking costume of gray wool. The sleeves of the coat are especially smart with their tiny tucks. The revers are of white cloth. JUDIC CHOLLET.

DETAILS OF DRESS.

Spotted Fabrics Fashionable — Pink a Favorite Color.

Spotted fabrics are exceedingly fashionable this season, and the mercerized cottons are very smart when well made. Almost all the linen gowns are trimmed with some touches of lace or embroidery, only this lace is of a coarse heavy description, and sometimes it is enriched by medallions of coarse linen applied with French knots.

Pink is a favorite color for muslins this season. A pink and white flowered muslin seen recently was made up over a pale pink lining, and the round skirt was very full, having four flounces edged and headed with valenciennes. The bodice had a fichu finished with two small frills. This fichu ran down to a point in the back just above the wide waistband.

Sleeve ruffles still retain their large size, and every variety of chiffon mousseline and mull is used for these plaitings.

A useful gown for morning wear is of undyed crash trimmed with narrow white strappings. The little bolero has facings of white lawn, tucked, and loose bell sleeves finished off with white frills. The skirt is made with a hip yoke and plaits set off by perpendicular strappings of the white.

The picture shows a white embroidered linen waist with the fashionable long shouldered effect and long, tight cuffs of embroidery.

LITTLE FRANCE

BY

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Reuben James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

Copyright, 1901, by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

There was a long pause. She slipped her arm about his neck and held him as if she feared again that he might fall. He scarcely knew what to say, so he held her close and kept silent until she spoke once more, drawing herself away from him a little as she did so. "I don't think knights carry their ladies around like this, do they? I don't think it's quite proper, is it? But these stones are so cold, and I forgot my slippers. I was so anxious. Is it all right, Sir Philip?"

She wriggled her pretty toes as she anxiously sought for reassurance from her admirer and companion.

"Proper? Of course, and where is Josette?" he answered, glad to get back to the form if not the spirit of the play.

"Asleep," she answered, "the great stupid! She doesn't care whether there are any knights in the world or not. But what are you doing here? You have not told me yet."

"I—I—I thought I'd try—the tower, you know—the wall—to go down."

"Yes, and was it for me?"

For the life of him he could not lie to this confiding and innocent little girl.

"Lady Anne," he whispered, "it was for——"

But he did not seem to be able to tell her the truth either.

"Yes, Sir Philip, it was for——"

"For freedom then!" he said desperately.

"Oh!" she quivered, "and you were going to leave—me?"

There was a world of reproach in her voice and then silence. Presently he discovered that she was weeping. Her small frame shook with subdued sobs. The sight alarmed him, pained him deeply; he could not throw off a guilty feeling as he held her closely, trying to soothe and quiet her. He was desperately uncomfortable, yet the scene must be ended if he were to get away. He could meet her in laughter on a common ground, but sobs were foreign to his philosophy. He had not enjoyed experience of this womanly weakness, which is the weapon of the helpless, and he was powerless before her tears. He could not bear to see her cry, and suppose the marquis should see him, what would he think? Would he not conclude that Grafton had broken faith with him? And yet there was a passing sweetness in the situation too. He had no wish to terminate the interview; he forgot for the moment that he intended to escape that night.

"Now, my dear little girl," he began at last, "it's all play, you know."

This was a most unfortunate statement. All her youthful energies had been bent toward the obliteration of this bitter fact. That is a moment of the greatest sadness when we find out our hardly maintained realities have only been some other person's play!

"It's been play all the time," she sobbed impulsively. "I knew it was so! I tried not to believe it! Josette told me so, and I said she was stupid; but she knew more than I! You have been playing with me from the first, haven't you? Let me go back to my dolls, monsieur, 'tis all I'm fit for."

She tried vainly to break away.

"My dear child," he replied, still holding her, but utterly at a loss to know what to do or say, "you see I——"

"You never were my really truly knight, were you?" she went on through her tears. "You never cared anything for me; you were just amusing yourself, weren't you? Making fun of a foolish girl. Oh, monsieur, how could you? And now you are going to leave me!"

"Anne," he said at last, "you are only a little girl, and I am a grown man."

"Yes, I remember I said you were old for a knight, but you were all I had!" she wailed.

"But do you know," he continued, "it wasn't all play after all—not exactly—and if I lingered there on the balcony—if you saw me pause, it was because I did not wish to leave you. 'Tis truly so. Dear little lady, little playfellow and comrade, I am your knight and will be."

"And is there no other lady in England or America? You said 'no' once, but was it true?"

"It was true and it is true: there is no lady in England or America, or anywhere in the world, for me, except in this little corner of France, and if I hesitated about going away, it was for you, but don't you see? My duty—I am an English officer. My king is at war with yours. I must go back!"

"You love your country, monsieur, more than—but you do not love me at all, do you?" she asked piteously.

"Of course I do," he answered promptly. "I love you very much indeed; you are the sweetest little girl I know."

"Oh, the marquis loves me that way, and Jean-Renaud, and Josette, and—"

"It's different with me, you know. Not like that at all. You see, men do their duty because they ought to, and they love people because they have to."

"Do you have to love me, Sir Philip?"

"Yes, and I am glad to, my dear little girl. I am afraid if I stay here any longer and you grow any older—" He hesitated; was he actually about to propose to this child? He resumed, rather tamely, "I had to go away, you see. Now let me go, and some day I will come back to you and——"

"Put me down, monsieur," she said gravely, with one of those swift changes of mood which he had often noticed before. "I insist upon it! There, you may go now, but you will never come back to me. I know it. You will be somebody else's knight, and I——"

Her little head dropped forward. He lifted his hand to her chin, turned her face upward and kissed her, and then drew her nearer to his breast as he might have done a little sister. Yet it was not such a kiss as a brother might have given, nor was it a sister whose lips met his own. It was the first time he or any man had kissed her, save her grandfather, whose love did not express itself in frequent caresses. She was but a child, yet something thrilled and leaped in her heart at his touch, and there was a faint echo of her feeling, a brief response to her heart-throb, in his own breast.

But in a moment she broke from his arms—never again could he hold her so as before. She stood and looked at him from those glorious eyes of hers, and time, in one swift moment, in the meeting kiss, wiped out the difference in years between the two. His thoughts changed as he gazed upon her. A new idea came to him. In a few years she would have grown—why not?

"Monsieur," she said at last, and the change in her was evidenced by the gravity and the added dignity of her manner, "you have kissed away the child. I am a woman; you cannot go now."

"Why not, Mademoiselle Anne? I can love you—from a distance—for I swear, child or not, I love you—and I can come back."

Love has nothing to do with this, monsieur, now; I am a French woman. You must not go; you shall not! You are a prisoner. The marquis is absent. The castle is mine until he returns. I am the chatelaine. I could never look my grandfather in the face again if I allowed you to escape."

"And how would you prevent it, Mademoiselle Anne?"

"By standing in your way, so!" she answered, stretching out her slender arms and barring the window with her slight figure. "A feeble barrier, you say; yet you were my knight—even though only in play—and I, at least, do not forget it. Gentlemen do not pass to freedom over the bodies of their ladies," she continued quaintly.

"Ah!" he cried, looking at her with mingled pride and vexation, "I could brush you aside in a moment."

"But you would not, Sir Philip," she went on, lapsing into the old style of address. "Besides, I should scream, and then—and you cannot go down those rocks at night. The danger—it would kill me—the thought hurts me here."

She laid her hand innocently upon her heart.

"The baron of old did it," he answered.

"Oh, yes; but he went for love."

"And I for liberty."

"And is liberty stronger than love, monsieur?"

"By heaven, Little France," he answered impulsively, calling her by a name which she loved to hear, "I know not if it be! I am afraid 'tis not, since——"

"Since what, monsieur?"

"Since I stay here with you," he replied decisively. "Now, you must go to bed. I want not your death upon my hands."

He stepped forward and lifted her in his arms again. She weakly protested, but allowed it. They both felt the end of the game had come, yet for the last time she indulged herself. To-morrow would see—nay, to-night saw her a child no longer. Yet she clung to the spirit of the play, the hardest to be lost of all the ideas youth cherishes.

"You promise me on your word of honor that you will not seek to escape when I am gone to bed, Sir Philip?" she asked, nestling against him, her arms around his neck, her head on his shoulder, as he carried her toward her chamber.

"I promise you, Lady Anne, on the faith of a knight—your knight."

"And you are not playing this time?"

"Not this time," he answered, setting her down at the door of the room. "Good-night," he added, pressing his lips as of old to the little brown hand.

"I trust you, Sir Philip," she answered. "Good-night, and we will never play together as we have."

"Yes, yes, to-morrow!" he cried after her, as she shook her head sadly and disappeared.

"Good God, man!" said Grafton to himself, as he sat down in his room to think it over, "you had a glorious chance for liberty, and here you had to go indulge in theatrics with that little Rohan girl! And you are fool enough to be satisfied with the situation, my boy," he soliloquized. "Are you falling in love with a chit of 13? And yet how she looked when I—— Pull yourself together, man! 'Tis time to get out of here—— Such a thing is preposterous—and impossible at best."

And yet he had lived long enough to know that it is always the impossible that happens when hearts are under consideration.

Fortunately it was only the next morning that the marquis came home with the welcome tidings for Grafton—or were they unwelcome after all?—that he was exchanged, that he was free to go that instant if he would.

"I am glad, Sir Philip," said Anne, weeping as she bade him good-bye alone in the tower-room, "that you didn't run away last night. You will be my knight in earnest and come back to me some day? You promise me?"

"Yes, in earnest," he answered, smiling, "and some day I shall come back, I promise you."

CHAPTER IX.

THE GENERAL'S HEART.

FIVE years had elapsed since Philip Grafton left the Rose of the Rohans in tears, and a thousand leagues of ocean now divided him from the old Breton tower; five years filled with high endeavor and honorable enterprise. He had risen to the rank of post-captain some years since and had been successfully engaged in his profession in many seas. His father had died meanwhile and he was alone in the world. To no woman among the many who had looked love in his eyes had he given his affection, and his friends regarded him as a confirmed bachelor. Was he still dreaming of Anne? It is enough to say he had not forgotten her—perhaps that is all.

It was evening on the 12th of September, 1759, a clear though moonless night. The wind fell as the sun set, and the ships slowly drifted up the river with the heavy flood-tide. On the shore to the left lay the camp of Bougainville. The white tents of the soldiery on the heights of Cap-Rouge could be dimly detected in the soft illumination from the irradiating stars overhead. Lights twinkled here and there on the heights, or moved along on the crest of the bluffs, showing that, as usual, the French were on the alert and watchful.

There was much unwonted but subdued bustle on the English fleet as well. Men were being paraded and mustered on the decks, arms and equipments looked to, ammunition pouches filled to repletion, and the haversacks and canteens of the men provided with food and water, for it was hardly known when and where they would get anything to eat after they left the ships.

Far down the river the distant lights on Cape Diamond were almost hidden in clouds of smoke, and the muffled yet continuous roaring of the heavy guns from Admiral Saunders' ships of the line and the batteries at Point Levis, with the answer of the French from the works at Beauport and the citadel of Quebec, told a tale of furious cannonade. The admiral was certainly doing his part. As he had promised, he would keep them busy at the end of the line.

Four bells in the first night watch had just been struck on the 50-gun ship Sutherland, carrying the flag of Admiral Holmes, commanding the squadron of Cap-Rouge, when a boat was seen making its way through the water approaching the starboard gangway of the ship. Hails passed between the Sutherland and the approaching cutter.

"Boat ahoy!"

"The Porcupine!" promptly answered a rather small man in the stern-sheets of the boat, giving the name of the vessel he commanded and following his reply with the sharp command, "Way enough! In bows!"

As he spoke he motioned to a midshipman who sat beside him. Following his officer's direction, the helm was put over and the boat swept gently alongside the gangway, the men unshipping the oars at the same time.

"Leave a keeper in the boat and let the men go aboard the ship," continued the officer, rising, "then have the boat dropped astern. You will follow me on deck, Mr. Robison," he added, as he seized the manropes and ran rapidly up the battens to the gangway.

"Good evening, Capt. Grafton," said the officer of the deck, removing his cap and bowing low to the newcomer as he stepped aboard. "The general has been asking for you."

LACK OF HUMOR IN BIRDS.

Penalty Paid by One Woodpecker That Tried to Play a Joke on Others.

"Birds have no sense of humor," said a writer in nature books. "This fact impressed itself on me last month in Canada.

"I had taken, to facilitate my nature studies, a cottage on the outskirts of a Canadian village. My cottage fronted a cemetery, and a day or two after my arrival a stone carver erected over a new grave a cross cut to look like wood.

"As I sat on my piazza one morning, a woodpecker flew to the stone cross and pecked at it, mistaking it for oak or maple. Finding he could make no dents in it, he must have thought that there was something wrong with his bill, for he flew to a neighboring tree, and pecked at the bark a moment.

"Plainly his bill was all right. He flew back to the cross again. Peck, peck, peck, he went, horribly. But, his bill must have hurt of course, no effect upon the granite cross. all his pecking had, of

"He drew away. In ten minutes he returned with a dozen other woodpeckers. He led them straight to the cross, and then he stood off a little to watch. With a microscope, perhaps, I would have seen a twinkle in his eye.

"For it is clear that this bird was a humorist. He had brought his friends to the cross to see them peck at it till their bills, like his, were sore. He was going to play a practical joke on them.

"His joke succeeded perfectly. The birds pecked at the cross, first gently, then harder and harder, till, finally, they were hitting it with all their strength. A great chattering filled the air, a shrill twitter of amazement, perplexity and pain.

"Suddenly the twitter became angry, and all the birds flew at the humorist, who must have announced, just then, his little joke.

"And he, a terror-stricken fugitive, darted away at top speed. But they soon surrounded him. They filled the air with their cries of rage.

"I looked up. The birds were directly over my head. In the clear blue of the sky I saw the poor little humorist in the middle, and the others, in a circle about him, darting in, one at a time, to punish him with bill and with claw.

"In a little while he fell. I could have caught him in my hand. He was bleeding and torn. For a moment his wings quivered. Then a glaze spread over his tiny eyes. His joke had not been appreciated, and the humorist was dead."

UNFITTINGLY REWARDED.

An Attempt to Sow the Seed of Wisdom Meets with an Awful Repulse.

"The fact that one's opportunity for spreading wisdom may occasionally fall on stony ground, was forcibly impressed upon me," said Senator McCarren, recently relates the New York Press, "when I recently went to visit an up-state friend. To reach his home from the station I had a night drive of four miles to make in a hack driven by a boy of 16. The horse was old, the ride slow and tedious and the youthful driver inclined to fall asleep. Thinking to interest him in something I remarked: 'I see you are going due west.'

"'How do you know?' he asked.

"'Why, there is the north star,' I replied, pointing to it.

"'How do you know it's the north star?'

"'By the pointers,' I said.

"'What pointers?'

"Well, I told the boy how to find the north star. Then I pointed out two of the planets. The boy seemed widewake now, and I went on to give him what apparently was his first lesson in astronomy, telling him how Jupiter was 1,300 times as large as the earth and how Mars showed changes of seasons—how it had bays and canals and so forth, and was supposed to be inhabited.

"The next evening I returned to the village where I had hired the hack, and I noticed that sundry persons seemed to have a certain humorous interest in me. It was so evident that I was the object of some curiosity or joke that I made inquiries and finally found a man who could tell me.

"'Why,' said my informant, 'you've made a great reputation for yourself around here.'

"'In what way?' I asked.

"'Oh, the kid that drove you over to —— last night was telling all the settlers around here this morning that of all the liars he ever heard you were the slickest.'"

Naval Gunnery Records.

It appears from a tabulated statement of the results of the annual target practice issued by the navy department that the gunners of our fleet have attained a very high degree of accuracy. This is particularly true with regard to guns of five-inch caliber and upward. The north Atlantic and the Asiatic battleship squadrons have distinguished themselves by records of 87.27 per cent. and 82.84 per cent., respectively. The cruisers have not done so well as the battleships. The explanation is simple enough. The larger vessel constitutes a steadier gun platform in a seaway, and, its guns being placed higher, a more perfect range is secured. This conclusion is emphasized by the fact that the gun practice of the torpedo flotillas was very unequal.—Philadelphia Record.

Commuted Fees.

"Blank says that the last time he was married the ceremony cost him only ten cents."

"How was that?"

"Why, he's led so many women to the altar the minister gave him excursion rates."—Detroit Free Press.

FRAUDS IN SARDINES

SO-CALLED FRENCH BRANDS ARE NOT ALWAYS GENUINE.

Imported from Spain and Portugal and Exported Again to Other Countries—How to Detect the Fraud.

Attention has been called to the fact that although the product of the French sardine fisheries has fallen off considerably in the past three years, the exportation of sardines from France has not diminished, and it is noticed that the quantity of sardines imported into France is almost double the quantity consumed there. During the 11 months ending June 1 the importations into France reached 10,837,379 pounds, while the annual consumption is estimated at 5,511,500 pounds.

The French sardine is excellent, both fresh and preserved. It ranks high when preserved on account of the careful preparation it undergoes in that country and the quality of the oil used. The cost price to the factory of the usual size box of French sardines (weighing about 0.71 pound) is about 12 cents, while the cost of the same size box of Spanish or Portuguese sardines in France, freight and duty paid, is only about six cents.

Sardines are imported into France in two different ways:

1. In boxes of the usual size, with a deceiving mark or label, such as is shown in the illustration. On top of the box, in this instance, the words "Sardines Francaises" are carefully covered by a thin coating of paint which is easily removed. Only the initials "E. D." and the words "Qualite Choix" are apparent when the box passes the French customs, but it becomes "E. D. Sardines Francaises, Qualite Choix" after entry; the address "Usine a Port Louis, France" on the side undergoes the same transformation. The boxes are of course stamped on the bottom "Produit Importe," but this indication of foreign origin is too vague to be of much value. Another method of deceiving is to print the name of the place of origin in very small letters, or to hide it in a figure printed on the label, which is in French.

2. Sardines are imported in large boxes and repacked in the usual size boxes, with labels and other indications in French.

The "Chambre Sydicale" of food products of Paris has taken an active part in the pending negotiations to have a new bill passed increasing the duty on imported sardines from 25 to 50 francs per 100 kilos (from $4.82 to $9.65 for 220.46 pounds), and insisting that the name of the country of origin be stamped in the tin. The bill also prohibits the importation of sardines in bulk, as it is an easy matter to repack them in small boxes and thus evade the law. The increase of duty would not be sufficient to check importation; it would only increase the cost price of foreign sardines in France by six centimes (slightly over one cent) a box, thus raising it from six or seven cents to 12 cents, which is the cost price of French sardines to the French manufacturer.

JOHN K. GOWDY.

He Got Up.

A traveler put up for the night at the leading hotel in a small town, and, before retiring, left very particular instructions to be called in time for an early train. Early in the morning the traveler was disturbed by a lively tattoo upon the door.

"Well?" he demanded, sleepily.

"I've got an important message for you," replied the bell boy.

The traveler was up in an instant, opened the door and received from the boy a large envelope. He tore it open hastily, and inside found a slip of paper on which was written, in large letters: "Why don't you get up?"—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

SPORTING NEWS.

GOLF.

Team matches among rival resorts in the mountains are becoming popular again. It frequently happens that as many as fifteen on a side appear, and every individual match is contested with a will, as the rivalry is keen. Plainfielders are usually represented on these teams and make good scores.

DIAMOND DUST.

"Man-eater" Mullen's Nationals won a stiff up-hill game from the West End A. C. Saturday afternoon. In the seventh inning when the Nationals came to bat, the score stood 8 to 4 against them, but they struck their batting streak after that and pounded in six runs from clean hits, winning the game in the ninth. The Mullen brothers were in the points for the Nationals and Cavalier and Pangborn were the battery for the West Ends.

Bertwhistle, of the Holyoke team of the Connecticut State League, played right field for Westfield, after Seward sprained his ankle in scoring in the first inning.

Manager Denman is now wearing "the smile that won't come off," while Manager Johnston is doing a lot of thinking.

Many supporters of the Plainfield team can see no reason why "Lefty" Davis should be kept on the payroll and do no work. It would be to the advantage of the club's treasury to drop him.

Plainfield will meet Westfield again on Crescent Oval on Saturday, August 27. The Cuban X Giants will play here on Saturday.

If Plainfield wins the next two games with Westfield the series will stand a tie, four and four.

Mrs. Robert Gow, of West Fifth street, an ardent supporter of the Plainfield team, had a dream Friday night that Westfield would win.

Marshall, the New York National catcher, was to have played first base for Westfield, it being uncertain whether Rochford could play. He was afterward loaned to Plainfield through Manager Denman's courtesy.

The management of the Plainfield team is making every effort to secure a steady twirler.

The latter are silversmiths of New York, who were associated with Mr. Glaentzer in business. The interment was in Hillside cemetery.

THE TIMBO CLUB'S OUTING

POPULAR ORGANIZATION SPENDS PLEASANT DAY AT "ASPARAGUS HOLLOW."

Members of the Timbo Social Club and their friends to the number of sixty journeyed to "Asparagus Hollow," yesterday, where the organization gave its first annual outing. The affair proved highly enjoyable to everyone as the committee had provided everything to keep the time from lagging. Clam chowder was served soon after the arrival on the grounds and lunch of various kinds was served all day.

When the dinner horn was sounded, the assemblage arose and sang "America." Afterward chowder, green corn, clams, chicken and many other edibles disappeared before the diners with great rapidity. In conclusion there were a few speeches given and the return to this city was made shortly before 8 o'clock, everyone voting the affair a big success.

GRIST FROM COURT.

Cases Before Judge Runyon at This Morning's Session.

E. R. Williams, the colored man charged by Christopher Maden with assaulting his young son, Andrew Maden, changed his plea of not guilty to guilty before Judge Runyon, this morning. He claimed to have been greatly exasperated by the annoyances of small boys and admitted that he might have shook the Maden boy more violently than he intended when he caught him on his porch. He was held to await the action of the Grand Jury but later his counsel, William G. De Mesa, secured permission to re-open the case and it will be heard tomorrow morning.

John Douglas, who claimed to have a home somewhere in Virginia, was arrested by Patrolman Higgins on Cottage place, yesterday, where he was hanging about in a suspicious manner. In court this morning he claimed to have been waiting for a chance to get out of town and sentence was suspended on condition that he follow up his determination.

LIKENS LOCAL SITUATION TO KENTUCKY FEUD

Newark News Says Some Sharp Things About Borough Higher License Matter.

FAVORS AN INCREASE

MAINTAINS GOOD REASONS EXIST WHY SALOON MEN SHOULD PAY MORE.

Declares North Plainfield is Undergoing One of the Worst Political Quarrels in the History of the State.

Through the determination of the North Plainfield Council to again take up the higher liquor license fee agitation, the matter has attracted attention outside the city and borough. During the original agitation, the Newark Evening News devoted considerable time and space to the question and with its revival had the following to say in its issue of yesterday:

"After waiting nearly four months the Somerset County Court has decided that the license fees in North Plainfield shall not be increased; they will remain at the old figures, $350 per year for retail liquor dealers and $400 for wholesale dealers. This is not the end, however, of the latest phase of the unnecessary, long drawn out, undignified, disadvantageous and discreditable political fight between the annexationists, led by Mayor Smalley and former Senator Charles A. Reed, and the anti-annexationists, led by A. V. D. Honeyman and others, for the Borough Council has again voted unanimously to file another petition for the increase in the license fee and to keep up the battle until successful.

"The decision of Judge Schenck is against Mayor Smalley's party, and at least one of the Plainfield papers boldly declares that nothing else is to be expected when North Plainfield's Mayor applies to Judge Schenck for anything in the way of the borough's best interests. Judge Schenck has ever been an opponent to annexation, and, while it may have afforded him satisfaction to render the decision which he and Justice Garretson agreed upon after a thorough study of the case, there is no warrant for the assumption that either of the judges permitted any consideration of the local squabble to influence them.

"This whole North Plainfield situation is one of the worse political quarrels that has ever occurred in this State. Like a Kentucky feud, it divides families, makes enemies of friends, imperils the welfare of the place, and extends far beyond the question which originated the trouble. Plainfield and North Plainfield, in Union and Somerset counties, respectively, are as close together as the Second and Fourth wards of the city of Newark. Nothing separates them but a brook and an imaginary line, neither of which can be seen, for the brook is bridged and built over a good part of the way along the dividing line.

"They are essentially one city—one in location, one in interests, one in sociability, in banks, in water supply, in church attendance, in postoffice, in railroad accommodations, in trolley system, in growth, in progress and in future development. Left to themselves the people would have united in due time, but several years ago bungling politicians tried to hasten the process by untimely legislation. Instantly the borough was split over the question of annexation, and since then whatever the annexationists want the anti-annexationists will fight against, even if it is public school accommodations for their own children or a perfected fire department to protect their own property.

"Plainfield's license fee is $700, and all saloons closed at 11 p. m. North Plainfield's was $350, saloons open all night. It is very handy to make half a night of it in Plainfield and fill out the other half just across the brook. Last fall the anti-annexationists won the council, and the old body, thinking to put the new one "in a hole," voted, just before retiring, to increase the license fees to $600. The new council refused to be bluffed or to be driven into the position of friends of the saloon interests, and promptly indorsed the old council's final act in this matter. Then the case went before Justice Garretson and Judge Schenck, with the result stated, after weary arguments and long delay.

"Though the movement to raise the license fees seemed to be highly moral

MEAT NO LONGER SCARCE

LOCAL BEEF HOUSES REPORT LARGE SUPPLIES.

Despite the fact that the meat strike is still on and there is likely to be trouble for some time between the packers and the employes, there is plenty of meat in this city, the local beef houses being well stocked with the best quality of beef. As for the prices, they are now about the same as before the strike. There is no doubt but that the strike has affected local trade considerably. There are many families who have stopped eating meat entirely, and this action has caused a decided falling off in the trade at the retail markets, as well as at the wholesale places.

In the larger cities the higher prices have been maintained and in many instances it has been impossible to get anything but home dressed meat. Plainfield has been especially fortunate in this respect. While other places were not receiving meat from the West, a fair shipment was coming here at frequent intervals and neither the wholesalers or retailers had any cause to jump the prices to a prohibitive basis. Early in the strike some butchers did raise the prices a little, but they have returned to the old prices, maintained by the other dealers.

TO RESUME WITH FULL FORCE

LEVERING & GARRIGUES' CO., WILL COMMENCE WORK ON MONDAY.

Manager Coyle, of the Levering & Garrigues' Company at West Dunellen, announced this morning that owing to the unsettled condition of affairs at the factory as well as the troublesome labor conditions in New York city, it would be impossible to re-open the factory this week as previously announced.

Despite the strike among the steel workers in New York city, which has greatly lessened the demand for structural steel work extensively manufactured by the local firm, Manager Coyle has announced that metropolitan labor troubles will in no way interfere with the work at the plant and that the full force of men will be taken back, at full time, on Monday.

Because of the New York strike the entire force, numbering about seventy-five men, was thrown out of employment two weeks ago. The firm closed the factory because of the lack of demand for structural iron work.

GIVEN A RECEPTION.

David Dreier and His Fiancee Are Guests of Honor at the Home of the Former's Brother.

A reception was tendered to David Dreier, of West Front street, and his fiancee, Miss Rose Freudenthal, of Brooklyn, Sunday, by Garret Dreier, of New Brunswick, at the Krone estate, Highland Park, which will be the future home of the engaged couple. The company assembled early in the afternoon and a formal dinner was served at about 3 o'clock on the large piazza. In the evening an elaborate supper preceded a fine programme of music.

Plainfield guests who attended included Samuel Dreier, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dreier, Mr. and Mrs. William Newcorn and son, Master Isador Newcorn, and Miss Nettie Newcorn. From New York were Mr. and Mrs. Joel Krone, Peter Krone and Mr. and Mrs. Krone, Sr.

Another reception will be given the couple on Sunday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Newcorn, on West Front street.

Italians Seek Redress.

Two local Italians, Dominick di Larnade and Rocco Continillo, have brought charges against Carman Vannanz in Justice John C. Cooper's Warrenville court for injuries received in the knifing encounter in Hudson's Lane about three weeks ago. The two men claim that they received stiletto stab wounds from Vannanz in the fracas in which about half a dozen men received slight cuts. Each is suing for $200 damage for personal injury. The case comes up Thursday afternoon at Warrenville. V. W. Nash, Jr., Esq., is counsel for the two plaintiffs, and Francis J. Blatz will represent Vannanz.

Landlord and Tenant Case.

Papers in the landlord and tenant case of David N. Groendyke against Winfield Munroe were filed with Justice V. W. Nash yesterday morning. The case is returnable before him Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

A. I. Smalley of the borough, is expected home on Saturday from North Carolina.

PLAINFIELD A. C. PLANS SOME CHANGES

Movement on Foot to Make the Organization a More Representative Body.

TO RETAIN JOHNSTON

MEMBERS IN ARREARS FOR DUES WILL HAVE TO PAY UP NOW.

Effort to be Made to Secure Permanent First-Class Battery —Some of the Various Schemes.

Now that the Alis Club has changed its name to Plainfield A. C., several other matters are under consideration in making the club a thoroughly representative one. It is proposed to make some changes in the rules which will work to the club's advantage. All members in arrears for dues or season ball tickets will be expected to pay up and a better method of keeping the accounts will be introduced.

As the season is now late, little in the way of certain improvements can be made this year, but by another season these will be followed up. The plans include the erection of a fence about Crescent Oval, if another lease can be secured on the grounds, and the entire left field will be fixed to prevent a repetition of the trouble a week ago when that part of the field was all under water.

There will also be a change in the baseball management, the idea being to have one person assume this position and to be held responsible for the results. This person will undoubtedly be the present manager, George H. Johnston. While the team is considered exceptionally strong now, with the exception of a pitcher and catcher, plans will be made to strengthen every weak point and especial pains will be taken to secure a first-class battery. Farmer's present condition makes it impossible to tell when he can return to the game, and this will necessitate getting another catcher. Efforts are being made to get a strong twirler. With the assistance of Nat. Strong, Manager Johnston is sure he will be able to land the kind of a man he wants for the box, as well as behind the bat until Farmer recovers.

There is now a feeling among the club members, as well as the other supporters of the team, that "Lefty" Davis is not strong enough as a pitcher, considering the strong aggregations that are on the schedule, and there is a general feeling in favor of a change to a stronger man.

A little earlier in the season it would have been possible to secure a first-class pitcher, but the one in mind is now with another strong team. No doubt arrangements will be made before next season opens to get a good slab artist.

FIRE IN SHOP.

Little Loss From Flames at John Carver's Place.

While walking along West Front street late last night, Walter C. Dobbins and John Hiscox discovered flames bursting from the front part of John Carver's black-smith shop on Washington avenue. Dobbins turned in an alarm from box 42 at Front and Grove streets; the apparatus made a quick run to the shop and soon had the fire under control. The damage will be trifling. While the cause of the fire is not definitely known, it is supposed to have started from embers left in the forge. Carver was in Philadelphia and knew nothing of the fire until this morning. The building was almost entirely destroyed by fire exactly a year ago, the fire starting in the same manner as last night.

A Half-Million Insurance.

An additional life insurance policy for $450,000, recently drawn through the Prudential Insurance Co., makes Thomas N. McCarter, president of the Public Service Corporation, of New Jersey, worth half a million dollars in insurance. Though not yet thirty-seven years of age, Mr. McCarter is a firm believer in life insurance as an investment. In all his policies Mr McCarter has named his wife and children as beneficiaries.

Mr. Rockefellow served the city two terms as Mayor and for several years was in other ways prominently identified with the city government.

Nearly 500 Pythians, accompanied by their wives and friends, will spend the afternoon and evening at the beach, where a special programme of entertainment has been arranged by the committee.

Although no definite action has been taken by local Pythians regarding lodge attendance in a body at the outing, members from both Unity lodge, No. 102, and Perseverance lodge, No. 74, will take advantage of the opportunity thus offered to spend a holiday at the shore. The Elizabeth lodge has planned for a big dance to be held in the evening, and invitations have been issued in this city. A special orchestra will furnish the music.

Fifteen employes of the Potter Press Works were informed last evening that they would be laid off for an indefinite period, commencing Friday. FIRE ENDS CAMPING TRIP

SMALL BOY'S LANTERNS MAKE TROUBLE FOR FRED BREEM AND HIS PARTY.

Fire put a sudden end to the vacation trip of Fred Breem, of fire headquarters, and ended life at "Camp Easy," Lake Hopatcong, Sunday. Japanese lanterns brought to the camp by George Rogers, Jr., of West Second street, a visitor for the day, were hung on the outside of the canvas and while the members of the party were away one of the candles burned down, setting the paper affair in flames which communicated to the tent. The greater part of it had been consumed when the blaze was discovered by Arthur Caleen but only a few remnants were saved. It was the intention of Mr. Breem and his family to remain until Saturday but as their outfit was also rendered useless they returned home today.

The tent was the property of City Judge William M. Runyon and was the one used by the Hope Y. M. A. on its camping trips the past two years. It was to have been used by the members again this season and a party was to have gone to the lake Saturday to put things in shape. Efforts are now being made to secure another tent and if is possible the trip will be held as planned.

THOMAS TERRELL'S FUNERAL

SERVICES OVER REMAINS OF WELL-KNOWN CHATHAM MAN.

Thomas Terrell, of Chatham, Morris county, who was very well-known here, where he visited many times, died of apoplexy on Thursday last at his home in Chatham. He was at his place of business that day as usual, but complained of not feeling well. His condition became serious and a physician was summoned. All efforts were unavailing and he passed away in less than an hour. He was 72 years of age.

Mr. Terrell was born at Mt. Bethel, but for the last forty-five years resided at his farm in Millington, removing to Chatham about four months ago. Since then he had been interested with his son in the grocery business. His kindly disposition and genial manner made for him many warm friends. He was a staunch Democrat and loyal supporter of the party.

Mr. Terrell took a prominent part in politics, having held the office of assessor, freeholder and collector in Bernard's township. He was also prominent in Masonic circles. One son, Walter S. Terrell, and a daughter, Miss Anna Terrell, survive him.

The funeral services were held from the Mt. Bethel Baptist church on Sunday and were largely attended. Rev. Mr. Gibb officiated, taking for his text "The Master Hath Come and Calleth for Thee." A quartette composed of Mrs. H. G. Toney, Miss Stella Runyon and D. R. and R. B. Runyon sang "Nearer, Still Nearer," and "No Night There." The interment was in the family plot in the old cemetery.

GYPSY KING'S LOSS.

Naylor Harrison's Barns and Property at Madison Destroyed by Fire.

The barn and stables of Naylor Harrison, the gypsy king who is a frequent visitor to Plainfield, situated near Madison, were totally destroyed by fire Sunday morning, involving a loss of $8,000. The blaze was discovered as the family was at breakfast and before the Madison fire department arrived, the structure was a mass of flames. Several horses, two ponies, a cow, two hogs, twenty tons of hay and a gypsy chariot, valued at $1,000, were included in the destruction.

Harrison is looked upon as the king of the gypsy tribes in New Jersey and has accumulated a fortune from his travels about the country. Of late years he has not moved about much and he has ruled from his home. It was he who made all the arrangements for the burial of "Mother" Riley in Hillside Cemetery, this city, and it is his daughter who is the present queen.

YOUNG MEN BATTLE OVER GIRL'S AFFECTIONS

Farmhand Slashed in a Duel With Another Who Courted the Same Maid.

ON "FIELD OF HONOR"

SWAINS VICIOUSLY ATTACK EACH OTHER WITH BIG KNIVES.

Edward Smith Arrested on Complaint of John Watsor, But is Released Because of Technicality —Watsor Departs.

With his face hacked and gashed in a fearful manner, John Watsor, a young farmhand, was found wandering about Richmond street, yesterday afternoon by Constable John Gjetelsen. The man was weak and tottering from loss of blood, having walked all the way from Alton, where he and Edward Smith, both in the employ of Charles Payne, had engaged in a knife duel through quarreling over the affections of a girl.

Gjetelsen hurried Watsor to police headquarters and Chief Kiely summoned Dr. Lafburrow. The latter worked over him for more than an hour and when he completed operations he had counted a dozen deep cuts on his face, head and neck. He was so exhausted from loss of blood and the journey in from Alton that it was almost impossible to get from him the facts of the fight which led to his condition.

He declared that he had been smiled upon by a young woman living near Alton and when Smith learned of it, he became enraged, declaring that he had been "keeping company" with her long before Watsor had appeared on the scene. He gave Watsor to understand he must remain away from her but his commands were only jeered at. Yesterday both were working in a field side by side when the girl's name was brought up and within a short time words led to blows and then knives were drawn. Neither weapon was sharp and the vicious thrusts served to hack more than they did to cut. They continued the struggle until weakness compelled them to desist and Watsor hurried to this city to inform the authorities.

A warrant for Smith's arrest was sworn out before Justice Mosher and with Patrolman McCarthy, Watsor was taken by carriage to Alton. The complainant alleged that the fight occurred in Union County and with this belief the officer placed Smith under arrest. He was also badly cut but his wounds were not as numerous or as deep as those of his adversary.

When the two were returned to Mosher's court, Smith declared the quarrel had taken place in Middlesex County and the Plainfield authorities had no jurisdiction in the matter. Witnesses swore to the truth of his statement regarding the location and as no warrant could be secured from New Brunswick there was nothing left for the justice to do but to dismiss the complaint. Watsor objected vigorously but afterward he and Smith met outside and friends finally induced the two to shake hands and they went off smiling. It was said this morning that Watsor had given up all claim to the girl and left last night for New York, from which place he came originally.

Reinhart Not to Play.

Although spoken of as one of the probable players in the golf tournament at Deal Beach, which commences on Thursday and continues the rest of the week, Frank C. Reinhart is not likely to take part. He intends leaving today or tomorrow for Chicago. It is possible that he, with W. L. Glenney and J. Whitney Baker, may take part in the championship tournament at the Baltusrol Golf Club, although Robert Abbott is considered as the only one from the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club who is sure to enter the competition.

GREAT CHICAGO STRIKE.

Mayor Harrison Will Try to Make Peace Today.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Mayor Harrison will attempt today to settle the stockyards strike. He will meet in the morning at 10 o'clock the representatives of the strike and hear their side of the controversy. Later in the day he will have a meeting with the representatives of the packers and listen to their statement, and he will then undertake the task of reconciling the differences.

A large committee of the retail dealers called upon him and asked him to use his good offices in ending the strike. The mayor said that he would gladly do all that lay in his power to put an end to the trouble, and a meeting between him and the labor leaders was at once arranged for this morning.

The mayor then set about arranging a meeting with the packers, and they promptly sent him word that they would meet him, but they were unable to agree upon an hour for the conference for the reason that the mayor could not tell how long his session with the labor leaders would continue. He will meet the packers, however, soon after the meeting with the men is over.

It is asserted that the alleged secret meeting between the packers and the strikers was arranged for by W. E. Skinner, assistant central manager of the Union Stockyards and Transit company. It is said that he went to President Donnelly of the Butchers' union with a written proposition providing that the packers would reinstate their old men as rapidly as possible and that the question of wages should be left to arbitration. It is said that he told President Donnelly that if he would sign the proposition Mr. Skinner would undertake to see that it was signed by J. Ogden Armour. Donnelly said that he could not sign, as he was compelled to submit all propositions of settlement to the allied trades before he could take action. He agreed to do this, and the representatives of the allied trades accepted the proposition with the insertion of the clause, "if all details can be satisfactorily arranged."

This proposition, it is said, was taken by Mr. Skinner to Mr. Armour, and it was suggested by the latter that it be shown to the other packers. The matter went no further than this.

Parker Back From Winnisook Lodge

ESOPUS, N. Y., Aug. 16.—Judge Parker has arrived at Rosemount from Winnisook lodge with Mrs. Parker and his brother, Fred H. Parker. Despite the earnest entreaties of the club members Judge Parker left the club at 2:30 p. m., according to his original programme, driving down the long mountain road to catch the 4:14 train at Big Indian. William S. Rodie of the New York Democratic state committee accompanied Judge Parker's party as far as Esopus, going on to New York. The judge took his departure with the utmost reluctance.

Frederick Boehle of New York has identified the body as that of his wife, Barbara Boehle. He said she was slightly demented and had several times threatened to destroy herself. He has no doubt but that she took her life and says she had been missing from her home for a fortnight. The police believe that she choked herself to death with a veil found about her neck.

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—A reunion of old comrades of all the states of the Union, an exchange of happy recollections and a fraternal mingling of Confederate and Unionist marked the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic here. A. R. and the Sons and Daughters of Veterans.

Young Jones then reloaded the gun and fired again at the prostrate form of his father. The boy was brought here and placed in jail.

PORT ARTHUR'S DOOM

Fierce Assault on All Sides by Mikado's Forces.

NOVIK REPORTED SUNK AT SEA

Kamimura's Ships, After Defeating Vladivostok Squadron, United In a Work of Humanity and Saved 600 of the Rurik's Crew.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Special advices from Shanghai say that many reports have reached there that Port Arthur has fallen after a desperate assault by land and sea. This report has many believers, as it is known that Port Arthur has been in desperate straits for the last ten days, during which the Japanese have been pouring a constant rain of shells upon the fortress.

In the early hours of the morning, the report says, a general attack was opened from Wolf hills by the Japanese land forces. This attack was supplemented by an assault from the sea by the fleet of Admiral Togo.

A special from St. Petersburg says that the expectation there is Port Arthur will fall at any moment. Especial significance is attached to the fact that Lieutenant General Stoessel's wife and children went to Chefu on board the torpedo boat destroyer Ryeshitelni.

A Nagasaki report says that 600 survivors of the crew of the Russian cruiser Rurik, which was sunk by Admiral Kamimura off Unsan, Korea, have arrived at Sasebo.

Refugees from Port Arthur say the Japanese recently occupied the Liauti hills and Sushiyen, which is two or three miles north of the fortress.

Five warships and seven torpedo boat destroyers, according to the junks, returned to Port Arthur the night of Aug. 10.

The emperor has received the following dispatch from Viceroy Alexieff:

"According to a report from Port Arthur, the Japanese attacked Taku and Siaohou mountains in enormous force during the night and occupied them after fifteen hours' fighting.

"During a heavy rainstorm the Japanese attacked our east front, but were repulsed at all points. They also attacked simultaneously our whole front, from Wolf hills to Taku mountain, but everywhere were driven back.

"The fortress has been bombarded from the east side for four days."

An unconfirmed report which has reached here from Kaiochau says the Russian cruiser Novik, which put into Tsingchau after the battle of Aug. 10 and which coaled there and put to sea within her twenty-four hours limit, has been sunk forty miles from Kaiochau.

Admiral Kamimura has reported to Tokyo that at dawn on Sunday his squadron discovered the three vessels of the Vladivostok squadron off Ulsan, southeastern coast of Korea steaming southward. The Russian vessels on sighting the Japanese squadron attempted to escape northward, but were prevented, and fighting commenced at 5:23 a. m. All the enemy's ships caught fire several times by reason of the Japanese shells and apparently suffered heavily, especially the Rurik. Eventually the Russians fled at full speed northward, leaving behind the Rurik, which afterward sank. Thereupon the whole Japanese squadron began the rescue of the drowning Russians and picked up about 600.

A dispatch from Shanghai says that the cruiser Askold has gone into dock and that the torpedo boat destroyer Grozovoi is being dismantled.

A Chefu dispatch says that in the capture of the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Ryeshitelni the Japanese lost one petty officer killed, four men seriously wounded and nine men slightly wounded.

A Kiaochau report says that the Russian battleship Cesarevitch and three torpedo boat destroyers are now in the hands of the local German government for repairs, but it is improbable that these vessels will fight again in this war.

The admiralty at St. Petersburg has no information as to whether Lieutenant Newton A. McCully of the United States navy and Lieutenant de Cuverville of the French navy, the only two naval attaches at Port Arthur, joined Rear Admiral Withoft's squadron when it left that port or not.

It is reported that Viceroy Alexeieff has left Mukden hurriedly for Vladivostok on receipt of news that the illness of Vice Admiral Bezobrazoff had taken a serious turn and that the admiral was not expected to recover.

The exact whereabout of the Port Arthur battleships is still a mystery, on which hinge Russian naval fortunes in the far east. Telegrams reporting them back at Port Arthur have not been confirmed up to this hour.

Russia Protests to Peking.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 16.—The presentation of a strongly worded Russian note to the Peking government demanding an explanation of the Ryeshitelni incident, coupled with a demand for the restoration of the destroyer, as foreshadowed by the protest sent to Japan and the powers, shows that Russia is apparently determined to obtain satisfaction for the affront.

Russia's Imperial Succession.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 16.—Emperor Nicholas has issued a manifesto determining the order of succession to the throne. In the event of the emperor dying before the czarowitz attains his majority the emperor's brother, Grand Duke Michael, is to become regent, the empress assuming the guardianship of the czarowitz. The baby czarowitz has been gazetted chief of Cossacks.

JUSTICE IN GEORGIA

First Negro on Trial For Killing of Hodges Convicted.

SEVENTEEN ARE HELD FOR THE CRIME

Court House Guarded by Savannah Light Infantry With Fixed Bayonets—Trial Opened With Prayer by Victim's Brother.

STATESBORO, Ga., Aug. 16. — An unusual scene was presented at the opening of court here. The grand jury reported indictments against Reed and Cato for the murder of Henry Hodges Cato was ready for trial, and the selection of a jury was begun. The state elected to try the men separately. The indictments made only one charge, that of murder, and that for the murder of Hodges.

A jury was selected without much difficulty in the case of Will Cato, and his trial was finished, and the jury retired at 7:10 o'clock last night. Eight minutes later it returned a verdict of guilty. Judge Daly immediately adjourned court without passing sentence on the prisoner.

In spite of wild rumors to the contrary all was quiet at the trial of the negroes. Before court opened men were seen in groups on the streets and sidewalks, but a request from a military officer or from any of the civil authorities was sufficient to disperse them.

Judge Daly found the local military already on duty. The talk of lynching was more prevalent outside of Statesboro than in it.

The Rev. H. A. Hodges of Texas, a brother of Henry Hodges, who, with his wife and three children, was murdered, opened court with prayer. He prayed for the spirit of a sound mind, a Godly judgment and an unbiased verdict. He prayed for the observance of the laws of the land. He pleaded that the people stand by the court in its every action.

Judge Daly urged that the guilty be punished and the innocent be given freedom.

"The entire country stands to your back where you observe the law," said Judge Daly, "but no one is with you when you violate the law."

Captain Hitch and the Oglethorpe Light infantry of Savannah have reached the city. Captain Hitch has assumed charge of the total military forces.

The following negro prisoners were in the courtroom under military guard: Will Cato, Paul Reed, Will Rainey, Handy Bell, Dave Young, Elias Young, A. J. Gaines, David Bennett, Philip De Casse, Ben Pendennis, Hattie Reed, Ophelia Cato and Louis Cooper. The men are all supposed to be in the Before Day club.

Troops Out to Avert Lynching.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 16.—Governor Terrell received a telegram from the mayor of Statesboro, Ga., stating that it was expected that lynching would follow the trial of a negro named Cato for the murder of a white family there three weeks ago, and that he would want at least a thousand militiamen there. Governor Terrell at once ordered out the Savannah militia.

Volney W. Foster's Sudden End.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Volney W. Foster of Chicago and Evanston, president of the Western Paving and Supply company, former president of the Union League club of Chicago and prominent in promoting trade with Mexico, died of apoplexy here half an hour after he had left the Chicago Stock Exchange restaurant with Howard H. Gross. Mr. Foster complained of feeling faint and dizzy as he left the restaurant, and Mr. Gross went with him to St. Luke's hospital. Here Mr. Foster sank rapidly until death came. He was born in Aztalan, Wis., fifty-six years ago.

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

CANDIDA LED THE FIELD

Race For Kentucky Stakes at Saratoga Track.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 16.—An outsider, Candida, beat the favorite, Czarnaphine, four lengths in the stake event the Kentucky, a selling race, for two year-old fillies. She made a runaway race of it, leading her field more than two lengths from start to finish. Czarnaphine got second place only by a head.

Sea Gull, one of the string of Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., and formerly known as Terrible Terry, admirably ridden by Ray, made the pace most of the way in the steeplechase and won without exertion.

Mimosa made the running in the first race and won by a length and a half. Wild Thyme was placed by four lengths.

The feature of the day was the appearance and defeat of McChesney, former champion of the west, in the sixth race. Jocund made the running for three-quarters of the way and won easily by two lengths. Dimply was the contender, and she had some difficulty in outplacing Aurumaster, who finished only a head behind her under a drive. Big Mac was pocketed in the stretch and did not have a chance to finish in the money.

Dalesman, the favorite in the fourth race, was beaten three-fourths of a length.

The best Bulwark, the favorite in the fifth race, could do was an easy third.

WORSE EVERY YEAR.

Plenty of Plainfield Readers Have the Same Experience.

Don't neglect an aching back.
It will get worse every year.
Backache is really kidney ache.
To cure the back you must cure the kidneys.
If you don't other kidney ills follow—
Diabetes, Bright's disease.
A Plainfield citizen tells you how—the cure is easy.

Mrs. Valentine Utzinger, of 75 Grandview avenue, says: "I suffered from kidney complaint for six years. I doctored and used various kinds of medicine with little or no result. I had almost a constant sharp darting pain across my back and if I ever exerted myself or took cold I sueffred severely. I always felt it most when the weather was damp. While in this condition I saw Doan's Kidney Pills recommended and my son bought me a box from L. W. Randolph's drug store. I started to use them at once, following directions closely. They helped the pain in my back, and relieved the other difficulty. I give all the credit for this relief to Doan's Kidney Pills for they are beyond a doubt a wonderful medicine for kidney trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

HELD IN DEATH TRAP

New York Workmen Crushed In Elevator Wreck.

HUGE WEIGHTS FELL TEN STORIES

Eighteen Suffered, One Dead, One Fatally Hurt and Sixteen Seriously Injured In Elevator Cage. Two Arrests Followed.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—One man was killed, one fatally hurt and sixteen persons seriously injured in an elevator accident shortly after noon in the ten story office building at 707-709 Broadway. The dead man is William Becker of Brownsville, who was horribly mangled and crushed. The man who was fatally injured has not yet been identified. His skull was crushed, and the doctors at St. Vincent hospital, where he was taken, say he cannot possibly live.

The accident was caused by two heavy counterbalance weights breaking from their fastenings on the tenth floor and crashing down through a large freight elevator on the first floor. The elevator was filled with people at the time, all of whom were more or less severely injured.

Leonard Schmidt, the elevator man, and Francis E. Ward, the agent and superintendent of the building, were arrested. Most of those injured received severe scalp wounds caused by debris from the breaking of the roof of the car.

The building is one of the largest in Manhattan. During the noon hour hundreds of employees in the various tailoring and millinery firms, which make up most of the firms in the building, went out to luncheon in the neighborhood. It was found, while they were out, that the large passenger elevators in the front of the building were out of order. In the rear are large freight elevators, more slow in movement, but larger than those of the passenger variety. It was decided that the freight elevators would have to be used to carry the employees back to their rooms on the various floors.

Shortly before 1 o'clock the corridors in the rear of the building were crowded with employees waiting to ascend. One of the cars was quickly filled with a score of passengers. The elevator ascended as far as the fourth floor and, finding something was the matter with the elevator, Leonard Schmidt, the elevator man, decided to descend and have the passengers leave until the cause of the trouble could be ascertained.

Accordingly the descent was made, and the ground floor was reached in safety. Before the doors could be opened, however, there was a grinding and crashing sound far above as if not only wood but steel and iron were being bent and broken. Looking up through the openings in the roof of the car, the caged-in passengers saw the immense counterbalance weights coming down the ten stories with great rapidity. Before any of them had an opportunity to get out of the car the weights, with frightful force, crashed through the roof of the car. The passengers were penned in like cattle and could not escape an inch. The weights tore the car to atoms and crashed down on the luckless passengers, pinning them all to the flooring of the car in one indescribable mass. The crash of the weights hitting the car and the shrieks of the injured and dying were heard for blocks. Nearly every one was injured about the head and shoulders, the passengers all standing when the weights crashed through the car's roof.

Schmidt, the elevator man, escaped without a scratch. He was too far toward one side to be struck

Cleveland Cloakmakers Strike.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 16. — Two thousand cloakmakers went on strike here. Increase in wages, recognition of the union and "closed" shops are demanded. Owners of a number of factories were willing to grant the increase, but declined the "closed" shop demand. About 10,000 people are employed in the various department, not including hundreds of contract cloakmakers who also are out.

Plainfield, N. J., Aug. 16, 1904.

The "full dinner pail" and the "cross of gold" have been consigned to the political rubbish pile.

Judge Parker's declaration that he intends to deliver but three speeches during the campaign leads one to believe that he intends to profit by Mr. Bryan's experience.

The newspapers say that Hannah Elias is not worrying. If the courts had only allowed us $500 a month for living expenses as they did in her case the chances are we wouldn't either.

Some fellow with a knack for discovering things declares that women are more easily awakened than men. Sure thing, but how about getting dressed and appearing at the breakfast table on time.

The City National Bank has issued a neat little folder setting forth its financial condition on July 30 together with some briefly told information concerning that prosperous institution. It has just completed its fifty-ninth semi-annual period of existence and is today one of the strongest and safest banks in this section of the State. The deposits amount to nearly one million dollars and it has paid dividends amounting to nearly a third of a million, every cent of which has been earned in the conduct of its business.

The Morristown Express thinks that Robert D. Foote of that town has the best chance of any of "the possibilities" to secure the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. In many respects he sizes up to the requirements defined by Alvah A. Clark, of Somerville, especially so far as the "dough barrel" is concerned. But Mr. Clark is not "it." James Smith and Robert Davis are the men whose opinions are of paramount importance at a Democratic convention and whether they prefer Mr. Foote to Johnston Cornish, of Warren, Charles C. Black, of Hudson, or Frank S. Katzenbach, of Mercer, will be seen later on.

In the death of Former Mayor George W. Rockfellow, Plainfield has lost a man who always had its best interests at heart and one who for honesty of purpose is seldom met with. Generous to a fault, forgiving, always amiable and yet tactful in his official life, he left the city to recuperate his shattered health, taking with him the well wishes of all his fellow townsmen. While away he cherished the fond hope that he would some day be able to return and it is doubly a cause for regret that his expectations could not be realized. The fact that he had not been in the community for two years did not lessen the shock caused by word that he had passed away and deep sorrow has been expressed on all sides. He was still Plainfield's former mayor and to many, a resident, and the community can ill afford to lose men of his calibre.

and in the interests of order, good government and the welfare of the borough, it was chiefly a retaliatory plot and a political scheme. It had its origin in the bitter fight still going on between the annexationists and the anti-annexationists, and moral sentiments were only secondary. There is good reason for holding that the fees in North Plainfield ought to be increased, notwithstanding the court's contention that the liquor business there is less remunerative than in Plainfield, and that the license fees in the former are greater than anywhere else in Somerset County. So long as an ugly political feud taints, distorts or defeats every municipal movement in that devoted borough, even those that are for the public welfare and born of public necessity, it will be impossible to render any decision satisfactory to both parties, but if the court had fixed the fee at the figures recommended by both councils, representing both factions, it would have defeated the vindictive political purposes of both, while securing moral results which could only have been beneficial to the borough."

A BIG POST OFFICE

CHICAGO IS A WONDERFUL CENTER FOR MAIL.

SOME REMARKABLE FIGURES

One Million Letters a Day in the Outgoing Mail—Heavy Business Done at Branch Stations—Money-Order Statistics.

Chicago.—August is play time at the Chicago post office. It is then or never for vacations for the postal clerks, the letter carriers, the wagon drivers, and all the other various employes that go to make that complex machine—a big city post office.

Not that there are no letters, no papers, no merchandise, no money orders and registered packages passing through Chicago at that time, for there are, but comparatively speaking there are but few of them. In August the number of letters mailed in Chicago each day will drop down to around 700,000; there will not be over 70 tons of newspapers and magazines, and not over 30 tons of merchandise passing through the office every 24 hours. These figures mean but a mere pittance in the way of work.

Postmaster Coyne says the post office is like a calendar. Even the hot days are not so sure a criterion of the season as is this mere pittance of a mail that comes in when the business man is casting the fly in the Canadian lakes, swinging the golf clubs on the links, or doing the two-step at Newport. It is certain evidence that the typewriter girl is taking her month away from town; that the office clerks are playing havoc with maidenly hearts at the summer resorts; that all Chicago has gone a holiday making, and left virtually nothing for the postal man to do, and why should not he, too, have a holiday?

August is not a business month in any line. More and more is it being given over to pleasure, and in no way is this shown so quickly as in the mail receipts at the Chicago post office. The wholesale and mail-order houses practically quit looking for business at that time and settle down to enjoy the pleasures of the season without thinking of troublesome business cares, and their languor gives the post office a rest.

When Business Is Brisk.

The letter carrier quickens his steps with the coming of the fall breezes in September, and he also increases the load he must carry about with him from door to door. Playtime is over then. The business houses begin their fall campaign for orders, and they go after them through the mails.

Before Thanksgiving day has come and gone Chicago will be sending out not 700,000 letters each day, but more than 1,000,000; the 70 tons of second-class matter will have increased to 90 tons, and the 30 tons of merchandise will have doubled or better. Then it is that the postal clerk feels Uncle Sam's business is brisk enough to demand at least a fair share of his attention.

And this, remember, is only the outgoing mail. There is no record kept of the incoming letters, but it is safe to say that there is an answer for each of the letters going out. Christmas orders begin coming in early in the fall, and by Thanksgiving time business as it is done through the post office is at the top notch, though the letter carrier's troubles have scarcely begun. His hours of overwork come about Christmas, when everybody wants to send everybody else a present, and to have these presents reach everybody on Christmas morning. The purpose is seldom accomplished. To do it is practically a physical impossibility, though it must be said to the letter carrier's credit that he neither saves his legs nor his feelings in making the attempt.

Another sure sign that Santa Claus is doing business is the increase in the business of the money-order department. During the August vacation season it is seldom that there are more than about 13,000 money orders sold in one day, or at least that is a fair average. When the Christmas season comes the number will run to 20,000 and better, and the amount of money handled will run over $250,000 daily.

Yearly Business.

Chicago does a heavier postal business than any other city in the country. In the money order department last year there were 7,832,290 transactions, amounting to $135,039,420.97. Big as the holiday business always is, the record day came in the spring, instead of the winter. On the 7th of last April in the money order department there were 54,095 transactions, amounting to $1,323,661.16. When put in cold figures it is hard to realize what the figures mean. More than $1,250,000 passing through this one station of the government postal department; more than 100,000 people receiving or sending money. Small wonder that there is a cry for increased office help. The wonder is that the help provided is able in any way to care for so great a business.

For people who like to speculate on the meaning of figures there are few more interesting documents than the annual report of Postmaster Coyne. He deals in figures of a monumental kind. In his last report to the department at Washington he says:

"The Chicago post office sells on an average of about $25,000 worth of stamps, about $3,000 worth of envelopes, and receives about $2,000 daily from second-class matter, making a total of receipts of $30,000 per day. Of this sum about $7,500 are for precanceled stamps; that is, stamps that are canceled in advance of being placed upon mail matter, saving a delay in dispatch of mail and inconvenience in handling after ready for dispatch. Of this latter sum, one firm alone buys nearly $3,000 worth each day. Another firm placed an order with us on September 1 last for 1,300,000 pre-canceled one-cent stamps. The largest check ever received by the Chicago post office for pre-canceled stamps was for $25,000; the largest day's sale of stamps and envelopes amounted to $67,000."

The Substations.

Continuing, this same interesting report says of another phase of the Chicago post office:

"The ordinary observer has no adequate conception of the size of the Chicago post office. It is not generally known that there are 47 branch stations in the different parts of the city, all under the jurisdiction of the postmaster. Many of these branch stations compare in volume of business transactions with some of the chief cities of the United States; for example, the board of trade station, employing 14 clerks and 26 carriers, did a business last year of $935,277, putting it in the same class with the city of Buffalo.

"The Monadnock station, with seven clerks and four carriers, did a business of $826,703, placing it in the list of post offices of the country with Kansas City.

"The Stock Exchange station ranks with New Orleans and Denver.

"The station at Cottage Grove avenue and Fortieth street, employing 14 clerks and 55 carriers, does the same business as Erie, Pa., and the Twenty-second street station, with 12 clerks and 38 carriers, is the same size as Springfield, Ill., and Elmyra, N. Y.

"In addition to these stations, there are 203 substations, or, as now designated, numbered stations, located principally in drug stores, each under the supervision of a clerk in charge, all under the jurisdiction and direct control of the postmaster. Some of these do a business that compares favorably with large cities, notably No. 196, located in the store of Marshall Field & Co. This station was established on January 1, 1903, and ranks with cities of the class of Bloomington, Joliet and Danville, Ill., East Orange, N. J., and Auburn, N. Y. During the year there were issued from this station 7,012 domestic and 134 international money orders, amounting to $55,792.86; stamps sold to the amount of $67,561.10; and 2,625 pieces of registered matter handled.

"The Jackson Park station ranks with some of the larger cities of our country, with but ten larger offices in the state of Illinois, two in Minnesota and two in Nebraska."

Delivering the Mails.

The letter carrier is the most obliging of men. He takes the greatest of pains to get your letters to you at the earliest possible moment, and with the least trouble to you. But the men and concerns who get the most mail go after it themselves. Several of the big concerns of the city keep heavy trucks engaged in hauling their mail to and from the post office, and in some cases one truck is not enough to accomplish the task.

One big concern in the city receives an average of more than 50,000 letters each day. No one mail man could possibly accomplish it, and two trucks are kept busy at the task most of the time, while two more carry the replies back to the post office.

If all the newspaper and periodical mail was dropped into the letter and parcel boxes on the street corners, it would almost necessitate the doubling of the collecting forces of the city. Instead of doing it this way, however, the various companies engaged in the printing and publishing lines, as well as the merchandising lines, keep their own mail collecting wagons, and the rush is so great that these wagons sometimes have to stand for hours waiting their turn at the door of the post office.

Truly the Chicago post office is a wonderful institution, second to none. It takes a business man and business methods to handle it, and at the present time it has both.

WHAT IS WORN.

Picturesque Millinery the Rule. Wide Tucks Fashionable.

The millinery of the moment is without doubt picturesque, and the Romney hat, with its high crown and spreading brim drooping gracefully over the face, is quite the smartest shape of all. In purple chip with blue trimmings or in tobacco brown with roses of a deep orange tint it is very distinguished and uncommon. The daintiest aspect, however, is in white chip trimmed with a twist of white tulle or pale blue. The "soup plate" shape is charming in all tints, wreathed with berries and odd looking leaves, or for outing wear it is simply trimmed with spotted or striped ribbon, while a veil measuring two and a half to three yards is arranged on a drawstring about the hat and the ends brought around in front.

Tucks are always fashionable, but the wide ones are by far the smartest. They are often cut in the godet style, folded and stitched on separately. Some gowns are entirely trimmed in this fashion.

In the picture we have a pale blue muslin gown. The odd skirt ruffle has three shirred headings. The sleeves are laid in six puffs of the material and lace. The hat is draped with a lace scarf.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

DRESSY FROCKS.

Chantilly Gowns Very Popular. Bright Colors Worn.

Evening reception gowns are particularly gorgeous. There is a fancy for the finest black chantilly lace over softest white satin or taffeta. Then, too, the embroideries are really beautiful. A toilet in black and white seen recently was of the lightest chantilly over satin messaline. It was looped up on the hips Dolly Varden style and decorated with great choux of black velvet with pailletted centers. Two more choux were worn, one in the hair, the other on the shoulder. Over the bodice of draped chantilly was a bertha of point d'alencon, and on this were appliqued motifs of the black chantilly.

A good deal of lavender silk, satin and peau de soie are being worn for afternoon occasions, and these shades will be seen in the fall combined with touches of cream white lace.

Strong colors are still worn in the evening, but the craze for the darker blues seems to be fading. Mulberry color is worn a good deal. A very bright shade is chosen, as a rule, and it is relieved with lace.

Evening dresses of painted chiffon, with little medallions, are still in vogue. They are made in fluffy style with a Marie Antoinette bodice. The newest bodices fasten behind.

Nothing is prettier for the young girl than accordion plaited chiffon, and lace and white costumes of this description are all the rage.

The picture shows a dark red tailor made costume having a vest of lighter red. It is trimmed with straps of deep red peau de soie. The hat is of shaded red straw and ribbon.

Right Kind Of Mother

She Does Not Try to "Mold" Her Children

"I'LL tell you one thing—women rush in where"—

"Men would fear to tread?"

"Well, they certainly would give the subject some serious thought if they had to face its obligations"—

"Meaning?"

"Meaning the responsibility of bringing up children. Women seem to think they can do it by following blind instinct, or, for the matter of that, no instinct at all. However, that is ultra feminine. When a man is about to enter a profession he learns conscientiously all he can about it. Women, on the other hand, are apt "smatterers." They want to be given the credit of knowing things without the painstaking labor of learning. That's one reason why they are so apt to be failures in the business world. And it's the same in motherhood. 'She brought up a large family,' one often says in praise of a woman, when, as a matter of fact, the family pretty well brought its own self up and escaped destruction and calamity only through good luck and even better constitutions."

"And the children find it out?"

"Very early in the family history—more's the pity—for children are a great deal cleverer than we give them credit for being!"

"But I thought we were going to talk of the right kind of mother."

"So we are. So we are. I simply drew in a few dark shadows to bring the shining halo of the right kind of mother into more perfect light. The right kind of mother is she who first and foremost understands her children. A good many people unconsciously hold to the theory that children should not have anything about them hard to understand; that they should, until they grow up, all be molded on one plan—the docile, obedient, conventional child plan—a very nice theory, but all wrong. A child has individuality and ideas of its own from its earliest years. Even babies have signs of individuality. Now, the right kind of mother, instead of crushing this individuality, seeks to bring it out. She wants her children to grow up good, of course, but she won't force the child to be a colorless replica of her own self or of some one she admires. Children are not balls of putty to be molded at a parent's will."

"What is the greatest good you believe a mother can do her child?"

"Teaching it to think straight without on that account abandoning its individuality. There are hundreds of men and women today who think from other people's point of view instead of their own. This is simply because they have been so thoroughly trained to depend upon what other people think and not on their own judgment. You will see women thinking in certain unnatural ruts because they were started as children in those ruts. You see men following professions for which they are totally unfitted because 'dear mother thought Paul ought to be a writer' or 'Ernest's father and grandfather were ministers, so we sent him to the theological seminary.' There is nothing so sad as the ordering of young lives in uncongenial directions by an ignorant and—yes, selfish—woman, selfish because she had rather place her son where it is convenient for her to have him rather than take the trouble to understand him and let him have help in living his own individual life. The right kind of mother does not make that mistake. Instead of ruling and molding her children she takes the trouble to understand their different characters and to sympathize with them. As a result, there is little danger of their being forced to go to any one else in order to be understood. She doesn't have to do the 'listen to mother' and the 'poor mother' act. Her children accord her the respect which broad mindedness always wins, together with the quality of only speaking with authority on subjects with which the speaker is really acquainted. The right kind of mother is the children's friend. She encourages talent, listens to their troubles, stimulates their ambition, shares all their tastes whether natural or unnatural to her. She is the mother who gives to the world strong, if loving sons and daughters."

"Ah, good evening, Hatfield! You say the general is waiting for me? Where is he?"

"In the cabin yonder, sir."

"That's well. Will you have me announced?"

"Mr. Giles," said Hatfield, turning to his midshipman, "present my compliments to the general and say that Capt. Grafton is here to see him."

"Ay, ay, sir!" replied the boy, touching his cap and springing aft toward the cabin.

"'Tis a fine night, Hatfield," remarked Grafton, as they stood waiting.

"Indeed yes, sir."

"And a good time for our enterprise. I believe it is set finally for this evening."

"I believe so, sir. The orders have been sent around to all the ships."

"And time enough," responded Grafton. "We cannot stay in this cursed river much longer. Winter will soon be on us."

"The general's compliments to Mr. Hatfield, and will Capt. Grafton please come below in the cabin?" interrupted the midshipman.

"By the way, Hatfield," said Grafton, as he turned to follow the midshipman, "where are Capt. Rous and the admiral?"

"Below sir, in the admiral's cabin, supervising the details for the evening. Do you go with them, captain?"

"I believe that I am to have charge of the debarkation," answered Grafton heartily; "would you like to go?"

"Indeed I would, sir."

"Very well, I'll speak to Capt. Rous. I shall doubtless see you again in a few moments."

Presently Grafton entered the cabin.

"Ah, Grafton, glad to see you!" said a tall, thin man seated at a table, who appeared to be very ill. "Prompt as usual, I see."

"You said nine o'clock, general, and you know we sailors can be quite as punctual as you gentlemen of the army—wind and tide permitting, of course."

"Well, captain, I—but stay! You will excuse us, Monckton, and gentlemen all, I am sure," said the general, turning to his most trusted subordinate and three or four staff officers with whom he had been in consultation, "I have something of a private nature to say to Capt. Grafton, and with your permission—no, no, keep your seats!" he added, as he saw them rising, "we will withdraw to the inner cabin. You see, I have two rooms, Grafton, by the courtesy of Capt. Rous, luxurious quarters for a soldier in the course of an active campaign."

The two men, bowing to the officers, who returned their salutations with elaborate courtesy, withdrew into the inner cabin. Motioning the sailor to a seat the general sank down on a transom, rested his elbow on the post-sill, leaned his head upon his hand, and gazed through the open port toward Cap-Rouge. Grafton did not presume to break the silence.

"Philip," he said at last, turning about and leaning forward toward his friend, "we try it to-night."

"Yes, James."

"And you are to have charge of the boats."

"Thank you for that."

"I wanted a good man upon whom I could depend. There must be no miscarriage here if we can help it. 'Tis our last chance. You saw Admiral Saunders, as I requested?"

"Yes, and he delays sailing for a short time longer, though he takes a great risk."

"A noble fellow!" exclaimed the young general heartily. "If he fails to take the town, I will ever bear testimony that our want of success was not due to any lack of co-operation on his part."

"Shall we succeed, think you, Wolfe?" asked Grafton.

"What think you of the prospects yourself?"

"I am a sailor, I know little of such things. Give me the deck of a ship and I am at home. I fear nothing there—unless it be a lee-shore—but on land I prefer your views."

"Shall we fail? God knows!" murmured Wolfe softly, half soliloquizing. "I tried to turn their flank on the Montmorenci and failed there. I tried a direct attack on the Beauport lines and failed again. This time I know not. The path's a poor one at best. A hundred men at the top might hold an army," suddenly, as if awakened from a dream. "Of course not! We shall not fail! We can't fail! Philip, I must have Quebec! And now, at that! 'Tis our last chance, and mine! 'Tis sure a hard fate, but this body of mine is done for. I may last for a few days longer, but my race is about run."

"Don't say that, James!" exclaimed his boyhood friend, protesting even against the bitter assurance in his heart of the truth of the dying soldier's words.

"It isn't the saying, old friend, but the fact, that makes it hard to bear—and 'tis true. This poor frail body is not equal to the demands I have made upon it. If it carry me through to-night and to-morrow I shall say naught. Death may have its way. Peace, Philip. I know what you would say, but I know myself 'tis useless. I want to strike one good blow for old England before I go. I should like to see the Cross of St. George floating above Cape Diamond before—but we shall see. Stobo says the path is practicable. He's a canny Scot and should know what he's talking about. I have examined it carefully as we floated past it, and I believe that we can get up. Once let me get on those plains and I interpose between Montcalm and his base of supplies. He must fight, retreat or surrender."

"'Tis easy to tell," answered Grafton, "what he will do then."

"Quite. He is a splendid soldier, as many of our poor fellows have cause to know—and a fighter always. I honor him."

"But suppose you get caught between Montcalm and Bougainville's men from Cap-Rouge, Wolfe?"

"The chances for their arriving on the field together are very remote, and we must crush the one who first makes his appearance. Then we can easily deal with the other."

"Have you issued all the necessary orders?"

"All."

"Have you thought of everything?"

"Everything but defeat. The men are to enter the boats about 11 o'clock," he continued. "They are to row up the river as if to make a landing at Cap-Rouge and then return to the ships. When the tide turns and the ebb begins they are to drop silently down the river. The ships will follow after an hour's interval. The boats will land the men at the designated point, and then go across to the other side and ferry over Burton's troops, who will have marched there before this, I presume. Those are your orders, Grafton."

"What then?"

"Then we will bide the issue. 'Tis a desperate hazard."

"Ay, desperate, indeed."

"We play for a great stake, Grafton, and fortune has been so hard to us perhaps the tide may turn and luck may serve."

"You are too wise a man to be lucky, Wolfe," responded the naval officer.

"Well, perhaps the luck will be with England, then. In fact, it is. Two deserters from Cap-Rouge have apprised us that a flotilla of provision boats is to be sent down to Quebec to-night. We will be that flotilla."

"Yes," laughed Grafton, "and give the French such a breakfast as they will find it difficult to digest, I'll warrant."

"Quite so," said Wolfe, smiling. "But now that you have your official instructions, Philip, there is another thing I want you to do for me."

"Anything on earth, old friend."

"I know that, I know that," answered the soldier. "You have always been a friend to me since we were boys together in old England. No one could be truer or better than you have been."

"Oh, that's all right," answered Grafton, hastily, with the Anglo-Saxon inclination to the avoidance of a scene. "We have been friends since my father sent me to the English school, where we met. I was a little colonial lad from Massachusetts, and mighty lonely I was, Jimmie, until you took me up and championed me."

"But you fought your own battles, Phil."

"You saw that I had fair play, anyway. I'll tell you what it is, Wolfe, if your body only equalled your spirit, what a knight you would have been!"

"Well, it's about that body that I want to speak. As I told you, I am doomed. I shall never get back to England alive; the sickness upon me is mortal. The physicians have said so, and I feel that it is true. Look at me, you can see for yourself! If it were not for the fight I should be on my back now, and if I have to die I'd rather do it on the field yonder—after we have won, of course—but that's as God pleases. This is what I want you to do."

As he spoke the young general unbuttoned his waistcoat, loosened his tie, and drew from his neck a little gold chain to which was attached a golden locket inclosed in a tight leather case. He slipped the chain over his head, drew the locket from the case, opened it and held it toward the light. He looked long and earnestly at the picture it contained—the portrait of a young and lovely woman. Observing that his friend had considerately turned his head, he raised it softly to his lips. A single tear fell upon the ivory miniature as he closed the locket, slipped it back in the leather case and extended it to Grafton. Deep tribute of affection lies in the tear of a soldier—of a soldier like Wolfe.

"When you get back to England, old friend," he said, slowly, "I want you to give this to Katharine Lowther, and tell her how, the night before I—before the battle, I mean, I gave it to you in the cabin of the ship, and how I loved her to the end. I have sent my farewells to my mother and the rest by some who know them, but I lay this last duty upon you. Nay, man, slip it around your neck. 'Twill not hurt Kitty, 'twould not hurt any girl to have her portrait worn against so honest a man's heart. And—" he hesitated, "don't mention this to any one, and see that it does not leave your person until you give it to her. Now, Philip, we must go. Your hand, old friend, and good-by."

"God bless you, Jim," answered Philip, his voice choking with emotion. "On my word I will tell no one of it, and no one shall see it or know it until I give it to Miss Lowther. I pledge you, old friend. But I won't say good-by. I hope to congratulate you to-morrow—in Quebec."

CHAPTER X.

THE BEGINNING OF THE HAZARD.

SIX bells were striking on the Sutherland as Wolfe and Grafton came out of the cabin. As the sound of the mournful couplets rang out through the night the bells of the other vessels caught up the slow refrain and the sound was repeated from ship to ship over the dark river. The character of the night had changed slightly. Faint clouds were drifting athwart the starlit heavens, and there were heavy banks to the southward which looked like rain.

"Will you show the signals, Admiral Holmes?" asked Wolfe, as he stepped on deck. "We are all ready, I believe, sir."

"Very well, general," responded the admiral, turning to Capt. Rous and giving him an order. A moment later two lanterns were hoisted, one above the other, at the spanker-gaff end. The signal was immediately repeated throughout the squadron. Shrill whistles rang out as the boatswain's mates of the different ships bawled out hoarse commands.

Instantly the soldiers and sailors came swarming to their stations.

"Col. Howe," said Gen. Wolfe, addressing an officer of the light infantry, who appeared at the head of his men, "after you have mustered your battalion will you explain to them that I have designated them to lead the way in the attack to-night? Choose a forlorn hope of 24 men to scale the heights, sir."

"'Tis an honor indeed, sir, I thank you," answered the young officer, smiling with pleasure. "I myself will lead them."

"I expected as much of you. Capt. Grafton," he said, turning to the sailor and resuming the formal method of public address, "will you see that your flotilla of boats is ready to receive my men?"

"I know it is, sir, but I will look again," answered Grafton. "Capt. Rous, may I take Lieut. Hatfield in my boat to assist me?"

"Certainly," answered Rous, a veteran sailor.

Followed by the delighted officer, Grafton sprang to the gangway and called for his gig. Meanwhile Howe was addressing the light infantry. When he called for volunteers every man responded, and it was difficult to make selection of the required number. Presently, upon Grafton's assurance that all was ready, the men slowly filed down over the side and took their places in the boats. Taking his own boat the captain rowed from ship to ship, finding that all preparations had been made everywhere, and that boats filled with men and manned by stout seamen were already clustered under the lee of the ships where they could be screened from the observation of the French at Cap-Rouge.

By 12 o'clock, midnight, the embarkation had been completed, and as it was nearing the end of the flood the boats slowly put off from the ships and headed for Cap-Rouge, Gen. Monckton being in charge and Wolfe remaining on the Sutherland for the present.

The flotilla approached close enough to Cap-Rouge thoroughly to awaken the attention of the troops of Bougainville, who sprang to their arms in expectation of the threatening attack. But the advance was stopped before they were near enough to engage. After some little maneuvering off the shore, the boats, as if deterred by the promptness of the French soldiery, rowed back to the ships and sheltered themselves under the lee of their broadsides again where they could not be seen. Once there, the men, without going aboard the ships, waited patiently for the turning of the tide.

At four bells in the mid-watch, or two o'clock on the morning of the 13th, Wolfe entered the heavy cutter which Grafton had exchanged for his gig, and gave the signal to shove off. Following the general's boat came the boats of the light infantry, and after them the rest of the flotilla.

THE KIDNAPING CASE.

New York Police Seem to Be Baffled on the Trail.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—While there is no abatement of the interest in the case of little Antonio Mannino, who was kidnaped from his parents' home here, the police seem to be no nearer to the solution of the boy's whereabout than they were on the day that the disappearance of the boy was first reported.

Another postponement of the hearing was ordered by Magistrate Tighe in the case of the four suspects under arrest in the mystery. To safeguard matters the magistrate deemed it wise to increase the bail formerly fixed at $2,000 to $5,000 in each instance, not excepting the woman Antonia Coniglio.

One of the suspects, Cucozza, was asked in court if he recognized the Coniglio woman, and he promptly replied: "Yes, I know her. She is the woman to whom I took Tony Mannino last Tuesday night."

Mrs. Coniglio denied having any knowledge of Cucozza or the Mannino boy.

The police are anxious to locate the missing Laduca. A close watch is being kept over his home, where his wife is living alone. Mrs. Laduca has informed the police that her husband suddenly left home last Wednesday, fearing that the authorities might attempt to connect him with the case. She says she is ignorant of his whereabout.

Boy Gored to Death.

ATHOL, Mass., Aug. 16.—Harry Raymond Angell, fourteen years old, was gored to death by a bull in a pasture in West Boyleston today. There were no witnesses of the horrible death of the lad, but when the employer of the boy went to the pasture he saw the lifeless form, with the bull standing over it. As the farmer and others approached the infuriated animal, catching the body on his horns, tossed it high in the air. The animal was driven off after persistent work by several farmers armed with pitchforks. The little fellow's skull was crushed and his body horribly mutilated. The boy came from the Wanderers' home in Boston.

Dawes, the Hon. R. B. Snyder and the Hon. D. W. Mulvane.

Saugerties Grocer Shoots Himself.

CATSKILL, N. Y., Aug. 16.—John W. Greene, for a number of years in the grocery business at Saugerties and at Fish Creek, Ulster county, has committed suicide by shooting. Greene had on arising placed the muzzle of a shotgun close to his neck and pulled the trigger with the great toe of his right foot. His head was nearly severed.

GERMAN ASPARAGUS

ITS CULTIVATION A PROFITABLE INDUSTRY IN THE EMPIRE.

How the Plants Are Cultivated—Should Be Replanted Every Twelve Years—Loose, Sandy Soil Is Needed.

The raising of asparagus for export, as well as for domestic use, is an industry of considerable importance in parts of Germany. It is confined chiefly to certain localities of North Germany and parts of Baden. In Baden much attention is given to the industry, and the asparagus is said to be superior in quality to that grown in other parts of the empire.

The soil in which asparagus is raised in Baden is the sandy loam common in the upper Rhine valley. If well manured, this soil also produces good crops of potatoes, sugar beets, hops and cereals.

For asparagus raising the land is first very thoroughly manured and the roots are planted at intervals of from four to five feet in rows about the same distance apart. For the first three or four years no crop is harvested; the land is kept clear of weeds and well cultivated, and is fertilized with stable manure in preference to commercial fertilizers, although these are used to some extent. During these three or four years the ground is kept hilled up around the plants with a hoe, and the shoots are cut back until a considerable bunch of strong roots forms at each hill with fibers running in every direction, meeting those from adjoining hills.

A fair crop can generally be harvested the fourth year. As soon as the ground is in condition to work in the spring the process of hilling up the earth around each bunch of plants begins. This is done with hoes, and each row now shows a succession of small mounds from 10 to 14 inches high, with a base a yard or more in diameter and with the top flattened to a surface of perhaps half this diameter.

In the first warm days of April the new shoots begin to appear, just breaking through the top or sides of these mounds. A long knife is run into the soft, mellow earth of the mounds and these shoots are cut off from five to eight inches below the surface. The shoots are entirely white, except at the tops, where they show a slight trace of color. They are tender for the most part throughout their lengths and are finely flavored. These shoots are somewhat larger than those commonly seen in the United States, being generally from one-half to three-eighths of an inch in diameter.

The quantity of cuttings taken from each hill or mound during a season varies much with the weather, the quality of the soil, and other factors. It is reckoned at from two or three to four pounds.

An asparagus field is supposed to be at its best from eight to 12 years after planting. From that time on the shoots are apt to be less tender, though they may not decrease in size or quality. Replanting of the field is thought to be advisable after the twelfth year, though many tracts are said to have remained without replanting from 20 to 25 or even 30 years.

As land on which asparagus is grown is worked mainly by hand and requires heavy manuring each year, the crop is said to require considerably more labor than the raising of potatoes. It yields, however, a somewhat better income, one year being taken with another. The crop

DIAMOND DUST.

Last Saturday's game with Newmarket was the seventh successive victory for the Clinton avenue aggregation.

Dietrich, Marshall, Smith and Walton had all the putouts for Plainfield, Saturday, the rest of the team not having a chance.

Cusick played a great game at second Saturday. Besides making the only hit he had six chances and accepted every one without an error.

Every ball batted by Plainfield Saturday dropped into a Westfielder's hands. Cotter alone caught four foul flys and Mallen accepted four chances in center field.

Courtney covered third in his usual good style, Saturday. He made the only error for the team, but it was almost excusable. Walton also put up a fine game at short.

The Park Athletic Club, of Newark, would like to arrange baseball games with local teams during the month of Sept. All communications should be addressed to H. Shortman, 154 Parker street, Newark, N. J.

The drafting period in baseball began yesterday. On that day the major league owners filed their claims with the secretary of the National commission on such minor league players as they wish to try out.

GOLF.

Captain Horne, of the U. S. Army, a former resident of this city, is making a reputation for himself as a golf player. He is one of the most enthusiastic members of the Dyker Meadow Golf Club, and has made some good scores. Captain Horne recently turned in a gross score, an 87, which is considered exceptionally low for that course. He was playing with a handicap of 7, which brought him down to 80 net.

Plainfield will be well represented in the annual invitation golf tournament to be held on the Deal links Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. There have been received about fifty entries including several former State champions, and collegiate players. Among the latter are the names of inter-collegiate champion Frank O. Reinhart of this city, and former inter-collegiate champion Percy R. Phne who is also a Princeton man. The qualifying matches will take place on Thursday morning with eighteen hole play. The finals, which will be played Saturday, will be thirty-six hole matches.

SERVICES AT CAMP WOOLFE

ENDEAVORERS AND EPWORTH LEAGUE MEMBERS HOLD A MEETING.

The Crescent Avenue church Young People's Association, assisted by the St. Paul's Epworth League, of Cranford, conducted services last evening at Camp Woolfe, the Westfield Fresh Air Home. The meeting was a most successful one and largely attended by those interested in Mr. Woolfe's work among the poor children of the New York tenement districts. A delegation of visitors accompanied the local society to the camp.

The meeting was led by Miss Mary Voorhees, of the Crescent Avenue Association, who took for her topic of address "Rich Toward God," and developed the theme lucidly but simply. Charles L. Bell, of Cranford, also made an address; others who took part in the meeting were Mrs. Mosier and Miss May Willis, of the Cranford League.

There are at present 125 New Yorkers at Camp Woolfe, some twenty of whom are adults. At the conclusion of the meeting, several of the mothers remarked to members of the local Christian Endeavor Association upon the simplicity and interest of the meeting, both to them and to the children.

STATION AGENT'S ESCAPE

MR. HAMLEY BARELY MISSED BEING KILLED THIS MORNING.

Dislodged from its place on the driving wheel of the engine hauling the swiftly moving Scranton express which left this city at 10 o'clock, a piece of iron known as the "inside edge" was thrown horizontally across the Central tracks at Dunellen, this morning. Station Agent A. J. Hamley was directly in its path and he was struck squarely in the face, the force of the blow knocking him down and rendering him unconscious.

Other employes saw him fall and placing him aboard a drill engine he was hurried to the station. Dr. P. W. Brakely found him with a serious laceration of the face, the piece of metal having tore away a large piece of his cheek bone, beside making a deep cut on the side of his head. The injured man did not recover consciousness for twenty minutes and railway men say his escape from death was most remarkable as the metal was propelled through the air with enough force to crush his skull. The piece was afterward secured and was found to weigh several pounds.

PERSONAL.

Miss Beatrice, of East Orange, formerly of this city, was the guest of Mrs. J. Hervey Doane at her home on East Seventh street, over Sunday.

Frank Webster, of Duer street, conductor on the New Jersey Central, enjoyed Saturday and Sunday on a trip to Boston by water. He was the guest of the captain of the boat, a personal friend. Mr. Webster returned home yesterday.

Former Copper Arrested.

William Robinson, a former member of the city police force, was arrested by Patrolman McCarthy on Watchung avenue, this morning, after an exciting struggle in which the officer used his club freely. Robinson fought against arrest and it was not until he had been struck repeatedly that he submitted. It is said the trouble began through personal remarks which Robinson directed toward McCarthy and which the latter resented.

Follow the Merry Throng.

To be properly "in the swim" next Saturday it is only necessary to accompany the Hope chapel Sunday-school on its excursion to Asbury Park. It always proves to be one of the best of the season and this year will be no exception to the rule. The train will leave the Grant avenue station at 7:50, Plainfield at 8 and returning will start at 7:55, thus giving a full day at the shore.

Co. K at Sea Girt.

Another delegation of twelve Company K members went to Sea Girt this morning to qualify on the range for the big tournament that is to be held in September. It included First Sergeant Peterson, Corporal Bilyeu, Privates Beetham, Elliott, Lamabert, Darby, Goldsack, Peterson, Jennings and Morrison. They were attired in their khaki uniforms and carried their new rifles.

Globe Trotter Home.

SWACKHAMER IS IN POLITICS

ASSEMBLYMAN SAYS HE HAS NOT RETIRED FROM POLITICAL LIFE.

To a Daily Press reporter today, Assemblyman Swackhamer declared there is absolutely no truth in the statement made by some of the State papers that he had forsaken politics. "It's all news to me," he said, "and I am at a loss to account for the origin of the report."

The genial assemblyman continues to receive invitations to address political gatherings and among the latest which he has accepted are the outing of the Middlesex County Board of Agriculture at Riverside Park on August 25, the Harvest Home at Harlingen on August 20, the Bound Brook German Reformed church's Harvest Home on August 31, and several in the northern part of the State.

HAINES REARRESTED.

First Complaint Against Lan Speculator Defective.

C. F. Haines, the promotor charged by the Levering & Garrigues' Company with making threats against its property rights, was arraigned before Justice Rogers, at New Market, this morning. It was then found that the complaint was defective and at the request of Justice of the Peace Von Minden, counsel for the company, it was withdrawn.

Haines was immediately re-arrested on a new complaint and the hearing was laid over for thirty days, the defendant being released on his own recognizance.

Fire Apparatus Damaged.

In starting from fire headquarters to answer the midnight alarm of fire at Carver's blacksmith shop last night, the left front wheel of the chemical engine, in some way caught on the door and shattered the woodwork to a considerable extent. While on the way along West Front street, it was found that the pole had been badly wrenched and was weakened to such an extent as to compel slow travel. Examination at headquarters this morning showed that the pole had split at one of the fastening bolts. A new pole has been installed.

Will Take Part in Many Shoots.

Captain William B. Martin, of Co. K, left yesterday to be absent from his home until September 17. Tomorrow he goes to Fort Riley, Kansas, to participate in the National shoot, which covers ten days, after which he will return to Sea Girt and practice for the meeting of the National Rifle Association and the New Jersey State Rifle Association until September 10. Then he goes to Creedmore, N. Y., where the New York State Rifle Association meet is to be held September 12-17.

He will be given a hearing tonight.

7,000 Automobiles.

There were 139 automobile licenses granted by Secretary of State Dickinson last week, bringing the number up to seven thousand. Perhaps half of these are to machines that come from outside of the State. The good roads of New Jersey are very popular with automobilists. Some amendments to the law will probably be sought next winter. One will be to modify the provision that makes non-resident automobilists subject to summary arrest and punishment, even while on their way to the State capital to secure a license. Another will seek to make licenses revocable, in order to punish flagrant offenders against the speed limit. Still another will require the renewal of the number license of other States when machines enter New Jersey. It will also be proposed to require the annual renewal of licenses.—New York Herald.

Colored Cadets Drill.

The Plainfield Colored Cadets, the military organization recently founded at the Mount Olive church, held an open air drill, in the city streets for about an hour last evening. About twenty members of the company, armed with the wooden guns recently purchased and accompanied by their three drummers went through varied evolutions under the command of Lieut. Boylan, who recently served in the Seventeenth North Carolina Volunteers. Though frequently cut off by vehicles and trolley cars through the city streets, where they were obliged to drill in order to have light, the men showed improvement over the last drill and the commander is highly satisfied with the material at hand.

FORMER MAYOR'S DEATH DUE TO AN ACCIDENT

George W. Rockfellow Sustained Broken Neck in Fall From Hay Loft.

WIFE FOUND BODY

RAN HALF A MILE THROUGH LONELY FIELDS TO SECURE A DOCTOR.

Went to the Barn to Make Cattle Secure for the Night and Did Not Return—Funeral at Bound Brook Today.

The body of Former Mayor George W. Rockfellow was brought to Bound Brook from Cardinal, Va., yesterday, and with it came word for the first time that Plainfield's former chief executive had not died from natural causes but had been killed by a fall from the loft of his barn. Evidently making a misstep in the dark, he had plunged headlong through an opening to the floor below and broke his neck. His lifeless form was found at 1 o'clock Sunday morning by Mrs. Rockfellow but in the hope that he might be revived she ran half a mile across lonely roads and fields to rouse a doctor. She secured one but when the physician examined the body he declared that Mr. Rockfellow had been dead at least three hours.

Since residing in Virginia, Mr. Rockfellow exercised personal supervision of his plantation and before retiring at night he always made a tour of the yards and buildings. He left the house at 9 o'clock Saturday evening to see that the horses and cattle were secure and shortly afterward Mrs. Rockfellow, who was in the house alone with her little grandchild, went to her room. She awoke soon after midnight and noticing that her husband was not it, called for him but received no response. She then went to the yard and eventually to the barn where she made the discovery. For a moment she was overcome but quickly recovering hastened for the doctor and assistance.

When George Rockfellow, Jr., and Herbert Rockfellow were informed of their father's death both were heartbroken and the former collapsed to such an extent that he could not accompany the body north. The funeral will be held from the Bound Brook Presbyterian church this afternoon at 4 o'clock and many local officials and friends will be in attendance. The pall bearers will be six Plainfielders as follows: T. S. Armstrong, F. O. Langhorne, Albertus Swalm, H. C. Compton, J. E. Morse and Charles Steiner. The interment will be in the family plot at Bound Brook. Rev. Charles H. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, will assist in the services.

Word of the former Mayor's death first came by telegram Sunday, devoid of details, and the suddeness remained a mystery to relatives and friends alike until yesterday, as it was generally supposed that he had been enjoying better health than he had for a long time previous.

To Erect a Dwelling.

Plans and specifications are on file at the Building Inspector's office for a new dwelling to be erected by Frederick H. Houston, adjoining the Houston home on West Front street. The permit to build was granted this morning. The building will be two stories in height and will measure 28x 28x47.5. The plans were prepared by W. H. Olum; Theodore Gray is to have charge of the mason work, and Louis Beck will do the carpenter work. Excavation will be started immediately.

Contract proceedings in the case of Dickerson against Ruggles have been adjourned until a week from Saturday, when they will again come up in Justice Hand's court. The contract case of Sachs against Greenberg has been set for the same day at the same court.

As further consideration of the heating contract is desired, that matter was not decided, neither was that in reference to the electric lighting of the building. The bids were rejected owing to a change in the system of wiring. Bids will be advertised for under the new system.

According to the specifications the work must be done within one year of the time of signing contracts. The plans are in duplicate, one set now being with the State Board of Education for approval. As soon as this is done the contracts will be signed. The successful bidders must furnish the necessary bonds; required in this kind of work.

TELLS OF MARRIAGE ON HIS DEATHBED

Before Dying Augustus H. Sergeant Informs Parents of a Secret Wedding.

TWO YEARS A BENEDICT

NELLIE KREGAR, OF LIBERTY STREET, IS A WIDOW.

Young Man Passes Away From Lingering Disease—Son of Alexander Sergeant, of East Second Street.

Lying on his deathbed at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Sergeant, of East Second street, yesterday, Augustus H. Sergeant announced for the first time that he had been married for more than a year. To the surprised relatives gathered about him he stated that he and Miss Nellie Kregar had been made man and wife in New York and that for reasons not given they had kept the fact a secret. Within a short time after relating the circumstances he succumbed to hemorrhages, brought about by an illness from which he had long been a sufferer.

His widow is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Kregar, of Liberty street, and is widely acquainted. It was supposed that she and Mr. Sergeant were engaged and the announcement of the marriage occasioned great surprise.

The young man was in his thirty-first year and was very well known throughout the city. Until his illness began he was employed as a machinist in the Scott Press Works and he was regarded highly by his fellow workmen. He was a member of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., and at various times was connected with local social organizations. He is survived by one brother, Howard Sergeant, and two sisters, the Misses Eva and Lina Sergeant, all of this city.

Funeral services will be held from his late home tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 and interment will be made at Hillside cemetery. The members of Franklin Council will attend in a body.

FREEHOLDERS DECIDE TO DO AWAY WITH OLD WOODEN STRUCTURE.

A joint committee from the Union and Somerset county Boards of Freeholders met at Scotch Plains, yesterday afternoon, and passed an unanimous vote to replace the old wooden bridge over Green brook at Mountain avenue with a modern steel structure. It was decided also to place upon it a concrete covering instead of the usual board flooring, thus making it one of the most substantial bridges along the course of the stream. The committee will submit its decision to the respective boards at the next meeting and bids will be asked for within a short time.

The members from Union county who were in attendance were Freeholders Adams, of Cranford; Scudder, of Westfield; Pierson, of Elizabeth; Meisel, of Springfield, and Robison, of Fanwood.

GOLDSACK'S GOOD SHOOT

MAKES A 268 OUT OF A POSSIBLE 300 AT SEA GIRT.

In the regular weekly shoot of the members of Company K, at Sea Girt yesterday, Private Robert Goldsack scored a 268, which is the highest score which has been made by a Company K man, with the exception of Captain Martin, in two years. There are several different ranges from which shots are made, the highest possible score being 300. Such a record is almost impossible to make however, though Captain Martin has approached very near it. Last year the highest score made was 261.

About fourteen of the members of the local company were present at Sea Girt yesterday, among whom were those who had shots left, or who had not attended the shoot last week. Corporal Bilyeu qualified yesterday as expert with a score of 263. First Lieutenant Lewis and Private Goldsack increased their rank to that of sharp-shooter. There were several of the privates who qualified as marksmen, while Privates Darby and Lambert scored the first class.

MRS. PHILLIPS TO RESIGN

Phillips of this city, recording secretary, has signified her intention of resigning her office. Charles J. This will be the fourth annual meeting of the State society and Mrs. E. C. Grice, the president, together with the other officers, are preparing an attractive programme. It is hoped to have present Mrs. Frederick Schoff, of Philadelphia, president of the National Congress, also the honorary president and founder of the National society, Mrs. Theodore W. Birney, of Washington.

The purpose of the National Congress and of the State congresses, for there are some twenty States that have such associations, is the attainment of the best opportunities for the moral, physical and intellectual development of children.

CAPT. MARTIN OFF FOR NATIONAL SHOOT

Company K's Head Leaves With State Rifle Team for Fort Riley, Kansas.

REPRESENTING N. J.

HIS FINE WORK AT SEA GIRT THIS SEASON.

Has Come Nearest to Scoring the Highest Possible Mark—Contests in Which He Will Participate.

Captain William B. Martin, of Company K, left this morning with the State rifle team to take part in the annual National shoot at Fort Riley, Kans. He is one of twelve men who represent the State in this shoot, and the representatives are chosen from all the companies in the State. It is therefore considered a great honor to make this team, and Company K's captain is said to be the best shot on the team. The contest at Fort Kansas will last ten days.

Captain Martin has made a remarkable record for himself with the military rifle. Two years ago, he won the Wimbleton Cup at Sea Girt, and subsequently went to England, with the All-American team to compete against English riflemen at Besley. He has come nearer than any of the different company competitors at Sea Girt, this year, in making the highest possible score of 300.

Captain Martin has been greatly interested in the local company shoots at Sea Girt and his valuable instruction has done much to improve the marksmanship of the company. He has spent a great deal of time at the range lately, where he has been practicing. He has long since qualified as expert.

At the conclusion of the National shoot, Captain Martin will return to Sea Girt where he will practice for the meeting of the National Rifle Association and the New Jersey State Rifle Association. On September 10, he goes to Creedmore, N. Y., where the New York State Rifle Association meet will be held September 12-17.

Cars will leave Bound Brook from 6 in the morning until 12:45 midnight. The new schedule gives residents at Perth Amboy, Metuchen, Boynton Beach and New Brunswick a much improved service. The half hour schedule will be maintained all day, in both directions.

Runaway Boy Arrested.

Arthur Hermann, a sixteen-year-old boy who claims to have a home in Camden, was found by Roundsman Flynn, this morning, making a house-to-house canvass in the West End begging clothing. At police headquarters he said he had left his home last April and since then had been wandering all over the country. Wishing to return he found his clothing in such bad condition that he decided to replace it in this city and he had secured a pair of trousers when the officer arrested him. He will be given a hearing this afternoon.

Chimney Fire.

A small chimney fire broke out at the home of William Smith, on Watchung avenue, at about noon yesterday. The borough department was summoned by telephone, and responded quickly. It was but the work of a few minutes to distinguish the flames, which were the result of a defective flue. No damage was done as nothing but soot burned, but there might have been serious results if the flames had not been discovered when they were.

Miss Etta Raybert, of North avenue, accompanied by Miss Jessie Pruden, of East Second street, left yesterday to spend several days at Bridgeport, Conn.

He says: "I am enjoying the rest, quiet and health-giving air of this neighborhood, which is about 'jumping off' place of civilization, situated in what is called The Thumb of Michigan. The 'Villa' is on a high bluff, about 200 feet from the water's edge, and the scene is delightful. Pine trees fringe the shore and we sling out hammocks, and take our ease ad. lib, afternoons, after the daily visit to the postoffice for mail and The Daily Press, which keeps us posted on home events." Mr. Edwards will return Sept. 1.

The jury gave Yantz a verdict for $15.

LAND CO. OFFICIALS CONDEMN HAINES' ACT

Say His Attitude Toward Levering & Garrigues' People Was Unwarranted.

HAD NO AUTHORITY

DECLARE HE IS ONLY A MINORITY STOCKHOLDER IN THEIR CONCERN.

Promotor Arraigned Before Justice Yesterday, But Hearing Put Off on Account of Defective Complaint.

An official of the Levering & Garrigues' Company called at The Daily Press office today and submitted the following statement relative to the trouble between the concern and Charles F. Haines over lands located near the works at West Dunellen:

"Mr. Ramsay, of York, Pa., president of the Dunellen Heights Land Company and George E. Sherman, one of the directors of Camden, called at the office of the Levering & Garrigues' Company today and notified them that Charles F. Haines, who has been representing that he is the owner of the land of the Dunellen Heights Land Company, has been acting without any authority; that he is not the owner, nor is he connected with it in any way other than a minority stockholder; that at a special meeting of the board of directors of the land company, resolutions were passed that action would be taken if he did not desist from using such unwarranted and illegal authority and that the company would in no way be liable for the act of the said Charles F. Haines.

"Mr. Ramsay further stated that Horace Keesey, Esq., of York, Pa., had been elected attorney to the board of directors and that he and George E. Sherman have been appointed an executive committee which has full charge of the company's property."

Haines was arraigned before Justice Rogers at New Market yesterday on a charge of using threats against the Levering & Garrigues' Company but owing to a faulty complaint, the matter was laid over for thirty days. On Tuesday, August 9, Haines and a gang of men and boys which he had hired in Dunellen, appeared at the works and informed the officials that unless it vacated a strip of ground which adjoined the Dunellen Heights concern's land, he would demolish its blacksmith shop and other buildings resting on the disputed section. When his demands were ignored he started to fulfill his threats but his hired gang refused to help him and could not do it. He was then arrested on a warrant swore out by Book-Keeper Kelly of the works but was later released on his own recognizance until yesterday.

Released on Parole.

After ten months' detention at the State Reformatory at Rahway, George Gardner, of this city, was released under parole, yesterday, and brought to this city by Superintendent Moore. He was placed at work in one of the local shops and if he behaves himself the parole will be removed within a certain time. Gardner, who is but twenty-one years old, was committed to the institution as a confirmed drunkard and it is believed his incarceration has been an effective cure.

It is this bargains that attract so many to this emporium. They are numerous and embrace every department of the two big stores.

AMUSEMENTS.

Johnstown Flood is still enjoying the tremendous degree of success which it is certainly entitled to. It is today, as it has been for the past four seasons of Coney Island a huge success. It seems as though this grand and remarkable scenic-electric production would never lose its great popularity. There is no doubt that this spectacle is in as much favor with the great masses of people who visit this famous old resort of Coney today as it ever was. This is evidenced by the crowds who visit it daily. To most of these this realistic show which depicts the greatest disaster in American history has been a revelation, "the greatest show on the Island," an enthusiastic visitor called it recently in advising a friend what to see, and how to see it, and he added, "Don't miss it, or you will be sorry."

BAGGAGE CHECK WATCH FOB

PLAINFIELDER'S PATENT HAS BECOME A GENERAL FAD.

Starting with the whim of vacationists to secure a souvenir of their trip, a fad of the present summer which has already reached large proportions, bids fair to exceed all others in popularity. It is the custom of wearing a small imitation baggage check with individual inscriptions as a watch fob. The fad is of special significance to Plainfielders from the fact that the imitation check was invented by Frank A. Weeks, of West Seventh street, and the firm of A. A. Weeks, of New York, with which he is connected, is the only one in the country making them. Mr. Weeks conceived the idea by noticing several young men wearing checks secured from a railroad over which they travelled while on a pleasure trip. He immediately set to work designing inscriptions and having them made by his firm, meanwhile taking the precaution to patent his idea. Most of them were stamped with college names and numerals and the names of the presidential candidates. Up to last week the number sold was 60,000 and the demand for them is so great that the factory employes are working night and day. To make doubly sure of having no opposition, Mr. Weeks recently "cornered" the leather market in a certain sense, that is, he made arrangements for the entire output of small leather bands which are attached to the checks. It is thought that 100,000 of them will be sold before the coming campaign is over.

MOLLY BRANT BY A NECK.

Merchants and Citizens' Handicap at Saratoga.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 17.—A stretch duel between Broomstick and Molly Brant in the Merchants and Citizens' handicap, the decision going to Molly Brant by a neck, was the feature of the racing.

Canajoharie began to run when they turned into the stretch in the second race, beating out Courtmaid, the favorite, by half a length.

The third was a runaway for the Duryea stable, Princess Rupert, declared to win, and Artful both finishing under a pull.

Jack Lory was always best in the fifth, winning by six lengths. The race for place money was rather exciting, the next three finishing heads apart.

The sixth was easily Bobadil's all the way.

Ward and Wright Champions.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 17.—Ward and Wright have won the doubles tennis championship of America by a brilliant victory over Collins and Little and the default of the Doherty brothers. The new champions won through superior steadiness, splendid lobbing and good judgment in working Little. Little had to bear the brunt of the battle, and, though he did well, he could not stand the clever attack of the winners. Collins was the most brilliant of the four players.

The Cook Won at Fair Grounds.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 17.—The Cook won the feature of the fair grounds card by a length and a half from Fruit, which was two lengths ahead of Miss Powell, with the heavily played favorite Argosy fourth. DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 17. — The Highland Park Jockey club opened the summer season at Detroit with the running of the Frontier stakes of nine furlongs for three-year-olds. PALADA WAS SUNK

Russia Lost One of Her Great Protected Cruisers.

SECOND SORTIE FROM PORT ARTHUR

Japanese Shell Fire Makes Harbor Too Hot For Ships to Stay—Diana Reported to Be Safe at Vladivostok.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—Special advices from Chefu say that the Russian ships at Port Arthur made a sortie yesterday and were pursued by the Japanese.

The Japanese fleet kept off some distance from the entrance to Port Arthur, fearing danger from torpedoes in the darkness in consequence.

The Russian protected cruiser Pallada was sunk by a torpedo during the engagement on the night of Aug. 10, Admiral Togo's reported sinking of a ship of the Pallada class being confirmed.

It is reported that shells of the Japanese land batteries are falling in the harbor at Port Arthur, rendering it impossible for ships to remain there any longer.

It is also interpreted in some quarters as indicating the eve of the storming of the fortress.

The torpedo boat destroyer Burny is the only Russian destroyer sunk off Weihaiwei.

A Tokyo report says that the Russian protected cruiser Pallada was torpedoed and sunk during the naval battle of Aug. 10.

She failed to return to Port Arthur and has not been reported since Admiral Togo's fleet departed on various missions the night of Aug. 10, when the Russians retreated.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg says a naval officer has telegraphed to his family that the cruiser Diana has arrived at Vladivostok.

A dispatch from Tokyo says that the Japanese are comparing the treatment accorded to the crew of the Rurik to that accorded by the Vladivostok squadron to those on board the transport Hitachi, which the squadron sank during its first raid. A prominent official said:

"Japan has avenged the Hitachi. Admiral Kamimura rescued and succored those who aided in sinking the Hitachi and who sailed away from hundreds of drowning victims. We offer their living for our dead."

A Chefu dispatch says a striking incident of the Port Arthur naval engagement was the surrounding of the battleship Retvizan by Japanese torpedo boats, the other Russian vessels having gone to the assistance of the Cesarevitch, which was then hard pressed. The Retvizan desperately attempted to break through the line and tried to ram the cruiser which approached, but she was fairly blown out of her course by a hail of shells from the cruisers which now began participating in the fight. Every officer of the Cesarevitch was either killed or wounded.

While the Cesarevitch was making for Tsingchau funeral services were held, in many cases over heads, arms and legs. One sailor whose hand was severed by a fragment of shell became crazed by pain and the horror of blood about him. He approached the captain, held out the severed member in his remaining hand and requested that prayer be said over it.

Askold Commander Heard From.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 17.—Captain Reitzenstein, commander of the cruiser division of the Port Arthur squadron, reports that the cruiser Askold, owing to the damage which she sustained in the naval battle off Port Arthur, was obliged to enter the port of Shanghai on Aug. 14, and that her losses were one officer killed and three wounded and ten sailors killed and forty wounded.

Will Not Be Treated as Convict.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—It was stated at the bureau of immigration that its officials in charge at New York have instructions not to detain Mrs. Florence Maybrick, now on her way to America after spending years in an English prison. The New York officials have been given instructions to extend to her every courtesy due an American citizen and to facilitate her landing as far as possible. This was the decision reached here when the coming of Mrs. Maybrick was first announced, and there has been no change of view since.

People's Party Notification.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—The notification of the candidates of the People's party will take place at Cooper Union, New York, tomorrow at 8 p. m. Judge Williams will make the speech informing Mr. Watson of his notification, and Senator Allen will inform Mr. Tibbles. After the notification exercises an informal reception will be tendered the condidates at the Union Square hotel.

A Boon to Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 17.—One of the acts of grace signalizing the birth of an heir to the throne will be the total abolition of corporal punishment throughout Russia. It is reported apparently on good authority that Emperor William of Germany has asked for the privilege of acting as one of the godfathers of the heir. The christening will occur Aug. 25.

Fairbanks' Stump Programme.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 17.—Senator Charles W. Fairbanks will speak on Sept. 1 at Marion, Kan., opening the state campaign, and on Sept. 14 at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., at the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Republican party. It has not yet been determined whether he will speak in Chicago on Labor day.

Plainfield, N. J., Aug. 17, 1904.

When a newspaper is fastened to a political party it is apt to give vent to silly stuff. An instance is this nonesensical statement in yesterday's Trenton True American: "President Roosevelt, while credited with being a man of action, has never been commended for his wisdom."

The editors of The Sun and The Commoner can sympathize with each other. Mr. Bryan fiercely condemned the methods by which Judge Parker obtained the Presidential nomination. The Sun lost no time in sounding the praises of the Esopus man. Mr. Bryan is now shouting for Parker and The Sun is shouting against him.

It is very kind of the Elizabeth Evening Times to suggest James E Martine as a desirable candidate for the Democratic congressional nomination, but the "Farmer-orator" has been in politics long enough to know that the worst fate possible is to be placed in the hands of his friends. The gold-plated silver-tongued orator has announced his purpose to continue to "view with alarm" and "arraign with indignation" the policies of the Republican party, but when it comes to running for office again he begs to be counted out of the game.

The Newark Evening News's review of the situation in North Plainfield, which it likens to a Kentucky feud, reproduced in these columns yesterday, was a fairly good presentation of the facts considering the source of the editorial. It is well known that the Newark Evening News is chief among the State papers which have waged an unrelenting fight against Charles A. Reed, condemning and ridiculing everything in which he figures. When it states that the administration forces lost control of the Council last fall it is guilty of gross inaccuracy as it is when it declares that the old Council voted to have the license fees increased in order to put the new body "in a hole." Mayor Smalley and his friends controlled the Council then as now. On what assumption can it say, as it does, that the movement to raise the license fees "was chiefly a retaliatory plot and a political scheme?" Again the Newark News is wrong when it says that the political feud in North Plainfield has defeated "every municipal movement in that borough, even those that are for the public welfare and born of public necessity." The Newark News forgets the fact that Mayor Smalley recently succeeded in establishing a paid fire department and that he improved the police department to a considerable degree. Mayor Smalley has always been working for what he considers the best interests of the borough and we are quite sure that if he were the chief executive of Newark instead of North Plainfield he would have no warmer supporter than The Newark Evening News.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

A very peculiar feature of the accident which happened to Station Agent Hamley yesterday morning was that the engine was able to go on to Bound Brook without breaking down. The bolt which hit Mr. Hamley is an important part of the driving apparatus and railroad men cannot understand how the machinery was not disabled at once. Mr. Hamley is not experiencing any ill effects from his accident, although he was badly stunned at the time. All recollection of things that happened during the morning before the accident was knocked out of his mind and it was some time before he could remember anything.

People living on the borderline and in the eastern part of the town are beginning to complain seriously of the stench which arises from the Plainfield sewer bed system. Whenever the wind is in this direction the odor is almost unbearable. When the new sewage system was instituted it was thought that this objectionable feature would be entirely eliminated and for a time it was, but of late the old trouble has commenced again as badly as ever. Passengers on the trolley cars have noticed the odor and are beginning to think that the system now in use is partly a failure.

Wilson Fredrick was able to walk down town from his home yesterday for the first time. He was obliged to go very slowly but was repaid for his trouble by the surprise it caused his friends to be visited by him and not to have to do the visiting themselves. Mr. Fredrick is recovering the use of his legs much more rapidly than was at one time thought possible and hopes to get around as well as ever before much longer.

A party of young men spent Monday on a fishing trip to Perth Amboy. They returned with glowing reports of the fishing in that vicinity. Their reports were rather more glowing than their fish, though they did bring back several good weak fish. The party consisted of the following: Archibald Brakeley, Maxwell Brakeley, Walter Craig and William Coriell.

Letters received from Fred E. Touzeau, who is at present sampling ranch life at Parmer, Arizona, indicate that the young man is rapidly getting robust again and that he still continues to enjoy that sort of life. He is getting to be quite an expert horseman and will soon be a full fledged cowboy.

The sixtieth annual meeting of the Piscataway Protective Association was held on Monday at the Newtown school house. All of the old officers and committees were re-elected. This is the organization which has done such great work in the past of clearing Piscataway of burglars and rogues of all kind.

Dunellen will meet Clinton Avenue next Saturday instead of New Market. The game will take place at Clinton avenue.

The family of Dr. P. W. Brakeley left this morning for Lake Hopatcong, where they will spend some time at a camp.

Charles Coriell had several trees in his front yard cut down and the looks of his place are much improved.

Mrs. Frank Wynkoop spent yesterday on a picnic with a party of Plainfield women.

The "Annie R," Edward Badel's private car, went through town yesterday.

Mrs. Isabel Carpenter, of Bayonne, spent yesterday with Mrs. Alvah Gray.

The Giddes house on North avenue is being shingled.

James Craig spent yesterday fishing at Perth Amboy.

Russel Garretson is entertaining his cousin.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

A delegation from the Brookside Gun Club, consisting of James Johnston, Phillip Jahn, John Schmidt and Arthur Haskard, enjoyed a day's outing fishing yesterday at the Fishing Banks. No one seems to know how many fish was caught as each number of the party tell a different story about the result of the day's work.

Miss Anna Bruchman, of the Moodey School, Northfield, Mass., and Miss Lena Bruchman, of New York, have been spending several weeks with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Bruchman, of Mountain avenue.

The Orange Field Club, of Plainfield, who play here Saturday, promises to redeem the defeat the locals gave them two weeks ago Both teams are evenly matched and a good game will be witnessed by the fans.

During Miss Hannah Hayes' absence the organ at the Sunday services at the Baptist church is in charge of Mr. Allen, who has been the church cornetist for several years past.

Samuel Parsells, who has been visiting his family, who are spending the summer with Mrs. Parsell's parents at Glenside, has returned to his home in New Brunswick.

The prayer meeting held last night at the Mary Morgan Fresh Air Home, was in charge of Rev. G. M. Shott. A number from town attended the service.

Miss Mamie Merceirs, of West Fourth street, has been spending several days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Merceirs, of Grand street.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Fales, of East Sixth street, have been visiting Mrs. Fales' parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Frentz, of Westfield avenue.

A number of the lovers of fishing from town are spending the week at Camp Walpole, along the banks of the Passaic river, near Stirling.

William Jackson, formerly of the village, but now residing in Elizabeth, has been visiting friends in town.

MOB BURNS NEGROES

Murderers of Hodge Family Taken From Guard.

GEORGIA MILITIAMEN OVERPOWERED

Lynchers Then Took Convicted Men, Cato and Reid, Out of Statesboro, Ga., and Burned Them at the Stake.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 17.—In a hand to hand fight with the militia a mob of several hundred persons wrested from the military guard at the Statesboro courthouse two negroes, Reid and Cato, who had been convicted of murdering the Hodges family, took them out of town and burned them at the stake.

The militia had been stationed at the courthouse, where eleven other negroes were on trial, to protect them from the attack.

Not a shot was fired at the courthouse. The soldiers fought fiercely with fists and gunstocks. Several militiamen were seriously injured. Lieutenants McIntyre and Griner, both of Statesboro, are among the injured. Sergeant Proctor and Corporal Walker of Savannah also were hurt.

The mob carried the negroes a mile and a half from the town before burning them.

Kerosene oil and wood were used. The negroes died about a minute after the fire was started.

When the trial of the alleged murderers of Henry Hodges and his family was resumed at Statesboro, Paul Reid was found guilty of murder and was sentenced to be hanged Sept. 9.

Will Cato, who was convicted Monday, was sentenced to die at the same time. Judge Daly told the men that they did not have a chance on earth to escape the gallows.

Paul Reid confessed to the killing before being burned, saying that Will Cato helped him. He first killed Hodges, then his wife and then the children.

Colonel W. L. Grayson and the entire First regiment of the Georgia militia in companies of sixty men each have arrived from Savannah.

Inspector General O'Bear of the state troops here said that when the Savannah troops reached Statesboro he looked for serious trouble. Since the wires were cut the situation has been regarded as critical by the state officers.

Governor Terrell is out of the state, and Adjutant General Harris is in command, aided by Judge Daly, who presides over the trial court.

The European Squadron.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Admiral Jewell's European squadron will cruise in the waters of northern Europe unless he changes his plans. There was at one time, while interference with neutral ships was going on, some idea of retaining the European squadron in the neighborhood of the entrance to the Suez canal, but now that there no longer is danger of interruption of ships free from contraband it has been decided that the European squadron may safely leave the waters of the eastern Mediterranean, which not only are unpleasant, but are unhealthy at this season of the year, and proceed to the north of Europe. The squadron will arrive at Gibraltar early next week.

Great Forest Fires In Montana.

MISSOULA, Mont., Aug. 17.—Heavy forest fires are raging in the hills close around Bonita, some twenty-four miles east of Missoula. The fires started four days ago and have spread with rapidity over a vast territory, causing great damage. For the past two or three days from 75 to 100 men have been fighting the fire, but without any apparent success. The upper sawmill camp of Andrew McMullan had to be abandoned, owing to the close proximity of the fire, which came within two feet of the cook house. Thousands of railroad ties have been destroyed.

Fatal Trolley Wreck.

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 17.—One person was killed and seven were slightly injured by the overturning of a car on the Camden and Trenton trolley line at Hatch's Corner, near Delair, N. J. As the car approached the sharp curve the brake chain broke. The car jumped the track and toppled over. Conductor Robert Holloway fell underneath the car and was crushed to death. The injuries to the passengers consisted of slight bruises and cuts from flying glass.

Seven Thousand on Strike.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 17.—There was practically no change in the situation at the coal mines, where 7,000 union miners are on strike for a renewal of last year's wage scale. A prominent operator estimates that about 800 men are now working at the several mines of the furnace companies on the open shop principle. The strikers are said to be receiving $10,000 a week from the national headquarters of the United Mine Workers of America.

Meat Packing Plant Ablaze.

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 17. — The meat packing and storage plant of W. S. Forbes & Co. here was partially damaged by fire and further injured by being flooded with water. The building and stock were owned by Forbes & Co. The damage to stock and building will hardly exceed, if it equals, $20,000.

LINDEN, N. J.

14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

SIGNS OF BREEDING.

The Traits Which Show a Girl In Her True Light.

"You can dress a girl up like a lady, but if she is not to the manner born she will betray herself," quoth the wise woman.

"By big signs or by little?"

"By the little signs, strange to say. She watches out for the big ones, but somehow the little ones seem to escape her."

"Let's have a few of those signs."

"First and foremost, raising her voice when she is angry. The thoroughbred girl speaks even lower and more distinctly than usual when she is angry.

"Giggling in public conveyances and places, giggling at all, for the matter of that. A low laugh is one thing, but giggling simply doesn't belong in polite society.

"Putting her hands to her face continually. This is a positive sign of low breeding.

"Calling a member of the feminine gender a lady instead of a woman.

"Haggling over money matters with friends. Haggling at all before people.

"Crooking the little finger while eating or drinking.

"Saying 'Yes, sir,' and 'No, sir,' to a man, no matter what his position.

"Chewing gum. Possibly this is so bad it hardly needs mentioning.

"Wearing ripped gloves and shabby shoes.

"Walking on the street without gloves.

"Running after men.

"Talking about men continually.

"Talking about dress continually.

"Mentioning, unless asked, the cost of things.

"Hinting for invitations.

"Accepting favors impossible to be returned.

"Posing under false pretenses."

Late Summer Modes.

Late summer gowns are as fragile and dainty as ever and quite as lovely, and now the stores are making desperate efforts to sell the last of them before the fall things are to be shown, which will be during early September. The clever and foresighted woman will try to lay in a stock of washable materials now for next season. Ginghams, lawns and white sheer goods do not change enough to go entirely out of fashion in one season. There are now many beautiful mercerized cheviot and other standard wash goods marked down to less than one fourth of what they cost at the beginning of the season.

LITTLE FRANCE

BY

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Reuben James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

Copyright, 1901, by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

It was darker than ever. The sky was filled with light fleecy clouds drifting rapidly across the stars, their wild motion, driven as they were by some upper current of air, only accentuating the stillness on the water. Hugging the opposite shore for a time the boats floated silently down the river with the young ebb. As they appeared to be unnoticed from the camp at Cap-Rouge and as their maneuvers excited no attention, oars were broken out and the boats crossed to the Quebec side, the seamen rowing gently as they passed rapidly down the river.

Presently the boats swept around a huge headland jutting out into the stream. Below the headland lay a little cove. The current shot swiftly about the promontory and swept around the little bay. The boats were carried below the landing-place and it took some hard pulling before their stems touched the shore.

Wolfe had gone forward in the cutter, and the others drawing back to give him passage, he was the first man to set foot upon the muddy shore. It was four o'clock now. They could hear eight bells chiming faintly across the hills. Around them in the shadow it was as still as death—that most silent hour before the day breaks. A gentle breeze had sprung up and was sighing softly through the trees at the top of the cliff; the sky was overcast; they would have rain presently.

About 200 feet away, since it was low tide, the bluffs rose precipitously from the level beach. There was room at their base to disembark the whole army. After Wolfe and the officers, including Grafton, had landed, the light infantry noiselessly clambered out of the boats and advanced toward the foot of the cliffs.

A zigzag path, up which a single file of men might with difficulty make its way, broke the sheer face of the cliff. It had been barricaded with heavy timbers and was at present unscalable.

There was a momentary pause.

It seemed as if the whole enterprise, so brilliantly conceived and so successfully carried out hitherto, would be blocked by this unfortunate obstacle. They had succeeded in landing unobserved, but if they attempted to tear down the barricade they would inevitably attract the attention of the negligent defenders at the top of the path. Under such circumstances the attempt would have to be given over. As Wolfe had said, 100 men might hold that towering cliff against an army.

"I think we can scramble up the cliff by the aid of these trees," said Howe at last.

It was a bold proposition. Wolfe looked at him gratefully and approvingly. It was their only chance, and the young general gave the signal for the attempt in these not very encouraging words:

"You may try it, Col. Howe, but I do not think you will succeed. Captain," he added, turning to one of his staff, "tell Gen. Monckton to keep the rest of the men quiet in the boats for a few moments. We may have no need for them."

As he spoke Howe and his gallant 24 sprang at the cliff. They were soon lost in the shadow covering the face of it, and the watchers below could trace the course of their slow and painful ascent by the crashing sounds they made, as by the aid of stunted trees growing in clumps here and there they made their toilsome way upward. Why the French did not discover them has never been explained.

Presently the sounds died away altogether. The silence was broken by the sound of a musket-shot, followed by another and another. A quick fusillade rang out from the sky above them. They were there, then! They were engaged! What had been the issue?

Concealment was no longer possible or desirable. At a word from their commander the men on shore sprang at the barricades. The scene changed from one of absolute quiet to intense activity.

"Have they won, think you?" asked Grafton.

"We shall know in a moment," answered Wolfe. "If they have lost, somebody will come tumbling down the cliff to tell the tale. Meanwhile, I am staking all on the chance of their success."

The little cove was now filled with noise. Catching the contagion the men began to spring from the boats and fell in on the shore. The feelings of the soldiers, repressed so long through the night, found vent in cheers and cries. Presently a hail came down from the cliff. It was Howe's voice.

"We have the post!" he shouted. "The enemy has fled! The way is open!"

"Hold it at all hazards!" cried the commander.

The cheering men fairly tore the barricades to pieces and scrambled up the path, Wolfe himself in the lead. Capt. de Vergor, who commanded the French guard, was incapable and a coward. He had kept negligent watch. Howe and his handful of men had surprised them. The fall of New France must be laid at the feet of one person; and, singularly enough, the beginning of American independence may be traced to the splendid exploit of the young soldier, who, as a general long after, at Long Island, White Plains, Brandywine and Germantown did his best to stop its course.

CHAPTER XI.

ON THE ROOF OF THE WORLD.

It was ten o'clock in the morning. Every available English soldier had been landed on the Quebec side and had scrambled up the cliffs to the Plains of Abraham. The hours intervening since the first attack had not been idle ones. French batteries erected at Samos and Sillery, not far distant, and on either side of the cove, had been gallantly taken by assault, and scouting parties had cleared the adjacent country of stragglers. The sailors under Grafton by herculean endeavor had drawn two six-pounders to the crest of the plateau. Since eight o'clock in the morning these two guns, excellently served by the seamen, had been replying to a heavy fire from the three larger guns of the French, who had begun assembling as early as six o'clock on the hill beyond the English position.

From the covert afforded by the trees and underbrush on the side of the St. Charles river valley, as well as on the St. Lawrence edge, Indian and backwoods sharp-shooters had been pouring a gallant rifle fire upon the English, to which no effective reply could be made. The thin red line of soldiers that had so often stood between humanity's progress and the armed world in opposition, keeping open the pathway of the future, was drawn up in three ranks. The lines were not long enough to reach aross the plateau, and the left flank, where Townshend commanded, was refused—drawn back at a right angle from the battle front.

Col. Burton, with the light infantry, was held in reserve to anticipate a possible attack from Bougainville. That worthy officer, however, knew nothing of the landing and remained quietly in camp at Cap-Rouge, expecting the return of the British ships with the changing tide. The sky was overcast, and fitful showers, light in character and brief in duration, besprinkled the sod, soon to be wetted by a liquid substance of greater consistence and more ominous color.

If the scarlet-clad Englishmen presented a vivid though menacing picture to the French, the aspect of the latter was sufficiently picturesque to awaken the admiration of their foes. Very handsome the white coats of the French regulars looked against the green grass that morning. Alas! many of them were destined to sport the red colors of England before the day was decided.

The two armies were about equal in number. The qualities of the French regulars were as high as those of the British army, but the average of the French forces was sadly diminished by the fact that the larger portion of their army was made up of Canadian militia. These hardy peasants were excellent fighters in forest service, but poor material indeed with which to face regular troops in the open.

But Montcalm had been hasty. He might have waited longer, until Bougainville with his excellent division had joined him, or at least reached a position from which he could support the French attack by a demonstration in force in the rear of the English. Fight the French must, of course, or starve, but they would not have starved in a few hours, and a few hours might have materially changed the situation. There were battery after battery of field pieces back in Quebec which should have been dispatched to Montcalm's assistance. His repeated and most pressing requests to de Ramesay, the commander, had only brought three guns to him, and the cowardly de Vaudreuil, the governor of the province, was holding at Beauport thousands of men idle in their intrenchments, who should have been dispatched to his assistance.

How explain the Frenchman's reckless haste? The fact was that Montcalm had always beaten the English. He had never in his whole career met a single commander among them who appeared to have the slightest military genius, and he made the fatal mistake of despising his foes. Perhaps the fact that they lay there stubbornly taking the galling skirmish fire from the coverts on either flank so silently, in spite of its ghastly effectiveness, replying only to his heavier guns with their two six-pounders, gave him greater confidence; at any rate, at ten in the morning he ordered an advance.

With feverish impatience the English held themselves in restraint under the peremptory orders of their commander. As Wolfe saw the French rising on the crest of the hill, giving evidence of their intention to join battle in close encounter, he walked rapidly up and down his own line speaking those simple, hearty words of encouragement, as he passed by his soldiery, which do much to make a man a hero. A quiver of delight ran through the compact ranks. With fierce pleasure the men looked to their pieces and made themselves ready.

Suddenly the crest of the slope in front of them was tipped with flame and covered with smoke. The rattle of arms crashed over the field. Bullets rang through the morning air. Men were dropping here and there among the ranks of the stolid British; some moaned and shrieked in the anguish of shattered limb or torn body, and some lay still and quiet in the grass, recking little, minding nothing of the roar of battle about them. The French, after the first volley, began firing continuously and irregularly, still advancing.

Suddenly, when the cheering and yelling whitecoats had reached a point perhaps 100 yards away, a sharp command rang out in English. The officers repeated Wolfe's signal.

"Steady! Ready! Aim!"

Be quiet all, for now was the time! The muskets of the waiting red ranks came smartly down.

"Fire!"

The first rank delivered a volley which crashed over the plateau like cannon-shot. Their drill was magnificent. A moment of startling silence supervened and the second rank repeated the performance. Ere the echoes of the discharge had died away among the hills, the third rank sent its sheet of destruction in the face of the advancing men. The field was covered with thick smoke. The English could see nothing. For a moment no reply was made to them. Then a scattered fire, confessing weakness by its feebleness, ran along the French line. Again and again the deadly discharge of the English was poured out. The French seemed to be making no reply at all. Presently there was a slight respite and the smoke cleared away, revealing a horrid picture of carnage.

The crest of the hill was covered with bodies. Most of the horsemen were down. Montcalm and one or two officers were striving desperately to reform their men. The Canadian militia, unable to stand against such a fearful fire, had melted away. The French grenadiers, the white-coated regulars, were rallying in bewildered little knots here and there upon their officers. The French advance was completely barred. Now was the moment to strike.

"The picture?" said Wolfe to Grafton, who was standing by him. "You have it?"

"Here."

"Remember—and good-bye, old friend. Now, gentlemen," he cried, "let us go at them. Forward!"

Like a common soldier the young general, sword up, face smiling, put himself at the head of the Louisburg grenadiers. The French had at last got into some sort of order, rallying in thin, broken, and exhausted lines. Their courage was superb. They saw death in the advancing mass of the British infantry, but they did not waver. The battle was lost to them; they would strike another blow at any rate.

It was the English who cheered now, the French had passed the cheering stage. This time it was they who poured their volleys into the advancing British. The execution done among them was fearful. A bullet shattered the wrist of the general. He caught a handkerchief about it and pressed on. A second shot hit him, but still he did not falter. A third bullet struck him full in the breast; he staggered a moment and fell. With a fierce yell for revenge his army swept by him. A last volley from the French and bayonets crossed in the smoke.

DAVIS IS NOTIFIED

Vice Presidential Nominee Hears Formal News.

AT WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. VA.

Announcement Made by Chairman Williams—Senator's Speech In Reply Dealt Largely With the Labor Situation.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Aug. 17.—Henry G. Davis was formally notified that he is the Democratic nominee for vice president of the United States on the lawn in front of the White Sulphur Springs hotel here. Representative John Sharp Williams of Mississippi, chairman of the notification committee of the national Democratic convention, made the announcement to the nominee as follows:

"We have been appointed by a most notable convention as a committee to notify you of your nomination by the Democracy as their choice for vice president of the United States. We desire to express the pleasure we feel in having been selected to perform this duty and our confidence in you, your faithfulness, honesty and wisdom. The people see in you one of the best products of the best period of American institutions, a period whose salient characteristics were local self government, individuality, equal opportunity and freedom, freedom to work, freedom to buy and sell, freedom to compete in industrial life, resulting in self dependence, freedom to develop as one's own master, and not merely as the well trained and well managed industrial servant of another. They see in you what Oliver Wendell Holmes said is a rare thing, 'a self made man who is yet not proud of his maker.'

"Just before leaving home I said that I was going to West Virginia, with some others, to notify you of your nomination. One of my brother's little boys, standing by, said, 'Uncle John, he must be a mighty big goose if he hasn't heard of it already.' In a certain way the notification with which we are charged is perfunctory and unnecessary, and yet it is well to maintain by some degree of formality that respectable observance which is due to great events. The nomination by a great party to the great office to which we call you, the vice presidency, carrying with it the duty of presiding over the senate of the United States and the possibility of succession to the presidency, is a great event."

Mr. Davis, in accepting the nomination, discussed the political situation briefly. He said:

"The official notification which you bring of my nomination for the vice presidency of the United States by the national Democracy gives me a feeling of the sincerest gratitude to my party for the honor conferred. At the same time it brings to me a deep sense of my responsibility to my party as a candidate and to my country in case of my election.

"A spirit of determination to succeed in the campaign before us appears to pervade the rank and file of our party in all sections of the country. Of that rank and file I have for many years been a member and have at all times devoted my humble powers to party success, believing that success to be for the country's good. Unexpectedly called as I am now to the forefront, I am impelled to an acceptance of the obligation by a sense of gratitude to my fellow workers and the hope that I may be able the better to assist in restoring to power that party whose principles and past history guarantee a safe, wise, economical and constitutional administration of the government.

"I find it, therefore, a great pleasure, standing here upon the borderland of the two Virginias, to receive and accept the commission you bear and to send greetings through you to the Democracy of the entire country. Is it not significant of a closer and truer brotherhood among us that for the first time since the civil war a nominee on the national ticket has been taken from that section of our common country that lies south of Mason and Dixon's line—a happy recognition of the obliteration of all sectional differences which led to and followed that unhappy struggle?

"In the campaign preceding the last election much stress was laid by Republican speakers upon the prosperous condition of the country, and forebodings were heard of the ill results, especially to the laboring man, which would follow any change in the political complexion of the government. It is true that the times then were good, but it is no less a fact that, while there has been no change in the party in power, many of the evils prophesied have come under Republican rule.

"'In the language of our platform, 'The rights of labor are certainly no less vested, no less sacred and no less inalienable than the rights of capital.' The time is opportune to emphasize the truth of this utterance. The most sacred right of property is the right to possess and own oneself and the labor of one's own hands, capital itself being but stored up labor. For years I worked in the ranks as a wage earner, and I know what it is to earn my living in the sweat of my brow. I have always believed, and my convictions came from the hard school of experience, that, measured by the character of work he does and the cost of living, a man is entitled to full compensation for his services. My experience as a wage earner and my association with labor have alike taught me the value of Democratic principles, for in them the humblest has the strongest security for individual right and the highest stimulus to that independence of spirit and love of self help which produce the finest characters and form the base of the best possible government.

"Four years ago factories, mills, mines and furnaces were in active operation, unable to supply the demand, but now many are closed, and those that are open are being operated with reduced force on short hours. Then wages were high, labor was scarce, and there was work for all. Now work is scarce, many wage earners unemployed and wages reduced. The apprehension which now prevails in business circles and the present unsatisfactory industrial conditions of the country seem to demand a political change.

"The Republicans now claim great consistency in their attitude upon the currency question, and the president in his recent speech of acceptance said that they know what they mean when they speak of a stable currency, 'the same thing from year to year,' and yet in the platforms of their party in 1884, 1888 and 1892 they favored the double standard of value. In the platform of 1888 they said, 'The Republican party is in favor of the use of both gold and silver as money and condemns the policy of the Democratic administration in its efforts to demonetize silver.'

"With a candidate whose personality appeals to the good sense and sound judgment of the American people, a platform whose principles are for the greatest good to the greatest number and a reunited party earnest for the restoration of good and economical government, we should succeed and the principles of Democracy again triumph.

"I beg my countrymen as they value their liberty to guard with great care the sacred right of local self government and to watch with a jealous eye the tendency of the times to centralize power in the hands of the few.

"Mr. Chairman, it is an added pleasure to receive this notification at your hands. You have been conservative and courageous as leader of our party in the house of representatives, a position which few men have filled with the signal ability that you have displayed.

"It will be my pleasure and duty at a time not far hence to accept more formally in writing the nomination which you have extended in such graceful and complimentary terms and to give my views upon some of the important questions commanding the attention of the country."

The ceremonies took place in a natural amphitheater on the lawn under the oaks in front of White Sulphur Springs hotel. The two speeches and music by the old Stonewall Brigade band of Staunton, Va., constituted the programme.

Senator Davis was heartily congratulated on all sides at the close of the ceremony.

Perry Belmont of New York was one of the first morning arrivals, as was Senator Daniel of Virginia.

Special trains arrived before the ceremonies from Richmond, Baltimore and Charleston. A notification ball, arranged by the guests of the hotel in honor of Mr. Davis, will take place tonight.

Cretans Complain of Prince George.

ROME, Aug. 17.—Inhabitants of the island of Crete have addressed a strong petition to the Italian government asking to be freed from the government of Prince George of Greece, the high commissioner of the protective powers, whom they accuse of all manner of misrule. They ask that the island be annexed to Greece and threaten should their request not be granted to start a revolution. The petition is addressed to Italy because Cretan affairs are under the supervision of the Italian foreign minister. Prince George, it is reported, is about to start on a visit to the capitals of the protective powers.

Andree Report a Hoax.

TROMSO, Norway, Aug. 17.—The report recently circulated that a Norwegian whaler had found, north of Spitzbergen, a bottle containing a letter from Professor Andree, dated in 1898, proves to be a hoax. Professor S. A. Andree started from Spitzbergen in a balloon in 1897 with the intention of finding the north pole. Since his departure nothing definite has been heard from him, but a number of reports regarding him, which have proved to be unfounded, have been put in circulation.

He had been ill for a considerable period of time, and during the past fortnight his death had been hourly expected.

Tod Sloan Had Narrow Escape.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Tod Sloan, the jockey, and two other turfmen, Charles Dwyer and Victor Williams of New York, narrowly escaped drowning yesterday afternoon at Saratoga lake. Their sailboat was capsized by a squall, and they were rescued a mile from shore.

Odell Sprained His Ankle.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Governor Odell sprained his left ankle here at the railroad station. As he was leaving his carriage his foot slipped, and he fell. Dr. Townsend, who attended him, said he would probably be able to leave for New York city this morning.

Several local fans witnessed the double-header at the Polo Grounds yesterday between the New York and Pittsburg team.

Rutherford Daily, of West Front street, formerly of the Dunellen A. C., is now playing with the West Ends, of Somerville.

Trenton fans are bemoaning the fact that its crack team was recently defeated by the Lambertville boys. Pride takes a fall sometimes.

Manager Denman's team will meet the Aeolians at Recreation Park Saturday, when an effort will be made to even up matters with the organ grinders.

Friends of "Red" Waller met the popular Westfield pitcher after Saturday's game and presenated him with a purse of $35 as a token of esteem for his fine work.

Badgley is not having great success in pitching for the Washington team. On Saturday his nine was defeated by the Ingersolls by a score of 7 to 1. Nine hits were made off his delivery.

Some baseball cranks are unkind enough to say that O'Neill, of the St. Louis Nationals, who pitched for Plainfield against Westfield on Saturday, sold the game. They say that he and Mallen were seen with their heads together before the game. While O'Neill showed up in poor form and was easily hit, fair sportsmen do not believe the report about him for one minute.

Manager Denman, of the Westfield baseball team, says he does not propose to allow Plainfield to win another contest in the remaining four games. To a reporter for The Daily Press he referred to the superb exhibition on Saturday and spoke in the highest terms of "Red" Waller's work in the box, saying that he considered him strong enough to use in the other contests. When the manager was questioned as to the possibility of Plainfield winning the next two games and thus making the series a tie, he laughed and replied: "But Plainfield is not going to win another contest. We propose to finish up by taking every one and winning the county championship."

Albert Brown and Thomas Cody, of Bristol, Conn., who have been on a camping and fishing trip near the Passaic river with Lynus F. Walpole, of Scotch Plains, returned to this city yesterday with a fine mess of bass, pickerel, eels and catfish. The fishermen have been away since Saturday.

There they expect to meet Munroe Long and Harold C. Fenno, who are cruising in the sixteen foot bat-boat "Topsy." From Palm Beach the party will proceed to Perth Amboy, where they will leave the boat for the winter and return to this city.

Out from a great array of aspirants for Congress this fall is picked S. N. Williams, of Roselle, as the most probable Democratic candidate and the strongest man who could be selected to run for the office in this county. The Democrats in the other counties in this district are inclined to believe that they should have the nomination for the office on that ticket. The fact that Fowler and Williams are both Union county men is their grounds for this argument. They want a candidate from their counties. But here in Union county it is generally believed that Williams is the best man that could be selected, unless it be James E. Martine, of Plainfield.—Elizabeth Times.

Robinson's Hearing Tomorrow.

William Robinson, the former member of the city police force arrested yesterday by Patrolman McCarthy after he had been badly beaten with the officer's club, has retained William G. Much amusement was caused at the First National Bank this morning on Judge Hand presenting a check made out to "Fighting Justice" Hezekiah Hand. Smoke as Preventive of Frost.

M. Bignon has recently addressed to the French National Society of Agriculture a note giving interesting information on the efficacy of artificial clouds in preventing late frosts. For many years he has successfully practiced this. His vineyard thus protected covers about 15 acres and is divided into five parts, separated from east to west by walks 12 to 15 feet wide and circled by an avenue of equal width. These walks facilitate the placing of the fires, which are built in a small basin sunk into the earth and filled with 15 or 20 pounds of resinous matter and some pieces of pine and other vegetable debris. The basins are some 50 feet apart.—Science.

When Gas Was Sold in Bladders.

The death occurred recently at Blackburn of Mr. John Lund, the oldest magistrate, an ex-mayor of the borough and for over 50 years a leading member of the conservative party. The deceased gentleman, who was 80 years of age, claimed that his father was the first cotton manufacturer in Lancashire to illuminate his mills with coal gas, which was brought in large bladders from Manchester years before the local gas works was established in 1819.—London Telegraph.

DIED ON G. A. R. PARADE.

Colonel John P. Pryon Succumbed to Exhaustion at Boston.

BOSTON, Aug. 17.—If anything were needed to prove that the Grand Army of the Republic is still in fact a mighty host, it was to be found when, with half a million civilians looking on, 26,000 survivors of the Union forces of the civil war assembled here from all sections of the United States marched through the streets of Boston. Five and a half hours were required for the parade to pass a given point, and it was a severe strain on the old soldiers—one of the hardest battles ever they had entered to stand and walk on the hot crowded streets—but generally they bore the hardship as true heroes. More than three score of them dropped from the ranks from exhaustion and heat prostration and were tenderly cared for at the field and civic hospitals.

The death of one soldier marred an otherwise happy day. Colonel John P. Pryon, a member of John A. Dix Post No. 135 of New York, died from heart failure induced by exhaustion. At least 250 spectators, mostly women, fainted during the parade, and many persons were slightly injured and had dresses torn in the crush of the crowds.

PRESIDENT'S LETTER.

Written Acceptance Under Discussion by Cabinet.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—The principal feature of the cabinet meeting was a thorough discussion of the letter of acceptance of the Republican nomination by the president. This letter has been in course of construction for the past three weeks and has been submitted individually to members of the cabinet for their criticism and judgment and suggestion.

The document, which is supposed to be nearly complete, was read carefully with the view to eliciting suggestions from certain of the members who had not yet had an opportunity to read it. It is said to be about the same length as the speech with which President Roosevelt received the notification committee at Oyster Bay, and it is expected that it will be ready for publication in about two weeks' time.

FIGHTING THE HERERO.

German Troops Win Victory In South Africa.

BERLIN, Aug. 17.—Four columns of German troops attacked the Hereros near Hamakari, German Southwest Africa, on the night of Aug. 11. The fighting continued all day Aug. 12. The natives were defeated with heavy losses.

Five German officers, including Count von Arnim, and nineteen men were killed.

Thousands of cattle were captured.

General von Trotha, dispatching the particulars of the battle from Hamakari, adds that his soldiers fought with the greatest bravery.

In a skirmish preceding the battle a patrol commanded by Lieutenant Baron von Bodenhausen was surprised, and the lieutenant and eight men were killed.

Brigadier-General William E. Crescent Company, No. 13, of this city, which has a membership of fifty has been especially urged to compete for the prizes that are offered and being so near the scene of the meet it is probably that at least one of them will come to Plainfield. Adjutant Charles McGinley, of Crescent Company, has been appointed a member of the mounted executive staff.

General Hitchcock's orders are as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. Wall will continue to make their home in Westfield where the former is a valued employe of the Union County Standard.

GEO. W. ROCKFELLOW BORNE TO HIS GRAVE

Virtues of One of Plainfield's Former Mayors, Are Extolled in Funeral Address.

AT BOUND BROOK

THREE MINISTERS OFFICIATE AT THE OBSEQUIES.

Beautiful Floral Tributes—Music a Feature of the Services—Burial Took Place Yesterday.

In the Presbyterian church at Bound Brook, yesterday afternoon, funeral services were held over the body of George W. Rockfellow, twice Plainfield's mayor. Attending them were relatives and friends from this city and many other places where he had been known and respected before going to Cardinal, Va., to recover the health that his indefatigable life had shattered.

Prayer by Rev. J. B. Cleaver marked the opening and following a solo, "Jesus, My Saviour" by Elmer E. Runyon, of this city, Rev. H. B. McCauley, of Trenton, former pastor of the church, read Scripture selections.

Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, of this city, who had been in contact with Mr. Rockfellow for many years while both were working in the interests of the Congregational church, the one as pastor and the other as a man following his religious beliefs, arose to deliver the funeral address. He was visibly affected and at times it was hardly possible for him to proceed. He came, he said, not as a clergyman but as a personal friend for friendship's sake; not to make a few formal remarks but to speak of the sterling worth of the man he had known for twenty years, as a church officer; whom he and others loved for what he did and which be aptly described by quoting, "He that hath friends should show himself friendly." At times Mr. Goodrich referred to the generosity of the departed, his constant desire to be doing something for others and the impulses which kept him at work in business and official capacities when he should have been resting. Plainfield had profited by what he had done and the clergyman warmly commended the action of the city officials in lowering the municipal flag at half mast in his honor. Mr. Goodrich came from Maine where he is spending his vacation in order to be the one who could speak just such words as these direct from the heart.

Included in the large display of floral tributes was a beautiful cross, surmounted by a white dove, the whole presented by the members of the Congregational church. There were others from individuals and relatives. A second selection by Mr. Runyon, "I do Not Ask, O Lord, That Life May be a Pleasant Road," brought the services to a close and the body was lowered to its last resting place in the Presbyterian cemetery opposite the church.

Cancel Saturday's Game.

The Cuban X Giants, who were scheduled to play with Plainfield A. C. on Crescent Oval, Saturday, cancelled the game yesterday and arrangements are now being made to secure even a stronger team for that day. No special reason is given why the game was cancelled and Manager Johnston is at a loss to know what caused the action. The change coming early in the week gives Mr. Johnston an opportunity to get another aggregation.

Howard George, of Craig place, left this morning to spend several days with friends in Modnouth county, Pa.

PLAINFIELDER'S TRIP ACROSS SOUTH AMERICA

Perilous Journey Undertaken by Walter B. Rittenhouse Just Completed.

TOTAL OF 15,000 MILES

PLUNGED INTO TERRITORY WHERE WHITE MEN ARE SELDOM SEEN.

By Foot Over the Andes and in Canoes Down Big Rivers—Fought His Way With Single Companion.

Merely for the sake of the novelty and the various experiences he would encounter, Walter B. Rittenhouse, of Sandford avenue, began last December what proved to be one of the most perilous trips ever taken by a white man of his years and which ended last Monday after he had travelled a distance of 15,000 miles. Over the towering Andes mountains, where a single misstep at times meant a sheer drop of 3,000 feet, through matted jungles infested with wild beasts and down wide and deep rivers swarming with crocodiles, he continued indomnitably on across the South American continent with only a young English sailor to keep him company until he had gone from coast to coast. But few Americans have ever undertaken the same feat and the twenty white men the natives know of having started, but seven reached their destination, the others losing their lives in the attempt.

To Mr. Rittenhouse the journey was a source of pleasure despite its "rough" features as it only added another to several long trips he has undertaken. He decided upon it after very little consideration and the details were worked out by himself. Frequently obstacles presented themselves which would have made others less determined give up in despair but which only served to spur him on and eventually crown his effort with success.

The journey really began in Seattle, Wash., December 1 last, when he shipped aboard the full rigged German vessel "Chile." She proceeded to Vancouver, B. C., and after taking on a cargo of lumber set sail for Callao, Peru. In order to get the benefit of the variable winds known best to seamen, she was forced to go far below her destination into Australian waters and then come back, a total distance of 7,000 miles, requiring seventy days. On board the vessel was a young sailor named Charles Bagg and hearing the Plainfielder speak of the possibilities of a South American overland trip he became greatly interested and finally it was definitely decided upon.

When Callao was reached they provided themselves with outfits and as many small trinkets, looking glasses and gaudy handkerchiefs as they could conveniently carry, intending to barter them for supplies enroute, and proceeded by railroad to Oroyo, a distance of 125 miles. Leaving it they took to the foothills of the Andes mountains and with only rough maps to guide them, set about getting over them. At times they were 18,000 feet above the level of the sea, in air so rare that the slightest exertion meant exhaustion and amid rocky scenery grand beyond description. Three "divides" or ranges were before them but all were passed and they descended into low lands where progress was even more difficult. At one point they encountered a lake of yellow mud through which they had to wade a distance of 150 miles, securing rest on hummocks. Indians were met with regularly and now and then an English speaking person, but on every hand they were welcomed gladly and given whatever assistance they needed.

Both young men were nearly exhausted when the Pitchis river was reached but at that point Indians provided them with a small canoe and progress was much easier. Later on they secured a raft, then an Englishman at the head of an Indian tribe offered them transportation in one of a fleet of canoes carrying rubber to the trading points and they gladly accepted. This brought them to a rubber company's purchasing launch and boarding it they soon found themselves at the commencement of the Amazon river and then at Iquitos, an important city. Lying at one of its wharves was the steamer "Boliver" and her captain allowed them to work their way on it down to Para a distance of 2,000 miles. Para is at the mouth of the Amazon and there they

KENNETH ROBBIE IS NOW A BENEDICT

Boys' Secretary of Local Y. M. C. A. Takes Miss Florence M. Hughes as His Bride.

WEDDING AT WALTHAM

CLERGYMAN WHO MARRIED BRIDE'S PARENTS, PERFORMS CEREMONY.

Guests From Many Places—Bride Beautifully Gowned.—To Reside Here—Now on Honeymoon.

Miss Florence M. Hughes, of Waltham, Mass., and Kenneth Robbie, the boy's secretary of the Y. M. C. A., of this city, were married last night at the home of the bride. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. E. E. Strong, of Auburndale, who officiated at the wedding of the bride's parents twenty-six years ago. The bride was attended by Miss Carol Blaisdell as flower girl. There was no maid of-honor or best man. Master Nelson Burgess, a cousin of the bride, acted as ring-bearer. The ushers were John Burgess and William B. Hughes and Eliot B. Hughes.

The bridal party entered the parlors while Lohengrin's wedding march was being played. During the ceremony, strains of a selection was rendered softly on the organ. At the conclusion of the wedding Mendelssohn's march was given. Richard Law, of Waltham, was the organist.

The parlors of the house were beautifully decorated for the occasion in asparagus fern, Lawson pinks, palms and potted plants, the color scheme being green and white. The couple were married beneath a floral arch of green and white.

Miss Hughes was gowned in white crepe de chine over white chiffon taffeta, with point de venice trimming. She carried bride roses. The flower girl carried a basket of liberty roses. There were many beautiful gifts, including presents of cut-glass, silver, china, table linen and furniture. Mr. Robbie was remembered by his friends in the Y. M. C. A., and gifts were sent by the members of Camp Caboone, and other organizations which Mr. Robbie has been interested in.

Mr. Robbie came to this city about three years ago, during which time he has acted in the capacity of boys' secretary of the Y. M. C. A. In the execution of this office he has made many friends, and has done much for the boys' department of the association. Mr. Robbie met Miss Hughes in this city when she was teaching in the Irving School. Miss Hughes taught in the Irving School for two years.

The couple will spend several weeks in Norwich, Mass., and will subsequently visit Mr. Robbie's parents at New Haven. While in New Haven the newly married couple will be tendered a reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Robbie will return to Plainfield about September 15, and will make their home at Madison avenue and Sixth street.

The attendants at the wedding included guests from Chicago, Trenton, Philadelphia, New Haven, Worchester, Wellesley, Somerville, Boston, Newtonville, Auburndale and Waltham.

To Reconsider Bids.

The Board of Education will probably meet within a week's time to reconsider the bids for the electric lighting and heating of the new High School building.

Robinson's Case Adjourned.

By consent of Judge Runyon, the trial of William Robinson in the city court this morning was put over until Monday.

ALVAH A. CLARK SOMERSET'S CHOICE

Delegates to Gubernatorial Convention May Present His Name for High Office.

DELEGATE ALLOTMENT

COUNTY CHAIRMAN SHURTZ ISSUES CUSTOMARY NOTICE.

To Choose Delegates for Gubernatorial, Congressional and County Conventions—Political Drift.

Notice to the township clerks of the apportionment of delegates for the several Democratic conventions has been given by Jacob Shurts, as chairman of the Somerset county Democratic executive committee, and in a short time Walter Linbarger and David J. Carney, county committee of North Plainfield, will fix the time and places for the holding of the district elections of the party in North Plainfield. The gubernatorial convention will be held in Trenton on Sept. 15 and to this North Plainfield borough and North Plainfield township are each entitled to one delegate, the entire county being alloted eighteen delegates under the new primary law.

According to trend of feeling in Somerset county at present it is quite likely that former Congressman Alvah A. Clark, of Somerville, will be boomed by the delegates from that county for the gubernatorial nomination and it is not improbable that his name will be presented to the convention as Somerset's favorite son. For many years Mr. Clark has been recognized as the leader of Somerset county and his counsel has invariably been sought by the party workers. If he consents to his name being presented there is no question but that the county's delegates will unite upon him. The local leaders are non-committal on the subject, but Mr. Clark is very popular among the workers in North Plainfield as he is throughout the county.

No time or place has been set for the congressional convention, but it is apt to be held at Trenton sometime next month. There appears to be a death of candidates in the minority party for the honor of a nomination. North Plainfield borough will be entitled to three delegates to this convention while the township will have two. The total number for Somerset county is thirty-five.

The county convention in Somerset will be held sometime in October. Candidates will be named for the office of assemblyman and sheriff. The list of those in the field for the latter nomination has already been published in these columns. North Plainfield will have three and North Plainfield township two delegates at this convention.

FRACTURED HIS COLLARBONE

AUGUSTUS SEIDERS WAS HURT BY A FALL FROM A TREE.

By grasping a limb of the tree from which he was falling, Augustus Seiders, a lineman in the employ of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Co., probably saved himself from instant death on West Fourth street yesterday noon. Though the hold on the branch did not stop his fall by seizing it Seiders, who was falling head downward, was turned completely around and landed almost on his feet. The force of the twenty-five foot fall was so great that he landed heavily on his side, fracturing his collar bone and breaking the little finger of his left hand, besides sustaining bruises on his head and left arm.

The accident happened at about noon time, when Seiders, together with several other linemen, was busied in making connections for the fire department tapper at George Feiring's West Fourth street home. Seiders was standing in the tree, sawing off a limb above his head, when in changing his position, his foot slipped and he fell twenty-five feet to the sidewalk. Despite the fact that Seiders suffered considerable pain, he refused to be taken to the hospital, but after having his injuries attended to went to his home on Arlington avenue.

Seiders is a sergeant in Co. K and was entered in the trophy shooting at Sea Girt. Fortunately he visited the ranges last week with the company, and had finished his rifle practice. It will be some days before he will be able to resume his duties with the telephone company.

MAYOR N. B. SMALLEY APPEALS FOR CONCERTS

No More Open Air Band Performances Unless Funds Are Forthcoming.

MONEY NEEDED NOW

MUNICIPAL BASEBALL GAME AS A BENEFIT.

The Programme for Tomorrow Night Includes George Offerman and William Corcoran as Soloists.

Through a lack of contributed funds, there is every possibility that the series of band concerts given weekly in Concert Park by LaVere's band through the present summer, will have to be ended. The one tomorrow evening may be the last of the season. The money on hand at the commencement of summer given by local citizens and the proceeds from the sale of seats in the grandstands, has practically been spent and there is only enough for one more concert.

Owing to the popularity which they have attained, Mayor N. B. Smalley has personally interested himself in the matter and he urges that all who can in any way make a contribution to the fund to do so at once. Providing tomorrow evening is clear $40 may be realized from the seats and it will require only $30 more to have another concert added to the series. It is the borough executive's wish to have one each Friday night until the end of September at least and $150 will be sufficient for the purpose. As an inducement he has promised the proceeds from the coming municipal baseball game to be played on Sept. 7 or 8 will be added to the fund. Leader LaVere has several of the very best professional singers engaged for solo work and it would be doubly unfortunate to have to abandon the musical performances at this time. Those desiring to make contributions may send them either to M. C. VanArsdale, of East Front street, or to The Daily Press office.

A splendid programme has been arranged for tomorrow night and for the first time in several years, Mr. LaVee will contribute a cornet, solo, "The Holy City," by request. BIG PLANT TO LOCATE HERE

THE AMERICAN ADDING AND ACCOUNTING CO. LIKELY TO CHOOSE A SITE.

Plainfield is likely to have another big manufacturing plant if the efforts of some of its progressive citizens are successful and employment will be given several hundred skilled mechanics provided the concern locates here. The American Adding and Accounting Machine Company, of which Nelson A. Miller, of North Plainfield, is president, is looking for a site and no pains are being spared by local citizens to have the concern locate in Plainfield.

Mr. Miller and other representatives of the company are impressed with the conveniences and desirability of Plainfield as a home for the plant and it is not improbable that it will be decided to build here. Already a number of citizens have subscribed for stock and before a fortnight it is expected that a big block of it will be taken by Plainfielders looking for a good investment.

The machine and its wonderful mechanism was described in these columns about two months ago when the officers were considering locating in Detroit, Mich.

Shriners at Coney.

Thousands of Shriners visited Coney Island last night, and an enjoyable time was spent by them at Luna Park and Dreamland. Among the many Plainfielders were E. S. Westcott, Judge William N. Runyon, H. W. Stover, William Sebring, A. D. Findlay, George Stevens, Alfred Prudhon, Fred Nelson, Judd Stewart, John Cose and R. A. Osmun.

Letter-carriers James R. Bailey and Wm. Demarest have resumed their duties at the postoffice after a ten days' vacation.

Letter-carrier Robt. Loughlin, of Elm place, left this morning with his family to spend his ten days' vacation at Watervliet, N. Y.

INTERIOR PLANS FOR SCHOOL BUILDING

Details of Arrangements for the Handsome New High School Structure.

HEATING AND LIGHTING

LEGAL ENTANGLEMENT OVER BOARD OF EDUCATION'S ACTION?

Amount for Erection and Furnishing of Building is $107,000—933 Electric Lights.

Although the extensive plans for the new Plainfield High School have been given in The Daily Press in detail before, there are some special features which will tend to give one an idea of the improvements proposed.

In the entire building there are to be 933 electric lights, or about twenty-seven in each class room, besides those in the halls, reception and visiting rooms, gymnasium and other places. Herbert D. Hale, the successful architect, who drafted the original plans, was obliged to modify them to permit of their coming within the appropriation made by the city, which was $125,000. This necessitated the use of cheaper materials in some instances and the cutting out of several things proposed. The land upon which the building will stand cost $12,000, the architect's fees are $6,000, leaving about $107,000 for the erection and furnishing of the building. The school will be one of the finest in the country and is intended to meet the city's requirements for many years to come.

In the matter of heating the building, what is known as the Woodbridge system is being considered. This was invented by Prof. S. Homer Woodbridge, of the Boston School of Technology. It provides for the use of steam, instead of hot water. The hot water system is also being considered, but it is believed that a majority favor the Woodbridge system. There has been some adverse criticism because the Board has limited the estimates to only two kinds of heating, it being considered an open question that there are other systems equally as good and entitled to consideration as to merits.

Another question has been raised by those interested. The State law provides that the floor plans must show the arrangement of each desk in the class-rooms, and it is claimed that the plans do not show this. Another provision of the State law is that the light going into the class rooms must cover 20 per cent. of the floor space. There seems to be some doubt as to whether this is provided for.

While there is no desire on the part of any one to delay the building of the much-needed school, a question was raised yesterday as to whether the Board of Education should award contracts for the construction before the plans are approved by the State Board of Education, one of the provisions of the new law. It distinctly states that no contracts shall be made for the building of a school until plans are approved by the State Board.

The Board of Education has not yet received the approval of the State officials, and while there does not seem to be any doubt but what this will be done, in case the approval is not given it would necessitate advertising for bids again and additional work.

However, the local Board has not yet signed the contracts, and this will not be done until the State Board's approval is received. For some reason the word from Trenton has been delayed. It is expected any day.

Thought He Was a Cop.

Imagining that he was a sheriff or some police official, William Sutton created consternation on East Front street, yesterday afternoon, by dropping into stores and ordering everybody in sight to appear in court. He continued his actions until a crowd of 200 persons was following him about and Patrolman McKeon took him in custody. Sutton attributed his actions to drink when arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning and after promising to leave it alone and also remain away from the "Tumbler" gang, the Cads suspended sentence.

Backache is really kidney ache.
To cure the back you must cure the kidneys.
If you don't other kidney ills follow—
Diabetes, Bright's disease.
A Plainfield citizen tells you how—the cure is easy.

Mrs. Valentine Utzinger, of 75 Grandview avenue, says: "I suffered from kidney complaint for six years. I doctored and used various kinds of medicine with little or no result. I had almost a constant sharp darting pain across my back and if I ever exerted myself or took cold I suffred severely. I always felt it most when the weather was damp. While in this condition I saw Doan's Kidney Pills recommended and my son bought me a box from L. W. Randolph's drug store. I started to use them at once, following directions closely. They helped the pain in my back, and relieved the other difficulty. I give all the credit for this relief to Doan's Kidney Pills for they are beyond a doubt a wonderful medicine for kidney trouble."

TROLLEY HIT TRAIN

Western Express Wrecks Chicago Race Track Cars.

FOUR DEAD, TWENTY-FOUR HURT

Brakes Failed to Work—Motor Car Torn to Splinters and Trailer Was Dragged For a Hundred Feet. Motorman Stuck to His Post.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—Four people were killed, another fatally hurt and twenty-three severely injured in a collision late yesterday afternoon between an express train on the Chicago Great Western railroad and a train of three trolley cars bound for the Hawthorne race track.

The dead are: Mrs. Frances Rautman, William Irving, died in hospital after amputation of leg; Mrs. Jeremiah Shuckrow, Danville, Ill.; unidentified woman, about thirty years of age.

Fatally injured: Michael Ryan, motorman of trolley car, skull fractured.

The accident occurred at the crossing of Forty-eighth avenue and the Chicago Great Western tracks. The train was coming into the city and, according to some witnesses of the accident, was running at a high rate of speed. Others and the train crew declare that it was not going over twenty miles an hour. The trolley train, which was made up of a motor car and two trailers, in charge of Conductor W. H. Condon and Motorman Michael Ryan, approached the crossing at a rapid rate just as the train came around a sharp curve to the west of the crossing.

Ryan put on the brakes with all his strength in the effort to stop his car, but the brakes refused to work, and with undiminished speed the motor car ran upon the tracks at the same time that the locomotive came up. The car struck the train just between the engine and the tender.

The motor car was torn to splinters, and the car immediately behind it was knocked over, smashed nearly to pieces and dragged along the track for 100 feet. The third car was not dragged from the tracks, and but for the fact that the couplings between it and the second trailer broke the list of injured would probably be much larger, as all of the cars were filled with passengers.

The motorman remained at his post to the last and was fatally hurt, his skull being fractured. To people who came to aid him while he lay on the ground he said:

"The brakes would not work. That was what caused it. When I saw that they would not work I reversed the current. Now get aside and be quiet, and I will be all right."

DEMAND SURRENDER

Mikado Calls on Russian Commander For Port Arthur.

JAPANESE WOULD SAVE INHABITANTS

Outposts of Besiegers Closing on Czar's Fortress—Ultimatum Sent to China—Novik Sighted Making For Vladivostok.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—Special advices from Tokyo say that the mikado's demand for the surrender of the town and fortifications of Port Arthur has been delivered to the Russian commander, General Stoessel.

Major Yamaska, chief of staff, was sent into Port Arthur with the imperial message. An answer is expected.

The Japanese commander has communicated to the commandant at Port Arthur the wish of the Japanese emperor that all noncombatants leave the town in case the demand for surrender is not complied with, in order that they may not suffer in the final assault.

The Japanese line has been drawn still closer around beleagured Port Arthur. The right wing of the Japanese line has penetrated to the vicinity of Pigeon bay, while the center has moved forward from Palingching, which is south of Shushiyen and two miles north of the town.

Passengers on board the steamer Decima, which anchored off Port Arthur last night, witnessed the bombardment from Pigeon bay. The Japanese shells were visible during their whole course. They circled comet-like to the town, and their explosions were marked by great splashes of fire which shot up into the sky. The bombardment from this and other points began at midnight and lasted until morning. The Russians did not reply to the Japanese fire.

Major Seaman, formerly a surgeon in the American army, was a passenger on the Decima. He says the spectacle was most brilliant and awe inspiring. The Decima weighed anchor from Port Arthur at 5 o'clock in the morning. At some distance out she saw five Japanese warships guarding the harbor.

A St. Petersburg report says that the cruiser Novik of the Port Arthur squadron has been sighted off Cape Alsonmosaki, on the southeast coast of Japan, by the American steamer Overton. The Novik was apparently making for Vladivostok.

It has been learned that Japan has made a demand on China, practically in the nature of an ultimatum, that she immediately enforce her neutrality in the case of the protected cruiser Askold and the torpedo boat destroyer Grosnovoi, now at Shanghai. Japan has pointed out that the time limit, twenty-four hours, permitted by international law, has expired and that Japan therefore is at liberty to take such action as may seem to her expedient.

With regard to the Ryeshitelni, Japan is determined not to comply with the Chinese demand, submitted in compliance with the Russian note, that the vessel be returned to Chefu. Japan insists that to all intents and purposes Chefu has been a Russian base during the war. Chinese junks in the pay of Russia having been fitted out there and sent through the Japanese blockading vessels to Port Arthur.

A dispatch from Vladivostok says the cruisers Rossia and Gromoboi of the Vladivostok squadron have reached that port.

A dispatch from Liaoyang says that a general Japanese flanking movement is developing to the east and parallel with the railway. The movement involves the whole mass of troops from Dalin pass to Diodinshan, on the Tiatse river, thirty-five miles southeast of Mukden. It is evident that these troops have combined with the object of forcing the Russians out of Liaoyang without a fight and thus securing advantageous winter quarters. It is not thought the Japanese have enough men to consummate the movement until the release of a large number of the troops now besieging Port Arthur.

Cruiser Looking For a Prize.

GIBRALTAR, Aug. 18.—The Orient line steamer Oroya reports that on the evening of Aug. 16, when sixty miles east of Cape St. Vincent, she met a Russian cruiser, which steamed around her and then departed to the westward.

Senator Hoar Dying.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 18.—Senator George Frisbie Hoar is dying. While no material change is expected during the night, no hope is held out beyond twenty-four hours. His physicians and also his son, General Rockwood Hoar, said that the venerable senator would not live perhaps more than three days. Senator Hoar's illness began several weeks ago with lumbago, and lately he suffered a relapse.

Secretary Hay's First Grandson.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Secretary Hay has a grandson. He received a telegram today announcing the birth of a son to Mrs. Payne Whitney at Ellsworth, Me., where Mrs. Whitney is staying with her mother, Mrs. Hay. Mrs. Whitney's first child was a girl, and Secretary Hay's other daughter, Mrs. Wadsworth, also is the mother of a girl, but this is his first grandson.

THE SENECA STAKE.

Divination Won In Close Race at Saratoga.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 18.—The Seneca stake race was won by Andrew Miller's Divination in a head and head finish with Good Cheer and Liberia, the latter the favorite. Divination led practically all the way, but had nothing to spare at the finish. Good Cheer outran Liberia and got second money by a head.

Caughnawaga, the favorite, and Gray Friar had it out through the stretch in the fifth event, the former outstaying and winning by a length.

Collector Jessup found the first field of the day an easy one and won by two lengths, while Shotgun, the favorite, was third.

Only three out of eight finished in the steeplechase. Striden and Trek were about equal choices in the betting. Dromedary looked to have a good chance, but he fell over the last jump.

Tramotor, favorite in the third race, was badly defeated, Escutcheon beating the barrier and leading all the way.

Aeronaut made a runaway of the sixth, winning by two lengths. Golden Sunrise was favorite.

Sybarita Led the Fleet.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 18.—A fifteen knot southwester brought the yachts of the New York Yacht club fleet back into Newport harbor from Vineyard Haven last night, successfully closing the five formal runs of the fifty-ninth annual club cruise of something over 200 miles along the southern New England shore. For the third time during the cruise W. Gould Brokaw's British yawl Sybarita led the fleet into port, being 11 minutes 12 seconds ahead of the sloop Yankee.

Grand Circuit at Brighton.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Ideal racing weather marked the third day of the grand circuit meeting at Brighton Beach. The 2:25 pace for three-year-olds for $2,000 proved rather a tame affair. Dorcas H. won with plenty to spare, her best time being 2 minutes 11¼ seconds. Single K. was a very lucky horse in the 2:12 trot, a dash of a mile and one-eighth. Single K. had the speed of the party, and he won by two lengths from Norman B., with Lady Gail Hamilton a close third.

Bas d'Or at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 18.—Bas d'Or, giving weight to every horse in the race and held at 3 to 1 in the betting, won the feature of a good fair grounds card. Just So led on sufferance to the stretch turn, where Bas d'Or moved into first place, followed closely by Jack Young. This pair fought it out through the stretch, Bas d'Or reaching the wire first by a head. The time, 1:53, is one-quarter of a second slower than the track record for the distance.

Honors Went to Heer of Kansas.

BUFFALO, Aug. 18.—The amateurs and the merchants' agents were early at the traps for the forty-sixth annual shoot of the New York State Association For the Protection of Fish and Game. The honors of the day among the professionals were captured by William H. Heer of Concordia, Kan., with his string of 154 targets out of a possible 160, which gave him an average of 19 2-8 for the eight events in which he took part.

ducted from there. Mr. Cornwall, the Democratic candidate for governor, will open his campaign in Williamson Aug. 31.

Many of the state leaders will remain at White Sulphur Springs today to confer with Senator Davis, the vice presidential nominee.

The absence of National Chairman Taggart, who was unable to attend the notification, as well as of nearly all representatives of the national committee has rendered impractical the formation here of any plans touching the national campaign.

REVOLT IN PARAGUAY.

Rebel Army May Soon Enter the Capital.

BUENOS AYRES, Aug. 18.—Refugees from Asuncion, the capital of Paraguay, declare that the conditions there are insupportable. All business has been suspended, the streets are deserted, and only the patrols are visible.

The refugees say that the revolution is spreading, and it is believed that the government will not offer serious resistance to any attack on the capital.

General Ferreira, the leader of the revolution, will probably be declared president.

Cannonading has been heard near Asuncion, but there is no definite news that the capital is being bombarded.

He was a schoolmate of Braille, the inventor of the system of reading by raised letters, and when he came to America he introduced that system. In 1836 Mr. Trenchery came to Alton, where he had since resided.

He dropped his hat, which led to his arrest. Governor Cunningham has ordered an investigation of the lynching.

DIAMOND PHIL HELD

Leader of New York Builders' Strike Under Arrest.

CHARGED WITH EXTORTION OF $1,000

Said to Have Agreed to Call On Plumbers' Strike at Chatsworth Building For $2,700 Cash and Notes.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Philip Weinseimer, "Diamond Phil," as he has been jocularly called by his followers, president of the Building Trades alliance, which is fighting the Building Trades Employers' association, has been arrested on a charge of attempted extortion made by George J. Essig, a plumber of 35 Hancock place. The arrest made the biggest stir in labor circles since the first arrest of Sam Parks a year and a half ago, for, on account of the power he wielded, Weinseimer had come to be spoken of in the building trades as Sam Parks' successor. Some said that he was a bigger man than Parks.

District Attorney Jerome has taken personal charge of the case. Weinseimer has been arraigned in the Tombs police court before Magistrate Moss.

The specific complaint against Weinseimer charges him with extorting $1,000. In the affidavit Essig states that in December last he had the contract for the plumbing in the Chatsworth building, on Riverside drive, that Weinseimer called a strike and two days later said that for $2,700 he would put the plumbers back to work. Essig said he could not pay the amount in full, but agreed to pay $1,000 at the time and to give a series of notes for $250 each to make up the balance. He had taken up all the notes except one, and on the advice of the district attorney he took marked bills with which to make the payment of the last one.

When Weinseimer was arrested Essig had just signaled to the detectives that the labor leader had the marked bills in his possession. The detectives did not find the money on the prisoner, however.

As the examination began District Attorney Jerome, somewhat excited, pushed to the front and peremptorily called Robert P. Ball, one of the lawyers, to the witness stand. Ball had started to leave the courtroom.

District Attorney Jerome asked if he had received any money from any person in the courtroom. Bell replied that he had received one one dollar bill. The district attorney wanted to know if he had seen any other money pass in the courtroom, and the lawyer said he had not. He said he was willing to show all the bills he had, but the other lawyers objected to this.

"I am asking these questions," said Mr. Jerome, "because of occurrences in this courtroom. I am informed by a lawyer in good standing at the New York bar that bills were passed by this defendant to this witness."

The witness denied that he had received any money from Weinseimer. At a meeting of the Building Trades alliance after Weinseimer's arrest a vote of confidence was extended to him.

Another Blow For Russia.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Consul General Guenther at Frankfort, Germany, has supplied the state department official statistics touching the efficacy of vaccination as a preventive of hydrophobia. The substance of these is that only 1½ per cent of persons bitten by mad animals and vaccinated have died. The consul general says that the figures again show that Russia is the breeding place of hydrophobia.

Plainfield, N. J., Aug. 18, 1904.

Henry Gasseway Davis felt eighty years young yesterday.

Bill Devery and his gang, and Bob Davis and his Hudson County crowd have been invited to visit Esopus. Other statesmen will follow.

James Smith, of Newark, will meet his friends on Sept. 15 to introduce them to the Democratic candidate for governor, while John Kean, of Elizabeth, will announce to his cohorts five days later the name of the Republican candidate for the same office. Both receptions will be held in Taylor's Opera House, Trenton. The meetings will be called conventions.

Congressman William Sulzer, of New York, has sent word to Eastern Democrats from Salt Lake City that the West is for Parker. At the same time he tells the western Democrats that New Jersey, among other States, is for the Esopus man. Congressmen are pretty good jolliers and it remains to be seen whether the former Elizabeth boy is living up to that reputation.

It was a sensible move on the part of the Alis Club to change its name to the Plainfield Athletic Club. The word "Alis" meant nothing and was really the result of a typographical error in this paper when the club was organized years ago. Everywhere in this vicinity the association has been known as the "Plainfield," ever since it became a more representative body in sports here.

Newarkers Visit Queen City.

The Alpha Class Club, composed of the members of Alpha Class, of the Fifth Baptist church, Newark, came to this city last evening in a specially chartered trolley car. Seventy-six in number, and each with a tin horn or rattle, they made a noisy entrance into this city at about 10 o'clock. The entire delegation adjourned to Tier's lake house, and partook of some of the "Fourteen Varieties" of ice cream and water ice. After spending about an hour in town, they boarded their car again and departed. H. P. Campfield, and C. A. Schull, of the Sunday-school, were in charge of the party.

Surprise Party.

More than sixty friends from New Brunswick, Newark and this city attended the surprise party arranged by Miss Anne Heritz, in honor of Miss Kittie Conahee, at her home on Duer street last evening. The guests assembled on the lawn, which was beautifully illuminated by more than 150 Japanese lanterns. The evening was spent in dancing and out-door games, and refreshments were served at a late hour.

Councilman Gloak Hurt.

While beneath a press at the Scott factory, yesterday, Councilman William Gloak forgot his exact whereabouts and inadvertently raised his head upward. He struck the back of it on a sharp corner and a bad wound was inflicted. He was taken to the office of a physician and nine stitches were required to close the cut.

embarked on the "Manheuse" of the Booth line, which brought them to New York.

During the nights when they had to camp out along the route, jaguars, panthers and cougars swarmed about their tent but neither men or beasts were molested. The huge pythons so common in geography pictures were missing but they did not get into the places they were likely to be, still deadly snakes of smaller sizes were numerous. The tropical vegetation eclipsed any botanical garden they had ever seen while the brilliant plumage of thousands of birds which constantly flitted about them was like a kaleidoscope. For nourishment they ate fruits and berries, yuca, a tree root that is very edible and on several occasions when they were the guests of Indians, roasted monkey which is considered a delicacy.

Aside from the animals and other perils which they had to fear, they were constantly exposed to the deadly fevers from which no one is immune. At one stage of the journey, Bagg was taken ill and he passed through a bad spell of sickness before native remedies effected a cure. Rittenhouse escaped it entirely and when he reached home he was enjoying better health than ever and not the least bit regretful at what he had undertaken and accomplished.

SNAP SHOTS.

SIDE LIGHTS ON TIMELY TOPICS NOTED IN PASSING.

The recent falling off in the State's receipts from the sale of corporation charters is attributed to the fact that about every industry that can well be formed into a trust has already been so organized. Notwithstanding this fact there was a steady procession of new combinations up to 1902 large enough to keep the State's annual income from the source close up to the half million mark. Thus the $200,000 reduction in the annual revenue in 1903 and the loss during the current year of an additional $75,000 or $80,000 loses none of its significance as an object lesson on the apparent falling off of the trust tendency.

Every year many ephemeral schemes seek incorporation. The charter fees are not onerous, and their unsubstantial character is not shown till the heavy State tax falls upon them. The Commonwealth permits them to live along for two years without pressing for tax payments. It will be 1906 or 1907 before the staying powers of the corporations which are now taking out charters can be calculated.

By a proclamation the Governor, each year, forfeits the charters of between 800 and 900 tax delinquents. It is said that the number voided by Governor Murphy's proclamation of last January rose to 1,200 The 9,449 State chartered concerns had been assessed for a total of $3,380,439 87 taxes, but the State collected only $2,088,176; so that the proclamation wiped out fourteen per cent. of the companies holding State licenses and more than one-third of their total capitalization.

The effect on the incorporation business in Presidential years has always been manifest, yet when Roosevelt had succeeded to the Presidency, 1,273 charters were issued. That was the high water as to number. The State has $3,000,000 surplus in its treasury, and assured of an independent income from other sources, can well stand the loss of a quarter of a million in corporation charter fees.

During the festivities, the former was presented with a gold watch fob and the latter a gold-headed cane, both suitably engraved. The Pearsalls have left the Westfield newspaper field in order to devote their time to New York interests.

The decision of the bridge committee, of the Board of Freeholders, to build a new iron bridge over Green brook at the intersection of Mountain and Hunter avenues, meets with the approval of all as it is an improvement that has been needed for several years. Freeholder John Robison has agitated the improvement for some time, but the committee believed that the old land mark could be repaired and do service for a number of years yet. A careful examination of the structure has convinced them that the bridge had had its day.

DRAKE ON BUILDING BOOMS

LINCOLN'S REALTY PROMOTER HUSTLING TO LOCATE FACTORIES.

Silas D. Drake, of Lincoln, and 15 Cortlandt street, New York, where he has a handsome suite of rooms, says that he has passed through many Presidential campaigns, but he thinks the outlook for the present year is "the best ever." He says that many persons having money are paying little attention to politics and are looking for places to invest their earnings.

During the past few days Mr. Drake has received letters from prominent manufacturers in Utica, N. Y., Newport, R. I., Detroit, Mich., and other places, who are seeking for factory sites near New York. He will endeavor to locate some of them in the vicinity of Plainfield and Dewey Park. He has communicated with the Campbell Press Works with a view to leasing the concern's plant in this city to outside parties. Yesterday he escorted a party of interested outsiders to Dr. Pierce's plant at Bound Brook, there being an effort to reopen the factory.

One concern at Yonkers, N. Y., employing forty skilled workmen, is desirous of locating near this city, owing to its convenience to New York.

Today, Mr. Drake hopes to close a deal with a large New York wholesale clothing manufacturer to lease the old Schepflin building on West Front street. The concern employs about 500 men and women, manufacturing clothing of a superior grade. Mr. Drake says that he is anxious to bring industries to this vicinity and any person having a suitable building or a strip of land, should communicate with him at once.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County.

[OFFICIAL]

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, Aug. 4th, 1904, at 2:30 p. m.

Roll call showed all members present except Freeholder Westphal—1.

The minutes of the previous meeting, reading of bills being omitted, were on motion approved as read.

PETITIONS, COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

From Lloyd Thompson, clerk of the town of Westfield, as follows:

July 20, 1904.

Gentlemen: At a meeting of the council of the town of Westfield, held last Monday evening, the following resolution was passed:

Whereas, The property owners along Springfield avenue and Branch Mills road, in our town, have joined with the property owners along said road in Cranford, Mountainside and Springfield, in petitioning the Board of Freeholders of Union county to make said roads county roads, and to improve the same by macadamizing under the provisions of an act entitled, "An act to provide for the permanent improvement of public roads in this state," being chapter 97 of the laws of 1903, and

Whereas, This act provides that the total expense to municipalities through which the roads run shall not exceed ten per cent. of the cost of the road, and gives to the governing board of said municipalities the right to guarantee such payment on behalf of the municipalities to the Board of Chosen Freeholders; therefore be it

Resolved, That the council authorize this guarantee of ten per cent. of the cost of the road within the limits of the town, and the clerk be instructed to notify the Board of Freeholders of this guarantee.

In compliance with the resolution I notify you of the passage of the same.

Very truly yours,
Lloyd Thompson, Town Clerk.
(By F. S. T.)

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union.

On motion of Freeholder King received and placed on file.

From James W. Fink, county road inspector, as follows, viz.:

Westfield, N. J., Aug. 1, 1904.

To the honorable the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union county, N. J.:

Gentlemen: The undersigned would respectfully submit to your honorable body the following report of repairs on county roads for the year 1904:

On Westfield avenue, in Westfield—1,101 ft. of road repaired with 1½ inch stone, 100 square yards of block gutters laid.

On Mountain avenue 18,783 ft. of road repaired with 1½ inch stone, 4,257 ft. topdressed with fine stone, 45,208 ft. of gutters cleaned.

On Central avenue—10,354 ft. of road repaired with ½ inch stone, 24,208 ft. of gutters cleaned.

On Morris avenue—16,576 ft. of road repaired with ½ inch stone, 3,135 ft. topdressed with fine stone, 35,054 ft. of gutters cleaned.

On the Seven Bridge road—4,975 ft. of road repaired with ½ inch stone, 9,950 ft. of gutters cleaned.

On St. George's avenue—2,700 ft. of road topdressed with fine stone, 2,000 ft. of gutters cleaned on North avenue, making a total of 1,011 ft. less than ten miles of road repaired with ½ inch stone, 1¾ miles 852 ft. topdressed with fine stone, 22 miles 260 ft. of gutters cleaned; 100 sq. yards of Belgian block gutters. The total cost of this work is $16,438.07. In addition to this the action of the frost of the past winter necessitated the expenditure of $1,070.47.

I would also say that cleaning gutters means the removal of sod and earth from outside line of macadam road to gutter line. A general average of 6 ft. in width and from 4 to 6 inches in depth, which required the removal of 8,600 cubic yards of dirt.

Very respectfully submitted,
James W. Fink, Inspector.

On motion of Freeholder Robison received and placed on file.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

By committee on Seven Road bridge, in Springfield.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders, Union County, N. J.:

Freeholder Robison moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by a unanimous vote.

NEW BUSINESS.

By Freeholder Cladek:

Freeholder Krouse moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

By Freeholder Wahl:

Resolved, That the director and county clerk be and they are hereby authorized to borrow in anticipation of the payment of taxes such sums as needed, not to exceed one hundred thousand dollars.

Freeholder Robison moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was adopted, receiving 18 ayes.

Excused from voting, Director Hubbard—1, and absent, Freeholder Westphal—1.

On motion of Freeholder Adams permission was granted to Mr. Arthur Pierson, of Westfield, to address the board.

Mr. Pierson stated that he appeared to speak in favor of the road heretofore petitioned for, running from Cranford, through Westfield and Springfield, to the intersection of the cross road connecting with the county road, and known as "Turkey Lane," said road being at least two miles long.

Said road to be improved under the provisions of chapter 97 of the laws of 1903, etc.

Mr. Pierson also stated that the road now petitioned for was considerably shorter than the one originally petitioned for, and he presented petitions in favor of the same, which he said were signed by at least 75 per cent. of the property owners along the road.

The petitions were read as follows:

To the honorable Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen: We, the undersigned, being the owners of at least two-thirds of the lineal feet along the road hereinafter mentioned, to wit: That portion of Springfield avenue beginning at what is known as the second bridge in the township of Cranford, near the Edward Bedle place, and running thence to the boundary line between the township of Cranford and the town of Westfield, and thence on through the said town of Westfield from said boundary line past the intersection of said Springfield avenue with Broad street in the town of Westfield, and the residence of Mr. Daniel Fink to the Marmahiggin Brook, and thence on past Branch Mills Union Chapel to the boundary line between the town of Westfield, the borough of Mountainside and the township of Springfield, and thence on through the said town of Springfield past the residence of Enoch D. Miller, Esq., in the township of Springfield, to the intersection of the cross road connecting with the county road, and known as "Turkey Lane," said road here described being at least two miles in length—do hereby petition your honorable body to cause the said road above described to be improved by the construction of a macadamized road thereon, in accordance with the provisions of chapter 97 of the laws of 1903 of the State of New Jersey, entitled, "An act to provide for the permanent improvement of public roads in this State."

Dated June —, 1904.

John S. Woodruff, feet frontage, 782; Richards Estate, 473, F. Kienle, 347, E. D. Miller, 2,108, Susan C. Clorck, 504, H. L. Parkhurst, 538, A. M. Parkhurst, 536, Daniel G. Fink, 2,604, Ezra H. Mountainside, N. J., Aug. 3, 1904.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders, Union County, N. J.:

Gentlemen: At a meeting of the borough council, held on July 12th, 1904, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the borough council heartily endorse the proposed county road from Cranford to Springfield, as it is a very much needed improvement in this section of the county; and be it further

Resolved, That the borough of Mountainside pay one-tenth of the cost of construction of said road where it passes through said borough, and that a copy of the above be forwarded to the honorable Board of Chosen Freeholders.

Chas. W. Schoonover, Borough Clerk.

Attached to the foregoing petition was a similar petition signed by the following property owners, viz.:

Old Colony Realty Co., feet frontage, 450, Edward Beadle, 450, G. Tipping, 300, E. Blowery, 150, Andrew Beyer, 270, D. T. Pierson, 530, L. Ussing, 520, M. F. Beadle, 925, George W. After being read in full it was ordered, on motion of Freeholder Adams, that all the papers presented by Mr. Pierson be received and placed on file.

Freeholder King inquired if any word had been received from the Elizabeth city council relative to the communication from this board as to the acquiring of lands, etc., and changing of street lines on Rahway avenue for new court house purposes.

Director Hubbard replied that no word (officially) had been received from that body, although it was entirely evident through newspaper reports and other outside evidence that the project had been turned down by the said city council.

No further action was taken.

Freeholder Cladek stated that he would like some information as to the furnishing by the county of headstones for the graves of deceased veterans.

Director Hubbard replied that whenever veterans were buried at the expense of the county, headstones were also furnished for their graves.

An Ideal Location

LARGEST IN THE STATE

LINDEN, N. J.

Beautiful and Accessible

2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 21.

Topic.—Standing alone for God.—Rom. viii, 31-39.

There are various occasions in life when we stand alone. The psalmist once said, "I am as a sparrow alone upon the house top" (Ps. cii, 7). The reference is supposed to be to the blue thrush, a very solitary bird of Palestine. So we often stand alone in life. It may be alone in adversity. "When we laugh, the world laughs with us; when we weep, we weep alone." The friends of prosperity usually vanish when adversity comes, and we are left alone. Again, we may stand alone with God, as is suggested in the poem "I Stood Alone With My Conscience," conscience being God within us. Then, as the topic suggests, we stand alone for God.

Every Christian must expect at times to stand practically alone for God, or at least we should be ready and willing to do so if the occasion should arise. If faithful to God, we must expect at times to be in a very small minority. Abraham in an age of great idolatry found it necessary to stand alone for the faith—one man against his age! When Moses denounced Israel's sin of idolatry in the wilderness and called upon those who were on the Lord's side to stand forth, only one tribe stepped forward, the tribe of Levi. The majority clung to their sins. When Israel later on was overrun by the prophets of Baal, Elijah was the single public defender of the faith, and in despair he cried unto God, "Lord, they have killed Thy prophets and digged down Thine altars, and I am left alone, and they seek my life." True, there were 7,000 in Israel who had not bowed the knee to Baal, but they were keeping very quiet about it. On more than one occasion Daniel stood alone for God, and can we expect a different experience from that of these ancient saints of God? Not at all. We may be called to stand alone for God, alone for faith in God, alone for the confession of faith in God or alone for the work of God, and if called upon to perform such duties let us stand "steadfast and immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord."

"If God be for us, who can be against us?" What is human opposition, scoff or persecution if God be for us? One with God is always a majority. God has always stood with those who have stood for Him and they have won. Abraham won against the world. Moses, Elijah, Paul, Athanasius, all men who have stood out for God, have come off "more than conquerors through Him that loved us and gave Himself for us." Let us always stand for God, though we stand alone, for He will stand with us.

A Foreign Field Secretary.

The Rev. F. S. Hatch, D. D., has been for three years field secretary for India, Burma and Ceylon under the direction of the World's Christian Endeavor union. He has done an inestimable service for the cause and is just now enjoying a bit of a vacation in America. Since landing he has been in large demand as a speaker at state and local conventions. Dr. Hatch was formerly a New England pastor.

A Chinese Idea.

There are seven subsocieties in the Honan Y. P. S. C. E. in China. These are: (1) Gospel Preaching society, the members of which have been both diligent in study and earnest in preaching the gospel in the outstations and in the street chapel at night. (2) Lookout committee has done good service in looking up irregulars and teaching the inquirers throughout their respective districts. (3) The Christian Marriage society has at last aided in managing four engagements between Christian children, and there have been six Christian weddings this year. (4) The Repeating Scripture society records that 375 chapters of Scripture have been repeated, which represents a considerable amount of teaching by its members. (5) The Anti Foot Binding society has enrolled only seven members, but in the case of five especially this cross has been taken up bravely and borne consistently for Christ's sake. (6) The Christian Purity society has thirty-seven members and has helped many to abstain from intoxicating wine, tobacco and bad literature. (7) The Soul Seekers' society has nine members, who have led not a few to come to the meetings, some of whom are now bright inquirers.—Irish Endeavorer.

A Novel Idea.

In an Australian society the membership is split up into little groups of seven, who agree to make their number ten by obtaining new members. When the number is gained a new combination is formed, still comprising seven, and so on. The plan has been very successful and has added materially to the membership of the society.

Egyptian Endeavor.

Egypt has five societies [illegible] has among its members Copts, Armenians, Germans, English and Moslems.

LITTLE FRANCE

BY

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Reuben James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

Copyright, 1901, by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

Wolfe, in the rear of the line, was down and dying. It needed no surgeon to translate the look of death upon his face. Grafton knelt by him and took his hand, tears streaming down his face. The path of glory was indeed ending here. Others quickly assembled where the soldier lay bleeding to death on the field.

"The battle," whispered the dying man. "Tell me?"

"They run! They run!" cried Grafton, rising and surveying the field.

"Who run?" he asked, eagerly opening his eyes and looking up at his friend from where he lay in the arms of the surgeon on the grass, stained red by his own blood.

"The enemy! The enemy! They give way everywhere!"

"Go, one of you, to Col. Burton," said Wolfe, smiling weakly, "and tell him to march Webb's regiment down to the St. Charles river to cut off their retreat from the bridge."

It was the last thought of a soldier—his duty. He sank back in the arms of his attendants.

Philip, filled with grief, dropped on his knees beside him. Wolfe opened his eyes again for a moment.

"Philip," he whispered, "remember the picture—Quebec—" He turned on his side. "Now, God be praised," he murmured. 'I will die in peace."

There was a fierce struggle going on all over the field. The French were dying hard. Grafton ran along the line to inform Monckton, the second in command, of Wolfe's death. He found that brigadier desperately wounded, and then ran over to the left flank to carry the news to Townshend, the second brigadier.

Aided by heavy skirmishes in the wood, and by the fact that Townshend was compelled to refuse his lines, the battle had been more fiercely contested here than elsewhere. A squadron of cavalry, the only party of horse on the field, which had been sent scouting by Bougainville, suddenly appeared on the flank, and charged furiously down upon Townshend's men. They gave way. That general had started for the center of the army when Grafton told him the sad tidings, and at his request the sailor hurried to the extreme left flank.

Without thinking that he was left unsupported by the temporary retreat of the English soldiers, Grafton sprang forward to meet the cavalry. He brought down the first horseman with his pistol, but the second struck his cutlass from his outstretched hand, inflicting a deep cut in his arm, and the third caught him by the collar.

"I'll take this one prisoner. Yield, monsieur!" he cried in French.

"We are beaten!" cried the omcer commanding the cavalry, as the English rallied and came forward again. "Look, we give way everywhere! Sauve que peut, mes braves!"

"I don't lose this man, though," said the soldier, stubbornly. "Will you run, or be dragged?" he called to Grafton. Not waiting for a reply, he wheeled his horse, and, keeping tight hold of Grafton, galloped off with the rest.

It was not a dignified position, but there was nothing for him to do but to strive to keep his feet as best he might. If he fell he would be trampled to death by the horses; if he did not run he would probably be dragged until he choked. He was a wise as well as a brave man, so he struggled desperately on.

His arm had been badly wounded by the blow which had disabled it, and as his captor reached the St. Louis gate of the city a bullet struck him in the back. His strength finally gave way at that, and he fainted. He was a small man, and the big trooper lifted him to the front of the saddle by some unexplained impulse, laid him across the horse and held him there as he forced his way into the panting, terrified mass of retreating soldiery.

Ahead of them was an officer on a big black horse. He was deadly pale, and blood was trickling over the white lace of his shirt and staining his open waistcoat. He would have fallen from his horse had not two soldiers on either side supported him. He sat with his hands on the pommel of the saddle, leaning forward. His face wore a stricken look. Tears were trickling down his cheeks—not on account of his wounds, however, but from a deeper hurt. It was Montcalm.

The gate was open now, and the fugitives were pouring through. Inside the walls a crowd of women, children and old men were congregated in the Rue St. Louis. There was weeping and wailing and wringing of hands as the wounded, battered, shattered, terrified mass of fugitives swept through the gate. The deadly rattle of small arms, which since early morning had kept up without the walls, had nearly died away. The bugles of England were calling a halt, the redcoats were assembling on their colors. They were too weak to assault the ramparts yet, and therefore allowed the shattered French army to enter the city. Presently the marquis, still on his horse, was drawn within the gate by the eddying crowd.

"Oh, mon Dieu! mon Dieu! Le marquis est tue!" cried a woman.

Her words were taken up by the crowd, who loved the great and gentle soldier with a passionate devotion which they withheld from the thieving scoundrels who made up the civil government. Even then his first thought was for the people. As he heard the cries of the multitude he lifted his head and said:

"Ce n'est rien, ce n'est rien; ne vous affligez pas pour moi, mes bonnes amies." (It is nothing, it is nothing; do not be troubled for me, my good friends.)

Meanwhile the dragoon, with Grafton lying limp across his saddle, rode a few rods down the street until he escaped from the thick of the crowd. Then he turned his attention to his prisoner. The Englishman was lying pale and apparently lifeless before him.

"Nom de chien!" cried the Frenchman. "Have I been carrying a dead man all this time?"

With an expression of disgust he lifted him from his saddle and let him slide to the ground. He was riding near the pavement at the time and the street was narrow. The soldier had not thrown him roughly, and Philip slipped gently down upon the sidewalk, his head falling rather heavily against the open doorstep. A woman standing gazing from the door screamed and shrank back. The shock and the pain of his wounds caused him to open his eyes. He was dimly conscious of a face as beautiful as an angel's bending over him. He heard a sweet, startled voice, filled with music, murmuring in exquisite French:

"Mon Dieu! He is living, then!"

He knew no more.

CHAPTER XII.

THE SAILOR AND THE MOB.

LIEUT. DENIS DE VITRE had been in peril of his life many times during his short but exciting career, but he had never come so near death as within the past few months. Indeed, His Grim Majesty, the King of Terrors, had stared the young officer full in the face and his cold hand had been fairly clasped around his throat. It would have gone hard with him but for the timely interference of a friend.

De Vitre was a hardy, bold young man, who loved fighting as he loved sunlight, on account, perhaps, of the Irish touch in his nature from a far-off strain of the Emerald Isle on the distaff side. One of the higher Canadian noblesse, whose family was of first importance in New France, owning wide possessions and high in favor in the governor's court, he had received a commission in the navy of France. While, in command of the boats of a scouting expedition in the lower St. Lawrence he had been captured by Admiral Durell's squadron.

When the fleet of Vice Admiral Saunders entered the river and started upon that toilsome and dangerous ascent to Quebec the vice admiral had required his captives, of whom de Vitre was chief, to pilot the great ships up the uncertain river. The young officer, for one, had peremptorily refused to do this, and neither threat nor appeal had induced him to recede from his position.

The process of intimidation had indeed been carried so far as to cause Monsieur de Vitre to be mounted upon the rail of a ship with a rope around his neck, the other end of which was rove through a block at the top-sail yard-arm. Had it not been for the friend mentioned he would have been hanged for his contumacy, and to discourage—or encourage—the other pilots, men of less rank and station, who showed a disposition to emulate his refusal.

From this difficult—and, for a man of birth and station, unpleasant—position the Frenchman had been rescued by the intercessions of the young captain of the ship, a brave man, who loved courage and resolution even in his enemies. As his intercession was seconded by the influence of Gen. Wolfe, to whose request Admiral Saunders graciously deferred, it was efficacious in releasing Monsieur de Vitre from his appalling and unpleasant predicament.

Other men were found with less exalted views of their duty to their country who could be persuaded by the means which failed so signally in the case of de Vitre, and the ships were accordingly piloted up the river. Meanwhile, his quality having been demonstrated by his heroism, de Vitre was held a close prisoner in the fleet. He had refused to give his parole, and accordingly had been closely confined, and was carefully guarded.

A winning tongue, a little money, and specious promises of ultimate reward had made a friend for him among his guards, and the suborned soldier had at last found means to supply him with a British uniform. In the hurry and confusion of the debarkation of the soldiery for the attempt on the Plains of Abraham, de Vitre had succeeded in joining himself to one of the landing parties without attracting attention. The captain of the Sutherland, on which he had been held prisoner, was surprised the next morning to find the sentry bound and gagged—by his own collusion, of course, though that was unknown—in de Vitre's room and his prisoner gone.

However, there was so much business of moment on hand the day of the battle that no search was made for him; indeed, none could be made, and the certain fall of Quebec, which everybody realized must take place when the news of the victory was brought to the fleet rendered his pursuit useless. It was too late for even a man of his courage to effect anything of importance then. His knowledge of British affairs would be of no service now.

In the natural course of events, too, de Vitre would fall into the hands of the English again in a few days. Meanwhile, as he was a pleasant fellow, agreeable and debonair, his captors were rather glad that he had the privilege of a few hours of liberty, especially as it was known that the inspiration of his escape was the most beautiful woman in New France.

De Vitre had met with no opportunity of escaping from the English lines until the battle was joined. He had been compelled by the exigencies of the situation to point his gun at his own countrymen, and though he took care it was not loaded with ball, the mere motion gave him exquisite anguish. In the smoke and confusion of the battlefield, however, he at last found occasion to mingle with the retreating French. In the panic terror of their retreat no one in the crowding, pushing mob paid any attention to him, and he gained the city with the rest of the fugitives through the St. Louis gate. Forcing his way through the multitude he ran rapidly down the street toward the place where dwelt the object of his adoration. He found her in the doorway of her house, bending over the prostrate form of a small man in the blue and white uniform of the British navy.

"Mademoiselle de Rohan!" he cried in great surprise, stopping short at the sight. "What is the meaning of this?"

The young woman looked up as he called her name, rose to her feet as she recognized him, and with an expression of withering scorn and contempt deliberately turned her back upon him. For the moment the stranger was forgotten. De Vitre gasped and turned pale with astonishment.

"Mademoiselle de Rohan!" he cried again, "do you not know me?"

"I know no one," she answered, half-turning toward him with the contempt deepening upon her beautiful features, "who, born in France, wears that uniform, which even you disgrace!"

"Disgrace, mademoiselle!" he cried, straightening himself up, his face flushing. "What mean you? Oh, this—why—I——"

"By God!" exclaimed a course, rough voice at his side, "it's de Vitre!"

The young Frenchman faced about and saw himself confronted by a grenadier of the regiment La Sarre, who had stopped and was looking menacingly at him. He was followed by three regular soldiers from the various regiments and a sailor from Vauquelin's squadron.

"De Vitre, the traitor!" cried another.

"He who piloted the English ships up the river!" exclaimed the sailor.

"The man who betrayed New France!" shouted a third.

The fleeing soldiery stopped and with several gathered about the little group in the doorway.

"Well, we are beaten now," remarked the soldier who had first spoken, who held the rank of a sergeant, "but I guess we can hold the town long enough to hang you, monsieur. I saw you in the English ranks when they charged upon us—curse them! And you brought up the ships——"

"It's a lie, a dastardly lie!" cried de Vitre desperately. "I——"

"What are you doing with that English uniform on?" asked another, amid murmurs of indignation from the crowd, for the street was now blocked with people.

De Vitre, seeing the hopelessness of his situation, backed up against the wall and instinctively felt for his sword. Unfortunately for him he was wearing a private soldier's uniform, and he had thrown away his gun in that mad rush for the St. Louis gate. He was alone, unarmed and helpless before the mob.

"It's a fearful mistake!" he shouted. "My friends, I am innocent! I can explain! Hear me!"

His voice was drowned in yells and execrations. The soldiers and people had been so harried and wrought upon by the defeat of the morning that a sinister desire for revenge on some one was added to the fickle yet malevolent passions so easily awakened in the Gallic mob. They wanted a scapegoat, and here was one to hand.

Aug. 21: "Standing Alone For God."—Rom. viii, 31-39.—Company In Trial.

The sense of isolation is one of the most depressing experiences we can suffer. To be sent on a forlorn hope to rescue some one in extreme danger may only stimulate our courage, for in such a case we know that some one waits our coming with keep anxiety and others follow us with fervent prayers and good wishes. But to be placed in opposition to men is a far different thing from being asked to overcome natural dangers. To be conscious that we stand alone is sufficient to raise doubts as to the reasonableness of our position and make the boldest hesitate to go ahead. To know that the great mass of our fellows are ranged in opposition to our plans ought to make the most confident pause and consider, first, if they are all in the wrong and we alone have the truth, and, secondly, what prospect there is of final success for ourselves single handed against the multitude.

To cut oneself off from companionship and society with his fellows is one of the greatest sacrifices a person can make. To stand in opposition to the majority requires either high courage or stupidest obstinacy. So one may well be cautious when he finds himself out of harmony and sympathy with others.

But, when any one of us does awake to the realization that we hold some truth or see some principle at stake that no one else recognizes, then comes the supreme test of our worth. Then indeed has our hour struck for heroic action, and happy shall be he who sees and dares do his work regardless of help from others.

Lonesomeness and isolation he shall feel such as he had never before imagined. Bitterness and malignity he may have poured out to him beyond all measure. If only no bitterness gets inside him and he keeps his eye clear to his new risen truth, all will be well. He will overcome. Men will be drawn to him and to his truth. This is written in the nature of things.

This struggle will draw deeper on the soul powers than any conflict with the forces of the natural world can possibly do. But it will also develop the spirit as no other experience in life is able to do.

In actual fact no one of us ever is or will be called to stand alone. This passage teaches no such doctrine. It emphasizes the exact opposite. We are not alone!

If we are in suffering and feel as if our lot is singular and no one is so afflicted as we, all that is necessary to correct that mistake is to look around, and we will see not only that many others are in pain, but that the whole creation groaneth together in pain. We have plenty of company in trial. This might not bring much consolation, but when we read the further statement that the Spirit intercedes for us we find hope awakening. We are also assured that the whole is actually working together for our good. Even suffering shall not harm, but shall prove of benefit to us in the end. To know that the Spirit is interceding for us gives new fortitude, and we become patient.

Beyond this we read that Christ is actually a companion with us in all our experience. "If God be for us, who can be against us?" "We are workers together with God." What companionship!

Let us stand steadfast and true here, and we shall not stand alone when before the great white throne in the day when the secrets of men's hearts are revealed.

An Unsolvable Enigma.

Man is to man the only unsolvable enigma in the universe. Here is something no chemist can reveal by his acids or put successfully into his crucible or pass through his spectroscope. But Jesus Christ needs not that any should bear witness of man, for He knows what is in man, as St. John says. That fact drove Judas to suicide, but drew the weeping woman, who was a sinner, too, to His feet. It is the height of genius to know some men as a great commander knows whom to select for his campaigns or a great dramatist knows what words to assign to what characters, but it takes more than genius to know all men. That God only does. And in the divine knowledge of all men are the sinner's torture and the saint's rest.—Interior.

Be on the Lookout.

Be on the lookout for mercies. The more we look for them the more of them will we see. Blessings brighten when we count them. Out of the determination of the heart the eyes see. If you want to be gloomy, there's room enough to keep you glum; if you want to be glad, there's gleam enough to keep you glad. Say, "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all His benefits." Better lose count in enumerating your blessings than lose your blessings in enumerating over your troubles. "Be thankful unto Him, and bless His name."—Maltbie D. Babcock, D. D.

The Makers of Our Destinies.

Our judgment tests confirm manhood. We are all drifting out and on toward our final places. Some go down early in the strife, others fight on and overcome. There is no decree more certain than character. Our destinies are ourselves.—Presbyterian Journal.

It Often Proves Insufficient.

Even the offer of becoming sons of God often proves insufficient to induce men to abandon the world, with the pleasures and delights they have learned to love.—Christian Herald.

Not God's Refinement.

Refinement that carries us away from our fellow men is not God's refinement. —Beecher.

THE GEORGIA LYNCHINGS.

Body of Handy Bell Found on the Roadside.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 18.—There was a rumor in Statesboro that Handy Bell, one of the negroes implicated by the confession of Reed and Cato, was, like them, caught by the mob and burned at the stake near Statesboro, but this has been found to be untrue.

At Register, four miles from Statesboro, three negroes were shot down last night. Two of them will die. The cause of the shooting was that the negroes were supposed to belong to a secret society organized against the whites.

The latest information gathered from a long drive through the country about Statesboro shows that the race feeling has not subsided. The body of a negro shot through the body has been found beside the highway about five miles from here. It is supposed to be that of Handy Bell, one of the suspects released from jail last night for lack of evidence. A meeting of white farmers was held at Riggs Mill, one mile from here, at which plans were laid for ridding the community of obnoxious negroes.

There is great criticism of Captain R. M. Hitch, who is in command of the troops at Statesboro, in allowing the mob to take the negroes Reed and Cato from the courthouse.

Jail Breakers Used Red Pepper.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Aug. 18.—Anthony Brunner, James Finlay and Joseph Quinn overpowered Deputy Sheriff Gardner here and made their escape from the jail after a desperate fight. The men threw red pepper in Gardner's eyes and then beat him into insensibility. They took his gun and keys and then overpowered Deputy Hamlin in the front office. Deputy Gardner regained consciousness and, seizing another gun, circled around the jail to head the men off as they appeared above the courtyard wall. Shots were exchanged, but without effect. The men dropped from the wall and made their escape, Gardner being so nearly blinded that he could not follow them.

Wrote a Thousand Novels.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—Colonel Prentiss Ingraham of Chicago, said to be the author of more than 1,000 novels, is dead at Beauvoir, Miss., aged sixty years. Colonel Ingraham was born at Natchez, Miss., the son of the Rev. Joseph H. Ingraham, who was the author of "A Prince of the House of David." The young man served in the Confederate army as colonel and after the war began writing stories, which were published in various weekly papers and in book form. For years he turned out a novel every few weeks. His best known book is "Land of Legendary Lore." He left a widow and three children.

Socialists at Amsterdam.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 18.—At a plenary session of the international socialist and trades union congress Herr Van Koll of Holland was elected permanent president and Senor Iglesias of Spain and M. Cirpiani of France were chosen vice presidents. The congress adopted a resolution declaring that the workers of all countries demand insurance legislation, under which they would have a right to obtain the means of livelihood when incapacitated owing to sickness, accident, old age, pregnancy, maternity or the stoppage of work.

DIAMOND DUST.

There is some talk that "Lefty" Davis may pitch for the Plainfield A. C. on Saturday. The fans hope the report is not true for the sake of the game. The management has had plenty of time to discover that Davis is not strong enough for the teams crossing bats with the locals.

Chauncey Burt, formerly of this city, and a well known baseball pitcher, played shortstop on Saturday for the Laurel Springs team against the Gibbsboro nine of this State. He had a record of one hit, one putout, three assists and one errror. His team won by a score of 9 to 7, thirteen innings.

GOLF.

W. L. Glenney is now devoting his spare time entirely to golf, having given up tennis. His work this season on the golf course has been better than ever, although he has not taken part in many large events.

The Governor's competition and the August handicap will be the attractions at the Westfield Golf Club on Saturday. This will be the last opportunity to qualify for first round match play for the Governor's cup, which will be held on Sept. 3.

Gus. Faber still continues to play an excellent game of golf at the Park Golf Club and is retaining his position among the leaders. Two weeks in succession he has captured the first honors for both the Park Golf Club and President's cup. He and Morgan T. Townsend are close rivals for first honors.

Robert Abbott, of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, is without doubt one of the most promising players at the club or in the State among the younger players. He is constantly improving his game and if he enters the amateur championship play at Baltusrol, he will surely find a place among the leaders.

ROD AND GUN.

Gilbert Murray, of West Fourth street, and Clarence Thorn, of Park avenue, left early this morning for Barnegat where they will join Frank Hedden on his fishing trip. They will be gone until Monday.

KELLY IS A SPRINTER.

Patrolman Overtakes a Bicyclist Who Refused to Dismount.

When William Keatts, colored, consinged Patrolman Kelly to another climate, last evening, and started off on his wheel, he did not reckon upon the officer's sprinting abilities. He had gone less than a hundred feet when he was jerked from his machine and before he fully recovered from his surprise was at police headquarters. When searched by the turnkey a loaded revolver was found in one of his pockets.

Kelly detected Keatts riding his wheel on North avenue without a light and when he was called upon to dismount, hurled defiance in impolite terms. For this offense and carrying the weapon Judge Runyon today fined him $3. The revolver was confiscated.

To Reorganize Republican Club.

President N. B. Smalley, of the U. S. Grant Club, has issued a call to the borough Republicans to meet in Spencer's Hall, Wednesday evening, August 24, for reorganization. Plans for the coming campaign will be mapped out.

Thought He Saw Burglars.

The local police were summoned to the home of William McIntosh on College place, last night, on a burglar scare. Driver O'Gorman and Patrolman Overbaugh responded in the "hurry up" wagon but they found nothing suspicious.

TROLLEY IMPROVEMENT DELAY

PROPERTY OWNERS BLOCK P. S. C. PLANS FOR METUCHEN LINE.

It is said that the proposed extension of the trolley between this city and Metuchen is being delayed by the unwillingness of a few property-owners along the line to give their consent to have the trolley pass their homes. There are a number of spirited citizens who are working hard for this extension, in fact Mr. Beckstein, one of the largest property-owners along the line, living on Park avenue, called on President McCarter, of the Public Service Corporation, this week, to see what progress had been made concerning the extension.

Mr. McCarter assured Mr. Beckstein that just as soon as the consents are secured, the company will take steps toward building the line. The head of the company intimated that a little difficulty is being met with regarding the number of feet in width desired. Some of the property-owners do not want to give the company as much of a right-of-way as the improvement should have.

It is the desire of the Public Service Corporation to lay a double track. This would give an excellent service and would do away with unnecessary delays that are now a feature of the single track lines. The Arlington avenue line is a good example of this kind of service. As arranged it is impossible for the company to give the public a quick satisfactory service, and if the Metuchen line is built the company wants to obviate this trouble, if possible.

All the necessary preliminary work has been done on the extension, such as making surveys and preparing the specifications and grades, and nothing now remains to be done except get the consents and build the line. Considering that the extension will cost many thousands of dollars, the company believes that the propery-owners should be willing to give the required number of feet for the laying of the tracks.

WALLER LOST HIS HEAD

AND WESTFIELD'S TEAM WAS DEFEATED BY TRENTON.

Usually quiet and undemonstrative, "Red" Waller, the Westfield team's crack pitcher, showed that he had a temper of his own at Trenton yesterday, and his exhibition is attributed by some to his side losing the game with the Trenton Y. M. C. A. by a score of 4 to 1.

Neither team made a run until the seventh inning when a tally was given Trenton after a very close decision at home plate. It did not meet with Waller's approval and becoming disgusted he started pitching slow balls at the batsmen. This led to cries and derisive shouts being directed toward him from the crowds in the bleachers and it only served to make him still more angry. Finally he turned on the crowd and shouted, "Sports? What kind of sports are you people that you will allow any such decision as that?" He continued to berate the rooters until he shamed them into quietness and then he began pitching with his former vigor. Whether he had lost his speed or his anger prevented him from using his skill is not known but at any rate the Trentonians piled up three runs in the eighth while Westfield stood still with one. The series now stands 3 to 2 in favor of Trenton with two more games to be played.

The score by innings was as follows:

Salt Water Days.

Saturday will be farmer's salt water day at Boynton Beach. On this occasion farmers from Union, Somerset and Middlesex counties flock to the shore resort in great numbers, taking with them their wives and families to enjoy the outing. Special programme of entertainment and music has been arranged for the day. The last salt water day of the season will be held August 27. Plans are being made by the management to make special efforts along the lines of music and entertainment for that occasion. Because of the unpleasant weather on the occasion of the last colored people's salt water day last week, arrangements have been made for a second mammoth outing for Jersey colored people to be held next Wednesday. Shouldt he weather be pleasant, great numbers will doubtless take occasion to visit the shore with their families.

BOROUGH EXEMPTS, KLINSMAN'S GUESTS

Volunteer Firemen Have a Jolly Good Time in the Old West Ends' House.

BIG ENTERTAINMENT

FORMER ASSISTANT CHIEF OF OLD DEPARTMENT SPREADS A FEAST.

Song and Speeches Were Given by the Members—One Hundred and Fifty Present at the Affair.

Members of the North Plainfield Exempt Firemen's Association and their friends to the number of 150, had one of the "biggest" times of their lives, last night, as the guests of Herman Klinsman, one of the most prominent of the borough's former volunteer fire fighters. In appreciation of the gold medal given him by the disbanded West End Company, he invited all his associates to the old West End house, which is now his property, and there entertained them as only North Plainfield fire laddies know how.

In the early part of the evening, Gellik's full orchestra from Garwood, rendered popular selections and many of the musical members of the association contributed solos. Speeches were made by Messrs. Charles Keller, Herman Klinsman, William Debele, Jules Stahl, Colonel Perry and many other notables who were longly applauded for their crisp remarks. At the conclusion of this part of the programme everybody was invited to the tables where a supper was served, the like of which Prideville had never witnessed before. It included turkeys, chickens and other fowl, hundreds of sandwiches, watermelons and half a dozen styles or dessert. The host sat at the head of the tables and he was frequently cheered and toasted.

While the fun was going on inside, the younger element was given the old "jumper" hose cart and the boys enjoyed themselves hugely trundling it up and down the Harrison avenue hill. The programme for the night was closed by a dance, the wives and friends of the firemen being invited in for the purpose.

Mr. Klinsman was assisted in making his arrangements by Colonel Perry, John Reinman, William Waters, William Debele, Jules Stahl and George Schlereth.

While away, Mr. Stewart intends to make his headquarters on a ranch near Omaha. If he finds ranch life to his liking, he will likely locate in the west.

EDWARD C. STOKES; CAREER AND CHARACTER

The Popular Choice of the Republicans for the Gubernatorial Nomination.

STANDING POLITICALLY

DEFEATED FOR UNITED STATES SENATE BY THREE VOTES.

Former School Superintendent Who is Responsible for Enactment of Many Excellent Laws —His Life.

Living quietly in a modest apartment house in Trenton, is a man who has been fourteen years in public office and yet is dependent upon his salary as president of a conservative financial institution, the Mechanics' National Bank. His name is Edward C. Stokes, and he is to be the next Governor of New Jersey, the Republican nomination being conceded to him.

He was marked for slaughter by the gambling syndicate that sought to capture the State.

The race track gamblers were routed and barred from the State by a constitutional amendment, after a long fight, in which "the little fellow" rose to be one of the leaders of his party. He has served two years in the Assembly and nine years in the State Senate, representing Cumberland County, and in 1895 he was president of the Senate. Since 1901 he has been Clerk in Chancery, and he will have to resign that post before his term is out to succeed Franklin Murphy in the Governor's chair on January 1 next.

While busy with politics and legislative leadership he continued to serve Millville as Superintendent of Public Schools from 1889 to 1898

Mr. Stokes, more than any other one man, made Foster M. Voorhees Governor of New Jersey in 1898, and in 1900 became vice chairman of the Republican State committee. He managed the Franklin Murphy campaign in 1901, and in 1902 came within three votes of being chosen United States Senator, to succeed General Sewell, the nineteenth ballot electing John F. Dryden, who received 32 votes to 29 for Stokes. Ex-Attorney-General John W. Griggs was the other factor in the contest.

Ex-Senator Stokes is an active little man, with a well-rounded head, keen eyes, penetrating voice and a business-like air. His every movement is quick, but there is no suggestion of restlessness or nervousness. He gives the impression of well-controlled energy, and when he is busy in his little office in the bank, or in the Chancery chambers, or in the party headquarters, it is seen that order and system are the secrets of his dispatch of quantities of work that overwhelm men of bigger physique.

It is admitted in both parties that Mr. Stokes is one of the men chiefly responsible for turning New Jersey into a Republican State after thirty years of Democratic domination. Since 1893 the Legislature has been Republican; since 1895 its Governors have been of the same party.

Mr. Stokes has been the author of important legislative achievements, namely:

The primary reform law, the revision of the school law, good roads legislation, franchise tax law, bipartisan control of State institutions, bipartisan control of schools, abolition of State tax.—EX.

POLITICS IN SOMERSET CO.

REPUBLICAN AND DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES FOR NOMINATIONS.

Already there is activity in the Republican camp of Somerset county and there appears to be no dearth of privates in the ranks willing to accept commissions as standard bearers in the fall campaign for county offices. Selections will be made for the offices of assemblyman and sheriff and the Republicans are particularly anxious to capture the places now held by Democrats.

Among those mentioned for the Republican assembly nomination are F. A. Pope, of Somerville; H. M. Herbert, of Bound Brook, and Irving Hoagland, of Franklin township. For the shrievalty nomination on the same ticket, Thomas Douglass, of Bernards township; Charles Sebring, of North Plainfield township, and Edward E. Cooper, of Warren township, have been named in various quarters. About the only Democrat mentioned for the assembly nomination is Major Nelson Y. Dungan, of Somerville. David J. Carney's friends in North Plainfield and in other sections of the county are booming him for sheriff, while County Chairman Jacob Shurts and Fred Nelson are also looked upon as possible nominees.

WOMAN ENVELOPED IN FLAMES

MISS NEIGHBOR'S PRESENCE OF MIND SAVED MRS. CASEY.

Presence of mind on the part of Miss Florence Neighbor saved Mrs. Elizabeth Casey, of Monroe avenue, from sustaining severe if not fatal burns, this morning. While the latter was engaged in attending her duties at Timbo's restaurant her dress brushed near the open door of a range and ignited.

Almost within an instant she was enveloped in flames and would have rushed outdoors but for Miss Neighbor, who stopped her and then wrapped a heavy cloth about the blazing garment. She followed this up by beating the flames with her hands, at the same time calling for assistance and when other employes of the place arrived she had practically extinguished them.

Mrs. Casey was practically helpless through fear and had she rushed about as was her intent it would only have fanned the blaze into larger proportions. Through Miss Neighbor's action she escaped with a few slight burns. Her rescuer was quite badly burned and it required the service of Dr. Lawrence Doyle to attend her hurts.

Family Theatrical Company.

J. E. Galvin, the local theatrical man, has completed arrangements for the road tour of his company in the farce comedy, "Shanty Town," in which members of the family will appear. It will start out early next month and will play through eastern Canada until next spring, when it will complete a season of forty-five weeks in Pennsylvania. Morris Sorensen, of Webster place, will be leader of the orchestra which is to be carried with the show.

GARVIN MAY SIGN WITH PLAINFIELD A. C.

Brooklyn National Pitcher Being Considered As Successor to "Lefty" Davis.

TRIAL FOR BEISEL

ROYAL GIANTS TO GIVE PLAINFIELD HARD WORK TOMORROW.

"Lefty" Davis to be in the Box Here for the Last Time—His Playing Not Satisfactory to the Management.

Although the Plainfield Athletic Club management cancelled the scheduled game with the Cuban Giants, it has secured in their stead for tomorrow's game an aggregation of players fully their equal if not their superior. They are styled the Royal Giants, are composed of Southern players and although they compete with nines in the South most of the time, frequently cross bats with clubs in this section. Last Sunday they played a thirteen inning game with the Central Islip team, winning out 1 to 0. Local fans look forward to a lively battle.

It was learned on good authority yesterday, that negotiations have been going on for the signing of Garvin, of the Brooklyn Nationals, who shut out Westfield 6 to 0 two weeks ago. At the present time his standing in the major team is unsettled and as he is perfectly satisfactory to the Plainfield management, his coming over would do away with the troublesome pitcher question. Another pitcher of note, Beisel, of Brandywine, Pa., is seeking a local try-out and it is possible he will be given the chance. He is highly recommended by managers in the Philadelphia district where he has been located.

It is understood that "Lefty" Davis will do the slab work tomorrow but that it will be his last appearance with the team. For the past few weeks he has been on the bench but his salary of $25 per has been going on just the same and the members believe it is a needless expense. It has been demonstrated that he is not "fast" enough for the company in which the Plainfield club has been moving and the continuation of the Westfield series means that other twirlers must be secured.

CO. K MEN ARE QUALIFYING

THIRTY-SIX MEMBERS DO GOOD WORK AT SEA GIRT.

So far thirty-six members of Company K have qualified in the shoots at Sea Girt. There have been practice shoots at the armory two or three times a week, but very few have taken advantage of these. At Sea Girt four of the men have qualified as experts, four as sharp-shooters, and twenty-eight as marksmen.

The competition between Co. K and Co. L, of Princeton, is very close, and it is most desirable that every man qualify. There are but two days left, August 20 and 27, and Lieutenant Lewis wishes every members of the Company who has not yet qualified to see him personally as there are special inducement which will be offered to them.

MISS HURLEY HURT.

Run Over by a Carriage This Morning.

Miss Adelia Hurley, of West Third street, was run over and slightly injured by Mrs. J. S. Schoonmaker's carriage while crossing the street this morning at Park avenue and Front street.

She was carried into Dr. Fritts' office, where upon examination it was found that she had a bruise on her head, and a slight wound on her foot, where the carriage had passed over her. The injuries are not thought to be serious. Miss Hurley was rather weak from the shock, and in a nervous condition.

Built His Own Boat.

Wilbur W. F. Randolph, of Duer street, today shipped to Lake Hopatcong, a handsome cedar row boat trimmed with brass, which he built himself in his yard. It will be launched in a few days and Mr. and Mrs. Randolph and a party of borough friends who will spend their vacation at the Lake, are looking forward to some enjoyable times with it. The boat has been named "Estella."

E. G. Gordon, of South avenue, has returned from an extended trip through the west.

FRIGHTFULLY BURNED WHILE BOILING TAR

Wm. Coffey's Head, Neck and Breast Covered, the Mass Splashing Over Him.

SAVES SMALL BOYS

HIS SKIN STRIPPED OFF AND FLESH ROASTED.

Injured Man Refuses Medical Attendance—Is Held While Oil is Poured Over Him.

In an effort to save a crowd of small boys from getting burned, William Coffey, an employe of a New York roofing concern which has been working along North avenue, was himself injured in a terrible manner, yesterday afternoon. Boiling tar, splashed from a seething caldron, fell upon his head, neck and breast and wherever it touched stripped off the cuticle, leaving only the exposed flesh. Despite the agony he suffered, the man refused to go to the hospital and for the time being would not allow his fellow workmen to call physicians. Employes of Woolston & Buole, back of whose place he was working, took him forcibly and poured linseed oil over him from head to foot, thus alleviating his suffering for the time being.

Coffey had charge of the melting pots for the gang of men which has been placing tar roofs on local buildings and it was his place to prepare the material in a liquid form. The work had attracted a crowd of children to the improvised furnaces and being busily engaged, Coffey lifted a huge ball of tar in solid form intending to throw it in one of the pots and as he had it poised above his head, he saw several boys poking sticks into the fire. He attempted to hold it back but lost his balance and as the ball struck the boiling mass, the hot stuff splashed all over him.

His cries attracted a crowd to him but they were helpless to get the mass from him until it cooled. When they did get it off the skin came with it and in several places the flesh was practically roasted. Huge drops of the tar burned through his shirt and spread over his entire side. Omer C. Moore and other Woolston & Buckle men cut away the clothing and poured cooling liquids upon him and until last night this was the only thing he would allow to be done to him.

Late in the evening a physician dressed his hurts and he was sent to his home in New York.

G. F. MELICK WEDDED.

Miss B. E. Waldron the Bride of Metuchen Man.

On the lawn of Brooklet Farm, the colonial residence of John M. Moore, at Bound Brook, George F. Melick, of Metuchen, and Miss Bertha E. Waldron, of Bound Brook, were married Wednesday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. G. Mason, of Metuchen, under a florally decorated arch of green and gold constructed under a large elm tree on the lawn. D. J. Ferry, of Metuchen, was best man, and Miss Kate Rennenmann, of this city, acted as bridesmaid Several Plainfielders were present at the ceremony, as well as guests from Metuchen, Woodbridge, Perth Amboy, Bound Brook, Somerville, New Brunswick, New York and Connecticut. At the conclusion of the ceremony a collation was served on the lawn, after which the bridal party left for an extended driving trip through northern New Jersey.

Grace Mission Preachers.

During the present month special services are being held at Grace Church Colored Mission in Sixth street, every Sunday evening. So far the attendance at these services have been very satisfactory, the preacher on each occasion being colored priests from neighboring parishes. On Sunday, August 7, Rev. Geo. F. Miller, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was the preacher; on Sunday, August 14, Rev. J. N. Deaver, of Atlantic City, gave an excellent address, and on Sunday next Rev. Dr. Geo. F. Bragg, of Baltimore, Md., is announced as the preacher. All colored people of the city will be made welcome at these services.

Coming Home From Philippines.

J. E. Lebean, a former Plainfield boy, but now connected with a large mining corporation, left July 20 for a visit to the St. Louis Exposition and to visit friends in this city.

JAMES E. TURRILL DIES VERY SUDDENLY

Former Treasurer of Union Tank Line Succumbs to Throat Trouble.

ILL FOR TWO YEARS

PROMINENTLY IDENTIFIED WITH THE MASONIC ORDER.

Native of Michigan—Resident of Borough Twenty-Seven Years—The Funeral Services.

James E. Turrill, one of the best known residents of the borough, died suddenly at his home on Grove street, yesterday afternoon, the victim of a malignant throat growth from which he had long been a sufferer. For the past two years the trouble continued to become more apparent and it eventually deprived him of speech. Operations proved of no avail and yesterday it unexpectedly terminated fatally. He had been about as usual until a short time before the end which came at 4 o'clock.

Mr. Turrill was born in LaPierre, Mich., in 1837, and with his parents moved from there to Cleveland. Later he came to New York city and entering the employ of the Standard Oil Company gradually worked his way up until he finally became treasurer of the Union Tank Line, the Standard Oil concern which operates thousands of tank cars for the transportation of petroleum and oil. He retained this office until a short time ago when the condition of his health forced him to resign.

He removed to the borough twenty-seven years ago and although he never became identified with local politics, he was greatly interested in the growth of the two Plainfields. He was one of the organizers of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M., and was its treasurer until a year ago. He was also treasurer of the Masonic Hall Association for fifteen years and at one time a member of Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, R. A. M. When his condition would not allow his continuing as Anchor Lodge's treasurer the members presented him with a handsomely engrossed set of resolutions and a loving cup at his retirement. At one time he was a vestryman of the Church of the Holy Cross, but later became a member of Grace church.

Surviving him are a widow and three sons, Howard, Robert and Charles Turrill, all residents of the borough. Funeral services over the body will be held from his late home Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock and interment will be at Hillside cemetery. The services will be conducted by Rev. J. F. Steen, of New York, and Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson and Rev. T. Logan Murphy, of this city.

READY FOR THE CONVENTION

LOCAL LETTER-CARRIERS REORGANIZE AND ELECT OFFICERS.

Local Branch, No. 336, National Association of Letter Carriers, composed of the employes attached to the local postoffice, met last evening and reorganized for the year with the following officers: President, Thomas Meaney; vice president, James Bailey; secretary, Thomas Burns; treasurer, Philip Geise; sergeant-at-arms, Charles Glaentzer. They will be installed at the next meeting and a committee composed of Charles B. Stephens, Patrick J. Reville and J. W. A. Bauersachs was appointed to arrange for a smoker and entertainment in connection with the work.

The annual convention of the letter carriers is to be held this year at Newark on Labor Day and the local branch will attend in a body. There will be a parade of the "men in grey" in the morning and in the afternoon business and social sessions will be held. For the business gatherings the local delegates elected are J. W. A. Bauersachs and Frank Clarkson, with Daniel Mack and George L. Apgar as alternates.

Trial Postponed.

The trial of Richard Scudder, the colored man accused of slashing Philip Sheridan, has been laid over in the city court until Monday morning.

—Now is the time to buy tomatoes. Seventy-five baskets of the fancy Acme and Stone variety at Neuman Brothers' tomorrow, will be sold at a way down price.

BANK ON 26,000 MAJORITY

THAT'S THE FIGURE FOR NEW JERSEY CLAIMED BY REPUBLICANS.

The officials at the Republican National headquarters in New York, are receiving gratifying reports of the progress of the campaign. Preliminary canvasses made in several entire counties of New Jersey, according to citizens of this state, indicate that New Jersey will give Roosevelt 26,000.

There has just been completed in New Jersey a canvass of a purely agricultural county. The canvass was made from house to house by a merchant whose business took him all over the county. He reported to Governor Murphy that he did not find a Republican who would vote the Democratic ticket this fall, nor did he discover any appreciable number of Democrats who will vote for Roosevelt. The party lines seem to be tightly drawn in New Jersey, with the advantage in favor of the President.

New Jersey gave McKinley and Roosevelt 56,899 in 1900, and in 1902, when party lines were normally drawn, the vote on the Congress tickets was: Republicans, 183,576; Democrats, 164,199, a Republican plurality of 19,377. This was a light vote, neither party showing its full strength. The Republicans are confident of doing much better this year.

SENATOR KEAN FIGHTS FIRE

BURNING RYE STACKS ON HIS FARM THREATENED HIS HOME.

United States Senator John Kean had to turn out of bed early yesterday morning to fight a fire that threatened his home at Ursine. The fire was not a hundred yards from the house. A steam threshing machine caught fire in the night and the sparks set fire to a stack of rye nearby. Three other stacks of rye were soon ablaze and the glare awakened the inmates of the Senator's home.

Senator Kean placed himself at the head of a volunteer brigade composed of the butler, the coachman and a number of the farm laborers, and fought the flames valiantly till assistance arrived from Elizabeth. The fire was put out after four stacks of rye had been consumed and the threshing machine destroyed.

DRAGGED A HUNDRED FEET

COACHMAN THROWN FROM RIG IN A RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.

Terrified by a passing trolley car, one of the horses belonging to Dr. Olin Jenkins, of East Front street, ran away this morning from the Netherwood station, narrowly escaping serious accidents all the way home, while for a moment the life of the driver seemed to hang in the balance.

Dragged for nearly one hundred yards with the reins wound around his feet, Charles Williams, the coachman, succeeded in releasing himself after a most thrilling experience. When the horse became frightened, he sprang up a steep embankment on the left, hurling the driver out of the rig. As the man fell the reins became tangled about his feet, and he was powerless to free himself. Finally he managed to grasp the reins and by kicking, broke loose. Williams' clothes were torn in shreds, but with the exception of a few bruises he escaped injury.

Doctor Jenkins, finding that Williams had been thrown out and the reins with him, concluded that he might better make his exit in a more dignified manner. He therefore crawled through the opening in the back of the wagon and descended to the ground without injury.

The horse was finally caught by William Neuman, on the corner of Watchung avenue and Front street. Though the wagon was slightly scratched, the animal was in no way hurt, and he was led to his stable without difficulty.

Thought He Saw a Body.

The baggage master at the Jersey Central's Jersey City depot telephoned to local police headquarters late last night that the engineer of a train had noticed the body of a man lying between the tracks near Washington street. Driver O'Gorman and Patrolman Overbaugh, with the police patrol, went to the spot indicated, but although they searched from Watchung avenue to Berckman street they could find no victim. New ties are being put in place near Washington street and the engine driver evidently mistook one of the old ones for a body.

The triennial conclave of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States, will be held at SanFrancisco, September 6 to 9 and those from this vicinity expecting to attend will leave Monday, going by special train over the Pennsylvania railroad. The gathering is of more than ordinary interest to Plainfielders from the fact that many local Knights, their wives and friends will be present and also that Sir Knights Edwards, of Golden Gate Commandery, which is to have charge of the proceedings, who is at the head of the reception committee and will receive all visitors, is a brother to Mase Edwards, of West Seventh street.

Those from Plainfield who will be included in the party are Rt. Eminent Commander Daniel C. Adams and Mrs. Adams, Sir W. R. Codington, Mrs. Codington and Miss Martha Codington, Sir Henry Liefke, Julius Liefke, George Giebelhouse, Sir Calvin H. Rugg and Mrs. Rugg, Sir Ralph T. Willis and Sir L. B. BLACKMAR IS CHIEF

New G. A. R. Commander Chosen at Boston.

DENVER TO HAVE NEXT CONVENTION

General W. Blackmar of Massachusetts Elected by Acclamation—J. R. King of Washington Chosen Vice Commander.

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—General Wilmon W. Blackmar of this city was elected commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic by acclamation at the closing session of the national encampment convention here, and Denver, Colo., was selected as the place for the encampment of 1905.

The other national officers elected were: Senior vice commander in chief, John R. King, Washington; junior vice commander, George W. Patten, Chattanooga, Tenn; surgeon general, Dr. Warren R. King, Indianapolis; chaplain in chief, Rev. J. H. Bradford, Washington.

Later General Blackmar made the following appointments: Adjutant general, John E. Gilman, Massachusetts; quartermaster general, Charles Burrows, New Jersey; assistant quartermaster general and custodian of the records, J. Henry Holcomb, Pennsylvania; assistant adjutant general, E. B. Stillings, Massachusetts.

The G. A. R. convention was adjourned sine die shortly after 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The principal business transacted was the passage of the resolutions declaring that any modification of the voting franchise should be along lines of "intelligence and fitness, and not along lines of race and color," and disapproving of the admission of Sons of Veterans to secret G. A. R. meetings, and the laying on the table of a resolution regarding the proposed fraternal convention of the survivors of the Union and Confederate armies.

Mrs. Mary T. Hager of Chicago was elected national president of the Ladies of the G. A. R. All the other branch organizations were also in session.

In the afternoon the Grand Army delegates made a pilgrimage to Lexington and Concord in automobiles.

At night the Women's Relief Corps held a camp fire at the Mechanics' building.

THE POPULIST PARTY

Watson and Tibbles Notified of Their Nominations.

AT COOPER UNION, IN NEW YORK.

Watson Said, "To Restore the Liberties of the People, the Rule and Equality of the People Before the Law, Is Our Purpose."

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Thomas E Watson of Georgia and Thomas Tibbles of Nebraska, the national candidates of the People's party, were formally notified of their nomination last night. The ceremony, which was held in Cooper Union, was of the simplest character. Alfred J. Boulton, a prominent labor man of this city, presided. The address of notification to the presidential nominee, Mr. Watson, was made by Judge Samuel W. Williams of Vincennes, Ind. Mr. Tibbles was notified by Jay W. Forrest of Albany. Mr. Watson's speech of acceptance was in part as follows:

"In this era when so many men wear their political beliefs loosely, in this time when the voter who went to bed a Democrat—having prayed for free silver before closing his eyes—may awake in the morning and find himself under the necessity of clothing himself in the irrevocable gold standard or of having no Democratic garments to wear, it is something to be able to say, I belong to a party which will not strike its flag, which will not desert its creed, which stands today just where it stood on the day of its birth, which glories in its principles in the hour of defeat, which believes it has a message to mankind and a mission to perform and which will never cease the struggle to restore our government to the democratic ideal of the wise men, the good men, the great men who framed it.

"To restore the liberties of the people, the rule of the people, the equality of all men before the law, is our purpose. We believe that manhood should count for more than money; that character should outweigh the dollar. Whether he work with brawn or brain, it is the worker who should be monarch of the world. Not wealth, not birth, not office, but the worker—he who has noble ideals, he who wants to achieve, he who has a message and a mission and looks upon the earth as a room to work in and the blessed sun the light to work by—he who, clinging to those convictions which become a part of his life, would rather die than make cowardly submission to what he felt to be wrong."

Automatic Wireless Fire Alarms.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson has announced that as a result of his recent trip west plans are in progress looking to the establishment of a wireless telegraph system of fire alarms in the various forest reserves under the control of the government. The secretary's idea is to construct an automatic service which will give the alarm when contact is made with the flames or excessive heat.

The Cassinis at Bar Harbor Fair.

A., retired, were among the guests at the horse show of the Bar Harbor Fair association. The Countess Cassini entered the bay mare Naughty Girl, but failed to secure a prize. The stable of A. J. Cassatt carried off the honors of the day, securing six blue ribbons.

Plainfield, N. J., Aug. 19, 1904.

Tom Watson was notified yesterday. He will get another message about Nov. 8.

August Belmont ran the first train through the subway Wednesday. Wonder how he would do at stearing a boat up "Salt River?"

Fire consumed a large quantity of rye at the home of Senator John Kean at Ursino yesterday—news item.
N. B.—It was not in liquid form.

The sting of the thrashing he received from the wily Jap is no doubt largely responsible for the Czar's decree abolishing capital punishment.

Murphy, of Tammany Hall, says McCarren, of Brooklyn, is so "rotten" that he apologizes for mentioning his name in decent society. Probably he does not have much opportunity to.

The best rule in advertising is to make an appeal to human interest. No advertisement is a good advertisement that fails to do that. And that appeal cannot be well made through stock forms and phrases.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A library of 1,700 volumes on matrimony presented to Chicago University may contain some pertinent facts on the "one grand, sweet song," but is not likely to lessen the number of divorce cases in the Windy City.

Not even the sight of Cleveland and Bryan marching arm in arm in a Parker parade, could be more extraordinary than a picture of the warring Republican factions in North Plainfield dwelling in harmony, though the latter is to come to pass if the friends of Mayor Smalley succeed in reorganizing the party's forces in the borough.

The man who former United States Senator Smith prefers will be the next nominee of the Democratic party for the gubernatorial office. One thing is certain and that is that the man selected will possess much ability and no small amount of the world's goods. Without a representative man as a candidate for the gubernatorial chair, the Democracy can not hope to put up a semblance of a winning fight for the National ticket in New Jersey and no one knows it better than Mr. Smith, whose years of experience have taught him that both money and brains are essentials in practical politics.

There should be a generous response to Mayor Smalley's appeal for band concert funds. Thousands have enjoyed these weekly free musical treats during the summer and they have proven popular attractions for the masses. Tonight's concert will be the last unless funds are forthcoming to defray the expense of their continuance until the later part of September as originally proposed. Every contribution counts and so if you have a dollar or two that you can afford to give for this object do not fail to send it as soon as possible to Morris VanArsdale, treasurer of the fund, or to The Daily Press office and it will be cheerfully acknowledged.

Mrs. A. W. Anderson, of East Second street, has returned from Warrenville, where she has been spending the summer.

Miss Augusta Goodman, of Newark has returned after a few days' visit with her sister, Mrs. M. B. Long, of Park avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Randall, of South avenue, have returned after spending two weeks visiting relatives at New Haven.

Mr. and Mrs. James Parker, of Grove street, have returned from Chicago, where they have been spending a few weeks visiting relatives.

FLEET FOR SHANGHAI

Japanese Will Seize Russian Cruiser and Torpedo Boat.

WILL BE TAKEN OUT OF NEUTRAL PORT

Tokyo Government Objects to Their Being Repaired and Allowed to Sail—How Rurik's Crew Suffered.

LONDON, Aug. 19. — Dispatches from Shanghai say that M. Odagira the Japanese consul general, has notified the taotai of Shanghai that a Japanese fleet is coming to seize the Russian cruiser Askold and the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Grozovoi.

The chief engineer of the customs department reports that the Russian vessels are not seaworthy.

The repairs being made by the Russians on the Grozovoi will be completed in about ten days. It is uncertain when the repairs to the Askold will be finished.

There is no uneasiness there, although the situation is thought to be acute. The foreign consuls are determined to preserve the neutrality of the port.

Upon the recommendation of the chief of customs, the taotai of Shanghai will allow the Russian cruiser Askold and the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Grozovoi to remain in port until Aug. 23, when one day's notice to leave or disarm will be given.

The arrival of Chinese men-of-war is expected.

A Kiaochow report says that all the ammunition of the Russian battleship Cesarevitch and the three torpedo boat destroyers has been removed and stored in a German magazine. The work of dismantling the guns of the Russian vessels has been completed.

The terms of parole imposed upon the Russians necessitates their remaining until the end of the war.

The officers of the Russian warships who are able to be about are being royally entertained by the Germans.

A Tokyo cable says that the survivors of the Russian cruiser Rurik, which was sunk Aug. 14 by Vice Admiral Kamimura are: Twenty officers, 4 of whom were wounded; 67 noncommissioned officers, 16 of whom were wounded; 525 sailors, 150 of whom were wounded. The total number of men rescued is 612.

A Tokyo dispatch says:

"Admiral Togo has reported that the gunboats Maya and Amagi, which were on guard duty in the neighborhood of Shampoingtao, discovered the Russian gunboat Giliak and another gunboat near Shenshen engaged in shelling the Japanese land forces. The Japanese vessels attacked the enemy, and a shell from the Amagi hit the Giliak. The latter retreated hastily to Port Arthur. He says also that it probably was the fifth torpedo boat destroyer flotilla, under the command of Captain Mathuoka, that sank the Russian cruiser Pallada on the night of Aug. 10. Captain Mathuoka reports that he approached a cruiser of the Pallada type and at a distance of 400 yards fired a torpedo which he saw hit the cruiser and explode."

A Tokyo report says that the Japanese attack on Port Arthur has been resumed. It is now entering upon its final stage.

Dispatches from Vladivostok show that every officer on the cruisers Rossia and Gromoboi was either killed or wounded. Rear Admiral Jessen, on the Rossia, narrowly escaped the fate of Admiral Withoft. He was standing on the bridge of that ship when it was wrecked by a shell.

The two Russian cruisers were literally riddled, their guns and engines being nearly all crippled.

A Chefu report says that there are seven Russian ships in Port Arthur harbor in addition to torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers and that the Japanese have lost 20,000 men before Port Arthur during the last ten days.

The St. Petersburg admiralty considers it most probable that five of the Russian battleships have returned to Port Arthur, arguing that if the ships escaped they must either have been sighted or reported. This view is strengthened also by the report from Chefu that seven vessels are now in the harbor at Port Arthur.

The whereabout of Lieutenant Newton A. McCully and Lieutenant de Cuverville, respectively of the American and French navies, the only two naval attaches who were at Port Arthur and who recently left that port with the fleet, is unknown.

The Ryeshitelni Incident.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 19.—The Chinese minister came to St. Petersburg from his seaside villa and conferred with several ambassadors regarding developments in the Ryeshitelni incident. The general impression in diplomatic circles here is that Japan may yet change her mind and surrender the Ryeshitelni to the care of some neutral power, reserving all rights. Such a course would strengthen Japan's position and avoid the possibility of complications affecting China's neutrality.

Danish Destroyer Sunk.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 19.—While the Danish training squadron was engaged in maneuvering in the Great Belt the torpedo boat Haversten was sunk in collision with the torpedo boat Storen. The crew of the Haversten was rescued. The Storen was only slightly injured.

LINDEN, N. J.

Beautiful and Accessible

2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,

14 MILES FROM NEW YORK

On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

TEA ROOMS.

They Yield Good Returns When They Are Properly Managed.

A profitable occupation for woman will be found in conducting a tea room in the right way. These pleasant meeting and gossiping places for friends are already extremely popular and becoming more so as women emerge from domestic seclusion. Whether out for business or pleasure, a lady feels hungry after several hours. To find near at hand a clean, cozy place of refreshment, not so public as a restaurant, not rendered so formidable by imperial and princely waiters as a hotel table, this is something that appeals to the soul of every woman. At a tea room, too, she can get just what women like—cake, ices, sweets of all kinds, tea biscuit, tea, coffee and chocolate. This menu is far more pleasing to the average feminine palate than are the greasy meats and fiery drinks which the woman sex at least appears to be evolving away from.

The tea room is of British institution. In England until recently it was not considered the proper thing for a woman to go into a public restaurant and eat. Why it is hard to say. So the tea room was started, first in London, then in other towns. Tea is as dear as kings and bacon are to the British soul, so tea was the first thing thought of when a room where women might eat was suggested. The idea spread rapidly, for the new woman was stirring very uneasily under the hampering conventionality which shackled her. Paris caught it, too, although it never became so fashionable there as in London, for Frenchwomen are freer than English ones so far as social customs go.

IN A TEA ROOM.

Meantime the tea room idea reached the United States. In Washington it is naturally popular. Both men and women friends meet to chat and imbibe Russian tea or whatever is their particular variety.

At least one or two tea rooms would prosper in any American city containing as many as 100,000 inhabitants, or less than that number if the people were of a well to do, leisure class. At the summer resorts these pleasant establishments would be as popular as in the cities. A woman desiring to embark in the business should herself understand making all kinds of cakes in the best homemade way. There is a demand for all, from the slice of pound-cake to the crisp cookies. The woman must also have a business head and know how to count up profit and loss. If she is able to make candy, too, so much the better. Homemade sweets are more dainty than those of the average confectioner.

Several ladies might go into partnership in the tea room enterprise, one understanding the business management of the place, the others knowing how to prepare the confections. High coloring and cheap flavors are especially to be avoided in tea room confections. The furniture should be very simple and of the bamboo or wicker variety. Heavy effects in upholstery or anything else are to be avoided. All must be light, cheerful and pretty. The front windows should be made particularly inviting to the outside glimpse. Tables large enough, some for a tete-a-tete of two, others for three and four persons, are requisite. A tea room could be very successfully conducted in connection with a woman's exchange, where the business experience necessary to operate it is already attained.

The owner of a large tea room business in London calculates that the gross profit on all cakes sold amounts to 48 per cent; on candies, or "sweets," as the British call them, 70 per cent, and on tea 75 per cent. Out of these profits must come the wages of employees, the rent and all other expenses.

Of course some capital is necessary in beginning, at least $500 even for a very small tea room. The china and linen must be dainty. In leading tea rooms of Paris Japanese paper napkins are used. The best preparatory experience for running a tea room, outside of actual service in such an establishment, is a certain amount of familiarity with the manufacturing confectioner's trade.

In addition to the regular tea room service it would be easy to conduct a catering business. Women's clubs in many cases simply order their afternoon tea refreshments from caterers, and a tea room conducted by women would be well patronized on such occasions. Then, too, there are many of homes and afternoons and even evening receptions where the woman caterer would be very welcome.

MARY EDITH DAY.

LITTLE FRANCE

A ROMANCE OF THE DAYS WHEN "THE GREAT LORD HAWKE" WAS KING OF THE SEA

BY

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Reuben James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

Copyright, 1901, by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

"Mademoiselle," cried the unhappy Frenchman, drawing himself up and turning to the girl, who stood spellbound before the appalling display of the fury and passion of the people, "I swear to you upon my honor that I am innocent! Vive la nouvelle France! Say that you believe me before I am taken! On my soul I believe this rabble intends to kill me!"

Anne de Rohan hesitated. Honesty rang in the young man's voice, honor looked out of his eyes—and love too—yet things looked suspicious.

"Well, will you come with us peaceably, or——" interrupted the sergeant, with a grim and menacing gesture.

"One moment, my friend," cried the young man lightly, having recovered his coolness and having discovered the folly of expostulation.

He looked appealingly at the young woman.

"I believe you," said Anne de Rohan, suddenly extending her hand to him. "Messeiurs," she cried, turning to the crowd, "Monsieur de Vitre gives me his word of honor that——"

"Oh, bah!" exclaimed the sergeant, "the honor of a traitor to the woman he loves!"

"Let us kill him where he stands!" shouted one.

"To the lantern with him!" roared another.

"No, my brave friends," said the sergeant coolly, "order if you please. He goes to the governor. Come, monsieur. Fall back, gentlemen, and give way. A moi, mes camarades."

"Mademoiselle," said de Vitre hurriedly, as the soldiers surrounded him and prepared to force a way through the crowd, "I can now face anything with a light heart. You believe in me. Take care of that gentleman yonder, he is a friend of mine."

As he spoke, the soldiers seized him by the arm and hustled him down the street toward the Chateau St. Louis, the residence of the governor, where de Ramesay sat in hurried consultation with the officers over the defense of the stricken town. The crowd, after a few curious glances, followed the soldiers and left the prostrate Englishman alone on the doorstep.

The young woman turned again to the man on the step. He was wounded, perhaps dying. The bullet which struck him in the back had passed completely through his shoulder, and his shirt was stained with blood. There was a deep cut through the sleeve of his coat also, and his arm lay in a little pool of the same deadly fluid. His face was covered with blood from a slight wound on his forehead, and earth-stained as well from the muddy unpaved street where he had fallen. He was a hideous spectacle. Yet, though a foeman, he was wounded and helpless.

She knelt beside him, and seeing at a glance that the wound in his face was superficial, with not unskillful fingers she rapidly opened his waistcoat and tore open his shirt. Yes, there was the dangerous wound. Blood was still oozing from it. She had assisted the good sisters in nursing the sick and wounded during the siege, and the gruesome sight was not unfamiliar to her. The wound must be attended to at once. Raising her voice, she called through the little hallway:

"Josette! Jean-Renaud, hither!"

Immediately a buxom young woman made her appearance at the door in obedience to her mistress' call.

"Water, quick, Josette, and get Jean-Renaud! Here is a gentleman wounded, a friend of Monsieur de Vitre."

"Jean-Renaud is not in the house, mademoiselle. He went to the St. Louis Gate to——"

"I am here," exclaimed a deep, rough voice, as a burly old man wearing the livery of the de Rohans came around the corner. "We have lost the battle. Monsieur de Montcalm is mortally wounded, as is Monsieur de Senezergues, and Monsieur de St. Ours is killed."

"Peace, Jean-Renaud. I will hear your news in a moment. Meanwhile carry this gentleman to my chamber."

Jean Renaud stooped down and lifted up the slight form of the stranger, who lay in his arms as if he had been a boy. He carried him upstairs and deposited him upon a great bed in a low-ceiled chamber lighted by a dormer window. While his mistress, with the assistance of Josette, busied herself below in preparing such homely medicaments as their experience could devise, Jean-Renaud removed the clothes from Grafton and put him regularly in bed. Then he examined his wounds with the skill of an old campaigner.

Presently mademoiselle, followed by the maid, entered the room. With her own hands she assisted in washing the wounds and putting on some temporary bandages. As she did so she did not fail to note around the neck of the young Englishman a little chain of gold from which was suspended a leather case, evidently containing a locket.

"Shall I take this off also?" asked Jean-Renaud, lifting the chain, as they passed the bandages.

"No, leave it there. 'Tis probably the picture of one he loves. Will he live, think you, Jean-Renaud?"

"I know not, mademoiselle. 'Tis a rough wound, and he has lost much blood."

"A pity. But let us hope," murmured the girl thoughtfully.

The place where the bed stood was far from the window and in a subdued light, so she had not yet had a fair view of the face of the wounded man. Indeed, they had been so busy that they did not have time to wash his face, hence she had not recognized him.

"It were best to go for the surgeon, mademoiselle," remarked Josette, gazing at the Englishman with sympathetic interest, as Jean-Renaud tied the last bandage about the cut in his arm.

"A good suggestion. Go you, Jean-Renaud; and Josette, lock the street-door and see that things are looked after downstairs. 'Tis like to be a day of trouble. The soldiers are filling the street, and we had a sample of their temper but a moment since. Beg Dr. Arnoux to come quickly, Jean Renaud, and hasten yourself, for when you return you must accompany me to the governor in behalf of Monsieur de Vitre. Hand me that basin, Josette, and the cloth. I will wash this blood and earth from the face of the poor man."

CHAPTER XIII.

GRAFTON COMES BACK TO THE LOSE.

THE two servants, in obedience to her orders, left her alone with the wounded man. He had not recovered consciousness, and save for a few feeble moans, while they were working over his more serious wounds, he had given no evidence of life. She had not given any thought to cleansing his face until the bandaging and necessary work had been done. But now she sat down beside him, and dipping the cloth in the water tenderly wiped the earth stains from his cheek and the coagulated blood from the slight wound in his forehead.

As his features were thus disclosed to her in the dim light she suddenly stopped and bent over him in great surprise. Her heart almost stopped beating. Was it he? Could it be? She was not sure. It was so dark in the alcove behind the draperies of the bed, and the hangings were not drawn from before the window. Setting the basin down, she ran to the window and tore open the curtains.

The midday sunlight streamed into the chamber and lighted the corner where the bed stood. She turned and threw back the hangings with a nervous hand. The light fell full upon his face. With a low cry she recognized him. It was Grafton, Sir Philip, her knight of old! Oh, thank God for it! Come back to her after all these years—yet in this way, in such a plight!

She stood in silence after that first exclamation and gazed upon him, her heart, her soul in her eyes. At first she forgot the intervening years, she forgot the uniform he wore, she forgot he was an enemy; she remembered only that he had come back to her. His memory had been in her heart since those childish days. She had thought of him, dreamed of him, longed for him, ay! if the truth were admitted—she had loved him. Love! But could she love the enemy of France! Could a de Rohan mate with one of the hated English! She must put him out of her heart. Could she——

Merciful heavens, what idle thoughts were these! He was dying before her eyes. She leaned over him and called him, softly, tenderly, passionately. He did not stir, and he had told her in olden times that she might summon him from the grave and he would come at the sound of her voice. She spoke to him again and again, but he did not heed.

There was a prie-dieu near the head of the bed. She turned and sank to her knees before it, prayed earnestly for him with such fervor and intensity as did not usually find place in her maidenly petitions. Then she came back to the bedside and stood looking at him, despair in her heart lest he should die, slip away, and make no sign. But there was nothing she could do, so she schooled herself to wait, and while she waited she studied him.

Suddenly her thoughts took another turn. The shirt in which Jean-Renaud had dressed Grafton was left slightly open at the neck on account of the bandage. The chain and the locket had been pushed aside and the locket lay on the pillow by the side of his face nearest her. Whose face was in the locket? her heart queried anxiously. Men did not usually wear lockets unless they loved. Ah! she snatched it up eagerly. In any event, she would not have been a woman if she had not earnestly desired to look in it, but now—the possibilities consumed her.

"I wonder who it may be?" she murmured to herself. "'Tis a pretty case." She peered impatiently, anxiously, jealously at it, turning it over and over in her hand. It fascinated her; she would have given worlds to look, and yet she could not bring herself to open it.

"Well, 'tis none of my affair, at any rate," she said at last, dropping it upon the pillow, but with great reluctance, "'tis nothing to me, and he is nothing. He can never be anything but a memory of my childhood. Pity," she went on, relentlessly striving to deceive her heart by stimulating an indifference to her feelings, "that so gallant a man should be laid low by such a mischance. Jean-Renaud says the shot struck him in the back—in the back—I wonder—but no, I know he is brave, and, besides, he is a friend of de Vitre's, and de Vitre is no coward, nor would he choose his friends from such." She broke away again in thought. "O God, how quiet he lies! Will he ever awaken from that deadly stupor, I wonder? I would the doctor were here! Poor Sir Philip, I—I—I don't want you to die!"

She laid her hand softly on his brow and he quivered under her touch. To her at that moment, she told herself, he was only the friend of her girlhood, her knight of the old tower, a comrade, wounded, helpless, dependent, suffering. It was a lie, she knew—and the Rohans never lied. What was the use of deceiving her; no matter what was in the locket, no matter whether he had forgotten her or no, whether he was false or true, she loved him!

"I love you! I love you!" she murmured.

It was the truth at last. The gates were open and the floods were out. She took his head in her hands and bent low over him. Why keep up the deception any longer? And in any case he would not see or hear, he would never know.

"I love you! I love you! I love you!" she said again and again.

He was dying perhaps. Well, better so. He could never be anything to her; those two had nothing in common but the memory of a past, and perhaps he had not even that—that locket—but at least she could love—dead or alive—forever. She bent nearer to him. Her hair—how he had praised it!—brushed his cheek; her eyes—how he had admired them!—gazed into his own, half-shut and dull.

She drew still nearer. With a growing courage she kissed him. She laid her lips softly upon his forehead, then shrank back affrighted at what she had done. A burning flush suffused her cheek again. Aghast she withdrew a little from him and forced herself to sit down. So she watched him with eyes brimming, bosom heaving, heart beating, and with words of prayer and caress mingling in her soul.

Presently he stirred slightly and opened his eyes, at first slowly, and then wider while he stared about him in bewilderment. As she saw this evidence of returning life her heart bounded with hope, but she shrank back farther in the shadow. He must not see her. He must not know. He could not—she was so changed, and he would never find out that they had met. He could go back to the lady of the locket.

In a little while he lifted his unwounded arm and felt eagerly for the little case hanging from the chain about his neck. His expression of anxiety gave place to one of relief as he found it. Ah, she was right, then! How she hated that pictured woman, whoever she might be! He had forgotten her. He should never know. She steeled her heart against him, closed her lips, turned away her head, and made no sound.

As his eyes roamed about the room with an expression of vague wonder in them, he did not at first see her. When he did he recalled her face, but only as it had bent over him in that momentary return to consciousness on the doorstep, was it moments, or hours, or weeks, ago? He stared at her in silence for a moment and then strove to rise. He fell back, however, with the pain from the effort. A groan burst from his lips.

"You are not to rise," she said quickly, stepping over to the bed and laying her hand upon him—how her heart responded to this living touch—"you are to lie perfectly quiet."

She strove vainly to compose her voice in spite of her agitation. She clinched her hand resolutely, determined not to betray herself. She kept her head slightly turned away. If he looked at her as of old, if he pleaded with her, she felt that she could not withstand him.

"Yes," she added, in response to the look of inquiry in his face, "you are in Quebec. A soldier brought you. You fell at my door."

"The battle?" he whispered.

"Fortune was with you this time, monsieur," she answered sadly, "and my countrymen were defeated."

"Thank you, mademoiselle," replied Grafton, "but I must go."

"But you are a prisoner. We still hold the city."

ASUNCION BOMBARDED.

Three Insurgent Vessels Pour Shell Fire Into the City.

BUENOS AYRES, Aug. 19.—Three insurgent vessels bombarded Asuncion the capital of Paraguay, last night for forty minutes.

The government artillery replied to the insurgents, and one gun burst wounding several government soldiers.

The ministers of Argentina, Brazil Italy and France boarded one of the insurgent vessels and held a long and secret conference, at the end of which a truce of twenty-four hours was declared in order to give the women and children an opportunity to leave the capital before further bombardment. Absolute reserve is maintained in regard to the conference, but it is said that the ministers protested to the insurgent leaders against the bombardment.

Government scouts returning to Asuncion were mistaken for insurgents and fired on. Twenty of them were wounded.

The government has a force of 5,000 soldiers, 500 of whom are armed with Remington rifles.

Panic prevails at Asuncion. Women are preparing to attend the wounded.

It is impossible to obtain accurate details of the bombardment, as communication is completely cut off.

Anglo-American Jubilee.

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 19.—Commander Goodrich, commanding the British squadron in Pacific waters, invited the officers and men of the American cruisers New York and Marblehead, now in Esquimalt harbor, aboard the British cruiser Grafton, flagship of the squadron, for an entertainment. The occasion was one of the happiest ever seen in this station, the British and American tars fraternizing in the most enthusiastic manner. The bands of the New York and Grafton provided the music, and the warships were all gayly decorated and brilliantly illuminated. At parting all the ships' company sang "Auld Lang Syne" and the national anthems of Great Britain and the United States.

Negro, if Caught, May Be Lynched.

MEGGETTO, S. C., Aug. 19.—Allen Porter Heathington, eighteen years old, son of M. J. Heathington, was shot and killed by a negro named Sam Brown in the Toogoodoo neighborhood, Colleton county. Young Heathington was remonstrating with Brown about some work when the negro drew a pistol and shot him in the head. The killing has caused intense excitement. The whole county is being scoured by posses, and the negro's capture is hourly expected. Bloodhounds were secured from Charleston and are on the trail. Troops may be called out to prevent a lynching.

Reinger Pleaded Not uilty.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 19.—A detective has reached Kansas City with Joseph L. Reinger, president of the Reinger Lumber company, arrested in South Haven, Mich., on a warrant charging him with embezzlement. Reinger was arraigned before a justice of the peace and pleaded not guilty. In default of $10,000 bail he was remanded for trial next Thursday.

PARKER WILL GO TO ST. LOUIS

American Bar Association Meets In September—May Go West.

ESOPUS, Aug. 19.—Judge Parker's guests included Senator Lee S. Overman of North Carolina, Dr. Henry Loomis Nelson of Williams college Representative J. J. Fitzgerald of Brooklyn and Judge Morgan J. O'Brien of New York, who is Judge Parker's closest personal and political friend. Judge O'Brien remained over night.

On account of the meeting of the American Bar association at St. Louis on Sept. 26, Judge Parker will probably go to the exposition at that time and not return to attend the New York day ceremonies, which will be held on Oct. 4.

It is not the plan now for Judge Parker to make any speeches on his way to St. Louis. Mrs. Parker will probably remain at the exposition for two weeks as the guest of Mrs. Daniel Manning, and it is likely that the judge will make a detour on his return in order to address political meetings in Indianapolis, Chicago and one or two other points. The suggestion has been made that after that Judge Parker should go on an extended stumping tour and continue until the day before election, but no decision has been reached in regard to this. His closing speech, if the trip is made, will probably be delivered in New York city.

ROD AND GUN.

John Walsh, Sr., of Madison avenue, and Jerry Callahan, of Richmond street, spent Wednesday fishing at Sewaren. Although they tried all the best known angling spots, they had exceptionally poor luck and returned empty-handed.

William Thorn, of the local postoffice, who is enjoying his vacation, landed an immense turtle while fishing at Bound Brook yesterday. It weighed twenty-three pounds and is considered one of the largest caught in this section. Thorn's friends are looking forward to a turtle soup dinner.

Local fishermen who visit the fishing grounds at Sewaren ascribe the excellent catches of fish made there recently to the absence of crabs from the waters of the vicinity. During the entire season very few crabs have been secured there, and for this reason fishermen's bait is left unmolested and each line is not beseiged by its individual army of crab bait robbers. Weakfish are reported as biting fast at the last of the ebb tide and the first of the flood.

COLORED GIANTS LOSERS

FLORODORAS WIN BY A SCORE OF 10 TO 9.

The Original Florodoras defeated the Plainfield Colored Giants in an exciting game on Crescent Oval yesterday afternoon. This is the first time during the season that the Colored Giants have been defeated. Shepard pitched phenomenal ball for the Florodoras and the heavy hitting Giants were able to secure but six hits, and the support given him was perfect. Several times the Colored Giants had men on bases and hits would have meant runs, but Shepard steadied down and the hits were not forthcoming. Hann made a fine catch of a high foul in the fourth inning. Sutton played his usual good game in right field. Jacot and Mullen made fine stops of hard hit ground balls. Moran in left field made a nice running catch of a long foul. Wallace played his usual good game on third base The Colored Giants are not satisfied with their defeat and will take another try at the Florodoras next week. They will secure a battery from the Cranford Colored Giants for the occasion.

"SPECIAL" TROLLEYS ONLY $3 PER HOUR

Excursions Becoming Popular Through the Reduced Price for Use of the Cars.

FAVORITE ROUTES

CHARGE FOR ACTUAL TIME CAR IS IN MOTION.

No Discrimination for Large or Small Trolley—Old Charge Was Twenty Dollars Net.

Included in a number of important changes recently made by the Public Service Corporation is the reduction of charges on special cars for excursion parties to nearby resorts or cities. Before the big combination was effected, Plainfielders could not procure a trolley conveyance outside of the regular schedule for less than $20, but with the new rates the cost has been decreased thirty per cent. Under the present system the charges are uniform—$3 per hour for the time the car is in actual service, that is while it is in motion. The result has been a greatly increased demand for "special" and picnic excursions from Plainfield are getting to be popular affairs.

Outing parties may get off at their destination and stay as long as they please without any fear that they are increasing the sum total of their bill for transportation, it being understood, of course, that they are not going to spend a summer vacation or play at skittles with the pleasant little gentleman who furnished Rip with his famous "night caps." There is no discrimination in charges for large or small cars.

Although the lessening of the rate to $3 per hour brings the per capita expense down very low, trips for short distances are the most popular, as longer distances would lengthen the time the cars would be in actual service and so increase the cost. Whatever the distance, the special trolley car furnishes a very cheap model of locomotion.

Somerville is the most distinct westerly point thus far touched by any trolley excursion from Plainfield, but in time it is planned to extend the service over the Middlesex and Somerset county lines. This will open up a territory partially new to trolley sightseers in this section and add to the present excursion trips, a scenic run to the banks of the historic Raritan, the Arcadia of Middlesex.

Some day, when the scientific sparring between the trolley officials and certain other officials down Woodbridge and Amboy way end in a decision for one side or the other, there is to be trolley connections across the mouth of the Raritan, joining the Amboys, and across Woodbridge creek. This will supply two missing links in a loop running from Westfield to Scotch Plains, Plainfield, Dunellen, Lincoln, Bound Brook, Riverside Park, New Brunswick, Milltown, South River, Sayreville, South Amboy, Perth Amboy, Boynton Beach, Woodbridge, Avenel, Rahway, Lenox, Picton and back to Westfield again. Except for the missing link at Woodbridge creek, there is a continuous loop now from Westfield to New Brunswick, by the same route as given above, from New Brunswick to Highland Park, Piscataway, Bonhamtown, Metuchen, Fords, Keasbey and Florida Grove to Perth Amboy and thence back to Westfield through Boynton Beach, etc.

What the future may bring forth in routes for special car trips is an interesting subject for speculation. Thus far it has not been found feasible to run special cars from Plainfield to Middlesex County or to southern points beyond Somerville. Such extended trips would in effect turn the trolley lines into scenic railway routes, for the time allowed for "laying over" at any point would be comparatively brief and the excursionists would have to find their chief enjoyment while on the wing.

Proof that the trolley company finds the special car service profitable would appear in the fact that it recently sent out a folder calling attention to the reduction in the rates. With an eye to business it has also fitted up of late four cars equipped with an array of lights.

Miss Bertha Needham, of the borough, and Miss Bessie Martin, of this city, leave today for Denver, Col., where they will visit Miss Needham's brother. They will afterwards visit the St. Louis Expcaition.

LOCAL MEN INVENT TROLLEY CAR FENDER

After Seven Years Work W. E. Smith and Edward Apgar Perfect the Device.

WORKS AUTOMATICALLY

BEING GIVEN A TRIAL IN TWO CITIES.

Brief Description of the Patented Arrangement—Is to be Seen Here Later.

After practically seven years of planning, modelling and improving, Walter E. Smith, of Dunellen, and Edward Apgar, of Johnson avenue, have ultimately placed on the market a patent trolley fender which is so simple and complete that its manufacture is pronounced by competent judges to be an important step toward the prevention of trolley accidents in future. The long period of work, commenced and largely carried on at the plant of the Aluminum Press Co., where both men are employed, recently reached a successful combination when the patent was finally granted from the Patent Office at Washington.

Simply explained, the fender, constructed of light steel rods, powerful springs, and a strong cord netting or bag, is an automatic life saver. The trolley fenders on the market today are so constructed that it is necessary for the motorman to lower the fender instantly on seeing a person on the track in order to prevent the person from going entirely under the car. In the new invention, the fender, when in position, is about three inches from the track. On striking an object, person, or animal on the track, certain springs are released and the foremost bar of the fender falls to the track, resting on wheels which run on the rails. The fall of the body upon the netting, which is somewhat tautly stretched, actuates certain other springs, and the entire fender is thrown backward and upward from the track to an angle of about forty-five degrees. This action throws the body backward to a position of safety in the netting. The especial merit of the invention lies in the fact that the entire action is automatic, all movement being by means of powerful springs, actuated by contact and weight.

Since the granting of the patent, the fender has had practical trials on trolleys at Wilkesbarre and Easton, and these trials have resulted in complete satisfaction to the trolley company and the city officials. Smith has recently completed arrangements for further trials to be made on the cars in this city about September first.

SCHOOL BIDS ARE AWARDED

CONTRACTS GIVEN FOR ERECTION OF BOROUGH'S PROPOSED BUILDING.

The Borough Board of Education held a special meeting last evening, for the purpose of finally passing on the bids for the erection of the new Somerset street school and awarding the contracts for the work as follows: Herman Hausen, carpentering, $10,571; William C. Smith, mason work, $14,400; D. J. Galbraith, plumbing, $585, Lambert B. Bodine, painting, $550; Craig & Apgar, electrical work, $464. Fuller & Warren, of New York, submitted the lowest bid for the heating and ventilating but as the material they propose using is not familiar to the members of the Board, they withheld the award until they could secure further details. Fuller & Warren's bid is $3,950.

The contract papers will be signed Monday evening and the successful bidders will have until February 1 to have the building ready for occupancy. The mid-year promotions are made at that time and the Board wishes to place the advanced pupils in their new quarters.

Remember Next Thursday.

The next excursion to Asbury Park will be the annual outing of Warren chapel, which will take place Thursday. The Warren chapel people are the last to go this year and will stay at the shore until later than any, leaving the Asbury Park station at 6:10 for the return. The train will leave the North avenue station at 8 in the morning.

P. H. Bennett and family, of Duer street, are at Bensonhurst, Long Island, for a couple of weeks.

REPUBLICANS ARRANGE FOR STATE CONVENTION

Edward C. Stokes to be Nominated at Trenton on Tuesday, September 20.

STATE HEADQUARTERS

ONE DELEGATE FOR EVERY 200 VOTES CAST.

Senator Kean Present at Meeting of State Executive Committee—The Proceedings Transacted.

The Executive Committee of the Republican State Committee met yesterday in the house of the Republican Club, in Trenton, and decided to call the State convention for the nomination of a Governor on Tuesday, September 20, in the State Street Theatre, in that city. This is the same building in which the Democratic convention will be held and it was chosen because the committee understood that the Taylor Opera House could not be obtained for that day.

When the meeting had adjourned it was said that this was a mistake, and that the opera house could be had for September 20. Some of the committee went to see if that was so, and it may be that the place of holding the convention will be changed, as the committee consider the opera house better adapted for convention purposes.

State Treasurer Frank O. Briggs, chairman of the State committee, presided at the meeting and those present were United States Senator John Kean, Thomas N. McCarter, Essex; C. E. Breckenridge, Bergen, and Daniels S. Voorhees, Morris, members of the executive committee.

The members of the committee absent were: Governor Murphy, Representative John J. Gardner, Atlantic; Secretary of State Samuel D. Dickinson, Hudson; David Baird, Camden, and Robert Williams, Passaic.

Former Senator Edward C. Stokes was also present, as was J. Herbert Potts, of Hudson, the new secretary of the committee. In the call for the convention which Mr. Potts was authorized to issue, the representation is somewhat changed.

It will be apportioned under the new primary law and will provide for one delegate for every 200 votes cast by the Republicans for their candidate for Governor at the election of 1901, and one delegate for each fraction over 100 votes.

But any ward or township or borough having cast at the last Gubernatorial election less than two hundred votes for the Republican candidates shall be entitled to cast such fractional part of a vote in convention as may be determined by the respective county committees of the State.

It was decided to locate temporary headquarters in Trenton and to leave the question of permanent headquarters to be determined hereafter.

There was a strong sentiment in favor of locating in Trenton with a branch headquarters at Newark. Mr. Stokes and Chairman Briggs are known to favor this plan, as both reside in Trenton, and time which they would consume in traveling back and forth from Trenton to Newark or Jersey City could be spent here to better advantage.

No official action was taken in the matter of the colored members of the State committee.

A committee of colored Republicans, headed by Charles Hawkins, the colored newspaper writer of Elizabeth, was admitted to the meeting and allowed to present the claims of Alfred E. Cosey, a colored lawyer of Newark.

NO GAME.

Plainfield Forced to Cancel Contest With the Royal Giants.

Not wishing to be hampered by "Lake Mumford" again today, Manager Johnson, of the Plainfields, sent word to the Royal Giants this morning and cancelled this afternoon's game. An inspection of the field proved that it would be impossible to put up any kind of a game there, even in the event of clear weather later. Part of the outfield was under water and the ground was heavy and slow. The management has had great luck this season with their games, as this is the first postponement which has been necessary.

Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Starkweather, of Second place left today for Columbia, Me., to remain three weeks.

Notice Also Served on North Plainfield Township Authorities to Investigate Obstruction at Herrmann's Pond.

Following a conference between Chairman James K. Arnold, of the Borough Council street committee, and Dr. J. H. Cooley, last night, the latter agreed to make alterations to his dam and property on upper Somerset street, to lessen the trouble which occurs at that point after every heavy rain. Dr. Cooley will either remove the dam altogether or build a retaining wall along Stony brook to keep it within its course and prevent the damaging overflow into adjoining yards and streets.

The conference and agreement ends a controversy which has been carried on between Dr. Cooley and the borough authorities for a long time. The former's property is located on Somerset street at the foot of the mountain and Stony brook flows along in the front part of it. In order to use water from the stream the Doctor built a small dam across it and in course of time the channel became choked up with gravel. The brook runs parallel with Somerset street all the way through the "Notch" as far as the Cooley place and then makes a sudden bend below the dam and off into the lowlands. When a heavy rain occourred, the stream would rise and because of the dam and shallow channel would rush out into Somerset street, over yards and cause a great deal of damage.

The recent two bad storms left the entire vicinity in a bad state and when the matter was brought up in the Borough Council it was first suggested to bring suit against Dr. Cooley. Afterward a motion was passed to the effect that Chairman Arnold confer with him and if nothing was done then legal action could be taken. The Doctor's agreement of last night renders further proceedings unnecessary.

Chairman Arnold has also served notice on the North Plainfield Township authorities that they must have something done with the dam at Herrmann's pond in the "Notch" which has been making trouble for borough property owners.

ENCORED LA VERE'S WORK

BUT AUDIENCE NOT SO APPRECIATIVE AS GENERALLY.

The programme of the band concert last night was interrupted by a slight shower just before the closing selection. In spite of the uncertain weather, a large crowd assembled to hear the music, but at the first sign of rain they scattered in all directions. The audience was not as appreciative as others have been, though some numbers were applauded vigorously.

Ben LaVere's cornet solo, "The Holy City," was greeted with hearty applause, and as an encore he played "Blue Bell." William Corcoran failed to appear, though George Offerman was accorded his usual reception. He sang "Isn't it Nice to Have Some One to Love You" and "Oysters and Clams" in a thoroughly enjoyable manner.

The instrumental part of the programme was altered in several respects and a few unannounced numbers inserted.

Honored Captain Hand.

In the big parade of veterans at the G. A. R. re-union in Boston this week, Captain William Hand, of East Second street, carried the colors of the New Jersey state department. The honor was accorded him by the head officers and was greatly appreciated by the entire Plainfield delegation.

Dunellen-Clinton Avenue.

Phil Smith, the Plainfield High School twirler, will be on the slab for Dunellen against Clinton Avenue this afternoon. Davis, behind the bat, plays well with his schoolmate and uses good judgment in helping him sort over the curves that the Dunellen boy uses when he makes his strikeouts.

FANWOOD CITIZENS TO ABATE NUISANCE

Township Committee to Take Action Against Glazier's Fat Factory.

TO PRESENT PETITION

AUTHORITIES MUST FRAME AN ORDINANCE FIRST.

State Board of Health Gives Instructions to the Fanwood Officials—Proceedings Forthcoming.

Residents of Fanwood township, particularly those in the lower end near Alton, are up in arms over the fat factory owned and operated by Theodore Glazier and situated on the Raritan road. They have been seeking its removal for a long time and after appealing in vain to the township and State Boards of Health are now circulating a petition which is to be presented to the Township Committee. Already a large number of names have been secured and it is certain that the authorities will give it their earnest consideration.

Glazier is the dealer who purchases the greater part of the waste scraps from local butchers and they are rendered into fat at the factory which he erected in the township several years ago. There was some opposition to its establishment at the time but it did not amount to anything and soon passed over. Realizing what it meant to property interests to have such a factory nearby, Glazier sought by installing modern machinery and various devices to overcome the objectionable features and partially succeeded. This entailed a great expense and his plant is now worth several thousand dollars.

When the nearby property owners began to agitate the matter stronger than ever a short time ago, they sent a complaint to the Township Committee. The officials sent it to the Board of Health and the latter finding it had no authority to act, referred it to the State Board. This organization sent it back with instructions to have the Township Committee frame a suitable ordinance under which it could act and this is the plan that is now to be followed out. The petition being circulated asks that the proper action be taken in order to give the Board of Health a chance to map out its course.

CO. K IS HIGHLY HONORED

LOCAL MILITIA TO TRY FOR REGIMENTAL TEAM.

The fine marksmanship of the Company K boys has not been without its reward, for a letter received by First Lieutenant Lewis from Lieutenant Colonel J. A. Cline, of the Second Regiment, request that eight of the best shooters in the company go to Sea Girt to try for the Regimental team. In former years this team was usually composed of the officers of the several companies on account of the fact that they have been the only ones who have had a chance to compete for a position on the team. The officers have not always been the best shooters but heretofore the State has not seen fit to pay the expenses of the privates and non-commissioned men.

The members of the local company have made a very superior record which can be appreciated when the fact is considered that there are all the other State companies to choose from and that the local company has eight competitors. This is an unusually large number to be allowed from one company and it is safe to say that no other company with the exception possible of Company L, of Princeton, will be given so good a chance.

Those of the local company whose good shooting has won them a chance for the Regimental team are the following: Sergeant A. F. Randolph, Sergeant A. R. Phillips, Sergeant N. Hort and Privates R. Goldsach, J. Frasee, E. Porst, J. B. Conkling and J. F. Brennan.

The trial shoot will take place on August 29 and 30, and the best twelve men out of the list of competitors will be chosen to represent the Regiment.

CAPT. G. D. MORRISON SUCCUMBS TO TYPHOID

Seafaring Man Dies From Disease Contracted While in Philadelphia Harbor.

AGED SIXTY-TWO

MUCH INTERESTED IN RELIGIOUS WORK IN THIS CITY.

Commanded First Boat Sent Out by the American-Hawaiian Line—Had Lived Here Twenty Years.

After an illness of eight weeks with typhoid fever, Captain George D. Morrison passed away at his home on Plainfield avenue, early this morning. He fell a victim to the disease while in Philadelphia at which port he touched while returning from a long sea voyage. He was quickly removed to this city and though at times he seemed to rally, his condition practically grew worse until the end.

Captain Morrison was sixty-two years old and was a Canadian by birth. The sea had an attraction for him and when but sixteen years old made a voyage that was the predecessor of scores of others. He worked his way up until he acquired a thorough knowledge of marine life and routes, and when the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company was formed he was selected to take out its first vessel. This concern is one of the largest in the American shipping trade and Captain Morrison was always entrusted with its largest cargoes and craft. He made long trips to every part of the world and his duties were discharged with a faithfulness that won him recognition from employers and competitors.

Twenty years ago Captain Morrison removed to Plainfield and though his occupation prevented him from becoming identified with its municipal affairs, he was widely known for his interest in religious circles. He was a prominent member of the First Presbyterian church and when at home devoted much of his time to its advancement. He frequently addressed Christian gatherings in various parts of the city and his quiet, earnest way of expounding Biblical truths brought him many warm friends. Of recent years his ocean voyages were to far Eastern ports and it was while returning from one of these that he contracted the fever which caused his demise.

Surviving him are a widow, three daughters, the Misses Agnes, M. Josephine and Linda Morrison and one son, George Morrison, Jr.

MRS. A. I. SMALLEY HURT

THROWN FROM A CARRIAGE AND KNOCKED UNCONSCIOUS.

As the result of carelessness on the part of a reckless driver, Mrs. A. I. Smalley, of Somerset street, narrowly escaped serious injury last evening while attending the band concert. Mrs. Smalley and her daughter were sitting in a buggy on Chatham street when a runabout passed them, and without judging the distance, the driver ran into the back wheel of Mrs. Smalley's rig, smashing the wheel and upsetting the wagon.

Mrs. Smalley was thrown heavily out of the buggy and in falling struck her head on the sidewalk. She was rendered unconscious by the fall and was carried to a nearby piazza. She soon regained consciousness and was taken home in a cab. On examination no serious injuries were discovered, though there were several bruises about the head and shoulders.

With a thoughtlessness characteristic of poor horsemen, the driver of the runabout went on his way, not even stopping to inquire into the extent of the damage done.

Carnival Company Coming.

The usual season at Galvin's Park closes the first week in September and the removal of the regular attractions will be followed by the entrance of the Gaskill-Monday Carnival Company, one of the largest enterprises of its kind in the country. It is somewhat akin to a circus, travelling in cars and giving all manner of exhibitions. The company will remain at the park for one week.

A baby boy has come to brighten the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Brokaw, formerly of this city but now of Irvington, N. J.

"LEW" THOMAS ASSAILS POLICY IN PHILLIPPINES

Former Plainfield Newspaper Man Writes Drastically of Government's Methods.

CORRUPTION RAMPANT

AMERICA SHOULD GIVE ITS CITIZENS A CHANCE HE SAYS.

If Our Flag is Hauled Down "Lew" Will Join Others in Becoming Naturalized Subjects of England He Declares.

Strong condemnation of the United States' attitude toward the Philippines and disapproval of government affairs in the islands has been expressed by Lewis S. Thomas, a former local newspaper man who was appointed a teacher at Manila several years ago. In a letter to Wilson Fredrick, of Dunellen, he speaks very plainly of the situation from the standpoint of one who has studied it carefully and his opinion of the native Filipino is anything but favorable.

"The Americans residing near me," the letter states, "have practically lost all interest in the States' politics. It is not because they are disgusted with their own people and their government, but because they see no relief over here from any of the parties. Some of us see nothing in the future but a declaration of independence for the Filipino, others seem to think if Roosevelt is elected we are to have a change for the better. That can come but in one way. Make the Filipino understand who is 'boss' and that he is not 'it.' Let the American have a chance to grow up with the country. Why has there not been any American emigration here? It is only because the government will not give us a chance. What could a private citizen here do against the native official if the people in power suspend a good man from office on the mere word of a Filipino. This was done here and the government lost a good Provincial Treasurer who had worked against odds to do something. There has been three years of Civil Government here with native officials in the municipality and there has not been one dollar's worth of work spent on public improvements. All the taxes go for salaries and the men don't earn them.

"I expect to go into business for myself soon in the way of growing hemp and coffee and trading. There are several of us who are going in together and do you think one of us would remain an American citizen in case the American flag was hauled down? Not much—we'd all turn to England, a country that takes care of its citizens, vide the history of the American people. The United States is too narrow to understand where its advantage lies in improving the islands. We over here could raise enough coffee, that would put Brazil to shame in quality, to supply all the states. Our coffee as it is shows up well beside that of Java. The states could control the hemp product for the whole world. We could furnish enough cacao to supply every family with chocolate for breakfast every morning. We have other products that could be put to use but—the government puts a discount upon anything like American progress and discountenances anything like American immigration. If the commissioners had spent $75,000 in importing American families instead of carrying over to America a lot of half-breed, veneered Filipinos to be a poppy show at an Exposition it would have done some good. For let it be known that after a three years' residence here I am obliged to acknowledge that there is very little depth to the Filipino character. He's nice so long as you are not in business or let him alone, but try to do anything and he bucks you. He does not want to work. Of course they want to be educated, then they won't have to do any hard labor.

"But we are hoping that there will soon be a railroad out to the hemp country. The army will need it to subdue the Moros. These latter pretty nearly made Pershing a Brigadier-General and they are still fighting and Wood does not punish them enough. What does it amount to to kill a few hundred of them, burn their houses and then withdraw. Keep at them until they have had all they can take. A Moro is a dirty blot on the face of the earth, without morals, religion, truth, gratitude or any virtue, savage or civilized."

THE REVOLT IN PARAGUAY.

Insurgents 2,000 Strong Are Approaching Asuncion.

BUENOS AYRES, Aug. 20.—The insurgents have seized another steamer which had on board the minister of war and a small escort. The minister and his companions were made prisoners.

The vessel was towing four lighters loaded with 190 bullocks for the garrison. These were confiscated.

At the conference on board one of the insurgent steamers, after the bombardment of Asuncion, between the ministers of Argentina, Brazil, Italy and France and the insurgent leaders the latter said that after the ministers left the vessel they would fire two more shots, one at the residence of President Ezcurra and the other at the church concealing the battery, in order to demonstrate the excellence of their artillery.

The shots were fired, and both the president's residence and the church were hit.

No further bombardment has been reported.

The insurgent commander with 2,000 land forces is outside of Asuncion.

One of the insurgent steamers has sailed for the Villa Hayes, north of the capital.

The Villa Hayes is the only point which can now be communicated with. Asuncion is completely isolated.

The foreign ministers offered their intervention, to which offer the insurgent leaders replied that they would permit President Ezcurra to continue in office, but would demand the resignation of the ministers and other high officials of the government.

The insurgents' terms were conveyed to the government officials and promptly declined.

The insurgents then sent an ultimatum demanding the surrender of the capital within twenty-four hours, saying that should this demand be not granted, the bombardment of Asuncion would be resumed.

BLACK HAND GANG.

Police Hope to Capture Kidnapers Through Mannino's Tale.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Antonio Mannino, the Brooklyn boy kidnaped by the Black Hand society and held for ten days, demanding a ransom of $50,000, has given the police information which, it is said by Police Captain Rooney, will lead to the capture of the rest of his kidnapers and bring about the exposure of the Black Hand society's secrets.

The boy's statements to the police prove beyond doubt that he was kidnaped by the Black Hand society and that the kidnaping was a gigantic conspiracy.

The boy was taken to the Butler street court by the police to appear against the three men and one woman arrested in connection with the kidnaping. These prisoners are Angelo Cucozza, the Italian who confessed that he lured the boy from his home; Negligio and his wife, who were arrested on information furnished by Cucozza; Galiti, who is suspected of being one of the gang of kidnapers, and Salvatore Mannino.

Statements made by young Mannino convince the police that relatives of Mannino were in the blackmailing conspiracy. They are convinced also that the kidnapers were treating with James Mannino, the father of the boy, within two hours of the time the boy was found.

Steel Gondola to Guard Miners.

ZEIGLER, Ill., Aug. 20.—A rapid fire gun from the north blockhouse here has been placed in a steel gondola, and, manned by four gunners doubly armed with revolvers and magazine rifles, has been added to a company of twenty-five Zeigler guards and sent out as escort to frightened trainmen who refused to go through Christopher without sufficient protection. The train returned bringing twenty-six nonunion mine workers. The train met with no armed opposition.

Ten Hippodromes to Go Up.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The immense hippodrome that is being built on the Sixth avenue block from Forty-third to Forty-fourth street, this city, while it will be the first of the kind in the country, will not be the only one. Elmer S. Dundy of the firm of Thompson & Dundy has made a statement to the effect that it was the intent of the firm to erect similar hippodrome buildings for circus performances in the ten principal cities of the United States.

Cotton Mill Manager a Suicide.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 20.—William J. Montgomery, vice president and general manager of the Georgia Cotton Mill company, shot and killed himself at his office here last night. He was sitting in his private office and had just been conversing with his office force, who had left him. The ball entered his mouth and ranging upward penetrated the brain, causing instant death. No cause for the act has been given.

Rich Cargo From the Orient.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.—The Pacific Mail steamer Siberia has arrived from the orient with a valuable cargo. A lot of raw silk valued at $402,000 was listed on her manifest, while in her treasure tank was Japanese gold aggregating $950,000. This coin comes from Japan for the purchase of supplies for the army.

Drowned In Owasco Lake.

AUBURN, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Raymond Smith, eighteen years old, of Clark's Summit, Ia., who had been a guest of his uncle, Frank E. Swift, was drowned in Owasco lake. Smith was in bathing and leaped from a raft, when he was attacked by cramps and drowned before help could reach him.

ST. LOUIS TORNADO

World's Fair City Damaged by Windstorm.

SWEPT ONLY ALONG NARROW PATH

Exposition Buildings and Grounds Escaped — Two Lives Reported Lost—Many Injured—Property Damage $100,000.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 20.—A sudden gale of wind, lasting about three minutes, caused considerable damage in north St. Louis, and six men were injured by being caught beneath the smokestack of the Neidringhaus planing mill, which crushed through the roof under which the men were working. The wind came without warning.

The police reported two persons killed and more than twenty injured in the residence sections surrounding the manufacturing district.

John Ellington is dead, Louis M. McCullough had a leg broken, and W. Bigger was badly cut and bruised.

The wind assumed the proportions of a tornado in a small area, forming a narrow lane from a point about five blocks west of the river to the water's edge.

Witnesses say that the storm cloud came in the shape of a funnel and that when it reached the river it bounded across and that several houses on the Illinois side were seen unroofed and considerable damage was reported at Madison, Venice and at other small towns near the river.

Telegraph poles for a distance of five blocks on Broadway were mowed down one after another as weeds before a scythe.

Roofs were blown from houses. Trolley and feed wires and smaller wires were blown down. Trees were uprooted.

The air was filled with flying timbers and splinters and with debris and dust. The people were stricken with terror. As many as had time sought shelter in cellars.

The storm passed almost as quickly as it came, leaving the people dazed from its suddenness.

The residence of A. Albrecht at Twenty-third and Palm streets was unroofed. The house of a family named Frazer on Palm street near Twenty-third street was unroofed.

The property damage is estimated at $100,000. Herman Sauerwine, aged ten, was, it is believed, fatally injured.

A shower had passed over St. Louis earlier in the day, but there had been no rain in north St. Louis. The sky had cleared and the atmosphere had become very murky and hot when citizens in north St. Louis noticed a dark cloud approaching from the southwest. Suddenly and without the slightest premonition an arm seemed to shoot to the ground like a gigantic cable, twisting and turning. The end touched the ground at Nineteenth and Angelrodt streets and with incredible swiftness and force swept east along Angelrodt street for ten blocks, then turned north and swept three blocks along Broadway, when it jumped eight blocks northeast to the foot of Breman street and the river, where considerable property along the river front was destroyed. The tornado then jumped to about the middle of the river and encountered a ferryboat, which was turned and tossed about, but was not sunk.

Leaving the ferry, the tornado once more jumped and struck the Illinois shore near Madison, where it demolished several dwellings, the Leiderkranz hall and blew down a portion of the Madison Cooperage works, killing John Ellington. Severe damage was done also to buildings in Venice and Granite City, which adjoin Madison, and a number of persons were injured.

So quickly did the tornado sweep through north St. Louis that the citizens could scarcely comprehend what had happened, and in the stillness that followed the wind cries were heard on all sides as terror stricken people ran about the streets. Not a telegraph, telephone or trolley pole was left standing along the streets swept by the storm.

Not the slightest damage was done at the world's fair grounds. The exposition is situated over five miles from the seat of the tornado, and the wind was not felt there.

Tornado Killed Two at Venice, Ill.

VENICE, Ill., Aug. 20.—Two were killed and ten injured by the tornado that swept from north St. Louis across the river to this section late last night.

The Cabinet Breaking Up.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—In a few days the president and all chiefs of departments will have left Washington. Secretary Hay is about to return to New Hampshire to complete the vacation which was interrupted by the trouble with Turkey; Secretaries Taft and Wilson are going to New England to deliver some speeches in the Vermont and Maine campaigns, and Postmaster General Payne will leave Sunday for his home in Wisconsin, to be absent for ten days or two weeks. The other five members of the cabinet already are absent from the capital. President Roosevelt will go to Oyster Bay, to remain until Sept. 20.

Senator Hoar's Condition.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 20.—Late last night General Rockwood Hoar said Senator Hoar was resting quietly and would probably continue to do so during the night. He had been given a very little opiate to insure rest. The trouble in his left lung has not spread and on the contrary has not disappeared. The senator's condition is still very serious. He has been informed of the multitude of messages of sympathy and is deeply moved by them.

JAPS ENTER CHEFU

Steamer Taken From Chinese Port by Destroyers.

STOESSEL MAKING A FINAL STAND

Gunboat of Otrajni Type Goes Down. German Troops Guard Kaiochau Coast—Russian Ships Must Leave Shanghai.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—Advices from Chefu say that Chinese from Port Arthur report the continuance of heavy fighting there. They say the Japanese have occupied Pigeon bay and are within striking distance of the Liaoti forts, which, however, are still occupied by the Russians.

According to the Chinese, the Russians at Port Arthur are making their final stand.

A cablegram from Chefu says that seven Japanese torpedo boat destroyers entered the harbor there and captured a steamer, name at present unknown. Two Japanese cruisers remained outside the harbor.

The naval attache at the Japanese consulate at Chefu has expressed the opinion that the Japanese destroyers were searching for the Russian cruisers Diana and Novik, which are now the only Russian warships not accounted for since the sortie from Port Arthur of Aug. 10, or for some ship which may have escaped during the night from Port Arthur.

According to a report from a Japanese watch tower near Port Arthur, a Russian gunboat of the Otvajni type struck a mine off Liaoti promontory on Thursday morning.

It is reported that the Japanese position at Palungchang, from which they poured a heavy fire into Port Arthur and the inner forts, has been retaken by the Russian troops, the Japanese retiring to Shushiyen.

The German authorities at Kaiochau have sent a guard of a hundred men to a point fifteen miles east of that place for the purpose of frustrating an expected attempt on the part of the Japanese to erect a wireless telegraph station.

A Shanghai report says that the Chinese taoti there has decided against the claim of the Russian consul general and has ordered the torpedo boat destroyer now at that port to go out or disarm by the 20th inst. and that the cruiser must do likewise by the 21st inst.

Advices from St. Petersburg say that acute anxiety prevails there regarding the situation at Port Arthur on account of the desperate character of the fighting reported as taking place, though the war office does not seem to believe that the danger of the fall of the fortress is so imminent as is generally asserted. According to advices received by the war office, there is still an ample supply of ammunition and provisions there. While it is realized that the Japanese probably outnumber the defenders six or seven fold, the great strength of the fortifications, it is believed, will do much to make up for the disparity in numbers.

Upon one point there is absolute unanimity there—namely, that if the fortress falls the fleet will not fall into the hands of the Japanese. Vice Admiral Prince Ouktomsky has been ordered, should the worst come, to sally forth for a death struggle.

Plague at Yinkow.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—A Tientsin report says that a case of the plague has been discovered at Yinkow.

A Fatal Flashlight.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—George L. Engfis, an amateur chemist, while endeavoring to make a photographic flashlight powder brought about an explosion that fatally injured him, severely hurt his wife and destroyed his residence, which he had lately erected at a cost of $12,000. The explosion occurred in the basement, where he had a workroom, and forced the floors and roof upward so that his house resembled a dome. The detonation was heard for a mile.

Children's Day at World's Fair.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 20.—The success of the several children's days, when hordes of youngsters apparently enjoyed themselves at the exposition, has in effect given the officials a standard that is of great assistance in arranging for a national children's day, which will be observed on Aug. 29. On national children's day the exposition gates will be open for the free admittance of every child in the United States under fifteen years of age.

Three Bandits Garroted.

HAVANA, Aug. 20.—The supreme court has confirmed the death sentence imposed on three negroes convicted of highway robbery and murder at Guara. They were garroted this morning. Crecencio O'Farrill, chief of the gang, was also sentenced to death, but escaped. He is now at large and reported to be marauding in the neighborhood of Candelaria with a new gang of bandits.

Straight Tip From Washington.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Straight from Washington, where he had an interview with President Roosevelt in the White House, Congressman John Dwight of the Thirtieth district has arrived at the Fifth Avenue hotel and announced his firm belief that the Republican state convention at Saratoga would nominate Elihu Root for governor.

Lipton Looking For Shamrock IV.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—Sir Thomas Lipton is paying a visit to the Clyde for the purpose, it is believed, of arranging for the design and construction of a fourth Shamrock.

HURON HANDICAP.

Fort Hunter Won the Feature Stake at Saratoga.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Fort Hunter again ran to his true form when he won the Huron handicap, the stake feature of the card, by a length and a half from St. Valentine, who beat Spring by a length and a half. Spring made the pace for three-quarters of a mile. Then Fort Hunter, who had been close up, passed him and was never headed. Pulsus ran third all the way to the stretch.

Memories and Gold Money, outsiders, beat the favorite, Mineola, in the first. Mineola led to the stretch, but did not have the necessary speed and was beaten by a head by Gold Money, who in turn was three-quarters of a length behind Memories.

Lady Potentate, favorite in the second, won handily by two lengths. Brooklynite, who was pacemaker the last of the journey, was passed in the last furlong by Homestead.

Teacress, favorite, had plenty of speed at the end, but won the third event by only half a length. Danseuse ran second all the way, but was passed in the stretch by Thirty-third.

Another favorite, Dreamer, won the fifth without effort by two lengths from Cigar Lighter, who was three lengths ahead of Derry.

Aspirant Won Astor Cup.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 20.—Although six miles astern at the finish, the little fifty foot sloop Aspirant, owned by H. W. and A. G. Hanan of New York, won the Astor cup for sloops in the New York Yacht club racing by a margin in corrected time of 21 minutes 56 seconds over the Yankee, which led the fleet of seventy footers and two schooners over the line. A. F. Luke's Corona took the cup for schooners by defeating her only competitor, the Katrina, by a wide margin.

Racing at Highland Park.

DETROIT, Aug. 20.—A steady rain that fell after noon had much to do with upsetting calculations on the races at Highland park, and the favorite players met with reverses in nearly every race. Light Brigade, back on the circuit after his campaign on eastern tracks, started favorite in the feature event, but after an unlucky journey finished third to the two-year-old filly Dutch Barbara and Columbia Girl.

Picture Hat and Bab.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 20.—Sloppy going caused many withdrawals at the fair grounds track. Picture Hat and Bab were the winning favorites of a featureless card. Juba, winner of the sixth race, gave the bookmakers a severe shock. Juba on his last out was heavily played by the public, but finished in the ruck. He was a good horse and won with odds of from 50 to 30 to 1 against him.

Horse Show at Bar Harbor.

BAR HARBOR, Me., Aug. 20.—The horse show drew an attendance surpassing all previous records, while the events were interesting. Nine classes were exhibited, Clement B. Newbold of Philadelphia being the only winner of two blue ribbons. The Newbold stables won first in the classes for best pairs of harness horses between 14.2 and 15.3 hands and for tandems.

Egan and Sawyer In Finals.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—After two rounds of match play in the western golf championship H. C. Egan of the Exmoor club and D. E. Sawyer of the Wheaton Golf club are the survivors in the thirty-six hole finals for the title once held by Chandler Egan and lost in this tourney by his cousin, W. E. Egan.

Stroller Won In a Sea of Mud.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—The track at Hawthorne was a sea of mud, and form cut little figure in the results. Stroller, the extreme outsider in the betting, won the third event of the day and reaped a harvest for the bookmakers, as the betting public overlooked him entirely.

First Cuban Extradition.

HAVANA, Aug. 20.—The Cuban government has acceded to the request of Mexico for the extradition of Soler Pardi, charged with the theft of jewels. He was arrested here, delivered to agents of the Mexican government and has sailed for Vera Cruz. This is the first extradition granted by the Cuban government.

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.
BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.
LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW
BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.
BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.
LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT
BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.
BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL, IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

R. G. Dun & Co. Report Continued Improvement.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Confidence in continued improvement of trade has been somewhat unsettled by sensational events in the wheat market and the lack of harmony between labor and capital. It is becoming evident that estimates of the wheat crop must be reduced, although other agricultural news is much better than usual.

Otherwise news of the week has contained much of an encouraging nature. In several manufacturing lines there is less idle machinery, and visiting retail buyers have stimulated jobbing trade, especially in dry goods and kindred lines. Railway earnings thus far reported for the first week of August show a small gain of 1.4 per cent as compared with last year's figures, whereas recent preceding weeks showed more or less loss in comparison with 1903.

Foreign commerce at this port for the last week scarcely differed from that of the corresponding week a year ago, while the official returns for the whole country for the month of July were only favorable in respect to exports of manufactured products.

Contraction in outgo of farm staples was expected and a loss of $9,661,754 compared with the same month last year was not surprising, but when it appeared that the total loss was only $6,929,834 there was indicated a fair increase elsewhere.

Liabilities of commercial failures thus far reported for August amounted to $3,896,999, of which $1,800,550 were in manufacturing, $1,784,482 in trading and $311,967 in other commercial lines. Failures this week numbered 226 in the United States against 238 last year and 24 in Canada compared with 8 a year ago.

STORM SWEEPS MANITOBA.

Moosemin Farmer and His Team Killed by Bolt—Crops Damaged.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 20.—Reports of a disastrous storm have been received here from Pierson and Moosemin, but so far nothing has been heard from the intervening country, a strip of land seventy miles wide.

At Moosemin Archie Latimer, a farmer, was instantly killed by lightning. The same bolt killed his team. For violence the storm surpassed anything ever seen in this neighborhood. It is impossible to state the extent of the damage done to crops in the district.

Lightning struck Lyttleton, causing a fire, destroying six stores.

A heavy thunderstorm accompanied by hail passed over Melita. Crops suffered considerably. The house of the manager of Union bank here, situated several miles north of town, was struck by lightning and wrecked.

Packers Were Breaking the Law.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Corporation Counsel Tolman has given an opinion that the packing house companies have no legal right to lodge workmen in the buildings in the stockyards, as they have been doing. Mayor Harrison has turned the communication over to the police department.

F. K. LOOMIS MYSTERY

Franz Schneider In Hands of Birmingham Police.

HIRED TO STEAL VALUABLE PAPERS

Person Referred to In Prisoner's Confession Believed to Be Dead Brother of Assistant Secretary of State.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—Franz Schneider has surrendered to the Birmingham police, accusing himself of stealing documents from a person at Southampton. The person referred to is believed to be the late F. Kent Loomis, brother of the assistant secretary of state, who disappeared from the steamship Kaiser Wilhelm II. on the morning of June 20 while on his way to Abyssinia and whose body was afterward found on the Devonshire coast.

Schneider, who is an engineer, says that he met in Southampton six or seven weeks ago two foreigners, whose names he gives. Another foreigner who spoke with a Russian accent offered him and the other two £5 each if they would rob a man among the passengers then arriving on a German liner of valuable papers. The Russian pointed out the passenger whom he wanted robbed and immediately went away.

Schneider says that he and his two companions seized the passenger and threw him to the ground. Schneider then took from him a large envelope full of papers, the envelopes bearing the seal of the United States government.

Schneider says he surrendered because he was entirely without funds and had been in the Birmingham workhouse, but became tired of staying there. The authorities of the workhouse deny this statement. They say Schneider has not been an inmate of that institution.

Schneider asserts that he was born in England, but he has the appearance of being an Austrian. He gave the police the name of a man whom he alleged employed him to secure the papers and also the names of two others said to be concerned in the theft. He now asserts that his employer was a Russian and says that after the robbery all four slept in a warehouse, before leaving which he and his two associates received $25 each.

The Birmingham police last night said they are convinced that Mr. Loomis was not the victim of the robbery, as alleged. They will, however, investigate the case as possibly disclosing another crime, but they discredit the whole story, believing it to be sensational fiction made up by Schneider.

Steer Hunt In Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Packing house employees and hungry strikers vied with each other in a steer hunt that extended throughout the night following the riot precipitated by the appearance of eleven runaway beeves from Morris & Co.'s plant in the district west of the stockyards. The carcasses of four have been accounted for. Little beyond the hoofs and horns remained to tell the story, and there was an ample beef supply in many a home to which such a luxury has long been a stranger.

Ex-Bank President Out of Jail.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Charles W. Spalding, the former bank president who was convicted and sentenced to ten years' imprisonment for embezzlement, has been discharged from the penitentiary by Judge Dunne. The order of the court discharging the ex-banker from custody was based upon a technicality in the original indictment. Mrs. Spalding, wife of the prisoner, was in court when the order was read, and an affecting scene ensued. Spalding has already served several years of his sentence.

Another Cut In Ocean Rates.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Another reduction has been made in Transatlantic passenger rates. The American line has fixed $55 for first cabin passage on the St. Louis, St. Paul, New York and Philadelphia, $35 for second cabin fares on the New York and Philadelphia, and $32.50 on the St. Louis and St. Paul from New York to Southampton. From Philadelphia to Liverpool the rate for second class passengers on all steamers running between those ports will be $30.

Cloudburst In Arizona.

EL PASO, Tex., Aug. 20.—A cloudburst at Globe, Ariz., has resulted in several deaths and the destruction of much property. Wires to the section affected are down, but a passenger who arrived at Bowie, Ariz., says that a man named Mitchell and his wife and four children, whose names are not known, have been drowned. The Southern Pacific shops were demolished.

Rothwell Waite Again Escapes.

NEWCASTLE, Pa., Aug. 20.—Rothwell Waite, who murdered an officer and probably fatally wounded another on Wednesday night, was surprised by a posse at the home of his mother, where he had taken refuge. He succeeded in eluding his pursuers, however, but not until he had been wounded. Information charging Waite's mother with aiding a fugitive to escape has been made.

Fairbanks to Speak at Elmira.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 20.—Senator Charles W. Fairbanks, Republican candidate for vice president, has accepted an assignment from national headquarters to speak at Elmira, N. Y., Sept. 15, the day following his Saratoga address. Senator Fairbanks has wired national headquarters that he would be unable to speak at Brooklyn, Aug. 27.

Plainfield, N. J., Aug. 20, 1904.

Edward C. Stokes might as well start writing his speech accepting that nomination.

Thomas M. Ferrell, of Glassboro, is out for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Nineteen now; who's the twentieth?

It is not more ships that Russia is most in need of, but it's more men of common sense. The refusal to surrender Port Arthur shows that.

The Paterson Evening News says that the most successful get-rich-quick scheme is to be born the son of a trust magnate. For hard thinking Paterson "do beat all."

Politics is not going to be responsible for Grover Cleveland's death. The Sage of Princeton is planning to enjoy a fishing trip and votes for Parker will have to be caught by others.

It's useless to talk of former Senator Smith becoming a candidate for gubernatorial honors. He has been in politics too long to be led into such a game and knows how to invest his money to better advantage.

The Archbishop of Canterbury and Primate of All England has sailed for this country. While here he will be shown the sights of New York, but it is improbable that the Rt. Rev. Dr. Potter's saloon will be included in the itinerary.

The married man who was fined fifteen dollars for kissing his wife on Atlantic City's beach can take consolation in the fact that there are plenty of other seashore resorts where he won't be punished for displaying affection for his "better half."

Captain George D. Morrison, who died today, belonged to that class of seafaring men who appreciate the wonders of God's works and he devoted much of his time to the advancement of Christianity. He was particularly active in religious causes in this city, where he was held in high esteem.

When the Newark Evening News says that heretofore James E. Martine has never refused a nomination even "when he knew he was to be the leader of a forelorn hope" it conclusively proves that it does not know the man. Mr. Martine is the most optimistic politician in seven states and at each succeeding election is cock sure that the Democratic party will make a clean sweep.

In another column we reproduce extracts from a letter received from Lewis S. Thomas, a former Plainfield newspaper man who has been in the Philippines for the last three years, bitterly arraigning the Government's policy in that "possession." It is only necessary to say that Mr. Thomas, a Princeton graduate, was known among his friends here as a strong believer in the policies of the Republican party and when he was engaged by the Government as a school teacher he left for the Philippines sanguine that the Federal authorities would speedily bring about great improvements and reforms in that far distant "possession."

Aeolians vs. Westfield.

Aeolian A. C. will be at Westfield today. Doescher fomerly of the Brooklyn National, will do the pitching for Aeolian. A battle royal is expected. This will be the fourth meeting of the teams this season. Aeolian won the first two games and therefore Westfield are anxious to square accounts. Frank Quinby has been secured to cover second bag for Mag. Denman's colts the balance of this season. Westfields line-up will be Seward, rf, Barry, 3b, Smithson, ss, Rochford, 1b, Quinby, 2b, McManus, lf, Mallen, cf, Cotter, c, Waller, p. Patience will be retained as utility infielder.

Assistant Prosecutor John E. English is a candidate for the Republican nomination for City Council in the Eleventh ward of Elizabeth.

Chairman William B. Gourley, of the State Democratic committee, announces the State committee on young men's clubs. It is composed of former Judge W. W. Cutler, chairman, of Morristown; Eckard P. Budd, of Mt. Holly; Peter Egenolf, of Elizabeth, and Samuel Iredell, of Cumberland. Johnston Cornish, of Washington, was requested to serve, but had to decline, as he is going West for a month.

It is expected that Union county will be largely represented at the State convention of the Republican clubs which is to be held at Asbury Park on September 2. Although there will be no delegates from this city, it is believed that the party will be represented. The occasion will mark the opening of the Republican campaign in New Jersey, and a great and enthusiastic gathering will give encouragement for the fall work.

In response to a call sent out by Rev. I. W. L. Roundtree, of Trenton, Phillip Calden, of Camden and James Merritt, of Jersey City, there was a conference of colored Republicans held in Naval Reserve Hall in Trenton last night. The primary object of the conference was to make a demonstration favorable to the claims of Charles N. Robinson, colored, of Camden, to be retained as a member of the Republican State committee. Wm. A. Kline, of Plainfield, was present.

At the last meeting of the Union County Republican Committee it was announced that there was some misunderstanding in reference to the county clerk's office being open Saturday afternoons. Members of the committee stated that the county clerk would not keep the office open. County Chairman Hamilton Fish Kean took the matter in hand and saw Mr. Howard. The office will be open next Wednesday night and Saturday afternoon, August 27.—Elizabeth Journal.

Arrangements are being perfected for an immense excursion of Democrats from Hudson county to Esopus, N. Y., where they will be received by Alton B. Parker, the Democratic candidate for President. The Twelfth Ward Democratic Club is the prime mover in this most important event in Democratic circles in Hudson county, and it is estimated that at least 6,000 persons will accept the opportunity to meet Mr. Parker. This vast throng will be drawn from every Democratic club in the county. The Robert Davis Association and the Dennis McLaughlin Association will also be largely represented.

"LEW" THOMAS ASSAILS POLICY IN PHILIPPINES

Mr. Thomas goes on to state that he is enjoying excellent health and that with $700 which he has saved, it is his intention to go into the foothills and "rough" it for an indefinite time. He gave up his position as teacher within a year after reaching the islands as the salary attached was not sufficient for more than his needs and there was little prospect of advancement. For the past two years he has been doing a general trading business, mostly in lumber.

THE LADIES favor painting their churches, and therefore we urge every Minister to remember we give a liberal quantity of the Longman & Martinez Paint toward the painting.

Wears and covers like gold.

Don't pay $1.50 a gallon for Linseed Oil (worth 60 cents) which you do when you buy other paints in a can with a paint label on it.

8 and 6 make 14, therefore when you want fourteen gallons of paint, buy only eight of L. & M., and mix 6 gallons pure Linseed Oil with it, and thus get paint at less than $1.20 per gallon.

Many houses are well painted with four gallons of L. & M. and three gallons of Linseed Oil mixed therewith.

These Celebrated Paints are sold by Woolston & Buckle, Plainfield; H. C. Meyer, Scotch Plains.

FROM THE CAPITAL

MEDLEY OF INTERESTING GOSSIP FROM WASHINGTON.

THE CAMPAIGN NOVELTIES

Secretary Morton the Victim of the Cabinet Jokers—American Ships Are Manned by American Sailors—Other Items.

Washington.—With the campaign in full operation the chairmen and secretaries of the national committees could start a novelty store with the trinkets, buttons and devices of all kinds that are offered them as vote getters. Every four years the ingenious inventor believes that the hay-making time of his life has arrived. The managers of the campaign are looked upon as "good angels," or "easy marks" to be worked with the thousand and one schemes whose originators believe them irresistible in promoting the interests of political candidates.

Campaign Novelties for Sale.

When National Chairman Cortelyou opened up headquarters in Chicago and in New York, he already had on hand enough samples of campaign novelties to furnish a street fakir with a good outfit. Secretary Dover had a desk drawer full of these trinkets, and Assistant Secretary Coolidge found a bushel of them awaiting him in New York before the committee's headquarters were opened in that city. Chairman Taggart, of the democratic national committee, has been inundated with specimens of buttons, badges and other campaign devices, from a design embodying the celebrated Parker telegram to a set of teeth supposed to represent those of President Roosevelt, and to be used in exploiting the personal side of the campaign.

The manufacturers of these souvenirs might as well save themselves the trouble of applying to the national committees, as those bodies are not bothering with such minutiae.

The bulk of the money used by both parties will be spent in distributing campaign literature and running a speaker's bureau which will send orators into every town and hamlet of the 45 states.

Joking the New Secretary.

Secretary of the Navy, Paul Morton, has settled down to his new work. He has been initiated into the cabinet and has had to stand quite a lot of chaffing at the hands of his fellow members. All the members of the cabinet and the president himself are given to joking, and enjoy baiting each other. Mr. Morton, coming from a big railroad system into the management of the navy, is legitimate game for cabinet fun. He is advised to be very careful in issuing his orders not to get railroad and maritime terms mixed.

Morton Issues Orders.

He has been warned that when a vessel is ordered into dry dock he is not to issue an order running her into the round house. He has also been informed that first-class cruisers are not equipped with air brakes and he must govern himself accordingly in handling then. It has been suggested, also, that he must not speak of the chief of the navigation bureau as the train dispatcher. When a commander of a vessel is relieved from sea duty he is not to be complimented on the run he has made. A score or more of such good-humored jokes have been leveled at the new secretary, who has met them in good spirit and retaliated upon the humorists. He says a successful railroader can run the navy as well as a lawyer or congressman.

The new secretary has brought to his work all his habits of industry, and already has mastered the details of his office. He has been broken in by President Roosevelt, who has invited him to join in one of the celebrated presidential cross country walks. This happened the day after the president returned from Oyster Bay, and although Mr. Morton is somewhat of an athlete, he has found excuses ever since when the president has suggested a tramp in the country.

Personnel of the Navy.

One thing that has been very gratifying to Secretary Morton has been the discovery that in its personnel the United States navy is thoroughly American. There is now not more than five per cent. of the enlisted men in the navy who are not citizens of the United States. This is a great change in the last few years. As late as 1890 50 per cent. of the enlisted men in the navy were aliens.

No Foreigners Wanted.

It is probable that an order will soon be issued by the secretary of the navy which will prevent the enlistment of any more foreigners. This order has already been prepared and it reads: "Hereafter no aliens will be enlisted in the naval service of the United States except those who may be entitled to reenlistment under the provisions of law relating to continuous service, and excepting also Asiatics on the Asiatic station, who may be enlisted on the messman branch to fill vacancies, but not to serve elsewhere than on that station."

Naval officers attribute the high efficiency of the gunners and all enlisted men in the navy to their being natives of the United States. It is now the legitimate boast that the American sailors are the most intelligent men of that class in the world. They are not mere machines, but are capable of mastering the most intricate mechanism of a modern war vessel and its armament, and, if occasion requires, of executing their duties intelligently without the orders of their superior officers.

Most of the American sailors of today are recruited from the inland states. A high official of the department is authority for the statement that the best men of the navy come from the farms of Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Kansas. For years the secretaries of the navy have endeavored to better the condition of the enlisted men, and this has been accomplished by legislation and by new regulations. The food served is more varied and better than formerly, and more interest is taken in the physical and moral condition of the men. Gymnasiums and libraries have been established at naval stations and on board ships wherever practicable.

Annoying Turkish Affair.

The "terrible Turk" continues to be one of the annoying features in our foreign relations. The administration at times loses all patience with the prevarication, indifference and evasion of the sultan and his government. The United States has been treated with indifference and discriminated against by the Ottomon empire. There are hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of claims for damages done to Americans and American interests whose justice has been admitted by the sultan and his ministers, but the payment of which has been refused or deferred until patience has ceased to be a virtue.

Bringing Him to Time.

Minister Leishman has labored hard to secure the adjustment of these troublesome questions, but has been put off with one excuse or another and has never been able to secure a personal interview with the sultan. Secretary of State Hay sent instructions a year ago that the minister should demand the same privileges for American citizens and institutions as had been conceded to France, Russia, Germany and other nations. In his letter of instructions he declared that the president was greatly surprised that former messages and demands had been delayed and had little influence upon the sultan.

Minister Leishman is inclined to attribute the delay in the settlement of these claims to the unsettled condition of Turkish affairs, owing to complications arising out of the Macedonian trouble. He is convinced, however, that longer delay in the use of some drastic means of forcing the attention of the sultan would be useless. These questions are being seriously considered by the president and his secretary of state, and were it not for the fear that the action might be misinterpreted at home United States war vessels would long ago have been dispatched into Turkish waters, prepared to bring about a settlement of these questions and an absolute guarantee that American lives and property would be respected in the future.

A New Town on the Map.

Just now the democrats are puzzled over the pronunciation of Esopus, the home of Judge Parker. Ex-Senator Towne of Minnesota, now of New York and a leader in Tammany, is a stickler for the classics and thinks that a more elegant pronunciation than that commonly given this word should be adopted.

Trying to Pronounce Esopus.

"I do not like the sound of the word as I hear it spoken by the majority of people," he says. "'E-soap-us' is not a pretty word and is suggestive of 'soap,' which is not real nice connected with the campaign. Then there is the pronunciation given by Mr. Dooley and which some of our Hibernian friends rather favor when they speak of 'E-soop-us.' For my part, I think the accent should be on the first syllable and campaign classicists should insists that public speakers refer to it as 'Ess-o-pus.'"

The name of the town, it is said, is of Indian derivation, but the inhabitants of that section of New York, and Judge Parker himself, pronounce it with the accent decidedly on the second syllable, bringing out the broad "o." It promises to become a historical place and as well known to democratic pilgrims as was the little town of Canton, O., to republican enthusiasts in 1896 and 1900.

BLONDES GOING OUT.

COMPLEXION OF THE HUMAN IS GRADUALLY CHANGING.

People with Golden Hair and Blue Eyes Are Growing Fewer in Number in This Part of the World.

"The blondes are a disappearing human type," says Anthropologist Otis T. Mason, of the Smithsonian institution, according to a recent report. "They are going fast. Blonde women are becoming scarcer every year, and to-day there are not nearly so many fair haired and blue-eyed beauties as there were 50 years ago. In each successive generation there are fewer of them than in the last. Already such a thing as a real blonde, purely such, is so rarely seen in this country as to excite remark, and golden tresses are so infrequent that veritable ones are usually suspected to be dyed. In short, it has become evident that before long this type of feminine loveliness will have practically vanished from the earth.

"You may judge how rapidly the blondes are going when you consider the fact that wherever a brunette man marries a blonde woman, or vice versa, 66 per cent. of the children born have dark hair and eyes. At that rate not many centuries will be required to wipe out the fair type altogether. If you ask how this matter has been determined with such accuracy, I will reply that it has been by including statistical observations on the point in the censuses of nations.

"Observations made in this way, covering millions of persons of both sexes, have resulted in the discovery that dark people bring more children into the world than fair people. Furthermore, they have greater muscular vigor, and they live longer. Thus in every point which has to do with the perpetuation of a species they are superior. The rule in nature seems to be that pigment, which gives color to the hair and eyes, is an indication of force."

Does the passing of the blonde mean the disappearance of the most beautiful human type?

It is a question which, of course, is open to dispute, and dark women especially will be disposed to pooh pooh the idea. Nobody can decide. Yet, it is undeniably a fact that artists, who are supposed to be expert judges of beauty, usually select the blonde type when they wish to represent the highest feminine ideal. If proof of this be wanted, look at the finest works of art in which angels are depicted. Nearly always they have blue eyes and golden hair.

Go away back to Fra Angelico, who was the first great painter of angels. His angels are blondes. That man, who, though only a humble priest, refused a bishopric, had a genius for the representation of things divine, and many a church did he adorn with paintings of Scriptural scenes, in which the winged messengers figured prominently.

Angels represent the highest conceptions of physical beauty—the apotheosis of bodily perfection, as viewed by the artists who have painted them. Fra Angelico was first to depict angels of the gentler sex, and in his day was severely criticised for it by churchmen, who claimed that the idea was a wholly improper innovation. Angels up to that time had always been of the male sex. Nevertheless the notion of picturing feminine loveliness in this guise was taken up by later painters, and modern angels in art are nearly all women, the exceptions being archangels, who, when they appear on canvas are necessarily men—as, for example, Gabriel and Raphael. Among all the celestial hosts only the seven archangels are known as individuals and by name.

In one respect the young women of to-day are approaching the angelic standard—namely, in stature. Angels, as shown in pictures, are always tall.

That women generally are admirers of the blonde type, as opposed to the brunette, is sufficiently proved by the frequency with which they bleach their hair, by the aid of peroxide of hydrogen, and other chemical perparations. The fact that most people have fair hair in early youth would seem, by the way, to indicate that our ancestors were a fair-haired race—a conclusion which, indeed, is borne out by history, though the so-called Anglo-Saxons are sprung from such a mixture of racial stocks that it is not easy to assign to them a definite origin.

One of the most melancholy things in the life of the average woman is the gradual darkening of the hair, which is liable to signify a loss of its beauty. The phenomenon is due to an increasing supply of pigment, and there is no known means whereby the process can be arrested. Inasmuch as the coloring matter is the same as that which gives its tint to the complexion, woman may consider herself fortunate that the skin does not manifest the same tendency; else she might start in life as white and find herself a mulatto in her old age.

An Absent-Minded Sleuth.

"From time to time complaints are made to the police of boys bathing in the town ditch within the city limits. The last complaint was that they went in swimming every afternoon along the Yuma road west of Five Points. Yesterday afternoon Officer Moore thought he would go out and break up the fun. He did not want to go on his wheel or horse, for fear the boys would see him coming and run, so he got George Deeters to drive him out behind a couple of colts he was breaking. Both are horsemen by nature, and, of course, the colts occupied their attention. They traveled about a quarter of a mile west of Five Points alongside of the ditch before either of them gave the ditch a thought, and when they did take a look at it, it was as dry as a bone."—Arizona Republic.

larva of mosquitoes. I would not advise its use except when prescribed by your local physician. It is frequently used by physicians when the effects of manganese are required. It is employed as an antiseptic and oxidizing agent in such diseases as diphtheria, scarletina, septicemia, erysipelas and other diseases of that nature, and is used both externally and internally at the same time. Some physicians have lately found it excellent in cases of snake bite and bites and stings of poisonous insects. It may also be used very successfully in overcoming the fetor of foul ulcers, foul breath and the terribly offensive odor of sweat-feet. It is used both as a test and as a corrigent for organic impurities in drinking water. Quite recently it has come into use as an antidote for morphine or opium in the stomach. I wrote quite an article regarding the value of permanganate of potassium some time ago, and I presume most of you who read the article are familiar with the method of ridding the lawns of mosquitoes by its use.

Geneva, Neb., David H. Reeder, Ph. D. M. D., Laporte, Ind.—Dear Doctor: I have seen so much about ingrowing toenails that I want to add my mite. I first noticed them when I was eight years old, in the summer when I was going barefooted every day but Sunday while I was at church. The corner of the nail cut into the flesh so that pus gathered. I do not remember just what was done, but I got over it somehow. Ten years later it was brought forcibly to my attention again—was so sore I could just hobble around. It supurated again and a corner of the flesh came out. How I wished all that rolled over the nail had come off. I went to a doctor and then found out that others were afflicted in the same way. He recommended the scraping of the top of the nail and cutting a notch in the end. I tried it, but the scraping caused me excruciating pain. The corner of the nail that was doing the mischief was still doing business at the old stand and I concluded life was too short to wait for that sharp corner to be pulled out of the way by any such indirect method. Then the doctor told me that I might get temporary relief by pressing cotton under the nail. So I took a sharp-pointed pair of shears and cut the nail down just as far and as close as I could. Then took a very small piece of cotton, twisted it slightly and pressed it under and around the nail at the offending point. To keep the cotton in place I had to tie a cloth over each toe, letting the folds come almost in contact with the next toe, thus keeping it from pressing so hard against the sore one.

I kept this up for three years, never having my toes untied except when bathing, at which time I did the trimming of the nails. At the end of that time I had a sick spell for two or three weeks and the cloths would come off when I was in bed all the time. When I finally became well enough to get up, I thought I would not tie them up again until I had to—and I have never had to do so since. All I have to do now is to keep the nails well trimmed and wear a reasonably broad shoe.

Here is another good thing I have always thought I would pass on some time. It is a cure for felon. Soak the affected part in a solution of ammonia and water—half ammonia and half water—for about 15 minutes. Then wet a cloth in the ammonia and bind it on the part for half an hour. I tried this as a last resort having no faith in it, but it was a cure without faith. The pain and swelling began near the end of my index finger and spread rapidly way up into my hand. I expected to go to town as soon as I possibly could and have it lanced clear to the bone, as I had heard that was the quickest and surest cure. But the ammonia beats anything else I have ever heard of. I saw no immediate change, but in about three hours I perceived that the swelling ceased to advance and the soreness lessened. It was three or four days before the soreness and stiffness was all gone—but didn't I get off easy? To make assurance doubly sure I used the ammonia a second time, but I think it was not at all necessary. Respectfully yours, G. B.

Many kind-hearted members have suffered with both of the troubles above described and their suffering was not in vain. Others reap the benefit of their experience and are thankful. I have seen the methods referred to tried and not found wanting, though it is seldom necessary to insert the cotton under the corner of the nail longer than a few weeks or at the most a couple of months.

I have several letters this week asking for answer in club notes, but as they are unsigned except by initials they will not be answered. So many people write letters involving time and expense of paper and postage and then merely sign initials. This should never be done, even when writing to members of your own family. Full name and address should always be given. Not long ago, a well dressed stranger was found dead in his birth on a sleeping car. He had many loving letters addressed about as follows: At home, ——19——. Dear Father, Dearest Husband, etc., and all signed with fond expressions of love Mary, John, Nell. Not a full name was signed to any of them and as the envelopes had been destroyed no trace of his family could be found. He was buried in the potters field and many months passed before skillful detectives at last found the body.

Your letters won't be necessary, I trust, to identify me, but I cannot possibly identify you, no matter how many times you have written unless you sign your name in full and give a correct address.

All communications for the Home Health club should be addressed to Dr. David H. Reeder, Laporte, Ind., and contain name and address in full with four cents in postage.

The New Woman

Personal Neatness Makes Any Woman Look Attractive

TRAINED nurses are pretty in their immaculate uniforms. Before they were trained nurses they looked much like other women—features irregular sometimes—and without doubt, before they learned better, some of them had dingy skins, even sticky hair, and shoes not always buttoned or laced. The rigid education of class room instruction and hospital changed them. They learned that the first requisite for success in their profession is absolute cleanliness of person. The sick are abnormally sensitive as to sight and smell. How would it do for a nurse with an unbathed body, tumbledown, dusty hair and soiled garments to move about close to a patient? She would be discharged at once. So it comes about that the nurse must bathe herself daily, must have shining clean hair and fresh clothing. The result is that a trained nurse always looks pretty. The moral is that every woman who is as careful of her bodily cleanliness as the trained nurse is will always look pretty too. A somewhat disgruntled man I knew used to say that women were not nearly so habituated to Turkish baths and the general use of water upon their skins as men are. I don't know how that is, but I do know there is no beautifier equal to immaculate cleanliness of body. The skin that knows the frequent use of a scrubbing brush and renovated garments shines soft and pink. There is life in it. So are there life and beauty in the hair that is treated every few weeks to a cleansing that removes all dust and lint from it. The plainest garb, if perfectly tidy, makes the girl or woman look prettier than an elaborate one ill kept. A plain petticoat in good order is infinitely more sightly than a bedraggled one with bits of torn, soiled lace trailing after it. You can distinguish the real lady by a glance at her feet. If her skirts are frayed and bedraggled, if her shoes are untidy, half laced and run over at the heels, you may be sure she does not know what belongs to ladylike neatness.

I am glad to record that in at least one association of men and women the men give the women as well as themselves a whack at the high offices. In the Western Drawing and Manual Training Teachers' association Miss Lucy Silke of Chicago has been elected president. The men of the society have honored themselves as well as the lady in voting for her. I mention particularly this one instance of men electing a woman their president because it is the only one I know of.

When I meet Miss Blank I know just where she has been last. If she comes irritably scolding and criticising and laying down the law for everybody and everything, I know she has been calling on a family who do this habitually. When she brings a budget of gossip—tiresome, trivial and senseless, some of it spiteful and ugly—I know she has been at a house where this kind of atmosphere prevails. Once more, if Miss Blank comes to me speaking of the good side of people and of uplifting ideals of conduct, I know she has been with one of the people whose aura sheds love, inspiration and courage.

All American women should hold gratefully in mind the name of Joseph M. Bennett, who left half a million to the University of Pennsylvania to aid in carrying out more thoroughly and practically the coeducation of woman.

When a candidate denounces women who are interested in political affairs and says they would better be at home minding their own business and looking after their families, you may be very sure those women are working against that candidate and have very good reason for it.

Dr. Emily Dunning, who made a noble record in New York as the first woman ambulance surgeon in the world, has been appointed surgeon in charge of Gouverneur hospital in New York. This appointment is in the regular line of promotion and is given to her as it would have been given to a man doctor who had done the same service. Dr. Emily Dunning is a woman for all the rest of her sex to take pride in.

Mankind is coming to its senses on the woman question. Professor Patten of the University of Pennsylvania recommends the wives of husbands whose income is small to become money earners, for a time at least, till the husband's prospects improve. The suggestion is an admirable one, except in cases where the husband is mean enough to slump down and let his wife support him as soon as she begins to earn money. You and I have known such instances, haven't we?

The dictionary says a "virago" is "a mannish woman, a bold, turbulent woman, a vixen." Now note its derivation from the Latin, "vir," a man, "ago," from a verb meaning to do or act—therefore, virago, a woman who acts like a man, being all that is turbulent and offensive. An excellent, fine sarcasm there!

BY

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

"But the trouble to you," murmured Grafton, "this trespass on your hospitality——"

"You are a friend of Monsieur de Vitre."

"De Vitre!" he exclaimed. "Do you know him?"

"Yes, he is a prisoner in the Chateau St. Louis now."

"A prisoner?" he asked in weak astonishment. "Why, I left him——"

"But you must not talk any more," she said again. "Ah, here is the doctor!" she cried, as she heard steps on the stairs, and the old surgeon, followed by Jean-Renaud and Josette, entered the room. The two servants recognized Grafton at once, but Anne laid a warning finger on her lips and they kept silence.

"What—what—mademoiselle! Have you turned your house into a hospital?" cried the doctor. "Where is the patient?"

He bustled over to the side of the bed and looked keenly at the young man before him.

"Where is the wound, Sir Englishman? Ah, in the shoulder!" His deft hands were busy with the bandages meanwhile. "And monsieur has been shot in the back——"

"I was not running away, sir, I would have you know!" protested Grafton, with unusual vigor.

"Why, no, of course not!" said the doctor soothingly.

"I was captured by your cavalry, monsieur, and probably shot by a stray bullet from our own line."

"Quite so, and the bullet has made a nice hole clean through your shoulder. If you lie quiet for a few days, a week or so, I think all will be well with you. Now the cut in the arm. Ah, 'tis not serious either!"

The doctor skillfully rebandaged the wounds after applying a healing dressing, and then complimented mademoiselle for the skill with which she had tied the original bandages. Leaving some medicine to keep down any inflammation or fever, and giving some directions as to the diet of the invalid—directions which were wonderfully simplified by a great scarcity of food, for the town was practically in a state of starvation—the doctor prepared to leave.

"No, no, mademoiselle," he said, as she pressed him to remain, "I have no time. The city is full of wounded and dying. Every one is pressed into service."

"Can I not be taken away, monsieur?"

"No, no! On no account! You must lie quite still!—I will look in on him to-morrow, mademoiselle," said the doctor, turning to leave the room. "Adieu."

"Are you dissatisfied with your quarters, monsieur?—but you have not told me your name," asked Anne.

"I am Philip Grafton, captain in his Britannic majesty's navy; and you are——"

"I am—Alixe de Couedic, monsieur, at your service."

She gave him a secondary title in her family, and one of her many baptismal names which he had never heard.

"Ah, you remind me!—but no—Mademoiselle de Couedic? Yet, 'tis a Breton name. Know you the family of de Rohan, mademoiselle?"

"They come from Brest and Finisterre, monsieur. We are from Morbihan."

There was a little silence in the room, and both were thinking of the old chateau and that halcyon night. He looked again at her. Strange! Yet it could not be! De Couedic? He did not know the name, and yet——

"You were speaking of Monsieur de Vitre a moment since, mademoiselle," finally said Grafton.

She noticed his voice was visibly stronger under the doctor's strengthening cordial, and that he looked better already.

"Yes, Monsieur Grafton, he was at my door when you fell, dressed in the uniform of your country. He was recognized. 'Tis said that he piloted the English ships up the river, betraying his country. The mob wanted to hang him."

"Good heavens!" cried Grafton. "'Tis not possible! Here is a deadly mistake! Where did you say he was taken?"

"To the Chateau St. Louis, monsieur."

"I must go to him at once, mademoiselle!" he cried and in spite of the pain he tried to rise. "He is innocent! He refused to pilot the ships! They had a rope about his neck because he would not betray his country!"

"Can this be true, monsieur?"

"True!" he replied. "I was there—I saw it all!"

"But that English uniform?"

"He evidently tried to escape in it, and succeeded. He is innocent of everything he has been charged with, and, so far from being a traitor, he is a hero! He was in love with some one in Quebec. He must have broken away from the ship to come to—— Ah, he was at your door! You are the lady, then! What a pity! No, do not detain me! Retire, I beg of you, that I may rise and go to him! In the temper in which they now are they will hang him outright!"

"No," answered the girl, rising herself and gently forcing him back, "you must not go! You cannot! As you say, I am the woman he loves, monsieur, and I will go!"

She forced herself to make the avowal. Every barrier she could imagine she would raise between herself and this young Englishman, now and of old the master of her heart. He loved some one else and he was an enemy. She hated herself for loving him, but that she could not help. At least she could conceal it and separate herself from him.

"Tell them, on the honor of an English sailor, that he is innocent! Let the governor come or send an officer to me. I will convince him! Make haste, mademoiselle!" he replied.

"I fly, monsieur."

"One moment!" he cried, impetuously, catching her dress as she turned away. He must know. This woman's looks tortured him; why, he knew not. "Tell me, Mademoiselle de Couedic, do you love him as well?"

"Monsieur forgets himself!" she cried, imperiously, yet her heart stood still. Was he about to recognize her? Was it joy, or fear, that filled her soul? She continued harriedly, her voice softening in spite of herself: "Release my dress, sir! But there, I forgive you. You are wounded, ill. I thank you for saving my friend. Au revoir. I go to save him, also."

She left him a prey to a strange, jealous agony. Who was she? Why did she bring to mind the figure of the little girl in the white robe, the little girl with the great eyes, in the dark tower?

CHAPTER XIV.

GRAFTON TO THE RESCUE.

ATTENDED by his captors, Denis de Vitre, in the hateful uniform of the English army, stood bound and facing the governor and his staff in the great hall of the castle. The sunlight sparkled in through the long, narrow lancet windows with their leaded, diamond-shaped panes, and made strange traceries upon the polished oaken floor. Pictures of the former governors of New France looked down upon the little scene from the walls. There was the dauntless Champlain, the veteran La Barre, the courtly du Quesne, and, conspicuous among the rest, the grim, eagle-like figure of the greatest of all—old Frontenac. The history of the province was somehow summed up in that old vaulted chamber, and de Vitre felt as if he were on trial before the heroism of the past as well as the disorganization of the present.

"Monsieur de Vitre, you are accused of having betrayed your country by piloting the English ships up the river," began the governor.

"And who is my accuser, Monsieur de Ramesay?" answered de Vitre, boldly.

"Common report."

"And does common report, sir, outweigh the word of honor of an officer and a gentleman?"

"Do you deny the charge, monsieur?"

"Sir, upon my word of honor, I declare it to be false in every particular!"

"But, sir, you were seen, recognized by officers stationed on Cap-Tourmente, on the forward part of the first English ship to pass the promontory. There was a group of English officers around you. You seemed to be pointing—is it no so, Maj. St. Luc?"

"It is indeed true, sir. I saw Monsieur de Vitre myself," answered the officer, promptly.

"If Monsieur St. Luc had seen me one-half hour sooner he would have noticed me standing on the rail of the ship with a rope around my neck, about to be hanged as a common felon for refusing to show the way to the English."

"Can this be true, sir?" asked the governor in surprise.

"On my faith it is. I give you my word, sir."

"We don't accept the word of a man accused of treachery, sir. Although I have no doubt you were on the rail, as you say, yet I have also no doubt but that the presence of the rope proved efficacious."

"Mon Dieu, what an infamous charge!" cried de Vitre, white with rage and passion at this insult, striving to break away from his guards.

The governor watched him coolly until he ceased to struggle; then, nonchalantly taking a pinch of snuff:

"Be calm, monsieur," he added. "I might have taken your word, but there is another circumstance which must be explained, and which makes it difficult to credit your story. The dress you wear—it is an English coat."

"May it please Monsieur le Gouverneur," spoke up the sergeant, "I saw him in the front rank of the English as they charged us. He carried a musket in his hand."

"That is true," answered de Vitre, "I was there."

"Did you discharge the musket?"

"Yes, Monsieur le Chevalier—that is, I had done so."

"At the troops of France?"

"Yes, but——"

A roar of rage swept through the hall as the men heard this damning admission.

"Why hear any more, Monsieur le Chevalier?" burst out Capt. Rouvigny, voicing the thought of the others. "If he be not a self-convicted traitor, let him be shot as a deserter."

"Messieurs, you must hear me! You shall!" exclaimed de Vitre. "I have been a prisoner in the English fleet. Through the connivance of a soldier in their marine I procured this uniform. I escaped from the ship last night. I hoped to reach the town and warn you and Monsieur de Montcalm of the expected attack on the town before morning, but I found it impossible to get away. I was compelled to stay in the ranks, and with difficulty escaped detection. I posed as a renegade or I would have been killed out of hand. My gun was not loaded with ball. I looked carefully to that, gentlemen. I swear to you I threw it away at the first moment and ran to join my friends. As there is a God in Heaven, Monsieur le Chevalier, I speak the truth! I beg you to hold me until you can communicate with the English and verify my statement."

"We cannot hold the town a week, Monsieur de Vitre," returned the governor quickly. "And to defer your punishment until the English take us would mean to let you escape scot-free. Frankly, I do not believe your story. What say you, gentlemen?"

"No, no, he is a traitor! Away with him!" cried one and another.

"Gentlemen, if I ever escape from this predicament," answered de Vitre boldly, "rest assured that you shall answer to me for your words and actions!"

"This is idle talk, monsieur," said the governor severely; "as the commandant of the garrison I shall order you to be shot at once, upon your own admissions, which you have failed to explain to our satisfaction, if there is no one here who will protest, or say a word in your defence."

"I will do that, Monsieur le Chevalier!" a clear voice cried out from the other end of the hall, as Anne de Rohan, followed by Josette, entered the door and advanced before the chevalier.

"Mademoiselle de Rohan!" exclaimed the governor in great surprise, rising to his feet the while, and bowing profoundly before her, a movement which of course, was emulated by all the officers. "Here is no place for ladies."

"I am a witness in the case, Monsieur de Ramesay. Am I in time to save the life and honor of a brave man?"

"Time serves you, mademoiselle, but otherwise your effort is impossible. Monsieur de Vitre was seen this morning in the English ranks in their uniform—indeed he has it on now. He bore arms against us in the field. He admits it. He is believed to have acted as pilot for the English ships."

"'Tis false, sir!" interrupted the girl.

"Thank God for that word, mademoiselle!" cried de Vitre. "If you believe in me I can face the rest of the world undaunted."

"Silence, Monsieur de Vitre!—Why say you this, mademoiselle?" asked the governor.

"Because there is an English officer wounded and a prisoner in my house, who has learned by chance of Monsieur de Vitre's predicament and who vows that he is innocent; that he did not pilot the ships; that he refused to do so even at the peril of his life, and that he had been held a close prisoner on the English ships since his capture.

"Dr. Arnoux dressed the young Englishman's wounds. He is a captain in the English navy. When he recovered consciousness I mentioned Monsieur de Vitre's predicament, and he insisted that I must come to tell you this story, and if you doubted it I was to ask you to send an officer to question him."

"Why came he not himself, then?"

"He is too severely wounded, sir, and the doctor forbade him to move."

"Be seated, mademoiselle. Let us withdraw, gentlemen, and consider this communication for a moment," said the governor, after reflecting deeply for a short time.

The Chevalier de Ramesay and his officers stepped to the other end of the apartment and intently consulted together, leaving Anne standing near de Vitre and his guards.

"O mademoiselle," cried de Vitre to her, addressing her despite the presence of the soldiers, "this is a public place in which to address you, but I stand in the shadow of death and I must needs take any opportunity which fate provides me. You have long known of my devotion to you. I have not disguised it nor do I wish to make further protestations to you. I only want to thank you, as a man dying, for the brave stand you have taken in attempting to save not only my life, but what is dearer to me—my honor. Thank Capt. Grafton, too, for his good words, though I feel they will be useless. The evidence against me is strong. This cursed uniform is the last straw. Rankling under the defeat of the morning, and with the certainty of surrender before them, they are too bitter to weigh well what they are doing. They want a scapegoat, and here is one ready to hand. Mademoiselle, one last favor. It means but little perhaps to you but much to me. I cannot go to you. Will you not reach hither your hand?"

"They must not kill you, Monsieur de Vitre! 'Tis most unjust!" cried the girl piteously, stepping over to him. "As for my hand—" She stretched it out, and, though he was bound and tied, nothing could have exceeded the courtly grace with which he bent over it and pressed a long kiss upon it. She held it tightly against his lips.

"There is my hand, monsieur!" she exclaimed, as the soldiers withdrew a little, out of consideration for her evident grief. "I would that my heart went with it."

WEALTH IN TEXAS ONIONS.

Hitherto Worthless Land in the Lone Star State Turned to Good Account.

More fortunes are being made in growing Bermuda onions in Texas than in the oil business. Some capital is required to operate in the Texas oil fields, while in the onion growing business an investment of a few hundred dollars is reasonably certain of bringing a profit of several thousand, says an Austin report.

The area of the state in which onions can be grown is limited, but it covers many hundred thousand acres. This land is situated in the extreme southwestern part of the state. The artesian water belt, which extends from Carrizo Springs southeast to near Brownsville, a distance of about 300 miles, is well adapted to onion growing; and very little of it has been developed.

The valley of the Rio Grande, from Laredo down to Brownsville, is also a good onion region. In this valley the irrigating is done by pumping the water from the Rio Grande, while in the artesian water belt flowing wells are bored at depths of 400 to 600 feet. One of these wells furnishes sufficient water supply to irrigate a good-sized farm.

The profits made in growing onions in this region, which was formerly considered worthless except for grazing, are bringing many new settlers into the country. The raw land is selling for $5 to $15 per acre. It costs about $7 per acre to clear it, but when this is done and a water supply is obtained the net yearly income is from $250 to $750.

The onion shipping season for this year is about over, and the yield will be not far from 25,000,000 pounds. The range of prices is from one and three-quarters to three cents per pound. At an average price of two cents the gross receipts this year amount to $500,000, which is distributed among fewer than 50 men.

ONLY SOURCE OF INCOME.

Fishing and Hunting Rights Bring Sole Revenue of Many Titled English Families.

Were it not for the enormous sums paid for fishing and shooting rights, many people of ancient names and goodly title would, in the most literal sense, have no mans of livelihood whatever; and only the other day, says London Tit-Bits, one of the best-known property agents of the West End of London drew up for the writer a list of a dozen people mixing in society of an exclusive kind, every penny of whose income is derived from the letting of sporting rights.

Nearly all the money thus expended has been made in commerce, and the agent referred to above showed documentary evidence proving that there are lots of men who did not mind paying as much as £100 for every deer, £3 for every trout, and £20 for every salmon they kill, plus the sport of killing them. One of the most remarkable features of this letting is the fact that only about one in every hundred of the owners of ancient sporting rights ever enjoys his privileges as a sportsman. He either prefers to, or is compelled to, part with such privileges; and those who take advantage of them are nearly all people in business.

This renting of fishing and sporting has even extended down to comparatively humble people in the provinces. In places like Leeds, for instance, half a dozen small tradesmen buy up the shooting and fishing in remote parts of Yorkshire, the one idea being to get out of the turmoil of town life with some distinct object in view. Many a small Yorkshire farmer is being kept, and well kept, not by his farming, but by the letting of some comparatively insignificant sporting right that was not thought to be worth sixpence ten years ago.

CRUSADE AGAINST HATS.

Physical Culture Society in England Taboos Head Coverings of All Kinds.

If the physical culturists of Leeds have their way the hat will soon disappear altogether, reports the Toronto Telegram. The man who thinks more of personal comforts than of the dictates of fashion has long since discarded the tall hat. Now the members of the Leeds Physical Culture society have entered upon a campaign against all kinds of head coverings other than those provided by nature, from the top hat to the Panama, and from the bowler to the cap.

At a meeting of the committee Harry Kremnitz, an engineer by profession, leveled a strong indictment against hats of all kinds, charging them with being the cause of all baldness, gray hairs and other evils. Nothing could be imagined, he said, which was more unsightly or more uncomfortable than the top hat. He challenged any one to bring forward a single advantage it possessed. Children's hair, he added, would grow curly and strong if their heads were left uncovered, and there was no doubt that if fresh air were admitted to the head it would prevent gray hairs and baldness.

It was decided to bring the matter before the general body of members. Meanwhile efforts are being made to enroll recruits for the new movement.

Mr. Kremnitz has not worn a hat for nearly a week, and several other gentlemen have pledged themselves to go bareheaded when not in the city. On a recent Sunday half a dozen of the bolder spirits went for a walk into the country hatless.

Lots to Spare.

"Oh, spare me, dear angel, one lock of your hair!" a bashful young lover took courage and sighed.

"'Twere a sin to refuse so modest a prayer, so take the whole wig," the sweet creature replied.—Tit-Bits.

THE NATIVE DANCES

GRACEFUL MOVEMENTS OF THE PACIFIC ISLAND PEOPLES.

Music Is Their Natural Expression of Happiness—Various Forms of Expressive Dances Found in Different Island Tribes.

Pango Pango, Tutuilla.—Among the people of the Pacific isles music is the natural expression of happiness. They are of an intensely emotional temperament and joy or excitement is expressed in ringing chorus or in graceful dances.

The native dance is somewhat allied to the muscle dances of the east, but is much more graceful and pleasing.

The Hawaiian hula is danced by any number of girls trained for the purpose. Sometimes there is but one or two and sometimes a dozen or more. These girls are chosen from among the belles of the village and great pains are taken that they shall exercise and perfect themselves in the difficult movements of which their dance consists.

The garments are suited to the dancers. The hair is often left flowing and thickly intertwined with blossoms of different gaudy hues. Heavy wreaths of flowers called leis are thrown about the neck, reaching sometimes to the knees. About the waist is a heavily-fringed skirt of plaited palm leaves, and on wrists and ankles are ropes of flowers.

The orchestra at one of the native dances is primitive, consisting of the beating of native instruments and the intoning of voices, now low and soft as the dancers whirl lightly to and fro, or now a loud chant when the dancers beat their hands together or stamp upon the floor. It is but a question of time when the original Hawaiian dance will be but a memory. The great influx of white settlers has had a pernicious influence upon most things native and bids fair to turn the poetic expression of happiness and simple gayety into a mere vulgar exhibition.

Among the natives of Tahiti a similar dance under the same name is found, except that here the men take part. The dances here are all illustrative of some song. Perhaps it is a song of love, of the courtship of some timid maiden.

The song is low and tender, the maid dances lightly to and fro swaying her slender body to the rhythm of the chant. Suddenly the lover appears. He warily approaches. The maiden, affright, flies beyond, she assumes look and attitude of indifference. This goes on for hours sometimes, the pursued gradually yielding, while faster he pursues and faster the music plays till at last she turns conquered by his persistence and stretches forth her hands, turned palm up, a token of submission, and the dance is over.

Among the Samoan tribes the dances are of still a slightly different nature. They call an assembly of the dancers and the dance itself the Seva-seva.

Instead of standing upright as the other dancers do, the greater part of the time they are on their knees, or crouching in a circle.

The attire is practically the same except that the Samoans bleach the hair with lime till it is of a reddish hue and dress fantastically. They are also tatooed.

The Fijis are more weird, their hair being stiffened into a great pyramid and decorated with mirrors, shells or flowers, anything that can be attached. The dance is akin to the Samoan islanders', though not so graceful.

The Solomon islanders are a very different looking race, small and very black. They delight in war dances with dreadful masks and huge wands of some cork-like substance woven like a shield.

The Maoris of New Zealand dance the Haka, men, women and children. It is a sort of drill accompanied by horrid grimaces, thrusting out the tongue and rolling the eyes.

Among all these people the dance is the natural expression of joy, triumph or celebration.

The most recent of these is the Utica baseball team, whose manager, F. J. Breakey, of Brooklyn, has issued a challenge for Labor Day or for certain dates in September and October to teams of the rank of Plainfield, Westfield, Dunellen, New Market, and Rahway. Breakey's address is 1544 Atlantic avenue.

STREETS FLOODED.

Three Inches of Rainfall Causes Much Trouble.

This morning's heavy rain caused considerable inconvenience to residents in the vicinity of East Seventh and Richmond streets through the extensive washout in that section. Owing to the recent tearing up of the street by the sewer contractors, the water did not drain off into the brook as usual, but flowed out into Richmond street from the south side of East Seventh street, and poured in a torrent along Richmond street toward Putnam avenue. At the heighth of the storm, the water was several inches in depth along Richmond street.

Several minor washouts took place up Netherwood way, in several cases large flagstones being entirely undermined. The city repair gang was out this morning, filling in washed out places in the various streets.

Weather Observer Neagle reports that there were three inches of rain since 12 o'clock last night.

Lifts Heavy Weights.

O. H. Munger, of this city, is recognized as the best weight lifter in town. For several years he has been practicing at the local Y. M. C. A., where he has established a record of lifting 100 pounds. This is the record which has been previously announced, and it has been developed only by dint of hard work. Though this is the record with which the strong man has heretofore been credited, in all probability, a new one will be made before long. Munger is trying hard to increase his ability, and has already reached the 150 mark. This gain of 50 pounds has been accomplished in three months. At this pace Mr. Munger will soon be up to a 200 pound lift, which is only 14 pounds short of Sandow's record.

AFTER THOSE PYTHIAN PRIZES

PLAINFIELD KNIGHTS DETERMINE TO CAPTURE HONORS ON LABOR DAY.

At the regular meeting of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, last evening, the plans for the attendance at the annual Field Day at Somerville were discussed and the following committee was appointed to make preparations: Asa Pope, chairman; E. F. Kenney, William Mills, William Schorb and V. W. Nash, Jr.

It was decided to attend the Field Day in a body, in some uniform dress with white hats and canes. It is expected that about 150 of the members will be present at the occasion, and the local lodge will try hard for the prizes which are offered. There will be a prize of $60 for the largest number in attendance from any lodge, also a prize of $50 for the best appearing lodge. Perseverance Lodge will compete for both of these prizes, though their chances for the prize offered for the best percentage of attendance as their lodge is one of the largest in the State.

The lodge will be accompanied by a band, while the uniformed rank, which will attend about forty strong, will be accompanied by the Independent Fife and Drum Corps, of this city. The uniform rank will enter in various competitions independent of the rest of the lodge.

This is the first time in the history of the local lodge that they have attended the Field Day in a body, and every effort will be made in order that Perseverance Lodge will be favorably represented.

PYTHIAN ORDER'S GROWTH

MARKED INCREASE IN MEMBERSHIP AND FINANCES.

The Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias held its session at Louisville, Ky., this week. The Supreme Chancellor reported that the order's endowment rank had 5,169 policies in effect on June 30, 1903. These represented insurance to the amount of $101,723,500. On June 30, 1904, the number of policies had increased to 66,224, and the total insurance was $107,903,000. These figures show a net gain of 8,055 members and $6,179,500 of insurance.

Supreme Keeper of Records and Seal R. L. C. White reported that on Decembe 31 last there were 7,228 subordinate lodges, with a total membership of 594,883, a net gain during the year of 32,556. This is said to be the largest membership gain during any year since 1892. Since the biennial session of the Supreme Lodge in 1902 the net gain has been 226 lodges and 54,745 members. Of this net increase for two years New Jersey is reported as ranking twenty-fifth among the Grand Lodges, with 522 new members. This is 3.85 per cent. of gain.

Several abstracts were presented for consideration. One pertaining to Grand Lodge transactions showed: Number of lodges, December 31, 1902, 7,065; number instituted and reorganized, 281; number consolidated and suspended, 118; number of lodges, December 31, 1903, 7,228; cash in the Grand Lodge treasury on December 31, 1902, $193,754.01; receipts for 1903, $501,730.27; disbursements, $480,24.-568; cash on hand December 31, 1903, $215,238.60.

The membership statement showed these figures: Members, December 31, 1902, 562,327; initiated during 1903, 62,582; reinstated, 8,706; admitted by card, 9,853; suspended, 32,781; expelled, 276; withdrawn by card, 10,-273; deceased, 5,254; number of members, December 31, 1903, 594,883. Of these members twelve are Past Supreme Chancellors; 1,062 are Past Grand Chancellors; 112,171 are Past Chancellors; 475,220 are Knights; 2,923 are Esquires, and 3,945 are Pages.

In financial matters these figures are reported for all the subordinate lodges in the order: December 31, 1902, they had on hand cash to the amount of 2,-558,039.74. During 1903 they received from all sources $4,873,569.02. The amount expended for relief was $1,-533,435.83; paid for current expenses, $2,552,330.51; invested, $805,581.39; paid for paraphernalia and supplies, $318,247.54. At the close of 1903 they had total assets amounting to $11,478,-513 17, of which $2,522,013.51 was in cash.

TO SUE SPORTING PAPER

AN ALLEGED LIBELLOUS ARTICLE PROMPTS NAT STRONG TO ACT.

Nat C. Strong, manager of the Murray Hills, has engaged counsel to bring action for libel against "The Boiler," a sporting paper published in Philadelphia. The step is the result of an article published last week in which Mr. Strong is accused of deliberately robbing the Philadelphia professionals of $25 of their guarantee when that team played the Murray Hills a week ago Sunday in New York. The article says some strong things about the manager of the Murray Hills and characterizes his alleged action in withholding the $25 as a most cold-blooded steal.

The facts of the matter as explained by Mr. Strong are that he booked a game with the Philadelphia professionals and when the team arrived in New York, he says that there were five original members and the other four were picked up in New York. He also claims that another team claiming to be the Philadelphia professionals played in Hoboken that day and that the suits of the aggregation playing in New York were not alike.

Mr. Strong says that he offered the $100, but when he learned that it was a pickup nine and that another team was playing in Hoboken under the same name, he refused to give the team but $75 As it was, Mr. Strong says, half the crowd left the grounds before the game was over, the exhibition being such a poor one.

Mr. Strong has communicated with The Boiler and at the same time has placed the matter in the hands of a Philadelphia lawyer for action against that paper.

No Excursion.

For the second time in sixteen years, the Hope chapel Sunday-school excursion to Asbury Park failed to go out as scheduled today. It was still raining at 8 o'clock, the time set for the train's departure, and the officials decided upon a postponement. Superintendent Squires has been conferring with the railroad officials but the new date has not yet been set. It will probably be some day next week.

TOPICS DISCUSSED IN PLAINFIELD PULPITS

Rev. Dr. H. E. Mott Delivers Two Instructive Sermons at Crescent Avenue Church.

MANY PASTORS AWAY

REV. DR. DICKINSON'S THEME AT THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

"Christian Expression," Rev. Peter K. Hageman's Text at Trinity Reformed Church—Helpful Discourses.

Many of the local pulpits were occupied yesterday by well-known divines from various parts of the country in the absence of the regular pastors who are on their vacation. Among those who preached here were the following:

Trinity Reformed church, morning, Rev. P. K. Hageman, of Central Bridge, N. Y.; First M. E. church, morning and evening, Rev. H. B. Manson, of Hempstead, L. I.; First Baptist church, morning and evening, Rev. Dr. Dickinson, of Rochester, N. Y.; Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, morning and evening, Rev. Dr. Henry Elliott Mott, of Elizabeth; First Presbyterian church, morning and evening, Rev. P. B. Kennedy, of Easton, Pa.; German Reformed church, morning and evening, Rev. George Bowers, of Warrenville; Swedish Lutheran church, morning and evening, Rev. Dr. O. Bech; Warren chapel, morning and evening, Rev. Fred B. Newman, of Trenton; Grace M. E. church, morning and evening, Rev. Henry G. Spenser, of Drew Theological Seminary.

"If any man shall compel thee to go with him a mile, go thou with him twain." Taking this text as his theme, Rev. Dr. Henry E. Mott, pastor of Westminster church, Elizabeth, preached an excellent sermon at the Crescent Avenue church yesterday morning. To the congregation, the development of the theme was of special interest, it being along the lines of a discourse from the same text given by Dr. William R. Richards about a year ago. After an explanation of the text as it was interpreted by the ancient Romans, to whom it was an unwritten law that a burdened man might ask the assistance of a fellow pedestrian for the distance of a mile and that by such a law the person thus accosted was bound to comply, Rev. Dr. Mott went on to speak of the spirit which prompted assistance for the second mile as well. Transferring the application of the text to modern Christianity, he quoted simile after simile of its application in modern life today, finally clinching his thought by the application of the text to everyday livers in their walk through life with Christ.

In the absence of Dr. John Sheridan Zelie, Rev. Dr. Mott occupied the pulpit again in the evening. On this occasion he spoke on the words from Amos: "Can two walk together except they be agreed?" His choice of examples was most broad and each and all were well chosen. He emphasized the fact that nothing in the course of the universe happens by chance and later spoke of the relation and companionship between man and God as a sacred tryst, in accordance to the modern interpretation of the text. His discourse concluded with examples of the successes secured through his companionship.

Rev. Dr. Mott will again conduct both services at the church next Sunday, and the following week, Rev. S. T. Livingston, of Hartford Theological Seminary, will occupy Dr. Zelie's place in the pulpit.

Rev. Dr. J. T. Dickinson, of Rochester, N. Y., occupied the pulpit at the First Baptist church yesterday in the absence of the regular pastor, Rev. Dr. Chambliss. In his opening remarks he said that his subject was one which, in his opinion, was referred to in the pulpit very rarely. He spoke on the subject of "Heaven," and brought out the text in a most instructive manner.

Rev. Dr. Dickinson said that in the present age there is too much thought on worldly subjects and not enough consideration of anything beyond the present existence. "Few men look further than the acquisition of wealth and in the pursuit of their chief desire they jeopardize what is of more account than wealth, their eternal happiness," said he.

In closing his sermon, Rev. Dr. Dickinson spoke of Heaven not as a place for the dead but as a resting

H. H. WEBB IN AN ACCIDENT

SIGMUND FRUCHT STEERS HIS AUTO INTO A BICYCLIST.

Looking backward at several boys who were clambering up on the rear seat, Sigmund Frucht sent his automobile at half speed into a group of wheelmen just drawing up to the curb in front of the postoffice, yesterday morning. Harry H. Webb, of North Plainfield, and William Parquet, a drug clerk, were knocked down and Webb was quite painfully injured. He was thrown headlong to the sidewalk, his wrist was sprained and both hands were cut. Parquett escaped injury by quickly jumping to one side after he was struck and dragging his wheel after him. Webb's machine was run over and damaged.

Frucht was ordering the boys away from the rear of the machine and unconsciously turned it toward the curb. The first he realized of its whereabouts was when he heard the crash of the bicycles and the shouts of the spectators. He then swerved the auto just in time to avoid sending it up on the sidewalk.

CO.'S L AND K ARE TIED

THE TWO COMPANIES HAVE QUALIFIED SAME NUMBER.

By consulting the shooting records of Company L, of Princeton, and the local company, it has been found that the two are now tied in scores, each company having qualified the same number of marksmen. The two rival companies have been neck to neck in the race for the trophy for a long time, though the local organization has been handicapped by lack of funds.

There are new rules governing the contest this year which differ from last year's regulations in the respect that the companies shoot at their own expense, and not at the State's. Last season the Company qualifying the most number of marksmen at the State's expense won the trophy, while in the present conditions it is the richest Company which has the most chance.

Company K does not make any claim for being a wealthy organization. In fact the boys deserve a great deal of credit for the fact that they have been paying their own expenses. On the other hand, Company L is backed by an appropriation of $500, yet they can do no more than tie the Plainfield aggregation. This speaks eloquently for the marksmanship of the Co. K men as well as for their good spirit in defraying their expenses out of their own pockets.

MR. PETERSON BURIED.

Services at His Late Home in Evona Avenue.

Funeral services over the body of Peter Peterson, were held from his late home on Evona avenue, yesterday afternoon. They were in charge of Rev. W. H. Neilson and the attendance included a delegation of members from Court Plainfield, No. 1144, I. O. F., of which he was a member. The organization also contributed a large floral emblem while friends extended smaller emblems.

Interment was made in Hillside cemetery, those who acted as pall bearers being James M. Smith, Lewis Feiring, Henry Hansen, P. McCluskey, James T. Carty and Harry Busby. At the grave side, the Foresters burial service was conducted by Past Chief Ranger John Allen and Marshal Edward McCue.

HIS CLOSE CALL.

Commuter Was Hurt Boarding Moving Train.

Missing his foothold while trying to board the 7:55 train Saturday morning, J. C. Perrine, a New York man, who is visiting friends on Sandford avenue, was thrown heavily from the train near the Watchung avenue railroad bridge. Those on the station platform who saw him fall felt that he could not escape striking the iron supports of the bridge and sustaining serious injury. He caught his coat in the iron work and it was almost torn from his back. His arm and side were badly bruised but the train slowed down and Perrine boarded it and proceeded to New York.

Cranford Carnival Postponed.

The annual carnival on the Cranford river, which was postponed from Saturday evening on account of the high water in the river, will be held next Saturday night if the weather is favorable. Last year when the carnival was held on the Cranford river, hundreds of spectators from many neighboring towns crowded the banks of the stream.

W. L. GLENNEY AND T. W. T. MAXWELL WIN FIRST HONORS AT HILLSIDE.

Arthur Tuttle and W. M. Townley Qualify at Westfield—Hugh Talbot Wins the August Handicap.

No doubt the heavy storm of Saturday morning with the accompanying disagreeable weather during the day, kept many golf enthusiasts from the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club. There were only a few who posted their scores for the Golf Committee and Gaston cups, although there were many more on the course. The heavy rain thoroughly soaked the course, making it slow. At the Park Golf Club there were a limited few out for play, but the scores were so high that the contestants did not post. This course also suffered from the heavy rain, in some places there being pools of water.

At Hillside, W. L. Glenney won first honors for the Golf Committee cup, with a net score of 80, while C. W. Abbott and D. W. Taylor finished second and third with net scores of 82 and 83.

These scores were posted:

W. L. Glenney, 78, plus 1—80; C. W. Abbott, 87, 5—82; D. W. Taylor, 100, 17—83; Willard Wadsworth, 86, 0—86; D. H. Barrows, 90, 4—86; C. B. Morgan, 93, 6—87; T. W. T. Maxwell, 109, 22—87.

For the Gaston cup, T. W. T. Maxwell, W. F. Merrill and A. L. Otterson won the points. These scores were posted:

T. W. T. Maxwell, 109, 2—107; W. F. Merrill, 110, 1—109; A. L. Otterson, 110, 0—110; Harold Robert, 119, 0—119.

At the Westfield Golf Club on Saturday, Arthur Tuttle with a net score of 82 and W. M. Townley with a net score of 86, qualified in the Governors' competition. Another event of interest was the monthly handicap. This was won by Hugh Talbot with a net score of 77. These scores were returned in the handicap:

Hugh Tibot, 102, 25—77; W. J. Bogert, Jr., 91, 12—79; G. E. Cruse, 101, 19—82; Arthur Tuttle, 94, 12—82; W. M. Townley, 97, 11—86; H. W. Gladwin, 111, 25—86; F. B. Simpson, 118, 27—86; J. A. Worth, 103, 129—1; C. P. Worth, 12, 30—92; E. H. Clear, 125, 26—99.

BRAKEMAN MEETS DEATH BENEATH FREIGHT CARS

Jolt of Engine Causes Harry Fagin to Fall Under His Own Train.

INSTANTLY KILLED

ACCIDENT OCCURRED AT RICHMOND STREET LATE LAST NIGHT.

Had Been in Employ of Central But One Year—Home in East Mauch Chunk, Pa—Fagin Was Unmarried.

While a west bound freight train was drilling cars in the vicinity of Richmond street, last night, an extra heavy jolt of the engine caused Harry G. Fagin, a brakeman, to lose his balance and fall to the tracks. His body landed immediately in front of the forward car and the wheels passed directly over him, mangling his form in a terrible manner.

The sudden disappearance of Fagin's lantern caused the remainder of the crew to investigate and they made the gruesome discovery. Believing that he might have some chance of living, the body was taken to the freight station and Dr. Tomlinson and the ambulance were summoned. The physician declared that death had practically been instantaneous.

Fagin, who was twenty-four years old and single, lived in East Mauch Chunk, and came from a family of railroad men in which several such accidents have happened. He had been in the employ of the New Jersey Central only for the past year and was recently promoted to the run on which he met his death.

County Physician Westcott viewed the remains this morning and issued the necessary burial permit, absolving the train crew from any blame. The body was taken in charge Fagin's brother and will be removed to East Mauch Chunk this afternoon.

FIRE DESTROYS A LANDMARK

FAMILY ESCAPES FROM THE BURNING BUILDING IN NIGHT CLOTHES.

The home of John Huff, situated at Greenbrook, just over the Dunellen line, was completely destroyed by fire which orfginated in a very unusual way shortly before 11 o'clock last night.

An infant child was taken ill and Mrs. Huff started down stairs with it to get some medicine, carrying a lighted lamp at the same time. When a short distance from the bottom, the child struck the lamp with its foot, knocking it from her hand. It smashed in pieces and blazing oil ran in every direction. Mrs. Huff barely had time to rush back to the sleeping apartments and rouse her husband and other children before the building was in flames.

An alarm was sent in to Dunellen but before the department arrived the structure was beyond saving. It was one of the oldest landmarks in that section and was considered quite valuable. A short time ago, the Vail homestead, situated just a short distance from it, caught fire from the same cause and was completely destroyed. The Huffs lost all their furniture and clothing, six children escaping in their night clothing.

New Concern.

H. H. Smith, formerly of Somerville, has leased the store, Park avenue, opposite North avenue, and will on Wednesday, Aug. 24, open a first-class butter, milk, eggs and poultry market. He intends only to keep in stock the best goods in his line. He respectfully solicits a share of the public patronage.

Hope Excursion Saturday.

The Hope chapel Sunday-school excursion to Asbury Park, postponed on account of rain, will take place next Saturday. The same arrangements as before will prevail, the train leaving Grant Avenue station at 7:50 and Plainfield at 8 o'clock, returning from the beach at 7:55.

Infant Dies.

Edward Ford Feickert, the three-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Feickert, died last night at the home of his parents, 504 East Front street. The funeral will be held at the house Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock.

Capt. Morrison's Funeral.

The funeral services of Capt. Geo. D. Morrison will be held from 113 Plainfield avenue, this evening at 8 o'clock.

LIVELY SESSION AT THE CITY POLICE COURT

Unusually Large Number of Cases Before Judge Runyon for Disposition.

ROBINSON DISMISSED

FOUND GUILTY OF SOLICITING, BUT NOT RESISTING ARREST.

Proceedings Against Richard Scudder Stopped—West Ender Sent to Jail for Sixty Days on Disorderly Conduct Charge.

The busiest session the city court has seen in many months took place this morning, through an accumulation of cases and new arrests made by the police department. It lasted from 9 o'clock until noon and would have continued through the lunch hour but for the fact that Judge Runyon peremptorily announced an adjournment and left several colored women to settle one dispute for themselves.

The most important hearing of the morning was the one in which Patrolman William McCarthy and William Robinson figured. Robinson was charged with soliciting and resisting arrest and through his counsel, William G. DeMeza, entered a plea of not guilty in both instances. Many witnesses were produced and they related in detail the facts of Robinson's arrest on Watchung avenue last week, after McCarthy had clubbed him on the head. The officer maintained that Robinson had asked him for the loan of a dollar and when it was refused him he became insulting. In rebuttal Robinson said the loan was asked for in a joke and that he did not know he was under arrest until the patrolman had struck him with the club until he was dazed. He was found guilty of the soliciting charge but sentence was suspended, the court believing he had been punished enough.

Richard Scudder, the colored man charged with stabbing Phillip Sheridan, was discharged. Sheridan appeared in court and requested that proceedings be stopped, stating that his wounds were slight and that he was partly to blame for the disturbance which angered Scudder.

George Green, John Duffy, Robert Hart and John Gardner were arrested by Patrolmen McGinley and McKeon in a raid on a West End barn, last night, where they have been sleeping despite the owner's objections. When arraigned in court they promised to remain away from the place and sentence was suspended.

William Janney, arrested in the West End by Patrolman McKeon late last night, was sent to jail for sixty days. W. Alvin Jackson, of Asbury Park, charged by Sergeant Frederickson and Roundsman Flynn with carrying concealed weapons; John Lyons, arrested for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, and William Van Sickle, on charges of riding his wheel on the sidewalk and "sassing" an officer, had sentence suspended.

A final case was one in which Mrs. Esther Cuff, Mrs. Mary France and the latter's father, Ephraim Freeman, colored, preferred all manner of charges against each other until the court, Chief Kiely and all concerned were hopelessly entraugled. The two women and "Grandpa" Freeman insisted on talking at the same time and emphasizing their remarks by pounding on the recording officer's table to the great exasperation of His Honor. After trying in vain to stop the flow of counter-accusation he ordered the trio and a dozen witnesses to "clear out" and he would take the matter under consideration. The women still insisted on talking and when officers cleared the court, they adjourned to the sidewalk and when last seen were at it worse than ever.

TROLLEYS STALLED.

Linemen Work for Over Two Hours to Find Cause of Trouble.

The entire local trolley service was crippled for nearly two hours yesterday afternoon through the grounding of the feed wire under the railroad bridge on Richmond street. A new guide trough has recenly been installed there, and one of the big Newark cars caused the damage. Linemen were unable to locate the seat of the trouble until nearly 4 o'clock, two hours after the service was stopped, and as this was the main feed wire by which the power is transported from Cranford, not a wheel in the entire local system could turn until the difficulty had been remedied.

FATAL FALL FROM A TRAIN

JAMES H. ROGERS FALLS FROM CARS ON THE WAY TO BROTHER'S FUNERAL.

Edward H. Rogers, a retired druggist of Williamsbridge, who was found dead in bed last Friday, and James H. Rogers, a brother, of Geneseo, N. Y., and formerly living on Plainfield avenue, here, was killed Saturday on his way to attend the funeral in New York yesterday, will be buried side by side in Greenwood Cemetery today.

Although the funeral was to have been held yesterday, Mrs. E. H. Rogers went to Coroner O'Gorman and begged him to send some one to make a post mortem examination. Dr. Riegelman, Coroner O'Gorman's assisted, performed the autopsy and found that Rogers had died from carbolic acid poisoning.

In the meantime James H. Rogers was hurrying to New York. He was accompanied by his wife. Late Saturday afternoon the train was passing the Mount Morris station, when Rogers complained of feeling ill. He went to the platform for air, lost his balance and fell to the tracks in front of another train, which struck and killed him.

There are at present 250 New York visitors at the camp, about 225 of whom are children from the tenement districts. A delegation of fifty such little ones was received at the camp on Thursday.

J. J. VanDerveer Dead.

The funeral of John J. VanDeveer, seventy-seven years old, was held at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Samuel Daggett, in Whitehouse, yesterday. He was well known here and was an uncle of Mrs. Winfield Schomp, of West Front street. He formerly owned and resided at The Willows, a country residence along the Raritan River. Rev. S. D. Decker, pastor of the Whitehouse M. E. church, officiated. The body was taken to Somerville for interment.

John K. Malling, thirty-six years old, who died at Larger Crossroads, Saturday, after a lingering illness, was a native of North Plainfield, but during later years had made his home in Philadelphia, where he was engaged in the insurance and real estate business. About three months ago he settled in Bedminster township, hoping to benefit his health. He is survived by two children. The funeral will be held tomorrow in Philadelphia.

Sergeant Littell Leaves Hospital.

Sergeant A. I. Littell, who has been in Muhlenberg Hospital for the past eight weeks from the effects of an accident, was removed Saturday to the home of his father on West Seventh street. The physicians say it will be at least two months before he will be able to discard crutches.

DUNELLEN WINS IN CONTEST WITH CLINTON AVENUE.

Twilights Victors in Match With Orange Field Club—Detailed Scores of the Various Games.

Notwithstanding the fact that Plainfield A. Dunellen defeated the Clinton Avenue nine and there were several other matches of lesser importance.

Although Westfield was defeated, Waller's work in the box brought much satisfaction to Manager Denman. After the fourth inning no runs were made by either team. The game by innings:

Hoagland's express. That's all. It stands for prompt and satisfactory execution of orders. Don't have to feel that your trunks will be late. Hoagland is always on time.

B. J. Schreiner, the druggist, is situated on the corner of Park avenue and Second street. He also has a corner on good drugs and soda water. None excell him in putting up prescriptions. He is a graduate pharmacist.

Ever heard of Peck's? Why of course you have. Been going there for the last ten years? I thought so. If you like the best that can be gotten then you go to Peck's. If your tastes are cheaply satisfied, you go somewhere else.

J. D. Fraser's boarding and livery stable is as reliable as any you can find in the city or borough. They are located on Somerset street, near Manning avenue. He has some good horses and his rates will surprise you for they are very reasonable.

Do you enjoy a surprise? Everybody does. Watch the advertisements of the Surprise Store, on West Front street. The reasonable prices for goods will surprise you. And when you see what you get for your money, you will be more than ever surprised.

W. H. Kirch, the building contractor, is an enterprising man. In fact you will have to look a long way before you find a more suitable builder. He's just the man you want if you are thinking of building. You can find no cheaper estimates than he will give you.

The Plainfield Spring Water Company put up five gallons of their famous water for trial. They can be bought at any drug store. But you will find five gallons far from enough for you when you have once tried it. It will be a case of "water, water, everywhere, but not a drop to drink" until you get more of it.

The Plainfield Trust Company is growing whether you know it or not, and if you don't know it it's time you woke up. You wont have to wait long before you'll see that the Trust Company is Plainfield's leading bank. Might as well get your money in now and get the benefits of a four per cent. interest beginning right away.

Neuman's vegetable stock is as usual, the best in town. Neuman Brothers get much of their stock directly from their own farm in New Jersey and know what they are giving you. Furthermore you may be sure that what they give you in the best that they can procure. They are now selling an especially good line of Delaware peaches. They are shipped to the store every day.

DEATH IN TORNADO

St. Paul, Minn., Swept by Furious Gale.

TWELVE PERSONS LOST THEIR LIVES

Half a Mile Wide, the Storm Cut a Pathway Through the Business District—Minneapolis and Suburbs Suffer.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 22.—Death to twelve persons, injuries to many others and destruction to property both private and public estimated in round numbers at $1,000,000 resulted from a furious gale which tore down the valley of the Mississippi at about 9 o'clock at night from a point somewhere near the confluence of the Minnesota and Mississippi rivers near Fort Snelling. At about that point the fury of the elements seemingly divided and with a roar descended on the Twin Cities and their environs.

Lorin F. Hokanson and George Kwenton, carpenter, were killed at the Tivoli theater, an unknown child was killed by a falling wall of a dormitory at the House of the Good Shepherd, three unknown persons were killed at St. Louis Park, a suburb of Minneapolis, and four unknown persons at Waconia, a small station twenty miles west of Minneapolis. There were many seriously hurt.

The tornado cut a pathway about a half mile in width and eight miles in length through the business and residence district, leaving ruin and devastation in its track.

The downtown business district was hit hard, many of the big office and business blocks being completely riddled and the stocks of wholesale houses seriously damaged by the floods of rain that accompanied the wind.

Three were killed in St. Paul, four at Waconia, a small station twenty miles west of Minneapolis on the Minneapolis and St. Louis road, and three killed at St. Louis Park, a suburb of Minneapolis, where the station was demolished and a saloon razed to the ground.

Beginning at a point below Fort Snelling, there is the first known evidence that the storm struck with damaging effect. It came from the southwest and, howling in its fury, uprooted trees and demolished buildings in its pathway toward St. Paul.

It tore off two spans of the High bridge as completely as if they had been unbolted from the rest of the structure and carted away by workmen. There the bridge connected with the high bluffs at West St. Paul, and it is 180 feet above the river. This mass of steel was carried to the flats below, where flying steel girders and heavy planks fell on several small frame houses of the flat dwellers and crushed them completely. None of the occupants of these houses was hurt, they having seen the storm coming, took refuge in the caves in the hillside, where they were safe.

The storm tore along the flats, uprooting trees on Harriet island, and then struck this city at the Wabash street bridge.

Underneath the debris of the Tivoli were found when the storm had passed the mangled bodies of Lorin F. Hokanson, one of the employees in the concert hall, and George Kwenton, one of the audience.

The storm then rushed on to the northwest, over the wholesale district, and here the greatest destruction to property was wrought. After causing havoc in St. Paul the tornado swept onward to Minneapolis and its suburbs. Here, however, the destruction of property was not so great, although telephone and telegraph wires were torn down in great numbers. For hours the Twin Cities were cut off from any communication with the outside world.

Of the ten fatalities three of the victims met death in St. Paul, four at Waconia, a small station near Minneapolis, and three at St. Louis Park, a suburb of Minneapolis.

Practically every building on the north side of East Third street is wrecked. The Habighorst block, at Seventh and Wacouta streets, was unroofed, and the Economy department store is reported to have been damaged to the extent of $20,000.

The front wall of the building occupied by Lindeke, Warner & Son, wholesale furriers, was shattered and stock and fixtures damaged to the extent of thousands of dollars.

The St. Anthony elevator in Minneapolis was leveled to the ground, the wreckage blocking the Great Northern tracks.

One person is reported killed in one wing of the House of the Good Shepherd, which was blown down. A little girl was killed and some ten to twenty women injured.

As later reports come in it is believed that the list of dead will be materially increased.

The Pioneer Press building, a thirteen story steel and brick structure, was considerably damaged by the storm. The windows on the top floors were blown in, and a number of printers at work in the composing room were seriously cut by flying glass. The Western Union telegraph office occupies the eleventh floor of the Pioneer Press building, and their operating room was flooded with water. An immense skylight on the roof of the building was crushed in, and the court in the center of the building was filled with debris.

Four Killed by Minnesota Tornado.

GLENCOE, Minn., Aug. 22.—A tornado struck the townships of Rich Valley and Bergen on Saturday night, killing four persons—Mary O'Donnell, aged thirteen; the seven-year-old son of Anthony O'Donnell, Frederick Gross and his mother—and has destroyed thousands of acres of grain and many barns, houses and sheds. The storm extended over many counties. As telegraph and telephone wires are down in all direction it is impossible to get particulars as to the amount of total damage done in this section.

Storm Strikes Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—A severe wind and electrical storm passed over the city last night, doing much damage in the suburbs. Several small fires were started by the lightning, and the downpour of rain was so heavy that many basements were flooded and much property damaged. Northwest of the city hundreds of acres of corn were beaten down by the wind and rain, and much of it will be lost.

SWIMMING THE STRAIT.

Holbein Made a Plucky Attempt to Reach the French Shore.

DOVER, England, Aug. 22.—S. W. Greasley, the third man to enter the water in the attempt to swim the strait of Dover this year and who started yesterday morning, gave up the trial after an hour and a half owing to the extreme low temperature of the water.

Holbein made a plucky struggle and swam well until darkness set in, but at midnight violent spasms of sickness overtook him, and he swallowed considerable quantities of sea water owing to the breeze driving the wavelets dead in his teeth. This combined with the low temperature of the water caused intestinal catarrh, rendering Holbein unable to retain nourishment although he was fed frequently.

All this trouble, however, he doggedly kept to himself. Even when he began to swerve badly from his course nobody thought he would give up. His attendants cheerfully encouraged him, but finally at half past 2 in the morning he appears to have realized the hopelessness of his task and said pathetically: "I have been sick all night. I must come out." He was then eight and a half miles from Cape Gris-Nez. He was lifted into a warm cabin and soon revived and was able to walk ashore without aid when he reached Dover.

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 22.—The double header between the Cincinnati Nationals and the Philadelphias resulted in an even break. The first game was prolonged to thirteen innings through errors on both sides. Ewing's home run in this game was the result of a collision between Titus and Duffy, the former being knocked unconscious, but continuing in the game when he recovered. Lush was benched for disputing decisions. The visitors won the second game through superior batting. The second game was called at the end of the seventh inning on account of darkness. First game: Cincinnati, 4; Philadelphia, 3. Second game: Cincinnati, 2; Philadelphia, 5.

Chicago Won Out.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—Chicago Nationals won out the game by a timely batting rally in the seventh inning. A base on balls, two stolen bases and four singles scored four runs after two were gone. Weimer pitched an excellent game and but for a bad error would have shut out the visitors. Barry and Slagle carried off the fielding honors. Score: Chicago, 4; Boston, 1.

St. Louis by One Run.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 22.—St. Louis Nationals won the game from Brooklyn after the latter had the game well in hand. A hit by Burke after Grady had tripled and Smoot getting a base on balls, followed by an error of Ritter's, settled the matter. Score: St. Louis, 5; Brooklyn, 4.

Vanderbilt's Horse Won.

PARIS, Aug. 22.—W. K. Vanderbilt's Turenne has won the Prix de Deauville at Deauville.

Making a Business of Slugging.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—Captain Clancy of the stockyards police station announced that a man who had been arrested, with a number of others, for beating a nonunion man employed in the stockyards had confessed to him that Local Union No. 213 of the Truckmen's union had unanimously voted to adopt slugging methods in connection with the stockyards strike and that the 600 members of the organization had been divided into squads by Business Agent James Devins. The duty of these squads, according to the confession Captain Clancy says he obtained from his prisoner, was to drag nonunion men from street cars and beat them.

FIRED INTO CROWD

Chicago Strike Breakers Kill and Wound In Error.

THOUGHT THEY WERE ATTACKED

Fusillade From Crowded Stockyards Train—One Man Dead, Many Badly Wounded Through Butchers' Labor Trouble.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—A panic stricken crowd of stockyard strike breakers on a Lake Shore train shot and killed one man and wounded five others under a misapprehension that the train was being held up by strike sympathizers. Several others were severely injured by the police.

The conflict between the strike breakers and a crowd along the railroad tracks occurred as a train was leaving the yards for the city bearing 1,000 passengers. The train reached Fortieth street and Emerald avenue and had stopped, when the passengers were excited by a cry that the crowded train was being attacked by strikers.

A dozen persons along the railroad tracks are believed to have been wounded by the storm of shots fired from the train and to have been assisted by friends to physicians' offices.

A panic seized the negro and Greek strike breakers when a cry of "Strikers!" was raised. Instantly there was confusion in eleven cars of the train. Revolvers were drawn, and shots were fired from the car windows at the crowd along the track. The crowd increased, and a heavier fusillade of bullets sped from the windows.

On the train there was terror and confusion. The majority thought the bullets were being fired into the train.

The report of the fight was soon delivered to Inspector Hunt. With a heavy detail of policemen under his own personal direction, another squad under command of Captain Clancy and further re-enforcements in command of Lieutenants Prim, Dawney and Kelloher, the train was surrounded and the shooting stopped.

Half a dozen of the rioters were arrested.

TURKEY MAY BACK OUT.

Sultan's Pledge to Leishman Seems to Embarrass the Government.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 22. — A note from American Minister Leishman was handed to the Turkish authorities within twelve hours after the receipt by the minister of the Turkish note. Mr. Leishman holds the government to its solemn undertaking, coming direct from the sultan, respecting equal treatment with other nations for the United States concerning the question of educational institutions.

This allusion to the imperial pledge apparently embarrassed the porte, which had previously announced that it would ignore the formal verbal assurances which, Minister Leishman declared, he had received.

It is considered improbable that the porte will reply to the minister's note, and therefore the question is looked upon as shelved pending the execution of the process of recognition, when it is considered not improbable fresh difficulties will arise.

Notwithstanding the assertion by Izzet Pasha, the secretary of the palace, that $25,000 had been deposited as compensation due to an American citizen at Smyrna for land illegally taken, no such deposit has yet been made.

Auto Wreck Near Berlin, Conn.

BERLIN, Conn., Aug. 22.—While going down the steep hill between this town and Kensington at a high rate of speed a big automobile in which were three Hartford men and a chauffeur was wrecked on account of the bursting of a tire, and two of the occupants, Edward Hale and N. B. Bernard, are now in the New Britain hospital suffering from serious injuries. William Sullivan was also taken to the hospital soon after the accident, but was able to leave later in the day. The chauffeur escaped uninjured. As soon as the tire burst the machine swerved toward the trolley tracks. The angle at which the car struck the rail was a sharp one, and as the tracks are well above the ground at that place the automobile was thrown up in the air several feet and turned over on its side after striking a telegraph pole, throwing the occupants in all directions. Hale was rendered unconscious and has a concussion of the brain.

Foreman Stabbed by Italians.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 22.—Grant Dunning, a foreman in a canning factory at Mount Morris, was severely wounded by two Italians during a quarrel over tickets issued to Italians for picking beans. He was seized by the throat by a woman and cut in the head, and he was afterward stabbed in the abdomen by a man. The sheriff's officers captured the parties, who were taken before Dunning and identified and afterward removed to the county jail at Geneseo to await the outcome of Dunning's injuries. His condition is considered precarious.

Robbed Old Chinese Laundryman.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 22.—Burglars broke into a Chinese laundry at Olean and severely beat the owner, an old man, and his son and robbed them of about $200, which was found under a pillow, and some jewelry. The elder Chinaman is in a precarious condition. He has been in the laundry business in Olean nearly thirty years.

CEDAR BROOK TENNIS.

Annual Contest With Park Club to be a Feature.

Although there still remain a few matches to be played off in the tournament for the holiday cup, so many of the contestants have left town that tournament play at the Cedar Brook Tennis Club is practically at a standstill. Those in charge of the tournament say that it is probable that there will not be any more play for the cups until the first part of September. In anticipation of the annual play against the Park Club, there has been considerable informal practise tennis afternoons in which those likely to contest show themselves to be fast and fit. Last year the Cedar Brook players carried off the honors in both the singles and doubles, but this year the matches will be closer and this preliminary practise is doubtless being held to advantage.

Sewer Work Retarded.

The heavy rain of Friday night caused much extra work to Sewer Contractor John Murtaugh along the trenches on East Seventh street. Great quantities of water flowed into the ditches and in many cases the trench wall was entirely caved in, making re-excavation necessary. It was necessary to dig a sluice and to bail out the water before work could be resumed in the trenches. In some parts of the trench, the water stood over a foot in depth.

place for the weary at the end of their accomplished journey.

In the absence of Rev. Dr. Cornelius Sebenck, the pulpit of Trinity Reformed church was occupied yesterday by Rev. Peter K. Hageman, of Central Bridge, N. Y. Considering the fact that many of the congregation are out of town, the attendance was fairly large. Rev. Mr. Hageman's text was taken from Psalm 107, "Let the Redeemed of the Lord say so," the subject being "Christian Expression."

Mr. Hageman treated the text from a broad view, representing the fact that there is a great need for public expression of religious opinions. He pointed out the ways in which Christian expression can be shown in attendance at church and participation in services. He spoke at some length on the duty of such expression, and touched upon the privilege which it affords. In concluding his remarks, Rev. Mr. Hageman said that a Christian's life should be full of expression both in church and in daily life.

FRESH AIR HOME SERVICES

REV. DR. CLARE TALKS TO THE CHILDREN AT THE INSTITUTION.

Simple narrative, rehearsing of incidents in the life of Christ and special emphasizing of God's love formed the nucleus of Rev. D. H. Clare's remarks to the children at the Mary Morgan Fresh Air Home at the regular 4 o'clock service yesterday afternoon. Rev. Dr. Clare, who is pastor of the Methodist church at Hamilton, N. Y., has visited the camp before, making an address there last year. Though his language was simple, the address was forceful and easily held the interest of the campers, as well as of the large audience of visitors.

Interspersed throughout the service was the singing of gospel hymns by the children, assisted by a choir of eight persons from the Park Avenue Baptist church. Music for the singing was furnished by D. E. Davis at the melodian and Edward Young with the cornet.

Next Sunday Rev. W. B. Fleming, of the Methodist church at Maplewood, N. J., will address the meeting. There will be special singing.

Gift to Fresh Air Camp.

Through an endowment from Hugh Grant Brown, a member of the New York executive committee at the Mary Morgan Fresh Air Home, a good sized tent, to be known as the "Marjorie Brown Shelter," has been presented to Miss Curry for use at the camp. The tent will be used as the sleeping quarters of some of the boy campers.

JAPS SINK THE NOVIK

Her Fate Sealed by Cruisers Chitose and Tsushima.

U. S. DESTROYER TAKES A HAND

Japanese Torpedo Boat Enters Shanghai Harbor to Attack Russian Ships Is Followed by Our War Vessel Chauncey.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—An official cablegram from Tokyo says:

"The Japanese fleet sunk the Novik off Sakhalin yesterday morning."

The following details of the attack on the Novik have been received at the Japanese legation:

"The captain of the protected cruiser Chitose reports that the Chitose and the protected cruiser Tsushima attacked the Russian cruiser Novik at Karsakovsk, Sakhalin island, on the morning of the 20th. On the morning of the 21st the Novik, which had been heavily damaged, was stranded and partly sunk. The Tsushima was hit once in the coal bunker, but the damage has already been repaired. There was no other damage, nor was there a single casualty on either of the Japanese vessels."

A late semiofficial special cable from Shanghai says that the town was thrown into a fever of excitement yesterday afternoon by the arrival of a Japanese torpedo boat, which was sighted coming in from the south at 4:30 o'clock. She passed the Woosung at full speed and started up the river Ju for Shanghai. The United States torpedo boat destroyer Chauncey slipped her cable and followed the Japanese destroyer. The Japanese boat was cleared for action. She anchored off the Cosmopolitan dock where the Russian cruiser Askold is undergoing repairs. The Chauncey came to anchor practically between the dock and the Japanese destroyer. A foreign pilot boat reports having seen a Japanese battleship and two cruisers sixty miles outside of Woosung.

There are at present no Chinese men-of-war in Shanghai, but the taotai has telegraphed that a Chinese cruiser be sent immediately. The Russian consul general flatly refused to disarm the Askold and the Russian torpedo boat destroyer or to order them to leave the harbor.

The taotai has notified American Consul Goodnow, who is dean of the consular body, that China cannot protect the foreign settlements. He contends that Russia ignores the orders issued by China and that China has not the means of making her obey them.

Consul Goodnow has called a meeting of the consular body to take joint action for the protection of foreign inhabitants. The Askold has docked adjacent to the warehouses here of the Standard Oil company, which are valued at over $1,000,000. The Standard Oil company has demanded protection for its property from Consul Goodnow.

The dock where the Askold lies is owned by British interests. On one side of this dock is German and Dutch property and on the other side American property.

There are eight American, one German, two British and four French warships at Shanghai.

The intervention of the American squadron at Shanghai in the Japanese operations against the Russian cruiser Askold created considerable surprise in official and diplomatic circles here. The Japanese legation was at first inclined to believe that the report that the United States torpedo boat destroyer Chauncey steamed into a position between the Japanese torpedo boat and the Russian cruiser was a Shanghai "fake," as it had understood that the American government would not object to offensive action against Russian warships in case of their failure to observe Chinese neutrality.

An official of the legation said:

"If the report is true the American commander must have good reason for his action, such as the protection of the American interests, which would have been endangered by flying shells.

"Japan has been very reluctant to send ships into the harbor, for she recognized the international character of Shanghai and that the laws of neutrality demanded that China should order the Askold and the Grozovoi to dismantle or leave the port and that she having given the order and the Russian ships having refused it was then incumbent for Japan to act, thereby protecting Chinese neutrality and at the same time exerting her rights as a belligerent.

"It would never have done to permit Russian ships to remain in a Chinese port, deliberately and avowedly violating the neutrality of the country.

"Whatever reason actuated the American commander, if he really did as is reported, it is certain that no complications will follow."

It is believed at the Japanese legation that if the American commander intervened to preserve Chinese neutrality the American government will take measures to enforce it.

It is said that the British consul general will be instructed to support the American consul general in urgent representations to the taotai that he shall take measures to compel respect for China's neutrality.

A Chefu dispatch says:

"There is a rumor current here that the Japanese have been repulsed at Port Arthur.

"A reliable authority also declares that the attack was unsuccessful, but continues and will go on for one more day if the Japanese are still repulsed. A siege is expected.

"The Japanese have built two forts at Shunshiyen. They confirm previous reports that the Russian warships now at Port Arthur are in comparatively good condition. Nothing was known of the sinking of a Russian gunboat off Liaotieshan promontory last Thursday night.

"The steamship Pechili, just arrived here, was overhauled and boarded by a Japanese destroyer and five torpedo boats six miles off Liaoti promontory last night. An officer from the destroyer stayed on board for forty minutes conversing with the Japanese consul to Newchwang, who was a passenger for Chefu. The sound of firing was so heavy occasionally that conversation was difficult. The Japanese explained that they were engaged in shelling the Russian positions with the utmost vigor, preparing for an assault today before daybreak. When the Pechili was permitted to proceed on her course the firing was at its heaviest, and it was believed to indicate the imminence of a general assault."

A Seoul report says that Mr. Hayashi, the Japanese minister, has had an audience with the emperor of Korea and strongly urged the immediate adoption of the following measures:

The reduction of the standing army to 1,500 men properly drilled by Japanese officers, this force to act only as imperial guards for the Seoul palace, no provincial troops being maintained.

The use of Japanese currency exclusively in Korea, the abolition of local mints and the redemption of the present issue of nickel with copper coins at the rate of two to one.

The appointment of Japanese advisers in all government departments and bureaus, and also of provincial governors and officers.

An entire change of the cabinet, the present ministers to be replaced by progressive, intelligent men known to be pro-Japanese.

This advice is tantamount to an order, which is fully realized by the emperor, who is in a quandary what to do.

A St. Petersburg dispatch says that Emperor Nicholas has received the following message from Lieutenant General Stoessel, commander of the military forces at Port Arthur:

"The Japanese made a two days' attack on our position in the Uglovaia mountains near Louisa bay, but all their attacks were repulsed.

"The Uglovaia, Vysokaia and Divisionaia mountains remain in our hands. The enemy's losses were very great.

"A representative of the Japanese army, Major Yamaoka, has presented himself at our advanced posts with a letter signed by General Nogi and Admiral Togo demanding the surrender of the fortress. The proposal was of course rejected.

"I have the happiness to report that the troops are in excellent condition and that they fight heroically."

A Shanghai report says that the steamer Haitian, which has arrived, reports having sighted a Japanese squadron off Gutzlaff island, about sixty-five miles southeast of Shanghai. The squadron showed no lights.

The United States monitor Monadnock and two torpedo boat destroyers have been ordered to be ready to protect the neutrality of Shanghai.

American Consul Goodnow called the meeting of the consular body for 10 o'clock this morning. It is believed the foreign consuls will then arrange means to strengthen the hands of the taotai in dealing with the matter of the Russian warships.

A dispatch from Mukden says that the Japanese do not intend to make a direct attack on General Kuropatkin's position at Liaoyang. The movements of the Japanese and other information indicate that they will try to force an engagement in the vicinity of Mukden.

A Chefu report says that the United States cruiser Cincinnati and the United States gunboat Frolic are at present in that port. They are ready to send men on shore at a moment's notice.

Lieutenant McCully Turns Up.

TIENTSIN, Aug. 22. — Lieutenant Newton A. McCully, U. S. N., who has been observing the operations at Port Arthur for his government, has arrived here. He left Port Arthur on a junk Aug. 14 and came via Shanhaikwan. The lieutenant acted as an escort for three Frenchwomen from Port Arthur. He has left here for Vladivostok via Singmingting.

Major Hoffman at Kiaochau.

KIAOCHAU, Aug. 22.—Major Hoffman, the German military attache at Port Arthur, who left the Russian fortress upon the order of the German emperor, has arrived here on the Japanese cruiser Yaeyama.

A New Jersey Democrat.

ESOPUS, N. Y., Aug. 22.—Except for a casual visitor who introduced himself to Judge Parker as "a New Jersey Democrat," there was no one at Rosemount to disturb the Sunday quiet. The usual stream of Sunday sightseers, rather larger than usual, passed Rosemount in carriages and on foot, but did not disturb the Parker family. There was a report early in the day that an excursion was coming from New Jersey, but no excursionists appeared.

American Passports In Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 22.—The United States government has again formally proposed to Russia the opening of negotiations for the unrestricted recognition of American passports. In accordance with the law of the empire only foreign Jews of specified classes—merchants having business connections in the country, etc.—are allowed to enter Russia.

LITTLE FRANCE

BY

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Reuben James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

Copyright, 1901, by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

"Monsieur de Vitre, mademoiselle," said the governor, returning to his seat, "we have carefully considered the testimony of Mademoiselle de Rohan and are of the opinion that it is not sufficiently important to cause us to delay the execution. I fear that few days may see the English in possession of the town, and that, of course, means that you, sir, would escape all punishment. As for the testimony of the English officer, he is in honor bound to extricate his ally from his predicament, and we question——"

"Who questions the word of Capt. Philip Grafton?" cried a stern voice, as a strangely ill-assorted pair entered the hall. One of the two was a small slender man, only partially clothed, whose face was ghastly pale and who held his left hand pressed against his right shoulder. He would have fallen to the floor but that he was supported by the encircling arm of a huge old man in the livery of the Rohans. The two were Philip and Jean-Renaud.

"Grafton!" cried de Vitre. "Thank God, you have come!"

"Jean-Renaud," exclaimed Anne, "how dared you to bring this gentleman here! Against the doctor's orders and mine! His life——"

"Peace, mademoiselle!" interrupted Grafton. "I came here because I feared what has happened, that they would not accept your testimony. Your servant but obeyed my orders, he had no choice!"

"But your life, monsieur!" said Anne.

"I peril it gladly to save the honor of a brave gentleman, though an enemy. Monsieur le Gouverneur, you are about to execute this gentleman?"

There was a dead silence in the room.

"It is true," answered Mademoiselle de Rohan.

"It must not go on!" cried Grafton. "I swear to you on my honor as an English gentleman that Monsieur de Vitre is innocent! He is no traitor; on the contrary, he deserves your highest commendation. He refused to pilot the ships in, even though, by the orders of the admiral, he was placed on the rail of the ship with a rope flung around his neck, and men awaited the signal to hang him."

PRESSED A LONG KISS UPON IT.

Murmurs rose from the officers in the hall.

"Why was he not hanged, then, Sir Englishman?" asked the governor.

"Because an English officer interfered, one who hated to see a brave man sacrificed, and through his influence the general, who was his friend, and the admiral, who is his captain, he saved Monsieur de Vitre's life."

"Do you know this to be a fact, monsieur?"

"I do, monsieur."

"Who was the officer that saved his life?"

"I."

The truth in the answer was patent in every line of the blood-stained figure. There was a burst of applause from the officers in the room as his words carried conviction to their hearts.

"Who piloted the ships, then?"

"Some fishermen, and some of us came up the river without a pilot."

"But this uniform?"

"I have no doubt that Monsieur de Vitre can explain that. I know that last night he was held a close prisoner on the Sutherland."

"Monsieur, forgive the question. I wish to be quite certain. You are not saying this to save an ally"

"Sir, I have given you my word of honor, the word of an officer of the king. As God is my judge, I have told the truth! Hold Monsieur de Vitre until you can communicate with Admiral Saunders or Gen. Townshend. Send out a special flag now, and if the facts be not as I have stated I will answer for them with my own life. You hold me prisoner, sir. I am alone in your power. I would stake anything upon de Vitre's honor. Indeed"—he turned pale and caught at his breast again where the red stains showed under his hand—"I believe that I have staked my life—for——"

He stopped, his glance wavered toward Anne.

"For you—your lover—mademoiselle!"

He swayed back and forth and fell heavily to the floor at her feet.

"Release Monsieur de Vitre!" cried de Ramesay.

Anne de Rohan instantly sank to the floor and knelt by the prostrate form of the English captain.

"Ah, mon Dieu!" she cried. "He is dying!"

There was a look on her face, in her eyes, for which de Vitre would have given all he possessed. As the soldiers unbound him, he sprang to her side.

"You love him!" he cried. "You love him!"

CHAPTER XV.

"THOU SHALT NOT COVET."

ANNE DE ROHAN had admitted to herself as she had watched Grafton before he recovered consciousness that she loved him. If there had been any doubt in her mind of the permanence of her feelings of bygone days and their development from the childish devotion to the deep passionate love which filled her soul, the tell-tale kiss she had pressed upon his forehead when she thought him dying would have undeceived her. And she realized it more entirely at that moment when she saw him lying white and still at her feet in the hall. That something of her feeling had expressed itself in her looks she did not doubt.

But it is one thing to admit a fact in the secret recesses of one's own consciousness, or even to look one's feelings, and another to have it proclaimed on the housetops. She bitterly resented de Vitre's impulsive allegation, and that it was true but enhanced her indignation against him and against herself. How could she, a de Rohan, love this commoner of America? How could she, a French woman, bestow her affection upon an enemy? How could she give her heart to a man who wore another woman's picture above his own? Everything stood in the way of any future relationship whatever between them.

And yet how magnificently he had come to the rescue of de Vitre! How nobly he had stood forth in the hall a moment since! O God, it was true! She had betrayed herself; the world would know that she had given away her love to this English officer—an enemy. She felt and saw the pointing fingers of her society; she heard the words "Traitress! Traitress!" in the air. She would not, she could not!

Yet, how he had looked at her when he clutched her dress with that fevered question, "Are you in love with Monsieur de Vitre?" She was afraid of herself. If he should recognize her and plead with her could she resist him? No, she feared not, she was sure she could not. She loved him too well to do so. Of that point she was absolutely certain, and of another fact consequent upon the first, as well. She did not love Denis de Vitre. She admired him—but love, no. And yet here was a safeguard. Bethrothed to him she could better struggle against the pleadings of her heart. She did not yet realize what her long dormant feelings toward Philip would be, or how powerful a hold he was to have upon her.

"Monsieur de Vitre," she exclaimed, clearly enough to be heard by all the room, "you forget yourself! How could I love this stranger, an enemy of France? You are not yourself; these trials have bewildered you, and I have but one answer to your charge. You have asked me again and again to—to—in short, monsieur, are you still—"

"Mademoiselle de Rohan!" cried de Vitre, clasping her hand, "is it—will you——"

"Monsieur, I esteem you, I regard you, I admire you. I am willing, with the consent of my grandfather the marquis—to—be——"

"Monsieur de Ramesay," cried de Vitre, turning to the little group, who had been regarding the couple intently, "Mademoiselle de Rohan makes me the happiest of men! She deigns to honor me by promising me her hand."

"Look to your English friend, Monsieur de Vitre," promptly answered the governor, "and quickly!"

"Maledictions upon me!" cried de Vitre, kneeling beside the two servants. "A surgeon, quick!"

The physician, who had been previously summoned, was speedily forthcoming, and under his ministrations the flow of blood was staunched and Grafton presently opened his eyes again.

"My friend," cried de Vitre, as Grafton recovered consciousness, "what can I say? What can I do to repay you? On the ship yonder you saved my life. A moment since, in this hall, you saved my honor, and I believe it is to you I owe my greatest happiness."

"And what is that?" whispered Grafton.

"Mademoiselle has consented to do me the honor of becoming my wife."

"Ah!" exclaimed Grafton, as if stricken again.

"What is it, what is it?" cried the Frenchman, "what can I do?"

"You might have let me die, de Vitre. But there, 'tis nothing. Take me hence."

"Where will you be taken, monsieur?" asked the governor.

"He shall go back to my house," interrupted Anne, "whence he came. And you, Monsieur de Vitre, will accompany——"

"Your pardon, mademoiselle," said de Ramesay, "I believe Monsieur de Vitre to be innocent of all the charges that have been made against him, but my duty compels me to detain him in the castle until I can communicate with the English. One of my aides will accompany you home."

"'Tis useless, sir. I have here a faithful guard. If you will have some of your soldiers bring a litter to carry Monsieur Grafton, it will be enough."

"Watch over him well, mademoiselle!" cried de Vitre, as the soldiers bore him from the room. "I owe him much—everything!"

"Trust me, monsieur," replied the young girl. "Monsieur le Governor, Lieutenant de Vitre, gentlemen, I bid you adieu!"

With a sweeping courtesy she left the room.

Attended by Josette and guarded by Jean-Renaud, with brimming eyes and a leaden heart in her bosom, she walked by the litter as the soldiers bore it through the street. With downcast head she moved, yet no movement of her wounded charge escaped her. Grafton lay on the stretcher with his eyes closed. Once, as the bearers stumbled, he opened them with a sharp exclamation of pain. Instantly she bent over him. As her gaze fell upon his face he slowly turned his head away, as if the sight were too much for him and he could not bear to look upon her.

"Are you in pain, monsieur?"

"Ah, Mademoiselle de Couedic!" he answered, "such pain as I trust you may never know."

"Why did you turn your head from me?"

"Mademoiselle," he answered softly, still not looking at her, "I am thinking of some pregnant words in an old book which I had read to me when I was a child."

"And those words, monsieur?"

"'Thou shalt not covet.' You understand the English?" he whispered.

"I understand—everything, monsieur."

"Monsieur de Vitre," said the governor, "if you give me your parole you may have the freedom of the chateau. I congratulate you first upon your acquittal, and more, monsieur, upon the prize you have gained. Faith, sir, yours is like to be the one victory of the arms of France!"

CHAPTER XVI.

RECOGNITION.

GRAFTON still lay on the great bed in the upper chamber, although it was the evening after the day of the battle and the visit to the chateau. He had been promptly put there again by the faithful Jean-Renaud when his bearers had reached the house, and after a quiet night and a long day of perfect rest he felt much better. Dr. Arnoux, who had called to see him in the morning, had reprehended him severely for his excursion of the day before. Although the surgeon had been filled with generous admiration at the devotion and courage Grafton had exhibited in behalf of de Vitre in the chateau, he had strictly forbidden him to rise again from the bed for some time at least. With the remembrance of his unfortunate collapse in the chateau at the trial of de Vitre, the Englishman was inclined to heed his advice. Indeed, he could do no less, since his uniform, as a further preventive, had been taken away by Jean-Renaud under the orders of Mademoiselle de Rohan.

The tedium of the day had been relieved by two short visits from the mistress of the household. Had she consulted her inclination only, she would not have left him for a moment, but she did not dare trust herself long in his presence. Yet bare hospitality, the consideration due a sick man whom fate had thrown upon her hands, constrained her at least to inquire as to his health and to supervise in person the meager arrangements which the straitened circumstances necessitated by the rigorous siege of Quebec permitted her to make for his comfort.

CARPET BED GARDENING.

Beautiful Effects of Color and Design Produced with Non-Blossoming Plants.

Everybody who passes the Jersey City hall this summer has something pleasant to say about the large flower beds which were laid out in the surrounding park, says a letter to the New York Sun. They were laid out upon an unusual plan, and in their quaint formality of design and subdued richness of color they are peculiarly grateful to the eye.

They are examples of what is known among gardeners as carpet bedding. The plot is marked off in convenient designs, exactly like a rug. Scrolls are traced on it, hearts, diamonds, and the figures that carpet weavers and wall paper designers delight in are marked out, and then the entire ground is hidden with plants, generally of small leaf and close foliage, so that at a short distance the effect of a complete carpet is secured.

No blossoming plants are used for this style of gardening. Everything depends on foliage color. Masses of brown purple achyranthes form body color; sandoline is used for scroll patterns in green gray; altematteras give a deeper purple, and coleus in various shades is much used. For borders and for outlining elaborate patterns the various sorts of house leek or "hen and chickens" are specially available, and dracaenas and other thick leafing plants of low stature give variety to the effects.

The Jersey City beds were designed by a Greenville gardener who learned his art in the old country. Carpet bedding, he told a Sun man a day or two ago, is the favorite method of laying out grounds in Germany, France and Austria, but is not much used elsewhere. It has been introduced in some of the cemeteries here, but has found little favor in private gardens.

"One reason why it is not taken up," said he, "is that it is expensive in the first outlay. A circular bed, say 20 feet in diameter, will take from 7,000 to 8,000 plants to fill it. Then it has to be watched all the time. It takes the most careful weeding, and the foliage must be kept close trimmed. The minute you allow anything like luxuriance of growth your pattern is gone. So, a bed of carpet work will take as much of a man's time as a quarter of an acre of ordinary garden.

"But, on the other hand, it is one of the most satisfactory ways of laying out a garden, for the further along in summer you get the better your bed looks. There is no replanting, no withering. The plants grow closer and closer, the pattern is better and better designed; the colors deepen, and the effect is always artistic, neat, completely satisfying to the eye.

"It is a great art, one of the most beautiful forms of gardening, and I think as the love of fine garden work develops in this country, it will be exceedingly popular."

QUEER NOTION OF SERVANTS

Most of Them Prefer Employment in Hotels to Serving in Private Houses.

"Wouldn't you think a domestic servant would rather work in a private house than in a hotel?" asked the hotel manager, according to the New York Sun.

"Well, if you do think so, you are mistaken. I had such an idea until recently. I've got a pretty large family, and my wife grew tired of having the children cooped up in my hotel. So we took a house on the West side. We needed three servants, and we set out to get them.

"We thought it would be easy, for I never have any trouble in getting women to do hotel work. They come to me in droves when I need help, which is not often. Somehow a woman who gets a job in a hotel sticks to it.

"We furnished our home quickly, but started to get our servants before we moved in. I let it be known among the women employes of my hotel that I wanted three good servants. Dozens called on me. They were all willing to work in the hotel, but do you suppose they would work in my house? No, sir. They stuck up their noses at the job.

"Many of them acted as if they were insulted when I made the offer. I wanted a cook, a laundress and a chambermaid. I offered more money than I am paying to the same class of workers in my hotel, and they would not have to work nearly as hard as they would in the hotel.

"Then, again, they would have the comforts of a home, but they couldn't see it that way. They seemed to look upon a hotel job as far above a similar place in a private house.

"Of course I can see why a chambermaid would rather work in a hotel than in a private house, but I can't understand the attitude of the cooks and the laundresses. The chambermaid gets in on the tip graft in the hotel, but the cook and laundress don't.

"My folks are still living in the hotel, and it looks as if they might continue to live there. Meantime we are keeping up the search for the kind of servants we need. If we don't get them soon there will be a furnished house to lease on the upper West side."

Too Much Music.

A Chinese servant employed in a New York family who lived next door to a famous woman pianist left suddenly after only a few days' service. His knowledge of the English language was limited, and the letter which he left behind him notifying the family of his departure was written in Chinese. With the aid of an interpreter the gist of the communication was made out: "I do not mind your heathen parrot," said the letter; "I do not mind your barbarous customs of dressing and eating; but the lady next door who sits on the musical instrument every day is too much."—N. A TOSS OF THE COIN

HAIR-RAISING ADVENTURE IN THE AUSTRALIAN BUSH.

How the Toss of a Shilling Saved the Lives of Two Lost Wanderers —Just a Matter of Luck.

Along the lonely path through the terrible Australian bush jogged a buggy drawn by a pair of bush horses. Seated in it were two Englishmen. They were hoping to reach Southern Cross soon after nightfall.

But now the buggy had drawn up. The men sprang out. Before them the path branched out into two tracks. Down these both gazed long and carefully. Then they looked at each other, baffled and perplexed.

At length one declared that the way lay to the left. His friend looked, then shook his head.

A SMALL GOLD SPARK APPEARED.

"Our path is to the right," he said.

Only a few pints of water remained, and, at the utmost, the animals could only travel 40 miles further.

As neither man would give way, it was agreed to settle which of the tracks they should take by spinning a shilling. "Heads" was to signify that they should go by the road to the right, and "tails" by the road to the left.

Up spun the coin.

The fate of both men and beasts rested on its fall. To take the wrong path might mean 500 miles along the everlasting track to the nearest camp—a certain and horrible death by thirst and starvation.

The coin fell. "Heads" was uppermost. And the buggy rolled down the roadway on the right.

Perhaps it was chance, perhaps it was something else; but whatever it was, the path on the right did lead to the railway.

Night had fallen when the sound of their horses' hoofs striking metal told the wearied travelers that they had reached the line.

Having unharnessed the horses, the two men threw themselves down beside the embankment to await the arrival of a train.

Two hours went by before far away along the metaled bank a small gold spark appeared. Nearer and nearer it approached, growing larger every few minutes.

Now it was only a mile away. Another four minutes and it would pass.

Overjoyed at the sight, both men clambered up the bank on the metals, and, taking matches from their pockets, began to strike and to hold them up.

NEITHER MAN WOULD GIVE WAY.

The sharp grating of the brakes told them that their signal had been seen. The train came to a standstill. A few words explained their plight, and water and provisions were at once supplied to them.

On the next day they drove into Southern Cross. There they learned that had the shilling fallen "tails," they would have undoubtedly lost their lives, for the path to the left stretched for 500 miles in an unbroken and waterless tract until it reached the sea.

Couldn't Stop Her.

"In Heaven," quoted the man who was trying to hold the lid on, "there is neither marrying nor giving in marriage."

"No, nor in the other place, either," replied the leap-year maid, firmly. "That is something we must attend to while here on earth. Will you—er—name the day, Mr. Nix, or shall I?"—Chicago Daily News.

So Sudden!

"Mr. Bashforth, what do you think is the right age for a man to marry?"

"Why—ah—Miss Gwendolen, your age would suit me, all right."—Chicago Tribune.

Caution Necessary.

"Take plenty of time in lacing my corsets."

"Why?"

"Because haste makes waste."—N. Y. Times.

ONE OF A PARTY THROWN FROM A CARRIAGE.

The wheel of a carriage containing Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Warnock, their two children, Laura and Anna, and Mrs. E. D. Barrett, collapsed at the corner of Linden and Sycamore avenues, yesterday afternoon, throwing the occupants in several directions. Mrs. Barrett was rendered unconscious by the fall and was not revived until two hours afterward. She was removed to her home in a cab and Dr. Pittis, who was summoned, found that she had escaped serious injury, but was suffering from numerous cuts and bruises and shock.

Mr. and Mrs. Warnock and their children escaped injury, the carriage luckily escaping them as it fell. The horse made an effort to run away, but was caught before it had gone any distance.

Squires and Nelson on the points for the home team kept the visitors from making but two hits in the course of the game. George Dupee was weak in box for the Millstone team, and was hit almost at will. "Ted" Overton caught him. The game was interrupted in the seventh inning by a heavy thunder shower.

NEWSPAPER TRAIN IN FLAMES.

Sunday Reading for Jersey Resorts Went Up in Yellow Smoke.

The Sunday newspaper readers at Asbury Park, Ocean Grove, Long Branch and other Jersey shore resorts were late getting their papers yesterday and some went without them altogether because of a fire which broke out on the paper rain which left Jersey City on the Jersey Central Railroad shortly after 4 o'clock. While the train was whizzing by the Thirty-third street station, Bayonne, one of the crew discovered fire in a car filled with papers. A defective gas pipe had ignited the side of the car and the rapid moving of the train had fanned the flames.

As soon as the fire was discovered the train was brought to a standstill. In a few minutes half a dozen engines were on the scene. When the flames were extinguished the car had been gutted and thousands of papers burned. The piles of the colored supplements made a very yellow smoke.

In the absence of Rev. W. Montgomery Downey on his summer vacation, Wm. Winans Moore, of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, read the morning service at Holy Cross church yesterday.

In order to secure greater safety and expedition in case of fire, the swinging doors in the vestibule of the First Baptist church are being changed so as to swing outward instead of inward, as heretofore.

The First Presbyterian church will be closed for the next two Sundays on account of repairs that are needed on the building. While the repairs are being made the entire building will be thoroughly cleaned.

The Chief and three members of the Montclair Fire Department were the guests of Chief Doane at fire headquarters yesterday. The day was spent in driving through the city and in an inspection of the department apparatus. The visitors spoke enthusiastically of Plainfield's apparatus and methods.

ELIZABETH ALDERMAN TO OPPOSE F. H. SMITH

Bernard J. Higgins Announces Himself as Candidate for Office of Registrar of Deeds.

WELL-KNOWN HERE

DEMOCRATIC LEADERS ASSURE HIM OF THE CONVENTION'S SUPPORT.

Has Served Union County in Various Capacities for Seventeen Years —Generally Conceded Fight Will be Spirited.

In Alderman Bernard J. Higgins, of Elizabeth, City Collector Frank H Smith is to have a competitor in the race for the election as county registrar of deeds, the new office created by the last Republican Legislature. Like the Plainfield man, he is young and energetic and being a Democrat, the contest between the two is expected to be spirited and interesting. In order to be unhampered as far as possible, Alderman Higgins has announced that he will resign from his position as deputy county clerk next Saturday.

The Elizabethan has served Union county in various capacities for seventeen years and at the present time is regarded as the most valuable general utility man in the county clerk's office. He was born at Elizabethport thirty years ago and has always resided in that section. His father was the late James Higgins, who for many years was the most prominent and influential Democratic politician in Elizabeth's downtown district. His son entered the office of the late Surrogate James J. Gerber as a clerk in 1887 and served five years in the surrogate's office. When Mr. Gerber in 1892 was elected Democratic county clerk, he took his young protege with him into that office, where he served until 1893, or until Clerk Gerber's sudden death. He afterward served under County Clerks William M. Oliver, Democrat, and William Howard, Republican. While employed as a clerk, Mr. Higgins studied law and in 1896 was admitted to the bar. He is a member of the Union County Bar Association and is connected with various fraternal organizations.

As a city official, Mr. Higgins gained prominence through his stand against the giving away of valuable franchises to corporations as prior to his advent in the Council several companies had been granted gratis, privileges for which they should have paid round sums. He has been assured by the Democratic leaders of Elizabeth and the county of their hearty support in his fight for registrar and that he will have no opposition in the county convention.

JUNIORS TO ORGANIZE BAND

SOMERSET COUNCIL MEMBERS WILL COMPLETE PLANS TOMORROW NIGHT.

Steps have been taken by Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., to organize a brass band, composed entirely of members of the Junior order in this vicinity. The local Council includes a large number of talented musicians, one of whom is David Lawson, former instructor and leader of the New Market band, and he has taken the initiative in collecting the necessary material. Preliminary discussions have taken place and the first meeting will be held tomorrow night when a plan of action will be mapped out.

At present it is proposed to embody the greater part of the New Market band in the new organization, as most of the players in it are members of Friendship Council, of New Market. They will transfer their cards to Somerset and will thus come within the requirements. The idea is to have the band a representative Plainfield organization and one that can be engaged by lodges during fraternal visits.

Ambulance Back in Service.

The Muhlenberg Hospital ambulance was returned to the Painfield Cab stables yesterday, after eight weeks in the repair shop. The vehicle has been placed in thorough good order and presents a handsome appearance. While it was out of service, the police patrol answered all calls and the hospital authorities are greatly pleased with the prompt responses made.

Mrs. Probasco, wife of Dr. J. B. Probasco, of East Front street, is stopping at Asbury Park.

BAND CONCERT FRIDAY NIGHT

BUT NO MORE AFTER THAT UNLESS FUNDS ARE FORTHCOMING.

Although the treasury is in a very much depleted condition, Leader Ben LaVere positively announces that the usual band concert will be held in Concert Park Friday evening. But $30 is in hand for the purpose and unless contributions are made in the mean time, the sale of grandstand seats will have to be relied upon to make up the deficit. This will mean a stoppage of concerts until after the municipal baseball game, the proceeds from which are to be applied for this purpose.

In expectation of aid, Leader La Vere has arranged for several excellent singers to be heard before the season closes, but he has left the question of their management entirely in the hands of William Redmond. So many disappointments have occurred in getting the vocalists that he deemed it advisable to secure outside aid and Mr. Redmond, himself one of the city's favorite soloists, volunteered to allot those available for the various nights. He will sing Friday evening and the other soloist will be "Dave" McFadyen, a well known metropolitan "coon shouter" who has a large repertoire of new compositions.

REGULARS TO PASS THROUGH

UNITED STATES TROOPS TO BE SEEN IN PLAINFIELD.

For the first time since 1897, the residents of Plainfield will have the opportunity of having a body of United States Regulars pass through here. The troop which will arrive in Plainfield comprises Companies A, B, I, H and L, of the Fifteenth Cavalry, the Twenty-third and Twenty-seventh batteries of Field Artillery, in all twenty-eight officers, 232 cavalrymen, and 215 men in the Artillery Corps.

The troops are on their way from Fort Ethan Allen, Burlington, Vermont, which they left August 10, and expect to make their way to Manassa, Va., where on the historic battlefield of Bull Run, they will participate in the army manoeuvres in September. The cavalry and artillery are respectively commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Alexander Rogers and Major Gayle.

Both commands are marching the entire distance to Manassas. This is one of the longest practice marches attempted for some time by United States troops, and it is expected to be of great benefit to the organizations making it. The distance from Fort Ethan Allen to Manassas by rail is about 600 miles, and the march will cover a considerably longer distance. The troops are expected to cover it in three weeks. They have been on the march eight days, and on their passage through New Brunswick may possibly encamp here.

FIREMEN'S MEET.

New Jersey State Association to Convene September 24.

Word has been received at the headquarters of the local fire department from William Exall, the secretary of the New Jersey State Firemen's Association, announcing that the twenty-seventh annual convention will be held at Atlantic City, September 24 at 10:30 in the morning.

The headquarters of the executive committee will be the Hotel Rudolf, New Jersey avenue and the Esplanade. The notice requests the chairman of each delegation and the life members to procure their badges from the secretaries at the Hotel Rudolf on the evening before the convention. It is not yet known who the delegates from this city will be.

Camp Closes Labor Day.

At the meeting of the various committees in charge at the Mary Morgan Fresh Air Home, which was held last week, it is decided to close the camp this year the day before Labor Day, Sunday, September 4. This is a week earlier than the camp closed last year, but those in charge feel it advisable and necessary to close upon this date. The work among the tenements will be carried on during the winter months at the Little Missionaries' Day Nursery, in New York city, and will be under the supervision of Miss Curry and D. M. Torrey.

Mrs. McInnes Removed to Hospital.

ITALIAN CELEBRATION SEPTEMBER 7 AND 8

Church Feast to be Commemorated by Natives of Sunny Italy Residing Here.

SOME BAND CONCERTS

BIG DISPLAYS OF PYROTECHNICS TWO NIGHTS.

Parades to be a Feature—Salve Velarde As Chairman of the Committee—The Arrangements in Detail.

Impelled by the success which their public celebration of the Feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel attained last July, the local Italian societies have combined to observe in a similar manner the feast of Maria Vergine, one of the most important of the religious festivals. It will be a two day affair, lasting from the morning of September 7 until the evening of September 8, and from the arrangements which have already been perfected it will eclipse anything of this nature ever attempted in the city.

The Plainfield Italians have received word from their countrymen at Raritan to the effect that they will take part in the observance and that they will practically assume charge of the second day's programme. In addition Signor Gardineri, the leader of the Carabinieri band which has always appeared in Plainfield at these affairs, has become greatly interested in the proceedings and will bring a large number of men from New York in addition to his musicians. This will practically mean a concentration of the observance for the benefit of Plainfield, which up to two years ago knew nothing of these Italian holidays.

Salve Velarde, who managed last July's affair, has been appointed the chairman of the various committees and the arrangements are being perfected under his direction. To a Daily Press reporter today he stated that the Italians are determined to make this observance the greatest of the year and the Plainfield public is to be admitted to everything outside of the church services. On both days there will be parades through the city streets, band concerts in the afternoon and evening by the Carabinieri and Raritan bands, and a mammoth display of fireworks to commence promptly each night at 9 o'clock. The pyrotechnics will be in charge of rival companies, each one determined to excel the other and in consequence it is to be surmised that no expense will be spared in order to gain superiority.

As the public observance will cost a great deal, Chairman Velarde announces that contributions for the purpose will be gratefully received. Francis J. Blatz, Esq., has consented to act as treasurer and all donations may be sent to him and will be duly acknowledged.

A MUSKMELON SUPPER.

North Plainfield Exempts to Have Another of Its Enjoyable Affairs.

Continuing its policy of frequent entertainment for the members, the North Plainfield Exempt Firemen's Association is now arranging for a muskmelon supper to take place early next month. A committee has been appointed to complete the details and from present indications it will surpass the enjoyable watermelon feast held last week.

A new shuffleboard was installed in the club rooms yesterday and a new pool table has been ordered. Many other features will be introduced before cold weather sets in.

Jersey Central Wreck.

A freight wreck, caused by a rear end collision, occurred yesterday afternoon on the Jersey Central's Long Branch division south of Carteret, N. J. The forward train was halted on the tracks, when the other train came rushing along. Conductor Garmen of the first train signalled the other train to stop, but it was too late to avert an accident. Garmen saved his life by juming from the top of a freight car. In the second engine, which was damaged badly, were the engineer, firemen and three other men, all of whom saved themselves by jumping. Four large freight cars were broken up, and travel was blocked for a couple of hours.

PLAINFIELD VS. NEWARK

POLICE NINES FROM THE TWO PLACES TO MEET IN THIS CITY THURSDAY.

The local policemen's baseball team has definitely decided upon Thursday afternoon as the date for its first game with the Fourth Precinct nine of Newark. It will take place on Crescent Oval and the Plainfield coppers feel confident of worsting the Essex county peace preservers. Captain John Flynn has had his men out regularly for practice and while the positions have not yet been assigned, all have shown up well wherever put. The Newark men have promised that they will have nothing but regular policemen on the team and a good game is expected. At its conclusion the visitors will be entertained at supper.

The local cops played a practice game yesterday with a scrub nine and won by a score of 14 to 12. Captain Flynn did the twirling and succeeded in mystifying the opposing batsmen until the last few innings. The points for the scrubs were occupied by "Jack" Todd and Monroe Squier.

REFUSED NAME AND NUMBER

BUT ANGRY AUTO OWNER GETS BEST OF CABMAN IN THE END.

John Gill, a hackman in the employ of John Keely, was fined $2 in the city court this morning on an unusual charge preferred against him by Charles Smith, of the borough.

The complainant was seated in his automobile in front of the North Avenue station on Saturday, August 13, when Gill drove hurriedly by in a carriage. The rear wheel of his vehicle struck the auto and ripped off one of the tires. Smith demanded Gill's name but it was refused him and when he asked for his cab number, Gill, he claims, answered him in an insulting way. As the city ordinance requires hackmen to exhibit their badges where the numbers can be seen, Smith noted that Gill's was not displayed and he accordingly preferred complaint. Gill admitted the charge when arraigned.

Herring they were conducted by Rev. T. Logan Murphy and were simple in form. The floral tributes were numerous and comprised several large set pieces.

This morning the body was taken to Deep River, Middlesex county, Conn., where interment will be made.

Early in the coming spring he will return to America but will proceed to California to remain some time before again locating in Plainfield. This will make Mr. Langley's sixteenth voyage across the "pond" since he has been a resident of this city.

P. S. C. GAS FOR PLAINFIELD SUBURBS

Move on Part of Concern to Run Mains to Scotch Plains and Dunellen.

COVER BIG DISTRICT

DUNELLENITES SIGNIFY THEIR DESIRE FOR IMPROVEMENT.

Public Service Corporation Agents Now Going Over the New Field —The Plant is Located in This City.

What is evidently a move on the part of the Public Service Corporation to extend its gas mains to all of Plainfield's suburbs and make its local plant a certain distributing plant, is construed from operations now being conducted in Dunellen.

Representatives of the company have been making a house-to-house canvass in order to learn the feeling of the residents with respect to accepting the service if it is offered and they have met with great success. Fifty per cent. of those already broached signified their intention of signing contracts and many more remain to be seen. Accordingly the chances of laying mains in Dunellen are very good.

Since acquiring plants in the various parts of the State, the Public Service people have been making extensions wherever practicable and the Dunellen activity leads many to believe it is but the beginning of work in this vicinity. Scotch Plains also wants gas for lighting purposes but the former concern operating here never fully considered its petition. It is declared that P. S. C. agents have been quietly looking over the field and their inspection proved favorable for further canvassing.

In Plainfield there is also a great deal of territory not included in the service yet where residents are anxious to use gas in place of electric light and this may be included in the branching out. The plant on East Fourth street since its enlargement has an immense capacity and it would require no big effort to supply all the suburbs for years.

Board of Health Work.

The Plainfield Board of Health will hold its next meeting on September 6, but no matter of special importance will come before it for consideration. President Charles J. Fisk is expected to attend. Early in the fall, agitation for the system of municipal collection and disposal of garbage will be revived and it is believed that the scheme will be in operation in the spring.

Should Not be Missed.

Asbury Park and Ocean Grove are among the most popular seashore resorts on the Atlantic coast. The annual excursion of Warren chapel Sunday-school will go there Thursday, and it affords an unequalled opportunity for healthy recreation. Plenty of bathing, boating and other amusements. Train leaves North Avenue station at 8 o'clock prompt.

Runaway at Noon.

A team of horses belonging to Frank Mobus, left standing in the Richmond street freight yards, ran away at noon today. On Richmond street, in front of Callahan's grocery, they took to the sidewalk and were stopped by going on either side of a small maple tree. It was torn from the ground but held them until men arrived.

Repairing Trolley Wires.

Repairs have been made to the trolley wires under the railroad bridge on Richmond street. The board which holds the wire has been in poor shape for some time and has caused a great deal of trouble. An entire new board has been put up and the wire has been repaired where it was broken.

Borough School Contracts Signed.

The borough Board of Education met last evening and signed the contract papers for the new Somerset street school. They will be filed at Somerville today and the work is to be started tomorrow morning. The building must be ready for occupancy by February 1.

Mr. Black at Glenside.

Charles C. Black, of Hudson County, is occupying a cottage at Glenside Park. He is prominently mentioned as the likely nominee of the Democrats for Governor.

Miss Josie Butscher, formerly of this city, but now of New York, has returned home after a visit with relatives on West Fourth street.

SEMI-PROFESSIONAL BASEBALL

CHATHAM AND ORANGE IN THE FRONT RANK.

It is a difficult task rating the semi-professional teams this season. Orange and Chatham seem to be in the front rank. Madison, Plainfield, Westfield, Summit, Dover, Wharton and Aeolians are very nearly on a par. There are few States in the Union that can boast of a better line of teams outside the professional leagues.

But semi-professional ball will kill the game eventually. The managements are losing money on account of the constantly increasing pay-list. If team does not win it immediately losses money, and as a result the various nine have to be strengthened constantly.

It is believed that next season will see the finish of several prominent teams in this section. The uncertainty of baseball was never better illustrated than by the defeat of the strong Plainfield team on Saturday, Aug. 13, at Westfield. They were defeated with Mike O'Neill in the box.

Several National League agents have been watching nines recently. Five prominent players, including two first basemen, a catcher and two pitchers, have been approached within a week. Not one would leave independent ranks.

ENCOUNTERED A WILD BEAR

THRILLING EXPERIENCE OF PLAINFIELD YOUNG WOMEN IN THE ADIRONDACKS.

The Misses Mary and Kitty Leahy and Anna Ryan, members of a party of Plainfield young women who have been summering at Stevensville, N. Y., returned home yesterday, after undergoing a vacation experience very much out of the ordinary.

Stevensville is located well up in the Adirondacks where Nature is at her best and the forests still retain much of their primitiveness. The trio wandered well out from the town on a ramble one day and when in a lonely part of the deep woods were horrified to almost walk upon a full grown bear. For an instant it was a question as to which was the most startled, Brain or the young women. The latter recovered first and beat a precipitate retreat, never once looking back until they had reached the first outlying houses and then they discovered that the bear had not followed them. All three were very badly frightened at the experience and it was some time before they overcame their nervousness.

The other members of the party who were at Stevensville were the Misses Katherine and Clara Flynn, of West Fourth street.

HEARST MEN ATTACK SMITH.

New Jersey's "Outraged Democrats" Whack at the Ex-Senator.

An address on "The Democrats of the State of New Jersey," which appears under the caption, "An Outraged Democracy," and the greater part of which is an attack on ex-Senator James Smith, Jr., has been issued by the leaders in the movement to elect Hearst delegates in this State to the recent National Democratic Convention. Among the signers are Col. E. L. Price, a member at large of the regular Democratic State Committee and Frank Shattle, of this city.

After reciting the grievances of the Hearst faction the address says:

"When will you arise in your might and rescue from the control of trust magnates and corporation attorneys the party in which you have had so much pride in other days, and to which you must look now and hereafter for relief from unjust burdens and for enlightened, peaceful, and progressive government? We dare to hope the time has come when you will join with those whose commission we hold in an effort to 'turn the rascals out.'"

Glee Club to Reorganize.

In connection with the plans for the reorganization of the U. S. Grant Club, its musical combination known as the U. S. Grant Glee Club has been revived. A meeting of the members has been called for this evening at the home of C. H. Lippincott, 28 Jackson avenue, when several new selections will be practiced for rendition at the political gathering tomorrow night. Anyone wishing to join is asked to do so at once.

Engine House Being Remodelled.

Contractors began work yesterday, altering the former West End engine house on Harrison avenue, now the property of Herman Klinsman. It will be remodelled into a modern two-and-a-half story cottage that will represent a total outlay of $3,300.

CHAIRMAN BRIGGS ISSUES FORMAL CALL

Republican State Convention to be in Trenton Opera House After All.

JOHNSON IS CHOSEN

SENATOR FROM BERGEN TO BE TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN.

The Apportionment of Delegates—Fractional Votes to Count—Executive Session Held in Trenton.

The Republican State convention will be held in the Taylor Opera House, Trenton, after all, as the Executive Committee of the State Committee at first announced. Chairman Frank O. Briggs and Secretary J. Herbert Potts, of the State Committee, have issued the call for the convention, in which the place of meeting named is the opera house.

It was the original intention to hold the convention in the opera house, but when the committee met in Trenton Friday last it had the impression that the building could not be had for September 20, the day fixed for the convention, so it was decided to hold it in the theatre.

When the committee was considering the matter in executive session at the Republican club of Trenton, a representative of the opera house company was on hand ready to inform the committee that the opera house could be had for the day fixed.

One of the committee came out of the meeting-room, and the representative told him that the opera house could be obtained for either September 20, 21 or 22. Thinking that the member would impart this information to the committee, the representative left the clubhouse. When the opera house people learned of the complication they set to work to straighten matters out, with the result which appears in the call.

The convention is called for noon, and it is understood that former Senator William M. Johnson, of Bergen, is to be the temporary chairman. The basis of representation from each county under the call is regulated by this year's amendment to the primary law, and provides for one delegate for every 200 votes cast by the Republican party for its candidate for Governor at the Gubernatorial election of 1901, and one delegate for each fraction thereof over 100; but any ward or township, or borough without wards having cast at the last Gubernatorial election less than 200 Republican votes shall be entitled to cast such fractional portion of a vote in the convention as may be determined by the respective county committees of the State. Fractional votes are a new departure in a State convention in New Jersey, and the innovation will be watched with interest.

TRADES COUNCIL OUTING

PLAINFIELD MECHANICS TO HAVE BIG TIME AT PARK RESORT.

Plainfield Mechanics have arranged for a trolley party to Riverside Park, Tuesday evening, August 30. The affair has been arranged by the Building Trades Council and it is expected that fully five hundred from Plainfield will visit the Raritan River resort on that evening.

Four large trolley cars have been chartered, but possibly six will be necessary judging from the sale of tickets. The members will be accompanied by their families and friends.

The trip will include admission to the theatre, dancing privileges and the freedom of the park. The committee of arrangements are John D. MacAleer, E. V. Lorton, James Motley, Nimrod Horton and Calvin Sutton.

Co. K's Shoot.

Co. K's armory was open for practice shooting again last evening and about twelve men were present, mostly those who have not yet qualified at Sea Girt. Every effort is being made on the part of the officers to have the rest of the company qualify in Saturday's shoot at the State range. There are still fifteen men who have not yet made the marksmen's rank, and among that number are several who can undoubtedly make the score if they are given the opportunity. Saturday will be the last chance which the local boys will have, and they will make the best of it.

Sunday Excursion to Mauch Chunk.

There is no more popular resort for a Sunday than Mauch Chunck, and to reach it entails a delightful rail journey, and a Mauch Chunk there is a diversity of amusements, the chief of which is a ride over the Switchback. This journey occupies more than one hour, and leads over and around the mountains with widely changing scenes at every turn. The Switchback is a gravity road, and the speed attained is close to a mile per minute. Another feature is Flagstaff, the summit of which is reached by trolley, and from its pinnacle point there is a view extending over miles and miles of beautiful country. An interesting spot close at hand is Glen Onoko, a short distance above Mauch Chunk, and, as its name implies, is a beautiful glen, with falls, cataracts, mountain paths leading to cool and delightful places. On August 28, the New Jersey Central is to run a popular excursion to Mauch Chunk from Plainfield by special train leaving at 9:20 a. m. Returning train will leave Mauch Chunk at 5:40 p. m., and the round trip will cost but $1.50. Frequent train service will be in effect between Mauch Chunk and Glen Onoko, and trains on the Switchback run every few minutes. 8 23 5 o

A REPUTATION.

How It Was Made and Retained in Plainfield.

A good reputation is not easily earned and it was only by hard consistent work among our citizens that Doan's Kidney Pills won their way to the proud distinction attained in this locality. The public endorsement of scores of Plainfield residents has rendered invaluable service to the community. Read what this citizen says:

Charles Giese, cigar manufacturer, of 25 Elm place, says: "I was subject to attacks of kidney complaint for two or three years. Most of the pain was in my back and hips and I could not stoop or straighten without feeling sharp shooting twinges. When I sat for any length of time I grew stiff and sore and was compelled to give up and move about. I grew so bad I had to do something for it. I had read a great deal about Doan's Kidney Pills being such good medicine for kidney troubles so I got a box of them at L. W. Randolph's drug store. I used them according to directions and after two or three days I felt better. I continued their use until the trouble disappeared."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

PARKER WONT STUMP

Democratic Candidate Does Not Favor Speechmaking.

BELIEVES STUMPING TOUR IMPROPER

He Will Speak Only When He Has Some Definite Thing to Say and When Time and Place Are Suitable.

ESOPUS, N. Y., Aug. 23.—There is no certainty of Judge Parker making any speeches in the west in connection with his St. Louis trip or at any other time or place. The principle on which Judge Parker will act in the matter has been learned from an intimate associate of the judge, who said:

"Judge Parker has no faith in the utility of speechmaking for its own sake and will make no speeches anywhere for the mere purpose of appearing in any given locality. He believes a stumping tour by a presidential candidate to be improper, and he will undertake no such tour.

"The only condition upon which he will make any speech anywhere will be the fact that he has some definite thing to say and that he is convinced by his own reason that some given time and place best suits the saying of it there and then. You may say with the utmost confidence that under no other conditions will Judge Parker make any speech anywhere."

Former Secretary of the Treasury John G. Carlisle passed the night at Rosemount. Judge Parker met him at the station. The judge said last night that Mr. Carlisle had come at his request to talk over various things pertaining to the campaign. Mr. Carlisle said he did not know whether he would take an active part in the campaign, but was at the disposal of Judge Parker.

With former Representative R. W. Tayler of Ohio, who was in charge of the prosecution of Brigham H. Roberts of Utah, Mr. Carlisle is associated in a similar prosecution of Senator Reed Smoot, and it is to be supposed that the Mormon question was under discussion last night.

Negro Will Be Lynched.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 23.—Specials from Cedartown, west of this city, say that an unknown negro has committed a criminal assault on the thirteen-year-old daughter of a prominent farmer a mile from the town. Business has been suspended in the town, which is in a fever of excitement, hundreds of men joining in the chase of the negro. It is openly declared that lynching will follow his capture, which seems to be a matter of only a few hours. The last report is that a negro has been taken, but has not yet been identified.

Elihu Root's Last Word.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Referring to the statement that Senator Platt had received a letter from former Secretary of War Elihu Root which removed him from further consideration as a candidate for governor, Chairman Odell said that it coincided with his own information and confirmed what Mr. Root had written and said to him. Timothy L. Woodruff called on Governor Odell, and the governorship was discussed. Mr. Woodruff told the governor that he was "for the strongest man."

Holt Held For Allan Murder.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Aug. 23.—A special from Newberry, S. C., says: "Butler Holt, who was arrested on Saturday, has been identified by Bertha Medlin of Columbia as the man who is supposed to have murdered Maud Allan in Columbia two weeks ago. The woman was found dead in a house which she had been occupying with a man whose description was the only clew the police had."

Schneider Is a Faker.

BIRMINGHAM, England, Aug. 23.—Franz Schneider, the man who gave himself up to the police here Aug. 19, charging himself with stealing papers "from a person at Southampton believed to be F. Kent Loomis," has informed the police that his alleged confession was untrue and was made simply to obtain shelter, as he is broken down in body and mind.

Missed Aim, But Hit Six Boys.

WEST SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 23.—Annoyed by the intrusions of youths of the neighborhood who have entered her garden in search of stray balls, Mrs. Theresa Sine of this town discharged a gun loaded with buckshot at two young men and missing them hit six small boys who happened to be in the vicinity. Mrs. Sine was arrested.

Senator Hoar's Condition.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 23.—The following bulletin was issued from the home of Senator George F. Hoar last night by his son, General Rockwood Hoar: "The senator is asleep. He has not had quite so good a day as he had yesterday. His condition has not materially changed. The prospect is he will have a quiet night."

GALVESTON EN FETE

Celebrates Completion of Great Protecting Work.

FINEST SEA WALL IN THE WORLD

Two Granite Monuments Commemorating the Event Unveiled by Governor Lanham, Who Made the Principal Address.

GALVESTON, Tex., Aug. 23.—The completion of the Galveston sea wall the greatest structure of its kind in the world, was celebrated yesterday by the populace and by excursionists from different parts of the state. Governor Lanham was present and made a eulogistic address, commenting on the remarkable work which has been accomplished here, Galveston being now in line to seek advantage from the unique position of the city as an up to date American port and railroad center nearest of all to the new Panama canal and natural outlet for the commerce of nearly one-half of the United States.

The sea wall has been fully completed. Two granite monuments that had been erected at the foot of Tremont street to commemorate the completion of the wall were unveiled yesterday afternoon. The Galveston sea wall represents one of the finest pieces of engineering work of any kind ever accomplished in America. The wall is 17,593 feet long, 16 feet wide at the base, 5 feet wide at the top and stands 17 feet at mean low tide, with a granite riprap apron extending 27 feet out on the gulf side. The contract price of the wall was $1,198,118. The actual construction of the wall proper consumed one year four months and seventeen days.

The grade of the city is now to be raised to slope gradually from the top of the sea wall.

The last session of congress provided for an extension of the Galveston county sea wall to protect Fort Crockett for a distance of 4,000 feet to the westward. This will extend the wall to Fifty-fifth street, so that the city of Galveston on the gulf side will be protected by a sea wall the full extent of its corporate limits.

Two Girls Drowned Near Portland.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 23.—Miss Amy Clark, aged nineteen years, and Miss Clara Smith, aged twenty-two years, members of prominent families in Gray, were drowned while bathing in Sebago pond, near here. Miss Smith was seized with cramps, and her companion was attempting to save her when both sank. The bodies were recovered. Miss Clark was the daughter of Frank E. Clark and a member of the sophomore class at Bates college. Miss Smith was the daughter of Hugh J. Smith. Both were graduates of Pennell institute.

Decision In Big Trolley Line Suit.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 23.—Judge Lanning in the United States circuit court today filed an opinion in the suit brought by the Guarantee Trust company of New York against the Atlantic Coast Electrical Railroad company to foreclose a mortgage of $500,000 held by the trust company as trustee. Judge Lanning in his opinion says that the complainant is entitled to a decree for the sale of the mortgaged property.

Tam O'Shanter a Bad Thing.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Tam O'Shanter, a heavy favorite in the race at Hawthorne, proved a bad thing for those who pinned their faith and money to him. He ran a poor race and failed to get inside the money. Weird, who has been winning nearly all the steeplechase races for nearly a fortnight, was made second choice, but kept up his winning streak, Handvice, the favorite, finishing second.

Killed His Sleeping Wife.

WICHITA FALLS, Tex., Aug. 23.—Dr. L. J. Jones, a physician and stockman of Benjamin, Tex., attacked his wife with a knife while she slept and stabbed her to death. He then went to the residence of County Attorney Brookson and attacked the latter. Brookson threw the physician down and broke his hip and then had him placed under arrest.

Nineteen Hurt In Collision.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 23.—Nineteen persons have been injured in a rear end collision between two Creve Coeur street cars. One car had stopped to repair a defect in the gearing when the second car came around a curve at full speed and crashed into the first. Motorman Littrew received the most severe injuries. The passengers received cuts and bruises.

Chicago's Healthiest Summer.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—The weekly bulletin issued by the health department says that "no such healthful summer as this of 1904 appears on record in the history of Chicago." Lower and fairly equable temperature, an improving milk supply and absolutely pure water are the principal factors contributing to this result.

Paraguayan Vice President Resigns.

BUENOS AYRES, Aug. 23.—Manuel Dominguez, vice president of Paraguay, has resigned. It is reported that Asuncion has surrendered, but the rumor cannot be confirmed. The revolutionists have seized another steamer loaded with cannon, rifles and munitions of war.

THE AMSTERDAM.

De Reszke Led All the Way at Saratoga.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 23.—The Amsterdam stake event was won by M. L. Hayman's De Reszke in a close finish with John A. Drake's Bobadil. They raced well bunched to the stretch, De Reszke practically leading all the way.

Ishlana led the entire distance in the first, a selling race for three-year-olds, and she won handily by three lengths.

In the steeplechase Royelle did not begin to run until the distance was more than half gone, but he was pounds the best at the finish. Daylesford fell in taking one of the hurdles, but recovered his feet and finished. Bernhardt, who rode Liberetto, lodged a protest of foul, but it was not allowed.

St. Bellane finished strong in the third and won by three lengths.

A foul was allowed against Princess Eris for bumping. It was lodged by Odom, who rode Raiment in the fifth. She was disqualified, and third money was awarded to Linda Lee, who finished fourth.

The sixth race was run in a blinding hail and rainstorm, and the horses were invisible except in the stretch. Conkling lasted just long enough to win by a head.

Racing at Highland Park.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 23.—Favorites and second choices helped the crowd to their profits at Highland park. Sam Craig, making his first appearance at the meeting, was made second choice to Fickle Saint in the opening event and ran away with the winner's share of the purse. Jungle Imp and Easy Trade upset calculations by winning the second and third races respectively. Pretension was an even money favorite in the sixth race and rounded out the day by winning easily.

Broke Two World's Records.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 23.—Six thousand spectators saw the first day's races of the American Automobile association at Glenville track here. Earl Kiser, driving a gasoline machine, broke two world's records, one in the five mile race, when he made the last mile in 54 seconds flat, and the second when he broke that record in a three eight cylinder machine race by making the last mile in 52 4-5 seconds. Barney Oldfield was unable to compete.

Harmakis at Fair Grounds.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 23.—Harmakis found a track to his liking at the fair grounds and, although only winning by a neck, was much the best in the feature of Monday's racing card. Autumn Leaves and Old Stone raced in front until nearly at the wire, when Harmakis came on and won by a nose in a mild drive from Autumn Leaves, who was the same distance in front of Old Stone.

Polo Play Was Rough.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 23.—The Philadelphia Country club team defeated the Point Judith Country club in the first game for the Westchester polo cups here by a score of 8½ to 5¾ goals. The game was very rough, there being four falls, but fortunately none of the players was injured seriously.

Jeffries and Munroe Tuning Up.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23.—Jeffries and Munroe are now putting on the finishing touches for their fight next Friday night. Munroe did a big day's work, Kid McCoy giving him all the boxing he could stand. He will now taper off. Jeffries also put in a good day with the punching bag.

Lipton Means a Challenge.

GLASGOW, Aug. 23.—Sir Thomas Lipton has opened negotiations with the Dennys for building the Shamrock IV., but it is reported that George L. Watson will not accept a commission to design another challenger for the America's cup.

FORT RILEY, Kan., Aug. 23.—At the close of the first day's firing in the team contest of the national soldiers' shooting match the regular army infantry team was in the lead. The wind was variable, from one to nine miles an hour.

CONFLICT IS RAGING

Japanese Pouring In a Heavy Fire on Port Arthur.

CZAR'S SHIPS MUST LEAVE SHANGHAI

American Warships, While Outwardly Inactive, Have Practically Cleared For Action, With Gun Sights Ready and Steam Up.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—Advices from Chefu say that the news of the general assault on Port Arthur indicates that a tremendous conflict is raging and that victory is hanging in the balance. The Japanese yesterday bombarded Port Arthur from 6 o'clock in the morning until 1 o'clock in the afternoon, pouring in a heavy fire, but the Russians succeeded in silencing the Japanese batteries. The Japanese fleet was not engaged, having put further out to sea.

The Japanese have swept the Russians from Pigeon bay and captured the northernmost fort of the western line of inner defenses at Port Arthur. The Russian artillery prevents the Japanese from occupying the fort on Pigeon bay.

Information from Port Arthur shows that the besiegers have been re-enforced by 30,000 men from the north.

It is reported that the Japanese have captured Fort No. 25, one mile north of Golden hill. They are not attempting to storm Liaotsaishan promontory. Their right wing stops at Pigeon bay.

The Russian garrison of Port Arthur is estimated at 23,000 men, covering an area of twelve miles.

The Japanese main attack has been the heaviest against the Russian center and right, particularly against the center, fronting which the Japanese have taken up a strong position at Shusiyen.

The temperament of the Russian garrison is dogged and determined. General Stoessel, who is heavy, rides ceaselessly his chargers, which are showing the strain upon them, although the general changes his mounts frequently.

Both officers and men have grown indifferent to the shells which enter the town frequently. Recently the Chinese theater was hit, and a score of people were killed or wounded.

An unusually large proportion of young company officers have been killed, which is partially owing to their duties and to reckless daring.

At Shanghai, the taotai has granted the Russian cruiser Askold and destroyer Grozovoi till noon today to leave port.

The Russian vessels will not be allowed to make any further repairs.

The Japanese torpedo boat whose arrival here caused much excitement, and which was followed to her anchorage by the United States torpedo boat Chauncey, has left the harbor. She carried dispatches for a Japanese fleet lying off the mouth of the river.

The American warships at Shanghai, while outwardly inactive, have been for several days practically cleared for action. Their gun sights are in position, and they keep steam up. Admiral Stirling is determined not to allow the Japanese to interfere with the Russian ships, and has offered to escort them outside the three mile limit.

A later report says that as soon as China and Japan come to an agreement the Askold and Grozovoi will be disarmed, the admiralty having decided that it would be suicidal to send them out against the superior force of the Japanese lying in wait.

TSINGCHAU, Aug. 23.—Major Hoffman, the German military attache at Port Arthur, who has just arrived here, said that before leaving Lieutenant Newton A. McCully, U. S. N., the American naval attache, was quartered in the old town. Shortly after starting for Pigeon bay to take a junk for Chefu a shell hit his house and wrecked it. Major Hoffman in commenting upon the affair remarked that it was lucky for this reason that Lieutenant McCully left when he did. But few women and children are left at Port Arthur.

Russian Refugees at Hongkong.

Plainfield, N. J., Aug. 23, 1904.

Most of the dominies are taking a vacation, but police court records show that the devil is still at work.

John Sharp Williams is booked to stump for Parker. If you go to hear him, it might be well to take your bed along.

That Address to an Outraged Democracy signed by Col. Price and other Jersey Democrats is sufficient proof that the Republican pary in this State is at work.

Elizabeth is planning to have a recreation pier. Down at the county seat they want the luxuries, and are willing to do without the necessities of a modern city.

The Newark Daily Advertiser says that Roosevelt's majority should be 50,000. Possibly it should from a Republican's standpoint, but the question is will it be?

A sect in Nebraska are prophesying that the end of the world is near. Come to think of it Bryan is shouting for a gold candidate and Jim Martine declines to run for an office.

The P. S. C. through expresses are in a way a great advertisement for Plainfield. It permits the passengers to see how much better Plainfield really is than the other municipalities of Jersey.

That Elizabeth alderman who proposes to resign his seat to become the Democratic candidate for registrar of wills had better follow the example of Senator Fairbanks and hold on to his job. "A bird in the hand, etc."

Some of the old time leaders may profess not to know Charles O. Black, but Charles O. Black does know them and he and his friends seem determined not to let them catch him napping while the gubernatorial nomination is at stake.

An exchange says that Senator Kean is deeply interested in Edward S. Stokes's success as a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. The senior senator always did show a deep interest in others welfare, when John Kean would profit by it.

Governor Murphy would not think of spending that $25,000 of the people's money appropriated by the Legislature to take a party to the St. Louis Fair for the Jersey Day celebration. Oh, no, the Governor is too high minded and besides it's nearing election time.

Editorially booming Mayor George B. McClellan for Governor of New York, the New York Realty Journal says incidently "as New York goes so go Connecticut and New Jersey." New Jersey is generally conceded to the Republicans, but New York—well, it is better to wait a while.

A Republican text-book declares that Parker is owned by the Trusts and that Roosevelt is opposed to these combinations. This seems very probable when J. Pierpont Morgan, the greatest Trust magnate in the country, declares through his organ, the New York Sun, that he desires the election of Roosevelt.—Summit Record.

That is all very nice, but why not be fair and confess that one of Parker's bosom friends politically, August Belmont, is on speaking terms with that horrid trust family. The man who votes intelligently these days weighs the candidates and places the platform secondary. He knows that questions of vital importance arise during the administration of National affairs upon which the platform is silent and he wants to feel that the man to whom he gives his vote will be safe and sane in disposing of them. Platforms are all right, but it is the man after all and the people will elect the candidate which they prefer to trust and in whom they place the most confidence.

THE SMITH FAMILY REUNION

NEW JERSEY BRANCH TO HOLD ANNUAL MEETING AUG. 31.

The annual reunion of the New Jersey Branch of the Smith family will be held on the site of the original Zachariah Smith estate on the North branch of the Raritan River, on Wednesday, August 31. For twenty-eight years past it has been the custom of the descendants of the original John Schmidt, now numbering over four thousand, to gather in celebration and thanksgiving. This custom of reunion was originated in 1800 by Peter Z. Smith, one of the sons of the original John Schmidt, and each year since descendants of the worthy Hollander have convened for a holiday in the latter part of August.

In 1743, John Schmidt, then a young man, set sail from Holland for America and, pushing into the frontirer, settled in Santon, Hunterdon County. He subsequently married Christiana Haesel, a German girl, and their seventeen children, nine boys and eight girls, formed the nucleus of the immense "family" of Smiths today found through New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New York State. It is estimated that nearly 600 New Jersey Smiths are the direct descendants of Rebecca Smith, one of these seventeen children, that 500 trace their ancestry to Zachariah, another son, and a third child, Christopher, is the paternal ancestor of more than 300.

Elaborate plans for this year's celebration are being made by a committee of Smiths, and reports from the various counties show that more than four thousand of John Schmidt's descendants may be expected at this year's convention.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—There is no time like the present for canning tomatoes and there is no better place to get your supply than at Neuman Bros.

—Arthur Morrison, formerly circulation manager of the Courier-News, has entered the employ of the Grand Union Tea Company.

—J. P. Burd, the milliner, of West Front street, has rented one of Dr. Pittis' stores on East Front street and will be open about September 1.

—While proceeding along Somerset street with several cans of milk for North Plainfield delivery Saturday evening, a farmer's wagon driven by Charles Gulick, of Lincoln, was struck from behind by a west-bound trolley car at Mountain avenue. Gulick had just turned his rig on to the trolley track to escape collision with a heavy ice wagon, when the car struck. Both rear wheels of the wagon were shattered, and the milk cans rolled to the street, spilling considerable milk. Gulick was thrown from his seat by the jar, but was not injured. He affirms that the motorman gave no warning signal with the gong.

Letters received from them from time to time report that they have been enjoying their trip to the utmost. While away, Mr. and Mrs. Meyer have been visiting relatives near Berlin. They have spent all of their time in their native country, and have traveled extensively through Germany. Mr. and Mrs. Meyer are returning on the steamer Friedrich de Grosser, which sailed from Berlin the first of last week.

There is some kick on the part of the Plainfield team which played ball here last Saturday to the effect that if the last inning had been played the score would have been different. There is no doubt that the local team will be anxious to cross bats with the O. F. C. again as last week's game was a good clean match, and no one can find fault with the result. The local team put up a good game of ball, and there ought to be enough interest in baseball among the town residents to support a team from among the residents even if they do fail to support a professional team.

The heavy rains have had their effect on the lawn surrounding the station. After the hard rain Saturday night, the ground about the station was covered with water several inches deep, while the earth is badly washed out in the vicinity of the station.

SIDE LIGHTS ON TIMELY TOPICS NOTED IN PASSING.

Since the introduction of the through trolley car service between Elizabeth and Dunellen and Jersey City and Trenton, the life of a conductor or motorman is not altogether unpleasant. They have on their regular runs become acquainted with patrons living along the line, as well as the through passengers, and not a few of them have made many friends in nearly every one of the towns brough which they pass. It is amusing some times to watch patrons of the trolley wait for certain cars which they know are in charge of a particular motorman or conductor. A woman was recently noticed waiting for a certain car, and three trolleys passed her before the right one came along. Frequently, conductors and patrons will meet by appointment, some queer points being selected as a meeting place. At times the passengers will ride a short distance and again they will travel the entire length of the division. It is not a rare thing for a married motorman or conductor to have his wife accompany him on his trip and thus a pleasant two or three hours are passed. A recent change in the operation of the trolleys is more confusing than ever, as crews change at the end of their division, and it is not always possible to keep track of the men. Within the last few weeks a large number of new men have been engaged in the service, but it will not take them long to "break in" and they soon will be numbered among the "regulars."

WASHINGTON TOPICS

PEOPLE AND THINGS AT THE NATION'S CAPITAL.

DAVIS WELL-KNOWN THERE

Interest in the Coming Battle at Bull Run — Campaign Literature at Government Expense—A Desirable Immigrant.

Washington.—This city has a special interest in ex-Senator Henry Gassaway Davis, of West Virginia candidate for the vice presidency on the democratic ticket. He has been identified with many of the interests of Washington for years and has been prominent in its social and religious circles. His is a very familiar figure on the streets of the national capital. He is so well known as Senator Davis that lots of people believe that he is still occupying a seat in the senate chamber.

Ex-Senator Henry G. Davis.

In the winter season Senator Davis makes his home in Washington and takes a prominent part in public affairs. He is not regarded as a politician and every other one of his acquaintances had to stop and think twice before they could locate him politically before the St. Louis convention gave him the second place on the democratic national ticket. After his 12 years service in the United States senate Mr. Davis again came into public notice here on account of the great interest he displayed in the Pan-American congress, which first convened in this city and which has since held sessions. The senator has had a great interest in matters affecting Central and South America and is understood to be very largely connected with business enterprises in those sections, particularly in Mexico.

The democratic vice presidential candidate is a staunch Presbyterian and while in Washington he worships at the Church of the Covenant, which is jocularly and popularly known in Washington as the "Church of the Government." It is an offshoot of the New York Avenue Presbyterian church where President Lincoln worshipped, and among its founders were the late President Harrison, James G. Blaine, Justice Strong and others.

Maneuvers at Bull Run.

Another battle of Bull Run is to be fought in September. It will be a mild affair compared with the two engagements which took place some 40 years ago on that historic spot in Virginia. It will be a sham battle, as part of the army maneuvers which are to take place under the direction of Maj. Gen. Corbin, commanding the department of the east. It will be participated in by the regular troops and detachments of militia.

Politician Returning from the First Bull Run.

According to reports already received at Gen. Corbin's headquarters, some 26,000 men will participate in these maneuvers and a lively and interesting occasion is expected. It is anticipated that this encampment of federal troops, together with details of the national guards from north and south will have an excellent effect in still further cementing the friendship of the two sections of the country, once so widely divided. The survivors of the original Bull Run battlefields are becoming fewer every year, but it is expected that the maneuvers this year will attract many of the old fellows who wore the blue and gray to visit the old fighting grounds.

There are a number of old Washington residents who recollect very vividly the first Bull Run fight. The impression prevailed in this city and in congress and among many of the military men that the first contest would be a mere skirmish and the confederates would be so badly whipped that the war would come to an end at once. Citizens of Washington determined to go out to where the battle was expected to come off and witness this skirmish, much as they will go out in September to view the army maneuvers. The retreat of several thousand curiosity seekers from Bull Run to Washington still forms one of the comic chapters in local history.

How the Parties Work Uncle Sam.

The democratic congressional campaign committee expects to mail to the voters of the country no fewer than 10,000,000 speeches. The republican committee will not be far behind in the amount of literature they will disseminate. This means free distribution alone of speeches that can legitimately be called a part of the Congressional Record and be carried free through the mails under the frank of members of congress. Uncle Sam is thus worked every national campaign for a big bill of expense. These documents represent many thousand tons of mail matter which, if they paid the regular rates of postage, would cost hundreds of thousands of dollars to distribute through the mails.

Chairman Cortelyou of Republican National Committee.

This is educational work and both parties take advantage of the liberal laws that permit public documents to pass through the mails free. The democrats are now reaping the harvest they sowed last session when they put forward their best speakers in the house and senate to make arguments which they concluded would be useful in the conversion of voters in this campaign. It is a remarkable fact, however, that of these speeches now being distributed 75 per cent. were delivered by southern men whose addresses will be of no advantage in those states south of Mason's and Dixon's line. It is admitted that the "solid south" needs no campaign material in the educational line. All of this southern contribution is intended for northern and western consumption.

There are only five northern democrats who have contributed to these campaign documents and four of them are serving their first terms in congress. The congressional committee decided that these new members should be given a show, so they were accorded the privilege of the floor and made addresses to be utilized in their districts for their reelection.

Economical Heating Scheme.

A new idea in the heating of public buildings in Washington has been suggested and is now being worked out by Prof. S. H. Woodbridge, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It is that of a central heating and power station for 14 of the great public buildings in this city. It is estimated that if such a scheme can be put in operation a tremendous annual saving in fuel and other expenditures can be made.

This Bill Pleases Uncle Sam.

It is proposed that one set of engines supply the power needed in the white house, the state, war and navy building, the treasury, the new municipal building, the city and general post office, the new hall of records, the department of justice and other buildings as they are authorized and built. Then it is proposed to utilize the exhaust steam from these engines for the heating of the buildings during the winter season. It is possible that this idea may be put into operation in a limited way with the present arrangements. At the capitol, for instance, the exhaust steam from the engines is now turned into the sewers and new coal has to be used to make steam sufficient to heat the big building. It the waste steam from the engines that run the dynamos could be turned into the heating apparatus at the capitol it is estimated that a tremendous saving would be made. Huge condensing engines at a central station, it is urged, could use water over and over again and furnish steam enough to heat a large number of buildings.

Prof. Woodbridge will probably make a report on this subject at the next session of congress when an appropriation will be asked to put it into effect. The plan of heating separate buildings from a central plant is not a new one, as many towns and cities have it in operation.

Desirable Immigration.

Of all the immigrants that have passed the boundaries of the United States none has been so warmly welcomed as a stranger named Kelep. This alien comes from Guatemala and has been quickly naturalized, his American name being "Boll-Weevil Ant." He was only discovered April 20 last, but was immediately urged to come to the United States and now the department of agriculture has published an exhaustive pamphlet descriptive of the stranger and his work.

A Welcome Guest.

This document, which is entitled "The Habits of the Kelep, or Guatemalan Cotton-Boll-Weevil Ant," sings the praises of that insect in no uncertain key. Prof. Cook, who has prepared it, has made a close study of the ant, 4,000 of which were brought from Guatemala and deposited in the cotton belt of Texas. He feels authorized to declare that relief from the ravages of the boll-weevil has been found. He states that the ant attacks and kills the adult boll-weevil and "thus holds this most injurious insect in check and permits the regular harvesting of a crop of cotton even under conditions favorable to the weevil."

The ant, he finds, injures no form of vegetation and takes nothing from the cotton plant except the nectar secreted for it on the leaves and floral envelopes. He further finds that it is readily capable of domestication, transportation and colonization in the cotton fields of Texas. Two questions yet remain to be determined, one is whether Keleps will survive a winter climate of Texas and the other whether they can be propagated in sufficient numbers to protect the whole of the cotton belt.

GOV. BECKMAN WINTHROP.

New Chief Executive of Porto Rico and His Bride Already Popular in San Juan.

San Juan (P. R.) Special.

The new chief executive of Porto Rico has created a generally favorable impression in the island, especially in a social way, and his young bride of less than a year is equally well liked. Gov. Winthrop was born in New York city. He was graduated from Harvard in 1897 with the degree of A. B. and from Harvard law school in 1900 with the degree of LL. B. In 1899 he was admitted to the bar of New York. In November, 1900, he was appointed private secretary to Gov. Taft of the Philippines and served until July, 1901, when he was made assistant executive secretary of the Philippine islands. He held this office until August, 1903, and during his incumbency was acting executive secretary of the Philippines from October, 1902, to April, 1903, and from November, 1903, to May, 1904, when he was made judge of the court of first instance. A few weeks later President Roosevelt appointed him governor of Porto Rico and he was inaugurated on July 4. His wife was Miss Milsa Riggs, of New York.

CHINESE SALVATIONISTS.

Gen. Booth Has Many "Celestial" Soldiers and Lassies in California's Metropolis.

San Francisco (Cal.) Special.

They have a new light turned on the domestic servant question in San Francisco. It is the Salvation Army and many of the "Chinaboys" there have become members and put their religious principles into their housework. The Salvation Army is working in many nationalities in many countries, and is doing good work among the Chinese in Chinatown, San Francisco. There are Chinese women as well as men who belong to the army and the Salvation Army badge is worn over many varieties of costumes. As a rule the regular shield-shaped badge of metal is worn; sometimes a Chinaman will be seen wearing a bright red guernsey with the words: "Salvation Army" in big letters across the front, woven in, or there is a badge of ribbon, the army colors, red, yellow and blue, with the name in Chinese char-

Sheck Nong is one of the Chinamen who went from here to attend the international congress of the army in England. A number of the San Francisco men intended to go, but there was delay in making the necessary arrangements, Sheck Nong was the only one who at the last moment could prove that he was worth $1,000, and was allowed to go with the privilege of returning. He is a first-class servant and only asks for army meeting nights out.

Squirrel Park in Tennessee.

H. P. Kellor, of Ripley, Tenn., is the owner of a 100-acre squirrel park on one of his farms two miles west of Ripley. The trees in the park consist mainly of oak, hickory, beech and a few pecan and chestnut. There are several varieties of squirrels—gray, black, fox and a few white. At almost any hour of the day scores of the little nimble-footed creatures can be seen sporting around the cribs and barnyards on the premises, and seem to be quite gentle. Occasionally a few of them stray off in adjoining woods, but return.

Infant Weighs But One Pound.

A son weighing but one pound at birth was born to Mr. and Mrs. Beatty, at Steedman, Callaway county, Mo. The child is so small that a finger ring will go over its hand up to the elbow. It is perfectly formed, and its lungs are sound. Attending physicians say the child will live.

STATELY SILKS AGAIN.

The Rich Materials of Other Days Coming Back.

It is a matter for genuine rejoicing to those who like rich and stately robes and handsome garments that at last fashion has determined to call forth the beautiful and standard silks of yore and the splendid costumes made thereof. Not only do the young look well in these fine materials, but the middle aged may consider them a boon. It is when one has lost the first freshness of youth that rich garments become almost necessary to recompense the woman for all that she has lost. It seems that stately silks, satins and velvets belong by right to those women so that the eye may not rest too long or critically on the faded face.

For the matrons, then, fashion says there must be superb silks of the old kind, rich, thick and durable, silks which give the impression of value from far away. Black, dark blue and other colors, all of them on the order of plum, heliotrope, browns and some dark grays, are seen. But the preference is decidedly for black, for there are so many ways to trim and ornament black which cannot be applied with equal benefit to any other color, no matter what.

The castle braids are being manufactured with a special view to trimming the rich and heavy black silks now making for the coming season. Many of them are of silk with crocheted work between, which raises them to the dignity of fine guipure lace, and some are surrounded on all the places possible by beads. Others have velvet designs wrought over taffeta and these edged with embroidered work. It is cut out so that it becomes virtually a lace. When this is applied over the rich black silks it is simply beautiful.

In the illustration is shown a heavy and close cheney black taffeta, which is this season woven with a new firmness and body, and the skirt is cut on large lines. The front breadth is laid like a fold at the seam, and the other seams are treated in the same manner. At the back the entire fullness is shirred deeply, and thus the demitrain falls smoothly and gracefully. The waist is much on the order of the blouse. There is a folded belt of the silk, which fastens in front with a shirred piece. The sleeves are really bishop, but they look like flowing sleeves on account of the way in which the trimming is applied, and this trimming consists of fancy braid, with a fall of lace which covers the cuffs. At the shoulders is worn a cape made of the silk, trimmed richly with the braid and finished at the bottom with deep knotted chenille fringe. This cape can be left off, and the waist is then finished with trimming of the braid around the shoulders more or less elaborate.

The skirt in this particular instance is superbly trimmed with the fancy braid applied in an elaborate design, the braid being edged with a beading of white silk. It makes a costume worth much more extended and perfect description, and it stands for the model of the handsomest of the fall dresses.

Toque bonnets are undoubtedly the favorites for middle aged ladies, especially for dress occasions, and in spite of protest the aigret plume is absolutely necessary to finish such a bonnet properly.

Very many of the silk suits, especially those for the young ladies, will be made in strictly tailor style and will show much white stitching as well as other ways of trimming. But the fine fancy silk braids will be the preferred trimming.

Among the new things for ordinary wear for fall, mohair will still be the preferred material in one or the other of its various grades and colors. This excellent material will be largely worn for ordinary street attire.

The newest of the fall suits, which are, however, not on exhibition yet, show long coats in regular Prince Albert shape. These are made of the dress material and look very stylish on a good figure. Some of the suits show tight waists with white vests and other snug effects. All waists are longer in the back and shorter in proportion in the front.

Pretty effects are produced by the use of very narrow ruffles made of ribbon of the dress material. Small shoulder capes and dolmans will be worn. Capes of various shapes and sizes will be largely worn, and so will the pretty Monte Carlo coats.

LITTLE FRANCE

A ROMANCE OF THE DAYS WHEN "THE GREAT LORD HAWKE" WAS KING OF THE SEA

BY

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Reuben James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

Her[illegible]s had been brief, however, and w[illegible] they lasted she had deliberately stood in the shadow of the bed-curtains, so that no opportunity for a fair look upon her face had been vouchsafed him—a thing he was thirsting for and yet which he felt utterly unable to bring about. Indeed, his thoughts had been so busy with her personality and her image, that the time, which might have dragged as only time can linger, leaden-footed in the sick chamber, had passed before he noticed it.

Yet he was very dissatisfied with the situation. There was something about the young demoiselle which moved him powerfully, something he could not explain. The thought of her betrothal to de Vitre filled him with a certain jealous dismay—he could not exactly tell why. It was hardly possible he could be in love with her himself, a girl he had seen but a day since! He seemed to have known, or to have met her before, though. How was it? De Couedic! And yet——

But what could he do? Nothing. He was master of himself now—in the full possession of his faculties, with no excuse of weakness, wounds, or fever, that is—and there could be no possible reason for so personal an appeal to her as he had made when in fevered confusion he had asked her if she loved de Vitre.

During the day he was attended by a strange servant, and saw neither Jean-Renaud nor Josette, either of whom might have enlightened him had not both been kept from him by the orders of their mistress. The conversation between the two, therefore, on the occasion of these two visits was necessarily brief; confined on her part to inquiries as to his well-being, his needs, and desires, and upon his part to expressions of gratitude for her kindness, and earnest deprecations of the trouble he was giving her and her household.

As for her, every time she approached him she longed to declare herself. With the passionate abandon of a French woman who loved literally for the first time, who found herself in the actual presence of a long-cherished ideal, before a realization of her girlish and maidenly dreams, she would fain have thrown herself upon his breast—into his arms. She longed to gather him to her heart and lavish upon him those treasures of affection which all the gallantry, courage and devotion of de Vitre could not evoke. And all this in the face of the keen jealousy she suffered over the locket he wore, and the resentment she felt, in despite of the precautions she took to prevent it, that he had not recognized her—which was unreasonable but essentially feminine.

But she had controlled herself like an American. The marquis himself could not have been more coolly and coldly polite than she. As for Grafton, he had not yet, to use his own expression, "got his bearings." Never in his life had he been so moved by the presence of a woman as during the last two days. He could hardly reason about it clearly in his present condition. But at last he thought that the explanation of this infatuatoin must lie in his weakness and her beauty, for with singular fatuity he had not succeeded in discovering any other reason for his interest.

In the first place, owing to the precautions she had taken, he had not yet had that clear, full sight of the girl for which he longed. She had always been in a half light, or concealed in some shadow, or with face turned away, when she had been with him. He might have looked upon her carefully in the hall of the Chateau St. Louis, but his mind was bent upon other things then, and his physical weakness and the resulting collapse had possibly impaired his judgment as well as his vision.

Besides all this, she had informed him that her name was de Couedic, which appellation told him nothing, but had actually thrown him entirely on the wrong track. By no possibility could he have imagined that the Countess de Rohan, whom he had left a child a few years before in the Chateau de Josselin in Brittany, would be found now inside the walls of Quebec in America.

Josette he had scarcely seen since he was wounded, and he paid no attention to her anyway in the presence of Anne—one does not look at the moon when the sun is by. The same might be said of Jean-Renaud. The sergeant had not impressed himself very deeply upon Grafton's consciousness when he had been held a prisoner at the chateau, and the changed uniform and dress, together with the lapse of time, had prevented his being recognized. Anne had been very careful not to call the names of her two servitors in his presence after she had recognized him, and during the day he had not seen either of them. Luck, too, was against him. Indeed, how could he have recognized in this glorious specimen of glowing womanhood, the thin, undeveloped little girl of other days?

Anne de Rohan was now 18 years of age and in the first flush of beautiful womanhood. Of medium height, with a figure which combined the lovely proportions of her American ancestry with the daintiness and delicacy of the women of France; with a clear, cool, pale yet not pallid face, exquisite features, scarlet lips, proudly, ay, even disdainfully elegant in their graceful curves; deep blue eyes, so deep that they were almost violet when filled with feeling or glowing with passion, and the whole framed in her midnight hair; she was indeed a rarely beautiful woman. The performance of her maturity was indeed greater than her childhood's promise had been. Only a prophet might have seen the one in the past, or a seer recognize the other in the present.

A strange concatenation of circumstances had brought the girl to New France. After Grafton's departure from the chateau de Josselin she had drooped and faded. She was growing too rapidly, thought the marquis and those who advised him, who never suspected the real reason for her ill health. She actually had pined for the young man who had left her behind and yet had taken her childish heart with him. But of this, of course, she said nothing, so the wise men concluded that she had studied too hard, had been too closely confined, and so on. The physicians who were consulted, after the simple remedies of the time had proved unavailing, finally recommended a sea-voyage.

As it happened, the marquis had just then been summoned to the King to take part as a commander in one of the campaigns of the Seven Years' war, his experience and ability being too valuable to allow him to be neglected. The old man, therefore, had taken advantage of the departure of a heavy French squadron, carrying general, the Marquis de Montcalm, his suite, and some troops, to send his grand-daughter to Canada under the charge of the general, an old friend, who had been appointed to the supreme command in New France. An ancient relative of the house of Rohan lived in affluence and ease in Quebec, and to her the marquis consigned the young countess.

She had remained in New France with this estimable lady ever since her arrival, for two reasons: One, it had been difficult—well-nigh impossible, indeed, on account of the number of English ships cruising to intercept the traffic between Canada and France—to get away; and the other, as the marquis was still engaged in the French army, she would have no place to which to go, no place where she could have lived so comfortably and safely if she returned to France. The marquis was determined that he would not throw her into the hotbed of dissipation and intrigue of which Louis XV. was the focus, in Paris or at Versailles.

Her health, much benefitted by the voyage, was soon completely restored, and with her great beauty, her ancient name, her powerful grandfather, the great estates to which she was sole heiress, she became, as childhood gave way to womanhood, the undoubted belle of New France. The officers of the army, the sea officers from the various ships or squadrons which from time to time arrived from France, the young Canadian noblesse, all laid their hearts at her feet. She could have chosen any one from among them, but as yet none of them had succeeded in touching her heart. Most of them she liked and the society of many of them she enjoyed.

Among the many she had met who had paid court to her, the man she most liked, and who was, in fact, perhaps the finest among them, was the young sailor to whom, in fear of her love for Grafton, she had just engaged herself. She had refused his suit many times before, but with undaunted gallantry he had persisted in his attentions.

How her grandfather, the marquis, would regard the engagement upon which she had so suddenly and capriciously entered was problematical. In fact, she felt that he would disapprove; but while she was wholly French in her training and in her ideas she was not for nothing the daughter of an American mother. She combined a determination to exercise a certain liberty of choice as to the disposition of her heart and person with the stubborn, inflexible will power of her grandfather. Therefore, she could meet the certain antagonism of the marquis with two weapons—his own and her mother's. She trusted also that he might be won to her view; she was sure he would rather see her dead than have her marry an Englishman, an enemy, and she hoped, when she explained to him that in utter despair she had thrown herself into the arms of the one to escape the promptings of her heart, which would fain have thrown her into the arms of the other, that he would acquiesce.

She had no one to advise her, poor child! The ancient relative to whose care she had been committed, had died a few weeks since of the cares, anxieties and privations brought about by the seige. An ordinary French girl would have gone to a convent under the circumstances, but Anne possessed a certain amount of self-reliance and independence, and she resolved, for the time being, at least, to remain at her own house with old Jean Renaud and Josette. If the English were driven away she made up her mind that at any hazard she would take ship for France. If, on the contrary, the English captured the town she would probably be sent back a prisoner. So she awaited the issue of the campaign, in the meantime busying herself with caring for the sick and wounded.

It was evening. She stood by the dormer window looking out on the street. Grafton watched her closely from the bed. She had stopped a moment to inquire for him, her third and to be her last visit that day, and then, attracted by a commotion outside, she had gone to the window.

A little cortege filled the street below. Some soldiers bore upon their shoulders a rude wooden box. Over it was laid the golden-lilied white flag of France, and upon the flag a handsome sword. A half-dozen men, holding pine torches whose flickering, wavering flames cast an uncertain illumination over the scene, walked by the makeshift coffin. Immediately behind came a few priests, and then Monsieur de Ramesay and his staff, and a little huddle of townspeople—the idle and the curious.

There were no strains of martial music; there was neither blare of bugle nor roll of drum, nor tolling bells. There was no ceremony, no pomp; there were no women even.

Anne leaned her head upon the casement, her tears falling softly. Her body shook with sobs. Grafton stared at her keenly and curiously. There was a strange pain at his heart when he saw her weep.

Presently the funeral procession passed the window. The lights from the torches, almost at a level with her face in the window of the low-studded old house, threw it into high and bright relief. She was off her guard, not thinking of herself or even of Grafton, for the moment. It was the first time that he had been able to see her well. Suggestions of the truth came across him with a sense of shock, and yet he did not quite recognize her. He was not sure. It could not be.

"Mademoiselle," he said softly, "you told me your name was——"

"De Couedic. Yes, monsieur," she answered, with her eyes still fixed upon the street, though he noticed that she turned her face away from him.

Was she discovered at last? Could he suspect, she thought.

"I had thought," he continued, then he stopped.

"Mademoiselle, you weep," he said.

"Yes, monsieur."

"Who passes in the street? Those lights, what are they?"

"Monsieur, a funeral."

"Whose funeral, mademoiselle?"

"Alas, monsieur, I think it is the burial of New France!"

"Mademoiselle?"

"'Tis the funeral of the Marquis de Montcalm, monsieur. He is being borne to his last rest."

"He was a brave man, Mademoiselle de Couedic, and he died as a soldier would fain die, in the front of the battle line."

"He was my grandfather's friend, monsieur, and mine. He was so good to me. I know his wife, his children. He loved them and longed to go back to them. But he loved his country, his duty, his king, more than all, monsieur, and so he stayed, and now he will never go back any more."

She put her face down in her hands and sobbed bitterly. People are as little children when they weep. Where had he seen that bowed head? Heavens! was it not upon his own shoulder? Why, the picture was the same! The moonlight was stealing through the casement just as before. She wore something filmy and white. It might have been that night-robe that had enshrouded the slender girl. His heart beat so that it nearly suffocated him, and yet—de Couedic? It could not be!

"Mademoiselle," he said, all the passion surging in his soul quivering in his voice, "do not weep. By heaven, I do not know how or why it is, but to see you weep tears my very heart! Can it be that I saw you but yesterday and loved you, mademoiselle?"

She turned and faced him. The feeling in his voice, the look in his eyes, as she stared at him, so perfectly matched her own she had no will nor power to withstand any longer. Deliberately she fetched a light from behind the curtain and set it down on the table at the head of his bed; then she stood where the full light would fall on her face, and drawing herself up threw out her arms wide before him.

Judge Cook Said Mrs. Botkin Deserves Death Penalty.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23. — Mrs Botkin, on trial here in the poison candy case, has been convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment. In passing sentence Judge Cook expressed regret that he could not impose the death penalty, as the jury in its verdict had fixed the punishment.

Mrs. Botkin received the sentence without any evidence of emotion. An appeal to the supreme court will be taken by Mrs. Botkin's attorneys.

In Superior Judge Dunn's court Attorney Reese Clark asked that information on file there charging Mrs. Botkin with the murder of Ida Henrietta Dean, sister of Mrs. John P. Dunning, be dismissed on the grounds of lack of prosecution.

A Roosevelt Family Picnic.

OYSTER BAY., L. I., Aug. 23.—President and Mrs. Roosevelt paid a visit on horseback to Jaynes, about nine miles from Sagamore Hill, the highest point on Long Island, where a Rosevelt family picnic was held. The participants in the outing, in addition to the president and his immediate family, included members of the families of W. Emlen Roosevelt, J. West Roosevelt, Mrs. James A. Roosevelt and E. Reeve Merritt. The point on which the picnic was held is a delightful spot from which a fine view of both the north and south sides of Long Island sound may be obtained. The party, numbering about twenty-five in all, enjoyed a picnic dinner and a genuine family reunion.

Three Drowned at Boston.

BOSTON, Aug. 23.—By the capsizing of a small catboat off Boston light three persons lost their lives. Last night the Gloucester fishing schooner William H. Cross reached port, having on board two members of the sailing party who were rescued and the body of one of the victims. The party was sailing about in the harbor in the catboat Viscen when a hat blew overboard. Carl Umbert, who was steering the Viscen, maneuvered the boat until the hat was within reach. All of the party then rushed to the leeward side of the boat, the rail went under water, and at the same instant a sudden squall capsized the craft.

DIAMOND DUST.

Duquette, the Madison pitcher, has been signed by the Pittsburg Nationals.

"Kid" Nichols, manager of the St. Louis Nationals, predicts the Giants as sure pennant winners.

McKelvey has been signed to permanently play shortstop for Washington. He is an Easton player.

The two Stalling brothers, formerly of Orange A. C., are doing great stunts for the Matawan, N. J., ball team, playing first and short.

George Davis, of the White Sox, hit safely in eighteen consecutive games this season, and "Matty" McIntyre, of the Detroits, did a similar feat in seventeen.

William Kinney who pitched for Hope last year, did the slab artist work for Roseville Saturday. At present he is in fine form and pitching good ball, Ulrich who is considered one of the best pitchers in Newark, twirled for the Eagles. Ted Shortman another Hope player covered right field for Roseville.

Badgley who pitched for Plainfield the fore part of the season got bumped very hard at Easton, Saturday a week ago, losing to the tune of seven to one, Ingersolls knocking him for nine safe drives, but it is said he is not in form. He says he is out of condition from continued illness but promises not to resume pitching until he is in satisfactory condition.

Two baseball teams captained by John Lynch and Pat Connolly played a hotly contested game at Scott Terrey's place at Alton, recently. Lynch's team won out by a score of 10 to 6. The batteries were Lynch and Dilts and Connolly and Scott. Each side has now a game to its credit and the "rubber" will be played shortly after Labor Day.

The Trenton True American makes these comments regarding the game this week between Westfield and the Trenton Y. M. C. A. teams: "Strikeouts, Egner 12; Waller 0*. Egner pitched in his old-time form*. Ray twirled the neatest and cleanest game of the season*. Bentwhistle's catch of the fly knocked by Ross in the fourth was almost phenomenal . Cotter played a good game at backstop. He worked hard. That's what we like about his playing. Waller acted like a baby in the seventh, when he tossed them up to McCune after Ross had been declared safe."

"Dick" Smith, manager of Y. M. C. A. baseball team, has received a flattering offer to take a team to Cuba this fall. No definite decision has been reached in the matter, but it is probable that he will accept if he can arrange his business to permit of his being absent from Trenton for two months. Mr. LtRaires, manager of the All-Cuban team, made the offer to Mr. Smith and promises to pay all expenses besides giving a weekly guarantee. If the trip is taken the team will leave Trenton about October 16 to go direct to Cuba for a stay of six weeks. Returning home, exhibition games would be played in Florida.

ROD AND GUN.

Marshal Pope, of the borough police force, commenced his vacation yesterday. It will be spent at Barnegat on a fishing trip.

Frank Anderson, of Madison avenue, landed a big sea turtle while fishing off Perth Amboy yesterday. It weighed in the neighborhood of 50 pounds.

Dr. W. C. Luckey, Harry Dreier and Elvin VanName left yesterday for a fishing trip at Giffords, Staten Island. They will remain over today if the fish are biting well.

Gilbert Murray and Clarence Thorn, who have been spending several days fishing at Barnegat Pier with Frank Hedden, returned home Sunday evening with about 75 weakfish. Hedden will not return until September.

A Sure Sign Politically.

There must be some real hope in the breasts of Democrats of the Fifth Congressional District that they will be able to defeat Representative Fowler, else why is it that Farmer Orator Martine has refused to stand as his party candidate? Heretofore he has never refused when he knew he was to be the leader of a forlorn hope.—Newark Evening News.

SHOT BRICKS OFF CHIMNEY

TITUS H. LAURY'S NOVEL WAY OF REMOVING DANGER TO WORKMEN.

The refusal of several of Contractor Titus H. Laury's employes to work beneath the tall chimney at the Rogers Silver Corporation's plant because of loose bricks directly at the top, led him to adopt a novel method of removing the danger yesterday. The stack was recently struck by lightning and several of the bricks were left loosely balanced ninety feet up. The masons noticed that they might fall at any time and if they were below would certainly be injured.

Laury was at a loss for some time to get the bricks down but finally hit on a plan and hurrying home procured his shotgun. Charging it heavily he took deliberate aim and blazed away. The first shot was sufficient and the loose bricks rattled to the ground. The men returned to the job and the repairing is now going on.

IN THE CHRISTIAN FIELD

WORK IN THE CHURCHES OF THE CITY AND BOROUGH.

Tomorrow evening's service at the Mary Morgan Home, Netherwood, will be conducted under the leadership of Henry Manning, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Manning will also address the children at the camp. There will be special singing.

There will be a social and box supper at the Christian church this evening. A short informal programme will be given, consisting of vocal and banjo music and readings, after which the boxes will be sold. The proceeds of the sale of the boxes will be used for the benefit of the church.

At the morning service at St. Mary's church Sunday morning, Walter Francis Haurand, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Haurand, of Elmwood place, was received into the church by baptism. Rev. Father A. M. Egan performed the rite. Sponsers for the child were Dr. John A. Berneman, of Philadelphia and Mrs. G. O. Keller, of Park avenue.

Arrangements have been completed for a picnic to be given by the German Lutheran St. Peter's church to be held at the home of Mrs. Koch on Watchung avenue, tomorrow afternoon and evening. Elaborate plans for entertainment have been made by the Ladies' Aid Society of the church, and in the event of clear weather, the picnic should prove a great social success.

Rev. Mr. Melborn, new pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church, occupied the pulpit Sunday morning, and preached an interesting sermon. His subject was the life of Paul, and from the epistle of St. Paul the minister drew lessons which, as he said, would aid the congregation in their church life. Mr. Melborn divided his sermon into two parts. The first was how to build up the church and the second how to keep the church.

John Hiscock, manager of the Sabbath Recorder, left Sunday afternoon for Kansas, where he will attend the General Conference of the Seventh-Day Baptist church to be held at Nortonville for six days, commencing tomorrow. In the same party are Rev. A. H. Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Titsworth, of this city. Delegates from cities and towns all over the United States will attend the business sessions of the church conference.

A letter received from Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck and family, who are sojourning at Elisabethtown, N. Y., in the heart of the Adirondacks, states that they are in excellent health and enjoying most delightful weather. In the three weeks that they have been away they have had only one rain and that was sadly needed. The family will leave Elizabethtown the latter part of this week and will probably spend the remainder of Dr. Schenck's vacation in Philadelphia with Mrs. Schenck's mother.

IT COST HIM DEARLY.

Swede Who Resisted Arrest Contributes $15 to Borough Treasury.

Gustav Peterson, the Swede who attempted to fight off Chief Marshal Weiss when placed under arrest in the borough, Saturday night, was fined $15 or ten days by Recorder Dond last evening. He promptly paid the amount.

Frank Moncton, also arraigned last evening, was sent to jail for ten days and John Long paid a $5 fine.

"PEACE BE WITH THEE"—JIM

MR. MARTINE DEPLORES THE "OUTRAGED" DEMOCRATS' MOVE.

Farmer-orator James E. Martine laid down his rake and slipped away from Cedar Brook farm long enough to supply this epistle to The Daily Press, he being greatly agitated over the "Address to an Outraged Democracy" which Col. Price and his friends have issued.

Editor, The Daily Press:

I am personally acquainted with many whose names are attached to the document and regard them highly, but I consider this movement as ill timed and it can not correct the evils of which they complain. That there are abuses none will deny, but my plan is to correct them within our party—not by going over directly or indirectly to the Republicans. Anything is for me better than the doctrines and policies of the Republican party. My friends, you with whom I have fought many a good fight, I urge to stand by the Democratic ticket as nominated by the convention; dissentions now can only mean aid and succor to the party which stands for tariff robbery and trust oligarchy.

BEHIND CLOSED PORTALS

HAPPENINGS OF THE LOCAL FRATERNAL ORDERS.

At a meeting of Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., last evening, two candidates were given the second degree.

A rehearsal of the Perseverance Lodge third rank team has been called for this evening by Chancellor Commander Philip Jahn.

The second and third degrees will be conferred on two candidates at the meeting of the Queen City Lodge, I. O. O. F., tomorrow night.

Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., will have a watermelon feast and entertainment Thursday evening. Members of other lodges will be in attendance.

Iona Council, No. 14, D. of P., received two propositions at the regular meeting last evening. Plans and the discussion of the fourteenth anniversary of the tribe will be considered at the next meeting. The anniversary date is October 9.

A preliminary meeting of those who are to organize the local aerie of the Fraternal Order of Eagles will be held in the Washington Hall building this evening at 8 o'clock. The charter list now contains 100 names and indications point to a still larger number before the institution takes place.

At a regular meeting of Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., held last evening, two candidates were received for the second degree. At the conclusion of the business meeting, the lodge entertained two visitors, Brother Ludgate, from a Massachusetts Lodge, and a brother from Dunkirk, N. Y. Both men made addresses in the course of the evening, and John Becker responded for the local lodge.

Among those who will attend the session of the grand encampment, Knights Templar, in SanFrancisco next month will be Earl of Euston, who ranks as the head of the English Masonic lodges. The distinguished officer comes as the personal representative of King Edward of England, who was grand master of England before he ascended the throne. The Earl of Euston is a thirty-third degree Mason.

The Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias, has decided to hold its next biennial encampment in New Orleans. New Orleans won by a vote of 99 to 41. The encampment will be held the third Tuesday in September, 1904. The Supreme Lodge has adopted new uniforms and equipments for all officers of the Pythian army except general officers and officers of the general staff. The uniforms adopted are practically the same as worn by the officers of the United States Army. The full-dress uniform for all regimental officers and members of the rank has been discarded. The regular uniform must be worn by all companies organized and mustered in from on and after the promulgation of the revision of the rules and regulations. The changes do not meet with the approval of the uniform rank as an entirety, and had it been left to their vote they would not have been made. The ruling of the supreme assembly, however, is final.

Funeral of J. H. Rogers.

Several members of Anchor Lodge and other friends, were in attendance at the funeral services held this morning over the body of James H. Rogers at his late home in New York. He was a member of Anchor Lodge, F. and A. M., and also of Plainfield Council, No. 711, R. A. Members of the Masonic order in New York had charge of the services. When in this city, Mr. Rogers resided on Plainfield avenue.

KANE GETS HIS HOSTELRY?

TENANT TURNS OVER KEYS AND THE FIGHT IS NEARLY ENDED.

By turning over the keys to the hotel at Galvin's Park last night to Alexander Kane, Louis Clark, who has been the hotel keeper since January 15 last, withdrew from the contest for ownership of the place which is now being fiercely waged between Alexander Kane, of Filmore avenue, and Levi U. Hart, of Westfield, as counsel for the two Mrs. Jetman, of New York city.

The fight for ownership has long been going on and but recently Kane brought action in Justice Hand's court to dispossess Clark, who had refused to vacate under three days' notice, according to contract entered into with Kane, at the time he entered possession of the building. Hart took Clark's end of the matter legally and Kane was represented by Coddington & Swackhamer. The case first came up last Tuesday morning, but was postponed until this morning. Neither of the parties in the matter appeared before the Justice this morning, and as the keys have been delivered to Kane, it is probable that the case as it stands will be dismissed.

Immediately upon receiving the keys to the building, Kane sent a watchman to the premises to prevent encroachment by Hart. Prompt as he was, Kane's man found the building already in possession of a guardian sent by Hart. Both men remained at the building over night. This morning Hart and Kane were on the scene. The former, realizing how bitter were the feelings of his rival, wisely remained locked in the hotel with his watchman. Kane, after fruitless efforts to summon him outside, tore down Hart's signs of ownership and, substituting his own, departed, leaving his watchman at the hotel. This morning in town he announced that he would have possession of the building before the end of the week at any cost, and those who know him well believe that this means some sort of a personal encounter with Hart.

Although it has been in legal possession of four distinct parties, the ownership of the building and about 450 feet of property in its immediate vicinity is still unsettled. The property was originally sold to Clark Pryne, of Westfield, by a Mrs. Osburne, of New York city, about forty years ago, and has since that time been disputed ownership. Kane bought it from D. C. Ivins, of this city, who bought it in at sheriff's sale in the spring. The fact that he has recently paid up all back taxes on the building and property when it was about to be sold at auction for back taxes strengthens his claim to true ownership. He holds a sheriff's deed of sale for the place.

Jersey Peach Crop.

Franklin Dye, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, has returned from his midsummer tour of inspection through the State. He reports that the crops generally are in good condition and that the farmers should have one of their best years when this season ends. The peach crop, however, he says, presents discouraging aspects. Speaking of this fruit, he states: "The San Jose scale and the 'yellows' have just about ruined the Jersey peach crop. For several years New Jersey has been losing its supremacy in the raising of peaches and at last the farmers pretty generally have about given up hope of getting commercial returns from the raising of peaches."

Mrs. I. A. Greene Dead.

Mrs. Ida A. Greene, of Netherwood avenue, died this morning after a lingering illness. She was in her thirty-sixth year. Mrs. Greene is survived by a husband, and seven sisters, and two brothers. The funeral will be held from the residence of Mrs. John Sharkey, with whom the dead woman resided, and will be private.

Westfield's Valuation.

Westfield's total valuations this year will amount to about $2,300,000, and it is anticipated that the tax rate will be $2.68 against $2.98 last year. About $60,000 of the increased valuations are due to the fact that fire exemptions are included this year, and there is about $75,000 on new property.

BOY HANGS IN AIR; HAND PIERCED BY HOOK

Flesh Torn in Struggle to Free Himself and He Falls to the Ground.

MORRIS ABRAMS' SON

ACCIDENT IN FRONT OF WATTS' MEAT MARKET.

Little Jacob Abrams Hurt While Engaging in Childish Pranks —Had Been Warned of the Danger.

With a heavy meat hook pierced through his right hand, twelve-year-old Jacob Abrams, son of Morris Abrams, of Grove street, hung writhing three feet from the ground in front of James Watts' meat market on West Front street, last night, until his own weight and his efforts in the struggle tore the hook clear through his hand and he fell to the sidewalk. The accident took place at about 9 o'clock and the little fellow lies at his home on Grove street today threatened with tetanus, which perhaps will be the outcome of the gashing wound inflicted by the rusty iron.

For some time past, the boys of the vicinity have been amusing themselves with all sorts of athletic stunts on the curved bar, bristling with meat hooks in front of the store. Last evening, as on several other occasions, Patrolman Matthew Vanderweg had warned the boys of the danger and at the time of the accident, had just driven them from in front of the market. With an inlying spirit of mischief, young Abrams had made a dash for the place again and in jumping had misjudged the distance in the darkness, and had caught himself on the hook.

His hand mangled by the jagged six inch wound, the little fellow, wild with fright and pain, ran into Abrams's shoe store, shrieking for his father. Mr. Abrams was out of town at the time. Realising how seriously the boy was injured, a hurry call was sent by the clerks for a physician, and Dr. Charles Lufburrow hurried to the store. Hastily checking to some extent the flow of blood, the doctor removed the lad in a carriage to his home on Grove street.

At the house Dr. Curry, who had been summoned, administered an anesthetic and Dr. Lufburrow bound up the several arteries which had been severed and closed the wound, taking forty-two stitches in the injured hand. The wound extends from a point in the forearm about two inches above the wrist down to the fleshy part of the thumb, where the hook jerked out of the flesh. The real danger cannot be determined yet for several days. It is said that the boy may lose the use of his thumb because so many of the major tendons, nerves and muscles were severed.

LUNCH-BOX SOCIAL.

Pleasant Affair at the Christian Church.

The lunch box social which was held at the Christian church last evening, was in every way a decided success. A large number was present. The plans for the affair were in charge of the pastor, Rev. Mr. Phil. Parsons. The informal entertainment which preceded the sale of the lunch boxes consisted of the following numbers: Recitations by Miss Sadee Stelle; vocal solo, Miss Lillian Edgar; baritone selections, W. D. Stoky; vocal duet, William Guest and Fred Goodwin.

Mrs. Stelle had charge of the sale of the lunch boxes which brought a fairly large sum. The proceeds will be devoted to the church fund.

Kenneth Stuart in the Band.

Mr. Stuart has been with this band the entire summer and is expecting to return to his duties in a few days. The orchestra consists of sixty pieces. On September 1, Mr. Stuart will start for the Thousand Islands where he will spend about a month.

Higgins' Move.

Bernard J. Higgins shows a double determination to keep out of the county court house. He has resigned his position as a deputy in the office of the county clerk, and announces that he will be the Democratic candidate for registrar of deeds in opposition to Frank H. Smith, of Plainfield, who, it is conceded, will be the Republican candidate for that office.—Elizabeth Journal.

BECOMES THE WIFE OF F. W. HOUSEMAN, OF NORWOOD AVENUE.

The home of Mrs. J. E. Titus, on West Fourth street near Monroe avenue, was the scene of a quiet wedding last evening, when her daughter, Miss Lelia Voorhees Titus, was made the wife of Frank W. Houseman, of Norwood avenue.

Rev J. W. Musson, pastor of Faith Baptist chapel, performed the ceremony, which was witnessed only by a few relatives and intimate friends. At its conclusion the young people were tendered a reception and a wedding supper was served.

Following a short trip Mr. and Mrs. Houseman will make their home on West Fourth street. The groom is employed at Westfield but he and his bride have a wide circle of acquaintances in this city.

ENDEAVORERS HOLD SOCIAL

PLEASANT AFFAIR AT TRINITY REFORMED. LARGELY ATTENDED.

Despite the absence of so many on their summer vacations, the August sociable, given under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society, of Trinity Reformed church, was attended by Endeavorers and their friends to the number of almost fifty last evening. The affair was held in the lecture room of the church, which was suitably decorated for the occasion with plants and cut flowers.

The evening was spent with progressive games, fourteen well known table games being played and the winning couples progressing from table to table. While these contests were going on, selections were rendered by LeRoy DeCamp on the phonograph, and at the conclusion of the play Miss Florence Bennett and E. D. Young rendered two vocal duets, "Sweet and Low" and "Over the Stars There is Rest," and later Miss Bennett sang "The Four Leafed Clover." These vocal selections were much enjoyed. These vocal selections were much enjoyed. Refreshments, consisting of lemonade and cake, were served and a social hour was spent in conversation.

The committee which arranged the affair was in charge of E. D. Young, and consisted of the Misses Anna Randall, Anna Searing, Bertha Richards and Lucy Cornell, W. J. Trembath and F. G. Bach.

Y. M. C. A. Men's Meeting.

Rev. Alexander Irvine, of New Haven, Conn., has been secured to conduct the men's service at the Y. M. C. A. next Sunday afternoon. Mr. Manning is unusually fortunate in being able to get a speaker of such reputation. Mr. Irvine is recognized in New Haven as an strong speaker, and he has been in the habit of talking to large audiences at the New Haven opera house. During the summer Mr. Irvine has been addressing open air meetings, where mixed audiences have been gathered, and he has been a great favorite among lovers of good oratory.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING OF PROSPECTIVE EAGLES

Final Steps Under Way for the Formation of Local Aerie of F. O. E.

COMMITTEES APPOINTED

INSTITUTION NEXT MONTH WILL BE MARKED BY BIG DEMONSTRATION.

The Charter to be Applied for at Once, and Organization Will Start Off With 100 Members.

At a preliminary meeting held in the Washington Hall building, last evening, final steps were taken toward the formation of a local aerie of the Fraternal Order of Eagles. Sixty prospective members were in attendance and from the enthusiasm exhibited the organization will eventually become one of the best in the State.

The meeting was called to order by Organizer Edward Burke, of Elizabeth, and the following temporary officers were elected: Chairman, Daniel Force; secretary, Horace G. Adams; treasurer, D. J. Shea. After an informal discussion it was decided to apply for the charter at once in order to have the institution the latter part of September. It will be made the occasion of a large demonstation and will include a parade at night, fireworks display and band concert. Mr. Burke announced that aeries from all over the State would participate upon request.

In order to work out the details more systematically the following committees were appointed: Officers, Louis McIntosh, Fred Moore, John English, Lawrence Powers, John Butler, William N. Runyon, Edward Pope, P. J. Reville, Frank Milligan and John Lynch; rooms, Garret Kiely, John V. Beekman and Edward C. Searing; refreshments, Ulysses G. Force, Rudolph Kampf, James Loughlin and E. C. Searing; decorations, J. V. Beekman, A. G. Adams, P. J. Reville; fireworks, S. C. Terry, D. J. Shea and Fred Moore; badges and paraphernalia, P. J. Reville and D. J. Shea.

A further meeting is to be held next Tuesday evening when permanent rooms will be selected and the named of the aerie will be decided upon. It is possible that 100 members will be secured by that time but as only fifty names can be placed on the charter, those who first pay the initiatory fee will be accorded the honor.

Wetumpkah committee in charge of the affair consists of W. H. Humphreys, A. W. Willard and Richard D. Scott.

KANE TEARING DOWN HOTEL

ASSERTS HIS RIGHT TO GALVIN'S RESORT BY DEMOLISHING IT.

Alexander Kane, who claims ownership of Galvin's Hotel by recent payment of all delinquent taxes as well as by purchase from DeWitt C. Ivins several months ago, asserted his claim to the building this morning by commencing its demolition in full view of the principal contestant, Levi C. Hart, Esq., who is acting for two New York women.

Early this morning, Kane transported thirteen Italians, two colored men and four teams to the hotel, and commenced the tearing off the roof of the building. At about 9 o'clock, when Kane had left the place, Hart, accompanied by a police officer from Westfield, appeared on the premises and stopped the work of destruction, driving off the men. Kane subsequently returned and not finding his adversary on the premises, renewed the demolition with the gang of laborers.

SWAM LAKE TO ESCAPE

PLAINFIELD YOUNG MEN TAKE IMPROMPTU BATH TO AVOID ARREST.

Two Plainfield young men who were members of a "growler" party that had been carousing back of the Watchung Silk Mill, adopted novel means for escape when Marshal Smalley, of the borough force, raided them last night. Without waiting to even remove a coat they plunged into Tier's lake. They made their way through the shallow water until the channel was reached when they swam to the Plainfield side.

The marshal captured William Godown and David Totten and hampered by them was unable to give chase to the fleeing men before they got beyond his jurisdiction. The city police have been asked to get the others in time for arraignment with the other two before Recorder Doud tonight.

PINNED BENEATH A WAGON

NEW BRUNSWICK MAN FIGURES IN AN ACCIDENT HERE.

Garret Breese, an employe of Osthers Brothers, of New Brunswick, had a narrow escape from serious injury in a mix-up of horses and wagons that occurred beneath the Grant Avenue bridge, yesterday afternoon.

With several other men he was bringing a lot of horses, ponies and wagons to this city for a sale and turned into Grant avenue from Front street just as a train passed over the railroad bridge. A horse tied to the rear of a buggy in which he was seated, reared up and threw the vehicle over. He was pinned beneath and immediately afterward was surrounded by plunging animals that were kept from him only by the buggy. Before his assisants could restore order he was a mass of cuts and bruises and several of the wagons had been damaged. He was taken to Boice's Hotel in the borough and a physician who examined him said he would be all right in a few days.

ADDER MACHINE CO. CONSIDERING TWO SITES

Agent of Concern Finds Desirable Locations for Big Factory in This City.

STOCK SUBSCRIPTIONS

CHARLES LYMAN HUSTLING TO GET PLAINFIELDERS TO INVEST.

Nelson A. Miller is President of the Company—Wilkesbarre Also Being Interested in the Matter.

With a view to locating the big manufacturing plant of the Adder Machine Company in this city, representatives from the company have been in town for several days past, and it is probable that within ten days it will be definitely announced whether or not the firm will locate here.

The company, of which Nelson A. Miller, of North Plainfield, is the president, was incorporated two years ago at Detroit, Michigan, under the corporation laws of the State of New Jersey. Since its incorporation, the business of the firm has been carried on in a plant at the Boydell Power Building, in Detroit, where thirty-five skilled machinists are employed, producing on an average of about fifty machines a week. The company is capitalized at $750,000. Desirous of being nearer New York city, the officers of the company have for some time been contemplating a change in the location of the manufactory. The two places where the firm is considering as locations are at Wilkesbarre, Pa., and this city. Two choice sites for the plan, the one adjourning the Hygeia Ice Company's plant on North avenue, and the other on land owned by the Plainfield Real Estate Co., on Rock avenue, have been offered to the firm free of cost on condition that they will locate here.

Acting upon a suggestion of President Miller, the company has definitely decided upon Plainfield as a plant location if $50,000 worth of stock can be sold among residents of the city. Charles H. Lyman, who is in charge of the disposal of this stock for the company, said this morning that he had already disposed of 500 shares since Thursday, and announced that several other big deals in the stock are in course of transaction. He feels encouraged with the way the project is being supported and thinks it possible to dispose of the required number of shares within a short time. He is to make a report of his progress to the board of directors of the concern in ten days, and on this report will hinge the final action of the corporation. Some 20,000 shares of the stock are owned by people in Wilkesbarre, and that city is looked upon as next desirable location.

Aside from the manufacture of the Wales Adder, which has a big market in banking houses of the east and in large concerns where billing, listing and general accounting is carried on, the firm also puts out what is called the Lotterhand Typewriter Adder, a machine adjustable to any typewriter for use in billing and tabulating of all kinds. When attached to a typewriter, this adder forms a most complete aid in all billing work; if desired, the instrument may be also used independently of the typewriter, a perfect adding machine for general accounting.

IONA RECEPTION.

Mrs. A. J. Stiglits rendered several soprano solos and Miss Daisy Snyder and Miss Ella Sebring also sang. Miss Violet Hallett, Mrs. Newcorn and Miss Nettie Newcorn gave selections at the piano and there was additional vocal music by the Iona Quartette, composed of Mrs. Sadie Bowman, Miss Mamie Burke, Mrs. Nimrod Horton and Mrs. John Hallett. During the evening a buffet lunch was served in the dining room. Mr. and Mrs. Newcorn were presented with bouquets of handsome flowers, and these gifts were acknowledged by informal speeches of thanks on the part of the recipients.

Clement Morgan, of Central avenue, is summering at Bay Shore, Long Island.

"LEFTY" DAVIS RELEASED

PUTNAM, NEW YORK GIANTS, MAY PITCH IN SATURDAY'S GAME.

"Lefty" Davis, who has been the permanent pitcher for the Plainfield Athletic Club since the beginning of the season, was released by Manager Johnston yesterday, because of opposition to him on the part of the local fans. He will be succeeded by a slab artist from the National League, in all probability either Garvin, of the Brooklyns, or Putnam, of the New York Giants. Both have been broached but as yet terms have not been agreed upon. Manager Johnston was in communication, yesterday, with the Giants' management and received some assurance that he could have Putnam.

With a strong, heady pitcher in the box the Plainfield team will stand better chances than ever of securing a series of games with the Elizabeth Stars and the negotiations which have been pending are expected to come to a head. Manager Burke, of the county seat aggregation, has offered Manager Johnston his choice of any three of the following dates: September 24, October 1, 8, 15 and 22. The two were to have met in this city last evening but Manager Burke was detained and the matter was put over. If possible, the series will be decided upon before next week.

GOOD TIME AT CAMP HOPE

PLAINFIELD BOYS ENJOYING DAYS AT LAKE HOPATCONG.

Camp Hope, Lake Hopatcong,
August 23, 1904.

One of the first things to impress itself on the mind of a visitor is the excellence of the meals given to the campers. They are not prepared by a French cook, and served by a colored butler, but they are the best that Nature provides, and excel other camp rations by a long margin. Alfred B. Marsh looks fine in his white cap and apron. The campers have discovered the existence of a young women's camp in the near vicinity, and many prefer the society at this camp to that of their own home. The young women are from Elizabeth, and are very kind in letting the boys in on the distribution of rations. It is said that the discoverer of this camp is Ray Mc Voy. He for one has made up his mind to stay another month. "Mac" has become very much attached to the place.

The bulletin has several attractive features for the coming days, including the grand ball which is to be given to the campers by their friends at the Hotel Breslin, Thursday evening. It is predicted that this dance will be the cause of the boys losing the ball game Friday afternoon at Mount Arlington.

Every day there are crowds of visitors watching the regular practice of the ball team which will play Friday, and by the time for the game comes, the entire population of Hopatcong will be ready to bet their last dollar on the Plainfield boys.

GRAY EAGLE CAPTURED AFTER FIERCE STRUGGLE

Big Bird Attempted to Carry Off Valuable Dog Belonging to Louis Snowden.

FELLED BY CLUB

FOUGHT MEN FURIOUSLY BEFORE IT WAS SUBDUED.

Evidently Made Desperate by Hunger—Measures Six Feet From Tip to Tip of Wings.

After it had made a desperate attempt to carry off a dog weighing at least fifteen pounds, William Schorb and Louis Snowden, of his city, captured a large gray eagle at Wilson's stone quarry in the "Notch," yesterday afternoon. The bird, made vicious by hunger, fought them off even after its leg had been broken and Schorb's hands were torn by its talons before it was subdued. It was brought to Plainfield by the men and when measured, showed a clean stretch of six feet from tip to tip of the wings.

The eagle was noticed by residents of Watchung flying in the air for nearly an hour and it finally hovered over the quarry. While the workmen were watching its movements, it suddenly swooped downward and caught hold of the dog belonging to Snowden. Only then did they realize it was an eagle and as the owner and other rushed forward it rose to a height of fifteen or twenty feet with a great flapping of wings and the canine yelping furiously. Snowden prizes the animal highly and to get it down, hurled a pick handle upward. It struck the eagle in the leg, breaking it and loosening its hold. As the bird and dog dropped to the ground, the former turned toward the men and struck at them furiously with wings and claws. Snowden and Schorb were forced to fight it alone as the Italian workmen were greatly frightened at its exhibition of strength and refused to go near it.

The eagle is of a variety seldom seen in New Jersey but is common in the Southern states. The only time they get North is when they are blown away by a storm and lose their bearings. This was evidently the case with this one as it showed signs of a long flight and the fact of its seizing the dog was evidence of its hunger.

AN AUTO TRIP.

Ball Family Make a Four Hundred-Mile Tour Through the Eastern States.

F. H. Ball, of the borough, has just made a 400-mile automobile trip through New England. Mrs. Ball and the Misses Adelaide and Sarah Ball accompanied him. They left Plainfield Saturday afternoon, going by way of Springfield, through Newark, New York, White Plains, Portchester, New Haven and thence to Hartford. From there the party went to Ellington, a small town twenty miles from Hartford.

The return from Hartford was by way of Bridgeport, White Plains and Tarrytown, by ferry to Nyack, thence through Englewood to the Oranges and home by way of Springfield. The trip was enjoyable and the machine ran perfectly. Even the pneumatic tires were on their good behavior, and brought back the Jersey air that had been pumped into them before the start. The party reached Plainfield in time for dinner last night, thus averaging 120 miles a day.

Fort Riley Shoot.

Yesterday saw a great shakeup in the standing of the competing teams. The shooting was at the 800 and 1,000 yard ranges, with slow fire. The army infantry team fell down to third and the New Yorkers jumped from third to first, while the District of Columbia dropped from second to fifth, New Jersey moving into its place from sixth. Following is the standing of the leading teams, the possible score for the two days' firing being 3,600: New York, 2,880; New Jersey, 2,810; army infantry, 2,806; marines, 2,788; District of Columbia, 2,763; United States navy, 2,765; Massachusetts, 2,730.

Commends Firemen's Home.

He has been at the home for the past year and speaks enthusiastically of the treatment he has been accorded at the institution and of the highly efficient manner in which it is conducted.

Sunday Excursion to Mauch Chunk.

There is no more popular resort for a Sunday than Mauch Chunck, and to reach it entails a delightful rail journey, and a Mauch Chunk there is a diversity of amusements, the chief of which is a ride over the Switchback. This journey occupies more than one hour, and leads over and around the mountains with widely changing scenes at every turn. The Switchback is a gravity road, and the speed attained is close to a mile per minute. Another feature is Flagstaff, the summit of which is reached by trolley, and from its pinnacle point there is a view extending over miles and miles of beautiful country. An interesting spot close at hand is Glen Onoko, a short distance above Mauch Chunk, and, as its name implies, is a beautiful glen, with falls, cataracts, mountain paths leading to cool and delightful places. On August 28, the New Jersey Central is to run a popular excursion to Mauch Chunk from Plainfield by special train leaving at 9:20 a. m. Returning train will leave Mauch Chunk at 5:40 p. m., and the round trip will cost but $1.50. Frequent train service will be in effect between Mauch Chunk and Glen Onoko, and trains on the Switchback run every few minutes. 8 23 5 c

AMUSEMENTS.

B. C. Whitney's company that will present the piquant musical mixture, the "Isle of Spice," at the Majestic Theatre, New York, Tuesday, August 23, is one of the largest, best and most evenly balanced organizations in America. It numbers among the principals such well known and popular comedians as Alexander Clarke, Gilbert Gregory, Herbert Cawthorne, John Kendrick, James Phelan, Blanche Buckner, Mattie Martz, Leslie Leigh, Susie Forrester, Alice Yorke and a large chorus. Among the most popular of the twenty odd musical numbers in the "Isle of Spice" are: "Peggy Brady," "The Maid of Nicobar," "Mercenary Maryann," "Uncle Sam's Marines," and the "Goo Goo" song. These are all sung with full chorus accompaniment and new and original stage business arranged by stage manager Gus Sohlke that have added immensly to their popularity. Seats now on sale at box office four weeks in advance. Mail and telephone orders promptly filled.

"Checkers," the phenominally popular play which proved one of the few real successes of last season, will begin its second engagement at the Academy of Music, New York, on next Monday evening, August 22. The company presenting "Checkers" is practically the same excellent aggregation of players seen last season. Thomas W. Ross will be seen again in the title role and Dave Braham, Jr., in his never-to-be-forgettable character of "Push" Miller, the race track tout. Miss Katherine Mulkins, who played the part of Pert, the sweetheart of "Checkers" so charmingly, has been retained. In fact, of the entire company of 150 people required for an adequate production of the play, less than half a dozen to be seen this season, will be new. In addition to last season's company, there is a group of dancing pickaninnies to lend local color to the scene in Arkansas, while the famous race track scene will be strengthened by a bunch of thoroughbreds.

Just as smoothly and as sprightly as if she had never missed an evening of the summer, "The Girl from Kay's" reappeared unto a large and appreciative audience at the Herald Square Theatre last evening. She opened the second season of the theatre under Mr. Charles Frohman's management, and you might have thought she had closed the first the night before. Nearly nine months of steady run last season had apparently not exhausted her mirth provoking capabilities, and it was equally apparent that she would continue to receive many friends for much longer than the two weeks she remains in New York this season. The catchy songs, the amusing lines, were as favorably received as ever, while the new songs and new lines were at once installed in high positions. In his own language, it is "sufficiency" to say that Sam Bernard, as the blase Piggy, drew all the laughter the most exacting comedian could desire as his reward, while Miss Hattie Williams was followed with applause in her career from milliner girl to millionaire's wife.

There is no lack of good entertainment at Proctor's Newark Theatre this week, where Marcella's trained cockatoos are seen for the first time in America since their triumphal European tour. This is one of the most imposing and important bird acts before the public and will be found to be even more attractive than when last seen here. Frank Mayne & Co. occupy second position, presenting clever racing sketch Owen Kildare's "The Tipster." This is one of the best slang classics ever produced, and is presented by an unusually strong cast. Mr. and Mrs. Jos. J. Dowling will be seen in a clever little sketch of the Western plains, entitled "The Sage Brush Widow." Mr. Dowling has long been noted for his excellent assumption of Western roles, and in this sketch he has a part particularly well suited to his talents. The Kilties Trio, vocalists, instrumentalists and dancers, offer a diversified and pleasing specialty, while Palfrey & Barton present the newest in trick cycling. Minnie Harrison, a clever little singer and dancer, contributes her share toward the entertainment of the audience, and Master Coogan will show some clever dancing steps. As usual, the kalatechnescope figures importantly on the bill.

Workman, favorite in the third, was beaten by Lochinvar by a length and a half. The fifth was won by Katie Caffrey, an even money favorite. She romped home eight lengths ahead. Homestead won the sixth by a neck from Keynote, the odds-on favorite. Flexion was within a head of second money.

Mrs. Maybrick, From English Prison, Seeks Perfect Rest.

AFTER FIFTEEN YEARS OF SUFFERING

Looked Well and Smiled Her Thanks. Thousands of Curious Women Crowded Pier and Mobbed Her Carriage.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—The only unpleasant feature of the arrival of Mrs. Florence Maybrick, who has been absent from her native country for twenty-three years, fifteen of which have been spent in an English prison, was the morbid crowd of women who packed the American line pier here on the coming to dock of the Vaterland. Over a thousand of them surrounded the dock, and when Mrs. Maybrick drove away to the home of her friends, Dr. and Mrs. Emmet Densmore of Bay Ridge, they mobbed her carriage for a glimpse of her. She looked at them curiously, with a little sarcastic curl at the edge of her lips.

Mrs. Maybrick told her attorneys she felt perfectly safe in the hands of American newspaper men, and she very graciously posed for the photographers.

The immigration authorities made no attempt to question Mrs. Maybrick, and the customs officers did all in their power to expedite the taking of her declaration and the passing of her baggage.

She left the pier on the arm of Mr. Hayden. What the curious crowd saw was a slight, short woman with a thin, worn face and a mass of brown hair. The simple gown of small black and white pattern of silk fitted her closely and was fastened at the waist with a wide black belt. The only bit of color in her costume was a heliotrope ribbon and a flower of the same hue in her hat. She was unveiled and smiled at the staring crowd. During the voyage across Mrs. Maybrick appeared a few times at meals and in the cabin, but remained most of the time in her cabin. She was met at the dock by a few close friends and was driven directly to a hotel and after a brief rest will make a trip to the Catskills before her contemplated journey south.

Mr. Hayden acknowledged that Mrs. Maybrick was about to proceed in her suit for lands in Virginia and other states, which are said to be valuable, but declined to refer to the answer to the suit in which it is alleged that Mrs. Maybrick has no claim to the property and that the bringing of the suit was a trick to hasten the woman's release. Mr. Hayden said:

"In behalf of Mrs. Maybrick, her mother and her counsel and friends I wish for her to express generally and specifically her gratitude for the efforts which have been made in her behalf. Mrs. Maybrick left Truro, in Cornwall, on July 20, and through the courtesy and assistance of the English government and the United States she was enabled to reach her home in Rouen without annoyance. On Aug. 11 Mrs. Maybrick left Rouen. She went to Paris and from there to Brussels and thence to Antwerp, where she took passage on the Vaderland for New York, which sailed on Aug. 13.

"Mrs. Maybrick went on board at Antwerp, and until the last few days there were but a small number of those on board who knew her as Mrs. Maybrick. I made the captain of the steamship aware of the situation, and he did his best to insure her having rest and secrecy."

Mrs. Maybrick's attorney upon landing gave out the following statement, signed by Mrs. Maybrick:

"I regret that the state of my health as well as business reasons prevents my talking to my friends of the American press at this time as I should like. To them and to my fellow country men and women I am deeply indebted for their efforts in my behalf, and I take this means for expressing my everlasting gratitude as well as words can and also to thank them for their congratulations on my release, which I regret I have not been able personally to acknowledge.

"It is on the advice of my counsel and my physician that I have traveled incognito. I cannot express the feelings of deep joy and thankfulness with which I return to my native land. At the earliest opportunity I shall visit my birthplace, Mobile, Ala., and also Norfolk, Va., my home during my married life.

"I now believe, as I have always, that God will in his own time right the great wrong that I have suffered."

Colored Bathers Barred.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 24.—Barring of colored bathers from the surf at this place bids fair to raise the liveliest kind of a row, and city officials are wondering where the trouble is going to end. Mayor Keep, who is said to be responsible for the order to the lifeguards to keep colored people out of the water, is on his vacation.

International Americanisto Congress

STUTTGART, Germany, Aug. 24.—The fourth international Americanisto congress, which has been in session here since Aug. 18, has adjourned after selecting Quebec as the next meeting place. The five sessions of the congress were devoted to papers and addresses on ethnological, geographical and other academic questions relating to the American continent.

Plainfield, N. J., Aug. 24, 1904.

Revolution in Santo Domingo is right on time. The sea serpeant story is overdue.

That Mrs. Phipps will free her husband only for $6,000,000 shows that she values him at a high figure.

Now Mrs. Maybrick can write a book, deliver lectures or go on the stage, but a suffering public will hope that she will do none of these.

Mr. Parker will make no speeches during the Presidential campaign. No wonder Mr. Bryan considers the nomination of the Esopus man a slap at him.

Now that the days are growing shorter, and we have our proof behind us, may we not ask: What do you think of Elizabeth as a summer resort?—Elizabeth Times.

Alienists please note.

There was hardly any need of former Senator Smith denying the accusations in the address of the "Outraged Democrats." Nearly everyone at all acquainted with political methods is on to the game.

General Stoessel's declaration that Port Arthur will be his tomb may sound heroic but it really demonstrates the foolhardiness of the Russians. Recognizing the fact that the Japs will ultimately capture the position after great slaughter he is prepared for the inevitable rather than make an honorable capitulation.

An experienced advertiser asserts that "the advertising which is continuous; which pegs away in season and out of season; which never lets up at any time, but keeps on hammering away with insistence, must win out, no matter what it may have to contend with, if the object so advertised have but ordinary merit."—Ex.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The Brookside Gun Club is preparing for some good shooting in the fall. The club is having its grounds on the Johnson property surveyed and marked out by a civil engineer, and has in mind other improvements which will add materially to the enjoyment of the sport. In all probability match shoots will be held with gun clubs in Plainfield and the neighboring towns. The members of the club are planning for prize competitions to be held both among themselves and with outside clubs. It is not certain when the club will reopen, but it is thought by those managing the affair that all will be ready by September 15.

The Township Committee has evidently become aware of the fact that the roads in the village and vicinity are in need of repair. They have had no easy job keeping the thoroughfares in good condition this year on account of the heavy rains. Just at present the efforts of the committee are being put on the grass which is several feet high in some of the streets. They think that by getting this grass out of the way they may be able to see their way clear to make other repairs. Improvements in leveling and grading could be made to advantage and it is up to the Township Committee to make them.

The Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company of the village at its last meeting outlined extensive plans for the improvements which they are intending to make in the near future. A large amount of money will be appropriated for the work, which will begin soon. It is intended to enlarge the library room and to put an extension on at the rear of the building.

The local baseball team will cross bats with a team called the Royal Colored Giants, next Saturday. The game is called for 3:30. It will be played on the home grounds and will afford the local residents an opportunity of witnessing some good baseball. The boys are anxious to beat the visitors, who have quite a reputation.

It is too bad. The historic Baptist cemetery is beginning to become overrun with weeds and briars once more. This is due to a lack of interest among the plot owners, as the board of trustees of the church have made several attempts to create a fund for the maintenance of the cemetery, but the plot owners do not respond.

William H. Lee is making extensive improvements about his hotel. A new kitchen is being added, together with an up-to-date bowling alley. The improvement will make a change in the building.

Miss Louise Robison, of the borough, who has been spending two weeks with friends at Camden and Princeton, has returned home.

Among the local residents who have been at Asbury this summer are Mr. and Mrs. Collins, who returned recently from the Ocean Hotel.

The members of the Suburban Club are preparing to open the club's social season the latter part of September with a reception and dance.

Henry Alberts and Lynus Walpole, both of this village, are spending the day in Coney Island. They expect to return tomorrow.

Word has been received from William Buckley, who is taking his vacation in Massachusetts, that he is having a fine time.

JAP FLEET OUTSIDE

Shanghai Closely Guarded by Togo's Ships.

AMERICAN FIRMS ASK PROTECTION

China Has Ordered Through British Consul the Repairs on Russian Warships Stopped—Japanese Take Fort Etseshan.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—Advices from Shanghai say that the final time limit allowed by the Chinese taotai of Shanghai for the Russian cruiser Askold and the torpedo boat destroyer Grozovoi to disarm has passed without compliance with his order. The taotai, through the British consul, has therefore ordered that the repairs to the Russian ships be stopped. The order was made through the British consul because of the fact that the repairs were being made by the British Dock company at Shanghai.

A meeting of the consuls has been held, the Russian consul general, M. Kleinmenoff being absent.

There is a Japanese fleet outside the harbor awaiting developments. A visit to the Askold shows that her hull is not in condition to go to sea. The repairs on the Russian cruiser's boilers and funnels have been rushed, but the replacing of damaged plates in her hull has been pursued in a desultory manner.

In view of the circumstances existing certain prominent American firms made a request upon American Consul General Goodnow for the protection of cargoes and wharfs near the Askold. This request was forwarded by Mr. Goodnow to Rear Admiral Stirling, in command of the American fleet there, who has the matter under consideration.

No uneasiness is felt by the foreign residents of Shanghai, but the Chinese are excited.

Chefu reports say that the Japanese have captured Fort Etseshan, one of the Port Arthur defenses, after a tremendous attack.

Etseshan fort is almost in the center of the chain of forts, of which it forms one, defending Port Arthur, from which it is only about a mile and a half distant. It occupies a commanding position and is possibly only second in importance to the Golden hill forts.

Chinese arriving in junks from Port Arthur say that the Japanese have occupied Taipangtze and penetrated along the railway as far as General Stoessel's residence.

The Chinese further report that a Russian warship was hit by a shell recently and sunk in the harbor.

A Liaoyang dispatch says that notwithstanding the reports of the withdrawal of the Japanese from the Russian east front the situation remains the same. The Japanese control all the mountains east and south of the Taitse river. The Russian position is unchanged.

Nearly 150 of General Mishtchenko's cavalry have received the St. George's cross on account of distinguished service in Korea at the beginning of the war and constant fighting for six months.

According to the latest information from Port Arthur a furious Japanese attack has been repulsed with terrible loss.

There has been no serious fighting near Liaoyang, but there has been a small skirmish at Anshanshan.

The military inactivity at Liaoyang is credited to the fact that the Japanese are concentrating all their attention on Port Arthur.

His First Official Visit.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Secretary of the Navy Paul Morton made his first official visit to the Brooklyn navy yard since his appointment to the cabinet by President Roosevelt. The secretary was escorted about by Rear Admiral Rodgers, commandant of the yard. A general inspection of the various departments at the yard was made, special attention being given by the secretary to the work in progress on the new battleship Connecticut, to be launched Sept. 29. The secretary will be present on that occasion.

Bicyclist Leander Dead.

PARIS, Aug. 24.—George Leander, the American bicyclist, died yesterday here from injuries sustained in a terrible fall at the Parc au Princes on Sunday last as the result of running into a motor cycle which was pacing a race in which an attempt was being made to break the record for one hour. Leander was traveling at a pace of fifty-seven miles an hour and was more than a lap ahead when he was thrown over the handlebars of his machine and fell on his head.

Booker T. Washington, Jr., Too Fast.

QUINCY, Mass., Aug. 24.—Booker T. Washington, Jr., son of the president of Tuskegee institute, Alabama, has been fined $15 in the local police court for riding his motor bicycle above the legal speed of ten miles an hour. The Washingtons' summer home is at South Weymouth, a few miles from this city.

Miss Johnson In "Brother Jack."

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 24.—Miss Bessie Johnson, daughter of Mayor Johnson, has signed with Charles Frohman to take a part in the forthcoming production of "Brother Jack," in which Annie Russell will star this season. Miss Johnson will have an important part in the play.

Runaway Strike Breakers.

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—Two boys, aged fourteen and fifteen, have been taken from the Hammond Packing company's plant and returned to their parents in Detroit, Mich. The boys were John McGarry and Raymond Deary. They ran away from home on July 25.

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad
Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors
BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.
BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.
LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW
BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.
BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.
LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT
BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.
BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL, IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

THE STATESBORO LYNCHING.

Court of Inquiry Ordered by Governor Terrell.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 24.—On his return from St. Louis Governor Joseph M. Terrell held a conference with Sampson W. Harrison, adjutant general of Georgia, in which the recent Statesboro lynching was discussed. At its termination a court of inquiry was ordered to investigate the conduct of the militia from which the mob took the prisoners.

"I have been greatly mortified over the crime of this mob. I take comfort in the fact that it did not represent the sentiment of this state, for its action is condemned by a large majority of the people of the state and for that matter of Statesboro and Bulloch county, the scene of the crime. No defense can and no apology should be made for this action of the mob. It should be denounced by lawabiding citizens everywhere. The wretches whose lives were taken deserved death, yet it is unquestionably true that no man who took part in the homicides had the right to inflict it. The crime against these negroes is of but small importance compared with the great crime against the law.

"I regret exceedingly the military did not preserve the peace. They represented, with the civil authorities, the majesty of the law, and when the civil and military authorities failed to enforce the law, whether or not it was their fault, and the mob succeeded, then there was a triumph of lawlessness over law. I do not censure either in the absence of a thorough investigation.

"In accordance with the report and recommendation of the adjutant general I have ordered a court of inquiry composed of fair, conservative and competent officers."

A Remarkable Golden Wedding.

PEORIA, Ill., Aug. 24.—The entire town of Metamore is celebrating a remarkable golden wedding. Peter Adam Reising, his twin brother Adam Peter Reising, seventy-three years of age, and their widowed sister, Mrs. Lawrence Russman, were the chief figures of the celebration. The Reising twins and their sister were married at a triple wedding. The Reising brothers married the Russman sisters Aug. 22, 1854, at Kickapoo, Ill., and Lawrence Russman married Miss Reising. Russman died at sea many years ago, but the Reising twins and their wives are alive and well. A memorial service, held in the Metamore Catholic church, was attended by all the townspeople and many came from neighboring villages. Two thousand people took part in the celebration which followed the church service.

Attempt to Dynamite Gates.

ST. MARY'S, O., Aug. 24.—An attempt has been made by unknown persons to blow up the gates at the head of St. Mary's reservoir with dynamite. Fortunately the charge of dynamite was not sufficiently large to destroy the masonry or to displace the heavy gates. There has been much ill feeling among the people living in the vicinity of the reservoir owing to the widespread belief that the banks of the big body of water are not safe, notwithstanding that the state has spent large sums of money during the past year in strengthening the earthworks.

WHAT IS WORN.

Smart French Millinery—New Shades Much In Vogue.

Among the most popular hat shapes in Paris are those known as Varennes. They have been worn, it is true, during the summer, but with lower crowns than those now appearing. In many cases the crown is conical or funnel shaped, and the trimming almost invariably consists in a double band of velvet in two shades, leaving the upper part of the crown visible, while a plume of three feathers or even a single large feather is placed in the center of the front and caught with a high narrow buckle.

Another hat which presents a decided novelty is that of which the brim is very much broader on the left side than on the right. It is lifted at the edge, and trimming is apt to consist of a band of ribbon with a flat bow or a long sweeping plume caught with a buckle.

One of the popular shades is called jonquil. It is a cross between coral and cherry or between amber and orange, the same name being used for both tints. It is appearing on many of the new hats for autumn wear.

As a general rule, trimmings will be designed to harmonize rather than to contrast with the gowns, although pompadour effects are still in evidence.

Buttons of a costly description form a very charming trimming on many an inexpensive frock. A very smart tailor made gown recently imported from Vienna was of blue serge, trimmed with sapphire buttons set in gun metal. This is to be worn with a smart blue toque, trimmed with a large black and blue bird.

The picture shows a mountain costume of checked material. The jacket is of Norfolk cut. The skirt has a full plaited flounce. JUDIC CHOLLET.

DAINTY EFFECTS.

Louis XVI. Models Worn Charmingly by Young Girls—Smart Hats.

Some of the best gowns both for day and evening wear are exact copies of Louis XVI. models. Many debutantes have been wearing girlish frocks of that period—transparent yokes, high pointed waistbands, dainty elbow sleeves, many billowy flounces and much valenciennes lace, surmounted with hats trimmed with flowers and tied by means of ribbons under the chin. White taffeta, embroidered muslins, linens embroidered and trimmed with valenciennes, curious quiltings and puffings all play their part in the picture toilet.

One of the prettiest hats seen in Paris lately was on the Napoleonic shape of fine white lace, the inner brim being lined with bands of black chiffon velvet edged with ivy leaves. Across the top was a big black velvet bow, and it was finished with an exquisite cluster of white ostrich plumes. It was worn with a white muslin frock and a white fluffy chiffon parasol.

A great deal of Limerick lace is being used as well as a quantity of Irish crochet. Irish lace mixes charmingly with linon de soie, crepe de chine and similar thin fabrics. It gives the necessary touch of solidity to thin materials.

Painted muslins form the loveliest of summer gowns, and they are suited to the most dressy occasions. The fabric as a rule matches the background.

In the picture we have a tailor made silk skirt waist of red taffeta trimmed with bands of darker red silk.

LITTLE FRANCE

A ROMANCE OF THE DAYS WHEN "THE GREAT LORD HAWKE" WAS KING OF THE SEA

BY

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Reuben James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

Copyright, 1901, by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

"Monsieur!" she cried. "Oh, do you not know me?"

"Is it thou, Little France?" he exclaimed, dazed and bewildered by his thoughts. "Who could have thought it? How beautiful!"

She dashed away the tears with her hand. She thought he had not yet recognized her, as he lay spellbound gazing on her matchless beauty. Her scarlet lips quivered a moment, then shaped themselves for sound, and from her full, soft throat came the notes of the little Breton cradle-song which he had heard her sing in the garden of the Hesperides, "Toutouie, la, la!" But no mother ever sang it to child as she sang it then.

"Anne!" he cried, "The Lady Anne! Fool that I was! How blind! I should have known you! I should have recognized your footstep even had I lain dead at your doorstep!"

"Sir Philip! Sir Philip!" she exclaimed. "How could you forget? But I knew! Oh, my love, my love!"

She sank on her knees at the bedside again and leaned over him.

"But you are betrothed to de Vitre?" he cried in jealous anguish.

"Ah, Philip, my knight!" she murmured, "what matters it? 'Tis you I love, I love!"

She threw her arms around his neck; their lips met in one long kiss charged with dreams and ideals of years. The joy, the surprise, were almost too great for him. He closed his eyes; in his weak state he thought he would have fainted. It had all come upon him suddenly with such a shock. She had known it for two days. He had been so desperately wounded.

She was the stronger of the two then and she recovered herself the sooner. Something assisted her perhaps. Her throbbing breast as it lay upon his own was met by the pressure of something round and hard. The little locket! It flashed into her jealous mind in an instant.

"Monsieur Grafton," she said, drawing away from him with a sudden change of mood, "you not only forgot me, you not only did not know me, but you—— That locket, sir?"

"Yes, mademoiselle," answered Grafton simply, for it was impossible for him to deceive this woman, or to evade the question.

"Ah! Carrying another woman's face over your heart and speaking love to me!"

"O Anne!" he cried, "there may be another woman in the locket, there is only yourself in my heart"

"Whose picture is there?"

"I may not tell."

"Monsieur will not tell?"

"Nay, I can not. 'Tis honor seals my lips."

He wished he had never given the promise so lightly uttered in the cabin of the Sutherland, but, being given, it must be faithfully kept.

"The honor of a woman?" she asked.

"Of a man, mademoiselle, of a soldier, of a friend."

"Explain yourself, monsieur."

"Mademoiselle Anne, I can not, but I give you my word of honor as an English officer, the word of an American gentleman, your mother's land, mademoiselle, that the lady of the locket is nothing to me, that I cherish the face of no woman except your own. Ever since those days when I was held a prisoner in the old chateau, since the hour—do you recall it?—when I carried you in my arms and kissed you first, I have loved you. I have thought and dreamed of you alone among womankind. When I went away from France I left my heart behind. You have had it—you have it now."

"But the locket?" she persisted, while the music of his words rang sweetly in the most secret chamber of her heart.

"Forget it."

"Take it off, then."

"I can not."

"Can not? And yet she is nothing to you, you say?"

"Even so, yet that little thing I can not do. I have sworn never to part with it until——"

"Ah, monsieur!" she continued bitterly, turning away. "You see! What can I believe?"

"Believe only that I love you; trust in my honor; you will laugh at this, we will laugh together, when I am able to tell you some day. In the meantime have faith in me. Won't you trust me?" he continued, as she shook her head. "Twice I might have died if it had not been for you. Twice you have called me back to life. My life is yours, and yours is mine. I will not be denied." He turned and stretched out his one uninjured hand. "Come back. If there is the faintest feeling of affection in your own heart, if you know what love is, you must know 'tis here!"

She hesitated, she moved nearer, hesitated again. He strove to rise, wrenched his arm, covered his eyes with his hand, stifled a moan. That decided her. He suffered, and she fled to him once again, a little murmuring cry, an inarticulate caress on her lips.

Oh, the ecstacy of that moment!

We live long years for the emotions of an hour, the pleasure of a second. We waste lifetimes in solitary kisses, and the sum of dreams is gone in a single touch.

Anne de Rohan was promised to de Vitre. She meant to keep her promise. She was wildly, bitterly jealous of the woman in the locket, too, in spite of his assurances, although she really believed them, and she had never intended this. She knew she could never be anything to Grafton. Her reason, her sense, told her that this was folly, but the determination of her mind was abrogated by the feelings of her heart. Perhaps because she knew there was nothing beyond she gave way the more easily to her emotions. The floodgates were open again, the long-pent-up floods were out once more. Ah, this time there would be no confining them again!

She knelt beside that old bed, she slipped her fair, round young arm underneath his neck and lavished caresses upon him. Her hands played with the curls upon his forehead. Her eyes looked love in his, her voice whispered endearments in broken tones; all her being went out to meet his. She was trembling with her passion, nervous at his touch; she could not be quiet, she must move or die. She hovered over him like an angel of love and tenderness.

He lay there so white, so pale, so weak, so happy, with a love that was as strong as hers looking from his eyes. His one free hand she held tightly, pressed it to her breast, kissed it, fondled it again and again.

And how beautiful she was! One look in the unfathomable depths of those great eyes might have told him the truth before. The sound of that voice quivering with joy that was almost pain should have spoken to him. How blind he had been—a fool! He forgot five years of separation and grieved that he had lost one day! The past faded away, the future lay in the distance, the present was their own.

Presently, as the first fierce intensity of her passion spent itself, she laid her head upon his breast and listened in sweet surrender to the beating of his heart, hearing that heart throbbing for her, only for her. The room was very still. Words were never coined to express what they felt, and neither spoke.

It was dark outside. The night had fallen. Clouds had swept across the face of the moon, hiding its splendor. The sky was overcast, muttered peals of thunder rolled swiftly through the chamber. The candle had burned itself out, it flickered away; the gray shadows grew into darkness. It was deep and still there. In that silence heart whispered to heart in language which gods and lovers may understand. Bye-and-bye her arm was slipped from beneath his head. Had hours or moments passed, or had they lived an eternity since the kiss of recognition? Her head, that had lain so lightly upon his breast, was lifted. The sweet lips, whose color he could dream of even in the darkness, melted once again upon his own—and she was gone.

He had not moved or stirred. After she left him the sweet illusion was still heavy upon him. He could feel the presence of her head, the perfume, the fragrance of her hair, the beating of her heart. He closed his eyes in the darkness. Her lips seemed to brush his own again—again.

Did he sleep, did he dream? All night long she seemed to be by his side.

CHAPTER XVII.

FALLS THE FLAG OF FRANCE.

DE RAMESAY stood in his private office in the shot-racked Chateau St. Louis. From the English batteries at Point Levis the cannons were continuously firing upon the already ruined lower town, and even upon the castle itself. From Townshend's intrenchments on the landward side the heavy siege guns which had been landed from the British ships were raining shot and shell upon the upper town and the citadel. Fiedmont, the French chief of artillery, was making what reply he could. The fleet of Admiral Saunders in the basin had been moving up toward the lower town during the past week, and as de Ramesay watched them, large boats full of troops were even then being landed on the meadows and flats at the mouth of the St. Charles river and were being drawn up in columns under cover of the ships' batteries, as if preparing to approach and storm the gate nearest the bridge.

De Ramesay had just come in from a tour of the walls. It was a hopeless outlook indeed before the governor. He had done his best, but the end was approaching. Sad indeed is the moment when we realize that our best is unavailing. The rations of all had been reduced and reduced until starvation stared them in the face. No part of the town was safe now from the English fire. The very chateau itself in which he stood was riddled with shells. There was a great gaping hole in the roof of his cabinet, through which the rain poured dismally.

The temper of the garrison had grown worse and worse. Nothing whatever had been heard from de Levis. De Ramesay felt that if an assault were delivered it could not be met. His garrison originally consisted of 150 troops of the line, some 400 or 500 colony troops, and the local militia, but had been much reduced by death, wounds and starvation, and was growing less every day. The colonial soldiers and militia had been deserting in handfuls.

Presently Capt. Rouvigny entered.

"Monsieur," he said, saluting, "a body of merchants, headed by Monsieur Daine, are here to see you, and——"

"Bid them attend me in the great hall of the chateau, captain," interrupted the governor gloomily, "and summon the officers of my staff. Let some one go for Monsieur Fiedmont, if he can be spared from the walls. We need his counsel."

"I omitted to state, monsieur," continued the young officer, "that the merchants are accompanied by the officers of the city militia."

"Let them all come together, I will see them all. I know what it means," said de Ramesay despondently.

A few moments after he entered the great hall of the bullet-ridden castle. Many of the portraits which adorned it had been destroyed by the fire of the enemy. Grim old Frontenac, the unconquerable, however, still kept watch and ward over the territory he had loved, now fast slipping into the hands of the hated English. Had he been in de Vaudreuil's place, thought de Ramesay, they might not now be in such a pass.

MANIFESTO OF NICHOLAS II.

Birth of His Heir Brings Forth Changes In Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 24.—Emperor Nicholas' manifesto on the birth of an heir to the throne, the text of which is published today, abolishes corporal punishment among the rural classes and for first offenses among the sea and land forces; remits arrears owing to the state for the purchases of land and other direct imposts; sets apart $1,500,000 from the state funds for the purpose of forming an inalienable fund for the benefit of landless people in Finland; grants amnesty to those Finlanders who have emigrated without authorization; remits the fines imposed upon the rural and urban communes of Finland which refused to submit to military conscription in 1902 and 1903, and also remits the fines imposed upon the Jewish communes in the cases of Jews avoiding military service.

The manifesto provides for an all round reduction in sentences for common law offenses, while a general amnesty is accorded in the case of all political offenses with the exception of those in which murder has been done.

SCORED THE RAILROAD.

Commissioner's Plain Statement to New Haven Road Officials.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—"You can't expect to take off trains that people have been used to taking for some time just because they cease to be profitable to you. You can't shift time tables to suit your profits and at the same time cause thousands of people great inconvenience by so doing."

It was while E. C. Buckland, attorney for the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company, was trying to explain to the state railroad commissioners at a public hearing why the company he represented had taken off certain trains largely patronized by commuters to New Rochelle, Mount Vernon and other points near New York city that Frank M. Baker, one of the commissioners, interrupted him with the above declaration.

Mr. Baker's short statement, which in the opinion of all present apparently showed that the commissioners are in sympathy with the complaining passengers, was concluded with applause from half a hundred citizens who were present from several towns along the New Haven road lines.

Woodruff Visits the President.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Former Lieutenant Governor Timothy L. Woodruff of New York visited the president today. It is said positively that it was not Mr. Woodruff's purpose to discuss the New York gubernatorial nomination. The president has declined consistently to be drawn into that contest. The principal object of Mr. Woodruff in coming to Oyster Bay at this time was to consider with the president the appointment of an assistant secretary of agriculture in succession to the late J. H. Brigham.

Threw Money In His Face.

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—Postmaster General Henry C. Payne has been served with a summons to appear in a justice court in this city on Aug. 26 as a witness in a case against Chauncey M. Depew. The postmaster general did not receive the summons with pleasure and informed the constable, John Simmons, that he would ignore it entirely. "Not only did he say that," declared Simmons, "but when I offered him 50 cents and even added 10 cents for mileage, he threw the money in my face."

Six Soldiers Broke Out.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Aug. 24.—Six privates who were serving short sentences for minor offenses at Fort Ethan Allen escaped during the night from the temporary quarters that are being used while the guardhouse is undergoing repairs and up to the present time have eluded capture. The men cut a passage through the wooden partitions of the building and escaped by crawling under the floor. Troops of cavalry are searching for them.

J. T. Beckham Has Disappeared.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Considerable concern is felt here over the complete disappearance of J. Thomas Beckham, formerly of Alexandria, Va., near here, who two weeks ago advised his brother, W. H. F. Beckham, a local newspaper man, that he was at the St. Louis exposition. Since that time all efforts to locate J. T. Beckham have proved futile.

Senator Hoar Holding His Own.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 24.—General Hoar has given out the following bulletin regarding Senator Hoar: "The senator's pulse, though weak, has been more even. There has been no marked change in his condition. There has been no further setback, and it looks now as if he was holding his own."

Storm Destroys Italian Houses.

ROME, Aug. 24.—Terrific storms continue throughout the peninsula, especially in the south, where great damage has already resulted. Thirty houses have been destroyed, and twelve deaths are reported. At Sorrento the famous monastery of St. Paul was seriously injured.

Rosemount Hears Murphy-McCarren Feud Is Ended.

MR. NICOLL'S PLAN OF CAMPAIGN

Judge Parker Approves of Work Done by Vice Chairman—Would Not Promise to Speak In New York.

ESOPUS, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Plans for the national campaign have been laid before Judge Parker by De Lancey Nicoll of New York, vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, who called at Rosemount by invitation and who with Mrs. Nicoll spent several hours with the candidate and his family. Judge Parker approved everything that had been done and is enthusiastic over the campaign work.

The report carried to Rosemount by Mr. Nicoll indicated the close of the Murphy-McCarren feud in Greater New York. He said that the appointment of Victor J. Dowling as a member of the state executive committee and the head of a bureau of organization which will have charge of the city campaign is satisfactory to Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, who will do his utmost for the success of the national ticket.

Four members of a special committee of seven appointed by the Reform club of New York to call upon Judge Parker called at Rosemount and extended the candidate an invitation to speak under the club's auspices in case he decided to make speeches during the campaign. Judge Parker told his visitors that he is yet undecided as to what he will do, but that later he may be glad to avail himself of the club's invitation.

Great satisfaction is expressed over the settlement of the differences between Leader Murphy of Tammany Hall and Chairman McCarren of the state executive committee, so far as they relate to the present campaign.

Among other visitors at Rosemount were William H. Wood of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., second deputy attorney general for New York state, who was accompanied by Mrs. Wood.

Veteran Comedienne Dead.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24.—Mrs. Rosina Watkins, a retired comedienne and a great favorite in the stock company days of a generation ago, is dead at the Edwin Forrest home here, aged seventy-six years. She was born in Liverpool and starred in Great Britain and this country. Mrs. Watkins, whose stage name was Rosina Shaw, played in the famous McCready company and afterward was one of the favorites at Niblo's Garden, New York, and in Hamblin's Bowery theater. She was a sister of D. T. Shaw, author of "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," and was the mother of Amy Lee, the well known actress.

Fatal Hand Car Accident.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Six employees of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg Railroad company have been injured in an accident to a hand car at Lincoln park. After getting under way on the hand car the men began to crowd each other. Andrew John, who was near the edge of the car, was pushed off, falling under the wheels of the car. The ... of the wheels meeting the obstruction of his body overthrew the car, which was traveling at about ten miles an hour, and the men were dumped into a ditch at the side of the tracks, with the car on top of them. Two of the men will die.

Murder Near Sherman, Conn.

SHERMAN, Conn., Aug. 24.—As the result of an autopsy performed by Coroner Doten it was found that Taylor, the farmer murdered near here, had been shot once in the right side, a shotgun being the weapon used. The lower part of Taylor's right lung was torn away, and it was evident from the lacerated wound that the gun had been discharged when very near the body of the victim. Taylor's skull had been crushed, probably by the stock of the gun, and there were other marks on the body that showed evidences of a fierce struggle. A man named Schmidt, who is suspected, is missing. The object was robbery.

Bitter Feeling Against Canada.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Aug. 24.—Bitter feeling has been aroused here over the action of Canada in deciding to establish a custom house in Hamilton inlet, Labrador, which Newfoundland claims as her territory by reason of her occupation of it for the past 100 years, though Canada in recent years has advanced a claim to the region. The government is being urged to prevent the

DIAMOND DUST.

Joe Quinby, a brother of Frank, of the Westfields, is playing wonderful ball at short for Montclair.

The Norwich (Conn.) Club has released Outfielder "Tuck" Turner, the old Crescent player, of this city.

The Evansville Club has signed Infielder Jack Bonner, who played one game for St. Mary here last season.

Fred Burchell, the Perth Amboy boy who defeated Westfield for Alis last year, is pitching winning ball for Baltimore.

Rochester has traded Outfielder Tepire for Jack Rothfuss, of Newark, who played with the Kansas City team. Rothfuss played first base for Plainfield a few weeks ago.

Newark Sunday News published a very good picture of the Chatham Field Club, and also the Washington A. A. Badgely, a former local pitcher could easily be distinguished.

Matheweson was in great form Saturday and Pittsburg could do nothing with his delivery. Three safe hits was all the Pirates got. Beaumont, Bitchey and McCormick were the ones who did the bingling.

"An ideal man at the bat, in my mind, is Beaumont, of Pittsburg," said Manager Hanlon, of Brooklyn. "He steps up to the ball easily and without pulling his body away. His every step enables him to keep his eye on the ball at all times, whereas a too quick, sudden step is apt to make the batter lose the ball momentarily. There is a slight jar, maybe a slight duck of the head, and the eye loses track of the ball."

James Cullem, a former Westfield umpire, officiated at Madison on Saturday and The Summit Record has this to say of his good work. "When the bases were unoccupied Mr. Cullem took his position directly behind the batsman and not a murmur of disapproval was heard against his decisions on balls and strikes. When a player reached a base Umpire Cullem took his stand behind the pitcher and followed every play closely with the result that game was entirely free from the disgusting bickering and delays resulting from an incompetent or unfair umpire's decisions."

AUTOMOBILING.

C. W. Holland, of West Seventh street, is en route to Atlantic City in his Thomas touring car.

J. V. Beekman, of West Eighth street, has returned from Asbury Park in his big Winton touring car. He arrived yesterday, after a fast trip up without accident.

Arthur Murphy, of Watchung avenue, left this morning to make the trip to Monmouth Beach in his Oldsmobiler unabout. He will spend two weeks at the beach.

While at Long Branch Saturday, F. L. C. Martin took part in the big automobile parade there, entering the line with his Oldsmobile touring car, in which he had made the trip from this city. There were about fifty machines in line.

GRANT CLUB MEETS TONIGHT

ROOSEVELT AND FAIRBANKS BANNER FOR SOMERSET STREET.

The reorganization meeting of the U. S. Grant Club in the borough this evening promises to be interesting. A great deal of business is to be transacted and several well known speakers have promised to be in attendance and talk. Mayor N. B. Smalley will preside and he will be assisted by B. A. Hegeman, Jr. As soon as the roll has been signed by all the old members and as many new ones as can be secured, permanent officers will be elected. The U. S. Grant Glee Club, which was very active during the past few years, will be on hand with a new lot of campaign songs for rendition.

Steps have already been taken by the borough leaders to place a Roosevelt and Fairbanks banner across Somerset street and salesmen will submit samples tonight. A selection will be made and the raising will be marked by a big demonstration.

The funeral of Edward Ford Feickert, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Feickert, of East Front street, was held at the home yesterday morning. Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, of Grace church, officiated. The child was buried at Hillside cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary J. Elliott, who died Saturday, was held from her late residence, yesterday afternoon. The service was conducted by Rev. Dr. D. J. BEHIND CLOSED PORTALS

HAPPENINGS OF THE LOCAL FRATERNAL ORDERS.

The annual convention of the State division, Ancient Order of Hibernians, opened at the Catholic Lyceum in Camden yesterday morning. Following the preliminaries the convention went into a secret session, which continued the greater part of the day.

It was fifty years yesterday since Samuel Mills Clark, of Newark, was introduced to the mysteries of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and in recognition of this circumstance in particular and his devoted service to the order in general, Clinton Lodge of Irvington gave a reception in his honor last night.

The members of Benevolent Council, No. 256, Jr. O. U. A. M., are requested to attend the meeting Friday evening, as there will be "something doing" by the good and welfare committee, and other business of importance is to be transacted. Beginning with next month, the council will meet every week again.

At the meeting of Central Lodge No. 48, A. O. U. W., Thursday evening the members will be honored by a visit from District Deputy Grand Master Workman John T. Cunningham, of Paterson. The entertainment committee is busy arranging an entertainment for the occasion, and refreshments will be served.

WANTED—A CANDIDATE.

Elizabeth Needs a Republican for Mayoralty.

There is difficulty in Elizabeth in getting any citizen to stand as the Republican candidate for Mayor. This is not because Elizabeth cannot elect Republican Mayors, for in the past thirty-three years five of the city's nine chief executives have been Republicans. But it is because, under present conditions, no Republican candidate that he will receive the full Republican vote; no, not even in a Presidential year. Just at present Dr. Victor Mravlag, councilman from the Ninth ward, one of the best informed men in the city, is urged to accept the Republican nomination, and the city central committee seems anxious to have him run. But if he should consent to head the local Republican ticket there is no telling what the banner Republican wards, the Tenth, Eleventh and Twelfth, would do. To county, State and National tickets they give unswerving loyalty; to the city ticket they give everything or nothing, just as they take the notion. Mayor Ryan, the present Democratic incumbent, is popular in these strongholds, and it will take a very strong man to defeat him. Dr. Mravlag is a strong man in every other part of the city, and if these particular wards gave him their support he could be elected; but he feels that they will not and, therefore, has thus far declined to run. Mayor Ryan has made a fairly good chief executive, he has some of the traits and peculiarities of former Mayor Haynes, of Newark, and there is no special indication, just at present, of any popular desire for a change.—Newark Evening News.

Ten Hours at the Shore.

Hope chapel's postponed excursion takes place Saturday with Asbury Park and Ocean Grove as the destination. The Camden "Post-Telegram" must have been joking when it suggested that Charles C. Black be sent to the Legislature to father a bill for equal taxation. The Democratic leaders know better than that. They want him to run for Governor, and he is the best Democrat in sight for the nomination. He should be nominated for Governor. He will be defeated, but that will not be his fault. If there were more Democrats—that is, enough more to overcome the Republican majority—he would be elected. —Jersey City Journal.

The Good Old Summer Time.

When and where to go for a vacation is a question which perplexes us all. There are beautiful places in every section of the country, but to reach them at a moderate rate and within a reasonable time is a great barrier. New Jersey has bounded to the front as a summer resort and well she might since her shore is within reach of all. Her attractions are too numerous to mention, and the accommodations provided for the tourist being unequalled anywhere in the land. The famous beach resorts of New Jersey are Atlantic Highlands, Seabright, Long Branch, Asbury Park, Ocean Grove, Belmar, Spring Lake, Sea Girt, Point Pleasant, Atlantic City, Ocean City, Cape May and Beach Haven. Each is unique in environments and caters to the best class of summer travelers. Every convenience is at hand for genuine enjoyment and each can be reached by rail or boat, the lines are both operated by the New Jersey Central and C. M. Burt, G. P. A., 143 Liberty St., New York, has issued an illustrated brochure detailing the beauties and advantages of the above resorts and a hundred others. This book will be sent to any address upon receipt of six cents in stamps, and one looking for a vacation region would do well to send for it.

The start was made Monday with a party consisting of Dr. H. C. Luckey and Elvin Van Name. The first day's fishing brought great luck, the baskets at evening containing a fine mess of weakfish, bluefish and porgies. On the following day Dreier and VanName landed 18 weakfish and 30 porgies. At the conclusion of the sport VanName hooked a four foot shark, which he finally landed after a good struggle.

HARMONY PREVAILS IN U. S. GRANT CLUB RANKS

Borough Republicans Enthusiastic at Reorganization Meeting Last Night.

OFFICERS ELECTED

CHARLES M. DOLLIVER CHOSEN PRESIDENT BY UNANIMOUS VOTE.

Former Mayor Hegeman Makes Address in Which He Declares Local Conditions Must be Forgotten.

Perfect harmony between antis and annexationists was the all important feature at the reorganization of the U. S. Grant Club, the borough's representative Republican organization, last night. Spencer's Hall was the scene of the gathering and the old time enthusiasm was everywhere apparent in the large crowd of G. O. P. followers. To the leaders the proceedings were a source of great satisfaction and they are confident that North Plainfield will come to the fore with a big majority for Roosevelt and Fairbanks.

Mayor N. B. Smalley, who was the original president of the club, called the meeting to order and he was elected chairman. After Former Mayor B. A. Hegeman, Jr., had declined to accept the presidency Charles M. Dolliver was unanimously elected. Borough Clerk Frank Rowley was chosen permanent secretary and Robert M. Clark, Jr., was elected treasurer.

A committee consisting of W. C. Smith, Dr. J. H. Cooley and J. K. Arnold was chosen to select five vice presidents, the names to be presented at the next meeting. Five delegates were selected to attend the State convention of Republican clubs at Asbury Park, September 7. They are W. C. Smith, Dr. J. H. Cooley, Thomas Doud, E. A. Overton and H. H. Webb. The delegates were empowered to appoint substitutes should they find it impossible to attend.

Several banner agents were in attendance and submitted samples. Chairman Smalley appointed Dr. J. H. Buchanan, E. A. Overton and Frank Rowley a committee to make a selection and report at the next meeting.

Former Mayor Hegeman was called upon to make an address. In part he spoke as follows:

"I rejoice over the fact that North Plainfield has always made an enviable record in its work for the Republican party in local, county, State and National elections, and I hope this fall will be no exception. Everybody recognizes that there is not that perfect harmony existing in our ranks, but this is no place to go into the causes that led up to this variance of opinion. We are about to enter into a National campaign, and to be successful we have got to lay aside and forget all local conditions."

Following Mr. Hegeman's remarks the Glee Club rendered several selections and the membership roll was opened for the addition of names. The hall has been rented for three months and as soon as arrangements can be perfected it will be kept open every evening and will be headquarters for the borough campaign leaders.

Excursionists Off for Shore.

Bound for a day at the Asbury Park shore, nearly nine hundred excursionists started from the North Avenue Station at 8 o'clock this morning with the Warren chapel excursion. Eleven cars were well filled with the picnickers and many had overflowed into the baggage car when the train pulled out this morning The train was in charge of Walter Durling, of Somerville, as conductor, while William Dunham, of Dunellen, was at the throttle. The Sunday-school committee in charge of the excursion consisted of J. W. Gavett, chairman; W. H. Brokaw, Thomas Finney and William Demarest. The excursionists will leave the shore at 6:10 and should arrive in this city shortly after 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Snyder's Mother Dead.

Baltas Pickell, who unil a few years ago was a resident of Whitehouse. A daughter, Mrs. E. J. Snyder, of this city, survives. The funeral will be held Saturday in the Whitehouse Methodist church. Rev. S. D. Decker, the pastor, will officiate. Interment will be in Rural Hill cemetery.

STRANGER ROBS MAN WHO BEFRIENDED HIM

Stole Three Hundred Dollars Worth of Jewelry From the Home of Chas. C. Randolph.

THE THIEF ESCAPES

CLAIMED TO COME FROM PHILADELPHIA, AND GAVE NAME OF WAGNER.

Slipped Upstrirs While Benefactor's Wife Was in Garden and Rifled Bureaus and Dressers.

Frank Wagner, a German who came to this city from Philadelphia, penniless and without a place to go, yesterday repaid his benefactor, Charles C. Randolph, of Albert street, by ransacking his home yesterday afternoon and stealing $300 worth of jewelry. Slipping upstairs while Mrs. Randolph was in the garden, he rifled dressers and bureaus and then fled by a front door, going in the direction of Clinton avenue. An hour after he had gone the theft was discovered and by the time the police were informed he had made good his escape.

According to the list furnished the police the following articles were taken: One 0 size woman's gold watch; one gold ring set with solitaire diamond weighing one carat; gold ring set with two diamonds and a ruby; one chatelaine pin; one crescent pin studded with pearls; one gold necklace holding solid gold heart. In his hurry to get away, the thief overlooked a pocketbook containing a large sum of money which had been left lying on a bureau.

Wagner, who is about forty-three years old, appealed to Randolph some months ago for work, claiming he was without funds and an utter stranger in town. He was taken in and fed and though Randolph had nothing for him to do at the time, he kept him doing a few odd jobs in the garden and about the premises. Later a position was secured for him in Newark with Randolph's firm, a tar roofing concern.

Yesterday while Mrs. Randolph was looking over her garden, Wagner appeared and told her of having met with an accident in which two of his ribs had been broken. He had just been discharged from St. Michael's Hospital, he said, and had returned to Plainfield to recuperate fully before resuming work. He remained in the garden a short time and then saying he wanted a drink of water, went in the house to get it. When he did not return Mrs. Randolph became suspicious and while looking for him discovered that her jewelry had been taken.

The police have taken every precaution to apprehend Wagner and Chief Kiely believes he will be arrested within a short time. The authorities in other cities believe he is a well known crook who has been committing just such thefts in various parts of this and adjoining states.

BURNING CAR TIES UP JERSEY CENTRAL TRAFFIC

All Four Tracks Blocked for Three Hours by Trouble at Graceland.

HOT JOURNAL AT FAULT

SET FIRE TO FREIGHT CAR AND CAUSES $5,000 LOSS.

Westfield Department Unable to Subdue Flames Owing to a Lack of Water—Valuable Merchandise in Peril.

Thousands of dollars worth of valuable merchandise was imperilled and all traffic on the New Jersey Central was blocked for three hours by a freight train fire which occurred between Fanwood and Westfield shortly after 6 o'clock last evening. Scores of homeward-bound Plainfield commuters were held up until 9:30, while the Westfield fire department fought the flames with picks and sand, water not being available. One big freight car, loaded with furniture and dry goods, was totally destroyed, entailing a loss of $5,000.

The trouble occurred on one of the fast west-bound freight trains and was due to a hot journal on a car just behind the engine. The under part of the car caught fire and before it was noticed by the crew was ascending the sides. Just outside of Westfield the train was stopped and uncoupling the burning car the engineer attempted to run with it to Fanwood where the fire department could be summoned. At Graceland the flames had spread to such an extent that another car ahead of it caught and to save the latter the burning one had to be dropped. The Westfield department was called out but there was no water to be had and the only thing the men could do was to hasten its burning out by pulling the sides away. The debris soon piled over the adjoining tracks and the passenger trains could not get through.

In every one of the cars composing the train, there was a great amount of merchandise and but for the engineer's action in removing the danger the loss would have been very heavy. Only the trucks were left of the burned car and these were picked up by the wrecking crew when they had cooled off.

FANWOOD ACTRESS MARRIED

MISS BEARDSLEY SECRETLY WEDDED TO A NEW YORK PHYSICIAN.

Miss Mariona Temple Beardsley, daughter of Charles Beardsley, of Fanwood, and Dr. Aspinwall Judd, of West Sixty-ninth street, New York, were quietly married on August 16, but only their closest friends knew it until today.

Dr. Judd and Miss Beardsley, with two friends, drove to Grace church, Tenth street and Broadway, New York, where, after a consultation with the Rev. C. B. Ackley, they were married. So secretly was the marriage planned that no member of either family was present. In fact, the member of Dr. Judd's family were surprised to learn that he had taken a wife.

Mrs. Judd was a member of Mrs. Fiske's company for a season and also played with John Drew. It was said last night that Dr. Judd was attracted to Miss Beardsley when she was appearing with Mrs. Fiske. Dr. Judd and his bride are in the mountains on their honeymoon.

YOUNG CHURCH PEOPLE STEAL ICE CREAM SPOONS

Complications Follow the Appropriation of John Tier, Sr.'s, Lake House Silver.

SUMMONED THE POLICE

TROUBLE ADJUSTED BY LEADER PAYING FOR MISSING ARTICLES.

One Young Woman Faints in the Excitement, and Trolley Traffic is Blocked by Holding Up Car.

Not until he had invoked the aid of the police and had threatened the entire party with arrest, did John Tier, Sr., of Bank place, recover a large number of spoons taken from his ice cream pavilion, last night, by the members of a church trolley excursion from Newark. Their car was stopped at the Watchung avenue terminus and matters were becoming serious when a leader of the young people volunteered to pay for the property confiscated. In the excitement caused by the appearance of Patrolman Higgins, sent from police headquarters, one young woman, who is said to have had two of the missing spoons, became hysterical and fainted away. Between the hurry to revive her and the argument following Mr. Tier's demands, traffic on the various trolley lines was blocked and no end of complications were promised when matters became adjusted.

It is a pernicious habit among young people to appropriate some article from hotels or restaurants as a souvenir when on an outing and Mr. Tier has suffered greatly in this manner. Small articles like spoons and plates have been taken from his pavilion without number and the petty thefts have become very annoying. Last evening the party of young people from the Peddie Memorial church, Newark, entered the place and after being served with cream, the attendants noted that nearly every spoon had disappeared. Mr. Tier was called but his demands for their return were only laughed at. When they returned to their car, he called the police by telephone and Patrolman Higgins was detailed to investigate. Even then the spoons were withheld, everybody denying that they had any, and arrests would have followed but for the restitution being made.

HEMORRHAGES PROVE FATAL

PETER GALBRAITH, SR., STRICKEN WHILE AT WORK, DIES SOON AFTER.

Stricken with hemorrhages while at work on the foundation of a new building on Mountain avenue, Peter Galbraith, Sr., of West Fourth street, died shortly afterward, yesterday afternoon. He was seen to fall by his brother, John Galbraith, and John Lawlor, who rushed to his side and carried him to a nearby porch. Dr. Buchanan and Father Egan were summoned but he breathed his last just as the former arrived.

Galbraith was sixty years old and was very well known throughout the city, having moved to the West End from Brooklyn in 1864. He had always followed the mason's trade and of late years has been a contractor in the same line. Surviving him are a widow and five sons, Martin and Joseph, of Pittsburg, Pa., Daniel, of Richmond, Va., Edward and Peter, Jr., of this city, and one sister, Mrs. Farley, of New York. The dead man was at one time president of Bricklayers' Local Union and of the T. A. B. Society. He was also a member of St. Mary's Church Debt Society.

Funeral services over the body will be held from St. Mary's church Saturday morning and interment will be made in St. Mary's cemetery.

FEATURE OF BAND CONCERT TO BE SOLOS

William Redmond and David McFadyen Engaged to Sing Tomorrow Night.

ATZ ON THE PICCOLO

"KARAMA" AND "PRIMROSE" AMONG INSTRUMENTAL SELECTIONS.

Desire to Raise $40 to Insure Next Week's Open Air Performance—Reserved Seats.

The programme arranged by Leader Ben LaVere for rendition at tomorrow evening's band concert is without doubt the best of any given this season. Beside a collection of the best popular instrumental numbers, it embraces three soloists, William Redmond and David McFadyen, who will sing several new songs and Louis Atz, an expert piccolo soloist. Redmond will introduce "When the Bees Are in the Hive," and for the first time in Plainfield, "Here's My Friend," and "Mississippi Mamie" will be sung by McFadyen, a newcomer in this city but a "coon shouter" who is popular in Newark and New York. In the instrumentals, "Karama" and "Primrose" are new.

If $40 can be raised by the sale of grandstand seats and collections tomorrow night, it will mean another concert on the following Friday, otherwise there will be none. The charge for seating accommodations will be the same, ten cents, and Mayor N. B. Smalley urges that all take advantage of it and thus assist the cause while finding enjoyment. The municipal baseball game, which is to be played on September 7, will be for the benefit of the concert fund. Gardinieri's band, of New York, which is to play at the coming Italian celebration, has been engaged to give a concert previous to and after the baseball contest. The concert for tomorrow in detail is as follows:

March—"Karama" ..... Vivian Grey

FARMERS GATHER IN SWARMS

SWACKHAMER AND LUNGER SPEAK AT HUNTERDON COUNTY PICNIC.

For the thirteenth time in as many years, the greater part of Hunterdon County's agriculturists flocked to the fair grounds at Flemington, yesterday, where the annual farmer's picnic is still in progress. Commencing yesterday morning it is to last until tonight and by that time the attendance will have passed the 5,000 mark.

The grounds have been transformed for the occasion into a miniature "Coney Island" and the merry-go-rounds, miniature railways, peanut and cane-ringing stands have been receiving liberal patronage from the younger element. To the adult grangers attraction centers in the speeches, and among those who made addresses yesterday were Assemblyman Swackhamer, of Somerset County, and James R. Brown, of New York, a disciple of the Henry George school.

Brown's argument for single tax failed to impress the crowd but Swackhamer's speech on "Democracy" caught its fancy. It was overflowing with Swackhamerian metaphors, similes and references to ancient Rome in connection with "unequal taxation in New Jersey" and the soil tillers applauded frequently. William Lunger, of North Plainfield, made a speech on prohibition.

Several other notables are to be on hand this afternoon to advise the farmers how to vote and the picnic will terminate at night in a blaze of oratory and fireworks.

In the Borough Court.

David Totten, Frank Meeker and William Godown, arrested by the borough police for disorderly conduct, were dismissed by Recorder Doud, with a reprimand last night. Frank Willett, arrested on a similar charge, was sent to jail for ten days.

PLAINFIELD GIRL'S ACCIDENTAL FATAL SHOT

Sadie Mesler Kills Young Italian in New York, While Examining a Revolver.

SHE IS PROSTRATED

HELD IN $1,000 BAIL TO AWAIT THE CORONER'S ACTION.

Daughter of Charles Mesler, of This City—Pasquale Aquino, of Staten Island, the Victim.

Pasquale Aquino, a young Italian who resided on Staten Island, was instantly killed on East Fourteenth street, New York, yesterday afternoon, by a pistol bullet accidentally fired by Miss Sadie Mesler, a fifteen-year-old girl, a former resident of this city. The shooting occurred in front of the home of her aunt, Mrs. James Montjoy, where she has been living since leaving Plainfield, and for a time the neighborhood was in great excitement, a report spreading that the young man was a victim of the notorious "black hand" which has been terrorizing the Metropolis.

With another sister, Florence, Sadie was wandering about the Montjoy home when she discovered a small pistol lying on a bureau in the front room.

"I wonder how it works," she said, and taking it to a window she started to examine it more closely.

"Look out, it will go off," screamed her sister.

The words were hardly spoken when there was a report and Sadie threw the weapon from her. Looking in the direction which the bullet took, the girls saw a figure lying upon the sidewalk opposite and people standing about it. Sadie flew upstairs with the revolver and hid it. Florence went across the street and learned that a boy had been shot dead and she returned with this information to her sister.

Mrs. Montjoy was not home at the time and when she returned she found Sadie lying upon a bed as though dead. The girl passed from one fainting spell to another and was very weak when the police, after a long search, learned that she was responsible for the accident and placed her under arrest. She was taken to the Fifth street police station in a cab and was held in $1,000 bail to await the coroner's investigation. The bail was furnished later in the day.

The girl is the daughter of Charles Mesler, a local painter, and formerly lived with her sister, Mrs. Edward Smith, of Allen place. She also resided with another sister, Mrs. Harry Montross, of East Third street. The family lived at Scotch Plains before coming to Plainfield.

Aquino was sixteen years old and was employed by a tailor at 826 East Eleventh street. He was on his way to an establishment in Fifth avenue when the bullet killed him.

BUILT A LAUNCH.

Plainfielders Ready to Dip Their Craft at New Market.

The gasolene launch which Chester Briggs and William Williams, both of Albert street, have been building, is at last ready for use. The young men had the boat completed sometime ago, but through some fault in the machinery have been unable to launch it. The builders originally intended to place the launch on Raritan Bay, but on account of the fact that it is so late in the season they have decided to take the craft to New Market. It is equipped with a three horse power engine.

Harvey Fisk & Sons Get Bonds.

Colonel Edwards, chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, at Washington, D. C., has been informed by M. L. Turner, of Oklahoma City, who was the successful bidder for the recent issue of $3,000,000 of Philippine bonds, that he has transferred these bonds to Harvey Fisk & Sons, of New York, and requests that the department recognize the latter firm as his agents.

UNION'S DEMOCRATS ARE OFF ON A LARK

Rank and File of County Democracy at Point View Grove Today.

PLAINFIELDERS THERE

"FARMER ORATOR" MARTINE POURS HOT SHOT INTO ENEMY.

Programme of Sports a Feature—Trip on the Cygnus—Flanagan Present at the Outing.

Accompanied by a big band of music, all the party notables from three counties and plenty of everything for a thorough good time, 800 Democrats sailed from Chancellor dock, Elizabeth, this morning, on the steamboat Cygnus, bound for Point View Grove, Long Island Sound. In the front rank of the leaders were James E. Martine, the "sage of Cedar Brook" eager to rid himself of a few figures of speech, William W. St. John and many other Plainfield Democrats. DeWitt Clinton Flanagan, of Morristown, also joined the throng and the outing bids fair to be one of the most successful of the many conducted by the Elizabeth Democratic Executive committee.

In former years it was the custom to sail around Staten Island before steaming up the Sound, but today a new programme was carried out. After the Cygnus passed through the Kills, it turned about and sailed through the Narrows down past Coney Island. Off Rockaway Beach the steamer put about again and pointed her prow for the Long Island shore, landing at the Grove early this afternoon, when dinner was served immediately. The hole of the boat had been stocked with a supply of eatables and drinkables and there was plenty for everybody.

The brass band numbers twenty-five pieces and while the Democrats are strolling about, it will render a musical prorgamme. The honor of making the address of the day was accorded the "Silver Tongued Orator" and he will evidently live up to his reputation in commenting on the tariff, the trusts, Andrew Jackson and Jeffersonian simplicity.

A programme of sports will be carried out that includes a relay race, an obstacle race, a potato race, a 200-yard dash, a half-mile flat race, the whole to wind up with an attempt to catch a greased porker. The man who succeeds in landing the porker will get a gold medal. Medals have also been secured for the prize winners in the other events. A game of baseball will form part of the festivities, and at its conclusion the start for home will be made.

GUESTS OF MIDGETS.

Mr. and Mrs. George Laible Entertained Friends at Dreamland Yesterday.

While visiting Dreamland, Coney Island, with William C. Mundy yesterday, Frank Putnam, of East Sixth street, had opportunity to renew his acquantance with Mr. and Mrs. George Laible, formerly of this city, but now in the Midget City at Coney Island. Mr. and Mrs. Laible are each about three feet in height and several years ago Mr. Laible was a resident of Dunellen, to which place he moved from Somerset street, where he had previously had his home. The little people conducted them on a tour of inspection through their home, the smallest city in the world. The visitors were introduced to Mr. and Mrs. Tom Thumb and Mrs. Thumb's brother, along with several others who inhabitant the small city, populated at seventy persons. Putnam and Mundy visited the theatre and circus at which the little people perform.

Party Committee Meeting.

Only routine business was transacted at the meeting of the Union Republican county committee at the Dix building, Elizabeth, last evening. There was a full attendance of members from this city. The meeting adjourned early, most of the local members going to the county clerk's office to witness the naturalization of a number of Plainfield residents.

Picnic at Watchung.

Nearly a score of members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the German Lutheran church spent yesterday afternoon and evening at the home of Mrs. Koch at Watchung. The trip was made by stage, the picnickers taking their lunch baskets and returned late in the evening.

The fall styles are now beginning to be shown and Manager Adelberg invites inspection.

The slashing of prices at Levy Bros. West Front street department store is cleaning off their shelves at a rate that bids fair to make it possible for the workmen to be in the store in a few days making the alterations planned by that popular firm. Everything is going cheap; you can see some of the bargains from the sidewalk, but you must go inside and look around to clearly realise that if you don't buy soon, you'll miss the chance of the season.

August, the month when everyone is supposed to be taking the rest needed after the year's hard work, is unheeded at Boehm's big dry goods store where everything is activity no matter what the elements. It is one of the "special" months when everything in the dress goods and men's furnishing departments are put on sale at remarkably low prices. Just now, the millinery display includes the fall lines of ready-to-wear felts, only the newest and most up-to-date styles. "Bargains at Boehm's" is an apt term and in addition—Blue Exchange stamps.

BOOK NEWS.

It is planned to issue on Thursday of each week items of library news. This will frequently take the form of book lists, such as lists of books recently added, lists on special subjects and like topics. Frequently the lists will be annotated, the aim being to make these annotations of real service to the reader, by giving him the opinion of a trustworthy critic as to the value of the books or a few words as to their scope. Borrowers should keep these lists. The Plainfield Public Library will furnish to anyone making application a list of its books on a given subject.

A REPUTATION.

How it Was Made and Retained in Plainfield.

A good reputation is not easily earned and it was only by hard consistent work among our citizens that Doan's Kidney Pills won their way to the proud distinction attained in this locality. The public endorsement of scores of Plainfield residents has rendered invaluable service to the community. Read what this citizen says:

Charles Giese, cigar manufacturer, of 25 Elm place, says: "I was subject to attacks of kidney complaint for two or three years. Most of the pain was in my back and hips and I could not stoop or straighten without feeling sharp shooting twinges. When I sat for any length of time I grew stiff and sore and was compelled to give up and move about. I grew so bad I had to do something for it. I had read a great deal about Doan's Kidney Pills being such good medicine for kidney troubles so I got a box of them at L. W. Randolph's drug store. I used them according to directions and after two or three days I felt better. I continued their use until the trouble disappeared."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name Doan's and take no other.
